PSALM CV.(51)

Removal of the Ark.

An exhortation to praise God, and to seek out his works. 7 The story of God's providence over Abraham, 16 over Joseph, 23 over Jacob in Egypt, 26 over Moses delivering the Israelites, 37 over the Israelites brought out of Egypt, fed in the wilderness, and planted in Canaan.

1 O [a]give thanks unto the Lord; call upon his name;

(51) In 1 Chron. xvi. 7, we read, "On that day David delivered forth this Psalm, to thank the Lord, into the hands of Asaph, and his brethren." The passage which follows is nearly the same as the 105th Psalm. The variations between them are supposed to have originated from this cause: in 1 Chron. xvi. we read the Psalm as it was composed for the occasion of the removal of the ark. The 105th Psalm is the same song of praise, corrected for temple worship.

Psalm xcvi. vide 1 Chron. xvi. This Psalm was composed on the same occasion, and varies only from the original, as corrected for the temple service.—Vide Lightfoot.

Psalm cvi. On the insertion of this, and the two preceding Psalms, Lightfoot observes, "These are the Psalms David then appointed; ordinarily and well known, and read in the book of Psalms, when Ezra penned the book of Chronicles; and therefore he giveth them so very short in that book."

24 And [x]he increased his people greatly;
And made them stronger than their enemies.
25 He turned their heart to hate his people,
To deal subtilly with his servants.
26 He [y]sent Moses his servant;
And Aaron [z]whom he had chosen.
27 They [a]showed [*]his signs among them,
And wonders in the land of Ham.
28 He [b]sent darkness, and made it dark;
And [c]they rebelled not against his word.
29 He [d]turned their waters into blood,
And slew their fish.
30 Their [e]land brought forth frogs in abundance,
In the chambers of their kings.
31 He [f]spake, and there came divers sorts of flies,
And lice in all their coasts.
32 He gave [†]them hail for rain,
And flaming fire in their land.
33 He [g]smote their vines also and their fig trees;
And brake the trees of their coasts.
34 He [h]spake, and the locusts came,
And caterpillars, and that without number,
35 And did eat up all the herbs in their land,
And devoured the fruit of their ground.
36 He [i]smote also all the firstborn in their land,
The [j]chief of all their strength.
37 He [k]brought them forth also with silver and gold:
And there was not one feeble person among their tribes.
38 Egypt [l]was glad when they departed;
For the fear of them fell upon them.
39 He [m]spread a cloud for a covering;
And fire to give light in the night.
40 The [n]people asked, and he brought quails,
And [o]satisfied them with the bread of heaven.
41 He [p]opened the rock, and the waters gushed out;
They ran in the dry places like a river.
42 For he remembered [q]his holy promise,
And Abraham his servant.
43 And he brought forth his people with joy,
And his chosen with [‡]gladness;
44 And [r]gave them the lands of the heathen:
And they inherited the labor of the people;
45 That [s]they might observe his statutes,
And keep his laws.

An exhortation to praise God, 4 for his greatness, 8 for his kingdom, 13 for his general judgment.

1 O [a]sing unto the LORD a new song:
Sing unto the LORD, all the earth.
2 Sing unto the LORD, bless his name;
Show forth his salvation from day to day.
3 Declare his glory among the heathen,
His wonders among all people.
4 For [b]the LORD is great, and [c]greatly to be praised:

[11] Let [k]the heavens rejoice, and let the earth be glad;
Let [l]the sea roar, and the fulness thereof.
[12] Let the field be joyful, and all that is therein:
Then shall all the trees of the wood rejoice [13] before the LORD,
For he cometh—for he cometh to judge the earth:
He shall judge the world with righteousness,
And the people with his truth.

PSALM CVI.

The psalmist exhorteth to praise God. 4 He prayeth for pardon of sin, as God did with the fathers. 7 The story of the people's rebellion, and God's mercy. 47 He concludeth with prayer and praise.

[1] *Praise ye the LORD.
O [a]give thanks unto the LORD;
For he is good:
For his mercy endureth for ever.
[2] Who [b]can utter the mighty acts of the LORD?
Who can show forth all his praise?
[3] Blessed are they that keep judgment,
And he that [c]doeth righteousness at all times.
[4] Remember [d]me, O LORD,
With the favor that thou bearest unto thy people:
O visit me with thy salvation;
[5] That I may see the good of thy chosen,
That I may rejoice in the gladness of thy nation,
That I may glory with thine inheritance.
[6] We [e]have sinned with our fathers,
We have committed iniquity, we have done wickedly.
[7] Our fathers understood not thy wonders in Egypt;
They remembered not the multitude of thy mercies;
But [f]provoked him at the sea, even at the Red Sea.
[8] Nevertheless he saved them [g]for his name's sake,
That he might make his mighty power to be known.
[9] He [h]rebuked the Red Sea also, and it was dried up:
So [i]he led them through the depths, as through the wilderness.
[10] And [j]he saved them from the hand of him that hated them,
And redeemed them from the hand of the enemy.
[11] And [k]the waters covered their enemies:
There was not one of them left.
[12] Then [l]believed they his words;
They sang his praise.
[13] †They soon forgat his works;
They waited not for his counsel;
[14] But ‡lusted exceedingly in the wilderness,
And tempted God in the desert.
[15] And [m]he gave them their request;
But [n]sent leanness into their soul.
[16] They [o]envied Moses also in the camp,
And Aaron the saint of the LORD.

17 The [p]earth opened, and swallowed up Dathan,
And covered the company of Abiram.
18 And [q]a fire was kindled in their company;
The flame burned up the wicked.
19 They [r]made a calf in Horeb,
And worshipped the molten image.
20 Thus [s]they changed their glory
Into the similitude of an ox that eateth grass.
21 They [t]forgat God their Saviour,
Which had done great things in Egypt;
22 Wondrous works in [u]the land of Ham,
And terrible things by the Red Sea.
23 Therefore [v]he said that he would destroy them,
Had not Moses his chosen stood before him in the breach,
To turn away his wrath, lest he should destroy them.
24 Yea, they despised *the pleasant land,
They [w]believed not his word;
25 But [x]murmured in their tents,
And hearkened not unto the voice of the LORD.
26 Therefore [y]he lifted up his hand against them,
To overthrow them in the wilderness:
27 To †overthrow their seed also among the nations,
And to scatter them in the lands.
28 They [z]joined themselves also unto Baal-peor,
And ate the sacrifices of the dead.
29 Thus they provoked him to anger with their inventions:
And the plague brake in upon them.
30 Then [a]stood up Phinehas, and executed judgment:
And so the plague was stayed.
31 And that was counted unto him for righteousness
Unto all generations for evermore.
32 They [b]angered him also at the waters of strife,
So that it went ill with Moses for their sakes;
33 Because [c]they provoked his spirit,
So that he spake unadvisedly with his lips.
34 They [d]did not destroy the nations,
Concerning [e]whom the LORD commanded them;
35 But [f]were mingled among the heathen,
And learned their works.
36 And [g]they served their idols;
Which [h]were a snare unto them.
37 Yea, [i]they sacrificed their sons
And their daughters unto [j]devils,
38 And shed innocent blood,
Even the blood of their sons and of their daughters,
Whom they sacrificed unto the idols of Canaan;
And [k]the land was polluted with blood.
39 Thus were [l]they defiled with their own works,
And [m]went a whoring with their own inventions.
40 Therefore [n]was the wrath of the LORD kindled against his people, Insomuch that he abhorred [o]his own inheritance.
41 And [p]he gave them into the hand of the heathen;
And they that hated them ruled over them.
42 Their enemies also oppressed them,
And they were brought into subjection under their hand.
43 Many times did he deliver them;
But they provoked him with their counsel,

So David went and brought up the ark of God from the house of Obed-edom into the city of David with gladness. 13 And it was so, that when [a]they that bare the ark of the Lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed [b]oxen and fatlings. 14 And David [c]danced before the Lord with all his might; and David was girded [d]with a linen ephod. 15 So David and all the house of Israel brought up the ark of the Lord with shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet. 16 And as the ark of the Lord came into the city of David, Michal, Saul's daughter, looked through a window, and saw king David leaping and dancing before the Lord; and she despised him in her heart.

(52) By comparing the parallel passage of 1 Ch. xvii. (inserted at the end of the section), with this of 2 Sam. vii., the reader will observe the very forcible language in which they are both worded, as well as the light which the different modes expressing the same idea throws upon this remarkable prediction of the prophet Nathan. The sun of prophecy seems to be climbing higher in its celestial progress, when we read this passage. The first part announces the glory of Solomon; the second looks into futurity, to the final destination of the people of Israel, promising them a rest of such a nature as they have never yet enjoyed, though they have so long possessed the promised land; the third part predicts the future Son of David, who is alluded to, and described in terms applicable only to a greater than Solomon; and the passage, "I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son," is expressly applied by St. Paul, to the Saviour who should come into the world.

Upon hearing this prophecy, David, though commanded not to build the temple, proceeds to the said unto Nathan the prophet, "See now, I dwell in [a]a house of cedar, [b]but the ark of God dwelleth within [c]curtains." [3] And Nathan said to the king, "Go, do all that is in thy heart; for the Lord is with thee."

[4] And it came to pass that night, that the word of the Lord came unto Nathan saying, [5] "Go and tell *my servant David, Thus saith the Lord, [d]Shalt thou build me a house for me to dwell in? [6] Whereas I have not dwelt in any house since the time that I brought up the children of Israel out of Egypt, even to this day, but have walked in [e]a tent and in a tabernacle. [7] In all the places wherein I have [f]walked with all the children of Israel spake I a word with any of the †tribes of Israel, whom I commanded [g]to feed my people Israel, saying, 'Why build ye not me a house of cedar?' [8] Now therefore so shalt thou say unto my servant David, Thus saith the Lord of hosts, [h]I took thee from the sheepcot, from ‡following the sheep, to be ruler over my people, over Israel; [9] and [i]I was with thee whithersoever thou wentest, [j]and have cut off all thine enemies *out of thy sight, and have made thee [k]a great name, like unto the name of the great men that are in the earth. [10] Moreover I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and will [l]plant them, that they may dwell in a place of their own, and move no more; [m]neither shall the children of wickedness afflict them any more, as beforetime. [11] And as [n]since the time that I commanded judges to be over my people Israel, and have caused thee to rest from all thine enemies. Also the Lord telleth thee [o]that he will make thee a house.

[12] And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, [p]I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. [13] He [q]shall build a house for my name, and I will [r]stablish the throne of his kingdom for ever. [14] I [s]will be his father, and he shall be my son. [t]If he commit iniquity, I will chasten him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men; [15] but my mercy shall not depart away from him, [u]as I took it from Saul, whom I put away before thee. [16] And [v]thy house and thy kingdom shall be established for ever before thee: thy throne shall be established for ever." [17] According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

[18] Then went king David in, and sat before the Lord, and he said, "Who [w]am I, O Lord God? and what is my house, that thou hast brought me hitherto? [19] And this was yet a small thing in thy sight, O Lord God; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come. And is this the †manner of man, O Lord God? [20] And what can David say more unto thee? for thou, Lord God, [x]knowest thy servant. [21] For thy word's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou done all these great things, to make thy servant know sanctuary, and there acknowledges that he did not consider this prediction as referring to his immediate son, or to the building a temple made with hands. The two parallel passages, 2 Sam. vii. 19. and 1 Chron. xvii. 17. are thus interpreted by Bishop Horsley. 2 Sam. vii. 19. "And this (namely, what was said about his house in distant times) is the arrangement about the Man, Oh Lord Jehovah!"

1 Chron. xvii. 17. "And thou hast regarded me in the arrangement about The Man that is to be from above, O God Jehovah!"—that is, in forming the scheme of the incarnation, regard was had to the honor of David, and his house, as a secondary object, by making it a part of the plan, that the Messiah should be born in his family.

This circumstance, of David's entering into the sanctuary, and acknowledging that he understood the meaning of the figurative language of the prophet, is a proof that other Israelites, who expected the future Messiah, comprehended the various predictions which announced, in still clearer terms, the nature, the person, the life, and the incarnation of the promised Saviour. It shows us too, that the prophecies were of various degrees of clearness; and when the appointed number of inspired predictions contained in the Old Testament was completed, so satisfactory, and so perfect was the description of our blessed Lord, and so conclusive was the evidence that he was the Messiah, that wilful blindness alone prevented the Jews from acknowledging him. They had determined to receive only a temporal Messiah, and the predictions of their prophets were every day in vain fulfilled before their eyes, by the spiritual and long-promised Deliverer. (53) Psalm ii. The seventh verse of this Psalm refers to the prophecy of Nathan: it is inserted in this place on the joint authority of Dr. Hales; of its ancient Arabic title, "A Prophecy concerning Christ the Lord, and the calling of the Gentiles;" and on its internal evidence, derived from its correspondence with the preceding prophecy. The application of this Psalm to the Messiah was the unquestionable doctrine of the Jewish Church. For the authorities, vide Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 370, 371.

Psalm xlv. The prophecies of Nathan and David form the basis of an admirable chain of prophecies contained in the Psalms, which, on the authority of Dr. Hales, are inserted immediately after this in section vii.; each of which is quoted as prophetic in some passages of the New Testament. Psalm xlv. declares the divinity of Christ, and his exaltation above the angels; it is expounded Heb. i. 8, 9. 1 Pet. iii. 22. Ephes. i. 22. Phil. ii. 9–11. See too Horsley's Sermons on this Psalm.

Psalm xxii. predicts the sufferings and crucifixion of Christ. The Jews unwittingly quoted the eighth verse against our Lord, when hanging on the cross, and, as if to fix the undoubted application of the Psalm to himself, Christ expressed the sufferings of the moment in the first verse, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Still further to prove that this Psalm was a prophecy of our Lord, St. John applies the 18th verse to the parting of our Lord's garments among the Roman soldiers.

Psalm xvi. predicts the death and resurrection of Christ; and is so applied by St. Peter, Acts ii. 25–31; and by St. Paul, Acts xiii. 35, 36.

Psalm cxviii. foretels his rejection by the Jews, his adoption by the Gentiles, and the establishment of his Church. It is cited by our Lord in Matt. xxii. 42. It is expounded by St. Peter, Acts iv. 11; 1 Pet. ii. 4, 5. by St. Paul, Rom. ix. 32, 33. Ephes. ii. 20, 21. and by St. John, Rev. xx. 10–14.

Psalm cx. declares the exaltation, the kingdom, and priesthood of Christ. It is applied by our Lord expressly to assert his Divinity, as that spiritual Son of David, whom David calls Lord or Jehovah, Matt. xxii. 44.; by St. Peter, Acts ii. 32–36.; and by St. Paul, who explains from hence the nature of his kingdom, 1 Cor. xv. 25–28, and of his priesthood, Heb. vii. 1–28. and chap. viii. ver. 1. Vide Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 372.

And the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.

[3] And it came to pass the same night, that the word of God came to Nathan, saying, [4] "Go and tell David my servant, Thus saith the Lord, Thou shalt not build me a house to dwell in. [5] For I have not dwelt in a house since the day that I brought up Israel unto this day; but *have gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to another. Moreover I will subdue all thine enemies. Furthermore I tell thee that the Lord will build thee a house. [11] And it shall come to pass, when thy days be expired that thou must go to be with thy fathers, that I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons; and I will establish his kingdom. [12] He shall build me a house, and I will establish his throne for ever. [13] I will be his father, and he shall be my son. And I will not take my mercy away from him, as I took it from him that was before thee; [14] but [a]I will settle him in my house and in my kingdom for ever: and his throne shall be established for evermore." [15] According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David.

PSALM XLV.

The majesty and grace of Christ's kingdom. 10 The duty of the Church, and the benefits thereof.

To the chief Musician *upon Shoshannim, for the sons of Korah, †Maschil, A Song of Loves.

[1] My heart ‡is inditing a good matter:
I speak of the things which I have made touching the king:
My tongue is the pen of a ready writer.
[2] Thou art fairer than the children of men:
Grace [a]is poured into thy lips:
Therefore God hath blessed thee for ever.
[3] Gird thy [b]sword upon thy thigh, [c]O most mighty!
With thy glory and thy majesty.
[4] And [d]in thy majesty *ride prosperously
Because of truth and meekness and righteousness;
And thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things.
[5] Thine arrows are sharp in the heart of the king's enemies;
Whereby the people fall under thee.
[6] Thy [e]throne, O God! is for ever and ever:
The sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre.
[7] Thou [f]lovest righteousness, and hatest wickedness:
Therefore †God, thy God, [g]hath anointed thee
With the oil [h]of gladness above thy fellows.
[8] All [i]thy garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia,
Out of the ivory palaces, whereby they have made thee glad.
[9] Kings' [j]daughters were among thy honorable women:
Upon [k]thy right hand did stand the queen in gold of Ophir.
[10] Hearken, O daughter, and consider, and incline thine ear;
Forget [l]also thine own people, and thy father's house;
[11] So shall the king greatly desire thy beauty:
For [m]he is thy LORD; and worship thou him.
[12] And the daughter of Tyre shall be there with a gift;
Even [n]the rich among the people shall entreat ‡thy favor.
[13] The [o]king's daughter is all glorious within:
Her clothing is of wrought gold.
[14] She [p]shall be brought unto the king in raiment of needlework:
The virgins (her companions that follow her)
Shall be brought unto thee.
[15] With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought;
They shall enter into the king's palace.
[16] Instead of thy fathers shall be thy children,
Whom [q]thou mayest make princes in all the earth.
[17] I [r]will make thy name to be remembered in all generations;
Therefore shall the people praise thee for ever and ever.

PSALM XVI.

PSALM XVI.

David, in distrust of merits, and hatred of idolatry, fleeth to God for preservation. 5 He showeth the hope of his calling, of the resurrection, and life everlasting.

*Michtam of David.

[1] Preserve me, O God;
For [a]in thee do I put my trust.
[2] O my soul, thou hast said unto the LORD,
"Thou art my LORD: my [b]goodness extendeth not to thee;
[3] But to the saints that are in the earth,
And to the excellent, in whom is all my delight."
[4] Their sorrows shall be multiplied that †hasten after another god:
Their drink offerings of blood will I not offer,
Nor [c]take up their names into my lips.
[5] The [d]LORD is the portion of ‡mine inheritance and [e]of my cup:
Thou maintainest my lot.
[6] The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places;
Yea, I have a goodly heritage.
[7] I will bless the LORD, who hath given me counsel:
My [f]reins also instruct me in the night seasons.
[8] I [g]have set the LORD always before me:
Because [h]he is at my right hand, [i]I shall not be moved.
[9] Therefore my heart is glad, [j]and my glory rejoiceth:
My flesh also shall *rest in hope.
[10] For [k]thou wilt not leave [l]my soul in hell;
Neither wilt thou suffer thy Holy One to see corruption.
[11] Thou wilt show me [m]the path of life:
In [n]thy presence is fulness of joy;
At [o]thy right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

PS. CXVIII.

PSALM CXVIII.

An exhortation to praise God for his mercy. 5 The psalmist by his experience showeth how good it is to trust in God. 19 Under the type of the psalmist the coming of Christ in his kingdom is expressed.

[1] O [a]give thanks unto the LORD; for he is good:
Because his mercy endureth for ever.
[2] Let [b]Israel now say,
That his mercy endureth for ever.
[3] Let the house of Aaron now say,
That his mercy endureth for ever.
[4] Let them now that fear the LORD say,
That his mercy endureth for ever.
[5] I [c]called upon the LORD *in distress:
The LORD answered me, and [d]set me in a large place.
[6] The [e]LORD is †on my side;
I will not fear—what can man do unto me?
[7] The [f]LORD taketh my part with them that help me:
Therefore shall [g]I see my desire upon them that hate me.
[8] It [h]is better to trust in the LORD
Than to put confidence in man.
[9] It [i]is better to trust in the LORD
Than to put confidence in princes.
[10] All nations compassed me about;
But in the name of the LORD will I ‡destroy them.

[11] They [j]compassed me about,
Yea, they compassed me about;
But in the name of the Lord I will destroy them.
[12] They compassed me about [k]like bees,
They are quenched [l]as the fire of thorns;
For in the name of the Lord I will *destroy them.
[13] Thou hast thrust sore at me that I might fall;
But the Lord helped me.
[14] The [m]Lord is my strength and song,
And is become my salvation.
[15] The voice of rejoicing and salvation is in the tabernacles of the righteous:
The right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly.
[16] The [n]right hand of the Lord is exalted:
The right hand of the Lord doeth valiantly.
[17] I [o]shall not die, but live,
And [p]declare the works of the Lord.
[18] The Lord hath [q]chastened me sore;
But he hath not given me over unto death.
[19] Open [r]to me the gates of righteousness:
I will go into them, and I will praise the Lord—
[20] This [s]gate of the Lord,
Into [t]which the righteous shall enter.
[21] I will praise thee; for thou hast [u]heard me,
And art become my salvation.
[22] The [v]stone which the builders refused
Is become the head stone of the corner.
[23] This is †the Lord's doing;
It is marvellous in our eyes.
[24] This is the day which the Lord hath made;
We will rejoice and be glad in it.
[25] Save now, I beseech thee, O Lord:
O Lord, I beseech thee, send now prosperity.
[26] Blessed [w]be he that cometh in the name of the Lord!
We have blessed you out of the house of the Lord.
[27] God is the Lord, which hath showed us [x]light:
Bind the sacrifice with cords, even unto the horns of the altar.
[28] Thou art my God, and I will praise thee:
Thou [y]art my God, I will exalt thee.
[29] O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good:

[2] And [a]he smote Moab, and measured them with a line, casting them down to the ground; even with two lines measured he to put to death, and with one full line to keep alive. And so the Moabites became David's servants, and [b]brought gifts.

[4] And David took ‡from him a thousand chariots, and seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen; and David [e]houghed all the chariot horses, but reserved of them for an hundred chariots. [5] And when the Syrians of Damascus came to succour Hadadezer king of Zobah, David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men. [6] Then David put garrisons in Syria of Damascus; and the Syrians became servants to David, and brought gifts. [f]And the Lord preserved David whithersoever he went. [7] And David took [g]the shields of gold that were on the servants of Hadadezer, and brought them to Jerusalem. e 2 Sa 17. 27.

[5] Then king David sent, and fetched him out of the house of Machir, the son of Ammiel, from Lo-debar. [6] Now when *Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan, the son of Saul, was come unto David, he fell on his face, and did reverence. And David said, "Mephibosheth!" And he answered, "Behold thy servant!"

[7] And David said unto him, "Fear not: for I will surely show thee kindness for Jonathan thy father's sake, and will restore thee all the land of Saul thy father; and thou shalt eat bread at my table continually." [8] And he bowed himself, and said, "What is thy servant, that thou shouldest look upon such [f]a dead dog as I am?"

[9] Then the king called to Ziba, Saul's servant, and said unto him, "I [g]have given unto thy master's son all that pertained to Saul and to all his house. [10] Thou therefore, and thy sons, and thy servants, shall till the land for him, and thou shalt bring in the fruits, that thy master's son may have food to eat; but Mephibosheth thy master's son [h]shall eat bread always at my table." Now Ziba had fifteen sons and twenty servants. [11] Then said Ziba unto the king, "According to all that my lord the king hath commanded his servant, so shall thy servant do." "As for Mephibosheth," said the king, "he shall eat at my table, as one of the king's sons." [12] And Mephibosheth had a young son, [i]whose name was Micha. And all that dwelt in the house of Ziba were servants unto Mephibosheth. [13] So Mephibosheth dwelt in Jerusalem: for he did eat continually at the king's table; and was lame on both his feet.

[1] And it came to pass after this, that the king of the children of Ammon died, and Hanun his son reigned in his stead.

[2] Then said David, "I will show kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, as his father showed kindness unto me." And David sent to comfort him by the hand of his servants for his father. And David's servants came into the land of the children of Ammon. [3] And the princes of the children of Ammon said unto Hanun their lord, "†Thinkest thou that David doth honor thy father, that he hath sent comforters unto thee? hath not David rather sent his servants unto thee, to search the city, and to spy it out, and to overthrow it?" [4] Wherefore Hanun took David's servants, and shaved off the one half of their beards, and cut off their garments in the middle [j]even to their buttocks, and sent them away. PSALM XXI.

A thanksgiving for victory. 7 Confidence of further success.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

[1] The king shall joy in thy strength, O LORD ;
And in thy salvation how greatly shall he rejoice !
[2] Thou hast given him his heart's desire,
And hast not withholden the request of his lips. Selah !
[3] For thou [a]preventest him with the blessings of goodness :
Thou [a]settest a crown of pure gold on his head.
[4] He [b]asked life of thee, and thou gavest it him,
Even [c]length of days for ever and ever.
[5] His glory is great in thy salvation :
Honor and majesty hast thou laid upon him.
[6] For thou hast *made him most blessed for ever :
Thou [d]hast †made him exceeding glad with thy countenance.
[7] For the king trusteth in the LORD,
And through the mercy of the Most High he [e]shall not be moved.
[8] Thy hand shall [f]find out all thine enemies :
Thy right hand shall find out those that hate thee.
[9] Thou [g]shalt make them as a fiery oven in the time of thine anger :
The LORD shall [h]swallow them up in his wrath,
And [i]the fire shall devour them.
[10] Their [j]fruit shalt thou destroy from the earth,
And their seed from among the children of men.
[11] For they intended evil against thee :
They [k]imagined a mischievous device,
Which they are not able to perform.
[12] Therefore ‡shalt thou make them turn their *back,
When thou shalt make ready thine arrows upon thy strings
Against the face of them.
[13] Be thou exalted, LORD, in thine own strength :
So will we sing and praise thy power.

1 CHRON. xix.—[1] Now it came to pass after this, that Nahash the king of the children of Ammon died, and his son reigned in his stead. [2] And David said, "I will show kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, because his father showed kindness to me." And David sent messengers to comfort him concerning his father. So the servants of David came into the land of the children of Ammon to Hanun, to comfort him. [3] But the princes of the children of Ammon said to Hanun, "*Thinkest thou that David doth honor thy father, that he hath sent comforters unto thee? are not his servants come unto thee for to search, and to overthrow, and to spy out the land?" And the king said, "Tarry at Jericho until your beards be grown, and then return."

[6] And when the children of Ammon saw that they had made themselves †odious to David, Hanun and the children of Ammon sent a thousand talents of silver to hire them chariots and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria-maachah, [a]and out of Zobah. [7] So they hired thirty and two thousand chariots, and the king of Maachah and his people; who came and pitched before Medeba. And the children of Ammon gathered themselves together from their cities, and came to battle. [8] And when David heard of it, he sent Joab, and all the host of the mighty men. [1] And the Lord sent Nathan unto David. And he came unto him, [l]and said unto him, "There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor. [2] The rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds. [3] But the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up; and it grew up together with him, and with his children; it did eat of his own ‡meat, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter. [4] And there came a traveller unto the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man that was come unto him; but took the poor man's lamb, and dressed it for the man that was come to him." PSALM LI.(57)

David prayeth for remission of sins, whereof he maketh a deep confession. 6 He prayeth for sanctification. 16 God delighteth not in sacrifice, but in sincerity. 18 David prayeth for the Church.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David, when Nathan the prophet came unto him, after he had gone in to Bath-sheba.

1 Have mercy upon me, O God,
According to thy lovingkindness:
According unto the multitude of thy tender mercies
Blot [a]out my transgressions.
2 Wash [b]me throughly from mine iniquity,
And cleanse me from my sin.
3 For [c]I acknowledge my transgressions;
And my sin is ever before me.
4 Against [d]Thee, Thee only, have I sinned,
And done this evil [e]in thy sight;
That [f]thou mightest be justified when thou speakest,
And be clear when thou judgest.
5 Behold, [g]I was shapen in iniquity;
And [h]in sin did my mother *conceive me.
6 Behold, thou desirest truth [i]in the inward parts;
And in the hidden part thou shalt make me to know wisdom.
7 Purge [j]me with hyssop—and I shall be clean:
Wash me—and I shall be [k]whiter than snow.
8 Make me to hear joy and gladness;
That the bones which thou hast broken [l]may rejoice.
9 Hide [m]thy face from my sins,
And blot out all mine iniquities.
10 Create [n]in me a clean heart, O God!
And renew †a right spirit within me.
11 Cast me not away [o]from thy presence;
And take not thy [p]Holy Spirit from me.
12 Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation;
And uphold me with thy [q]free Spirit.
13 Then will I teach transgressors thy ways;
And sinners shall be converted unto Thee.
14 Deliver me from ‡blood-guiltiness,
O God, thou God of my salvation!
And [r]my tongue shall sing aloud of thy righteousness.
15 O LORD, open thou my lips;
And my mouth shall show forth thy praise.
16 For [s]thou desirest not sacrifice—*else would I give it:
Thou delightest not in burnt offering.

(57) Psalm li. is inserted here on the unanimous testimony of commentators.

Psalm xxxii. It is generally thought that this Psalm was written by David, after the pardon he obtained for his adultery with Bath-sheba.—Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 376; and Rosenmüller.

Psalm xxxiii. is ascribed by Dr. Hales to the same occasion. And Psalm ciii. is considered by the same authority as David's eucharistical ode, after God had pardoned his great sin.

Although God, upon the repentance of David, pardoned his sin, yet we find a series of temporal judgments were inflicted upon him, both as a just punishment for his crime, and as a solemn warning to others. The remainder of his days was as disastrous as the beginning had been prosperous and flourishing. Rape, incest, murder, and rebellion raged among his children—he was deserted by his friends—reviled by his enemies—banished from his capital—and plunged into the deepest affliction, by the ingratitude and death of his favorite and rebellious son Absalom.—Vide Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 377.

17 The [t]sacrifices of God are a broken spirit:
A broken and a contrite heart, O God! thou wilt not despise.
18 Do good in thy good pleasure unto Zion:
Build Thou the walls of Jerusalem.
19 Then shalt thou be pleased with [u]the sacrifices of righteousness,
With burnt offering and whole burnt offering:
Then shall they offer bullocks upon thine altar.

PSALM XXXII.

PSALM XXXII.

Blessedness consisteth in remission of sins. 3 Confession of sins giveth ease to the conscience. 8 God's promises bring joy.

*A Psalm of David, Maschil.

1 Blessed is he whose [a]transgression is forgiven,
Whose sin is covered!
2 Blessed is the man unto whom the LORD [b]imputeth not iniquity,
And [c]in whose spirit there is no guile!
3 When I kept silence, my bones waxed old
Through my roaring all the day long.
4 For day and night thy [d]hand was heavy upon me:
My moisture is turned into the drought of summer. Selah!
5 I acknowledged my sin unto thee,
And mine iniquity have I not hid.
I [e]said, 'I will confess my transgressions unto the LORD;'
And thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah!
6 For [f]this shall every one that is godly [g]pray unto thee
In a †time when thou mayest be found:
Surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him.
7 Thou [h]art my hiding place;
Thou shalt preserve me from trouble;
Thou shalt compass me about with [i]songs of deliverance. Selah!
8 I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt
I will ‡guide thee with mine eye. [go:
9 Be [j]ye not as the horse, or as the mule,
Which have [k]no understanding;
Whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle,
Lest they come near unto thee.
10 Many [l]sorrows shall be to the wicked;
But [m]he that trusteth in the LORD, mercy shall compass him about.
11 Be [n]glad in the LORD, and rejoice, ye righteous!
And shout for joy, all ye that are upright in heart!

PSALM XXXIII.

God is to be praised for his goodness, 6 for his power, 12 and for his providence. 20 Confidence is to be placed in God.

1 Rejoice [a]in the LORD, O ye righteous!
For [b]praise is comely for the upright.
2 Praise the LORD with harp:
Sing unto him with the psaltery [c]and an instrument of ten strings.
3 Sing [d]unto him a new song;
Play skilfully with a loud noise.
4 For the word of the LORD is right;
And all his works are done in truth.
5 He [e]loveth righteousness and judgment:
The [f]earth is full of the *goodness of the LORD.
6 By [g]the word of the LORD were the heavens made;
And all the host of them by the breath of his mouth.
7 He gathereth the waters of the sea together as a heap:
He layeth up the depth in storehouses.
8 Let all the earth fear the LORD:
Let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of him.

[10] The LORD †bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought:
He maketh the devices of the people of none effect.
[11] The [h]counsel of the LORD standeth for ever,
The thoughts of his heart ‡to all generations.
[12] Blessed [i]is the nation whose God is the LORD;
And the people whom he hath [j]chosen for his own inheritance.
[13] The [k]LORD looketh from heaven,
He beholdeth all the sons of men.
[14] From the place of his habitation
He looketh upon all the inhabitants of the earth.
[15] He fashioneth their hearts alike;
He [l]considereth all their works.
[16] There [m]is no king saved by the multitude of a host:
A mighty man is not delivered by much strength.
[17] A [n]horse is a vain thing for safety;
Neither shall he deliver any by his great strength.
[18] Behold, [o]the eye of the LORD is [p]upon them that fear him,
Upon them that hope in his mercy;
[19] To deliver their soul from death,
And [q]to keep them alive in famine.
[20] Our [r]soul waiteth for the LORD:
He [s]is our help and our shield.

PSALM CIII.

PSALM CIII.

An exhortation to bless God for his mercy, 15 and for the constancy thereof.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Bless [a]the LORD, O my soul!
And all that is within me, bless his holy name!
[2] Bless the LORD, O my soul!
And forget not all his benefits.
[3] Who [b]forgiveth all thine iniquities;
Who [c]healeth all thy diseases;
[4] Who [d]redeemeth thy life from destruction;
Who [e]crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies,
[5] Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things;
So that [f]thy youth is renewed like the eagle's.
[6] The [g]LORD executeth righteousness and judgment
For all that are oppressed.
[7] He [h]made known his ways unto Moses,
His acts unto the children of Israel.
[8] The [i]LORD is merciful and gracious,
Slow to anger, and *plenteous in mercy.
[9] He [j]will not always chide;
Neither will he keep his anger for ever.
[10] He [k]hath not dealt with us after our sins;
Nor rewarded us according to our iniquities.
[11] For †as the heaven is high above the earth,
So great is his mercy toward them that fear him.
[12] As far as the East is from the West,
So far hath he [l]removed our transgressions from us.
[13] Like [m]as a father pitieth his children,
So the LORD pitieth them that fear him.

[15] And the LORD struck the child that Uriah's wife bare unto David, and it was very sick. [16] David therefore besought God for the child; and David *fasted, and went in, and lay all night upon the earth. [17] And the elders of his house arose, and went to him, to raise him up from the earth: but he would not, neither did he eat bread with them. [18] And it came to pass on the seventh day, that the child died. And the servants of David feared to tell him that the child was dead: for they said, "Behold, while the child was yet alive, we spake unto him, and he would not hearken unto our voice: how will he then †vex himself, if we tell him that the child is dead!" [19] But when David saw that his servants whispered, David perceived that the child was dead: therefore David said unto his servants, "Is the child dead?" And they said, "He is dead." [20] Then David arose from the earth, and washed, and anointed himself, and changed his apparel, and came into the house of the LORD, and [a]worshipped: then he came to his own house; and when he required, they set bread before him, and he did eat. [21] Then said his servants unto him, "What thing is this that thou hast done? thou didst fast and weep for the child while it was alive; but when the child was dead, thou didst rise and eat bread." [22] And he said, "While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept: [b]for I said, 'Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me, that the child may live?' [23] But now he is dead, wherefore should I fast? can I bring him back again? I shall go to him, but [c]he shall not return to me."

[26] And Joab fought against [d]Rabbah of the children of Ammon, and took the royal city. [27] And Joab sent messengers to David, and said, "I have fought against Rabbah, and have taken the city of waters. [28] Now therefore gather the rest of the people together, and encamp against the city, and take it; lest I take the city, and ‡it be called after my name." [29] And David gathered all the people together, and went to Rabbah, and fought against it, and took it. [30] And he took their king's crown from off his head, the weight whereof was a talent of gold with the precious stones; and it was set on David's head. And he brought forth the spoil of the city *in great abundance. [31] And he brought forth the people that were therein, and put them under saws, and under harrows of iron, and under axes of iron, and made them pass through the brickkiln; and thus did he unto all the cities of the

But David tarried at Jerusalem. And Joab smote Rabbah, and destroyed it. [2] And David took the crown of their king from off his head, and found it ‡to weigh a talent of gold, and there were precious stones in it; and it was set upon David's head: and he brought also exceeding much spoil out of the city. [3] And he brought out the people that were in it, and cut them with saws, and with harrows of iron, and with axes. Even so dealt David with all the cities of the children of Ammon. And David and all the people returned to Jerusalem.

[1] And it came to pass after this, that Absalom the son of David had a fair sister, whose name was Tamar; and Amnon the son of David loved her. [2] And Amnon was so vexed, that he fell sick for his sister Tamar; for she was a virgin; and *Amnon thought it hard for him to do any thing to her. [3] But Amnon had a friend, whose name was Jonadab, [a]the son of Shimeah David's brother: and Jonadab was a very subtil man. [4] And he said unto him, "Why art thou, being the king's son, †lean ‡from day to day? wilt thou not tell me?" And Amnon said unto him, "I love Tamar, my brother Absalom's sister." [5] And Jonadab said unto him, "Lay thee down on thy bed, and make thyself sick; and when thy father cometh to see thee, say unto him, I pray thee, let my sister Tamar come, and give me meat, and dress the meat in my sight, that I may see it, and eat it at her hand."

[6] So Amnon lay down, and made himself sick; and when the king was come to see him, Amnon said unto the king, "I pray thee, let Tamar my sister come, and [b]make me a couple of cakes in my sight, that I may eat at her hand." [7] Then David sent home to Tamar, saying, "Go now to thy brother Amnon's house, and dress him meat." [8] So Tamar went to her brother Amnon's house; and he was lain down. And she took *flour, and kneaded it, and made cakes in his sight, and did bake the cakes. [9] And she took a pan, and poured them out before him; but he refused to eat. And Amnon said, "Have out all men from me." And they went out every man from him. [10] And Amnon said unto Tamar, "Bring the meat into the chamber, that I may eat of thy hand." And Tamar took the cakes which she had made, and brought them into the chamber to Amnon her brother. [11] And when she had brought them unto him to eat, [c]he took hold of her, and said unto her, "Come lie with me, my sister." [12] And she answered him, "Nay, my brother, do not †force me; for ‡no such thing ought to be done in Israel: do not thou this [d]folly. [13] And I, whither shall I cause my shame to go? and as for thee, thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel. Now therefore, I pray thee, speak unto the king; [e]for he will not withhold me from thee." [14] Howbeit he would not hearken unto her voice; but, being stronger than she, [f]forced her, and lay with her. [15] Then Amnon hated her *exceedingly; so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love wherewith he had loved her. And Amnon said unto her, "Arise, be gone." [16] And she said unto him, "There is no cause: this evil in sending me away is greater than the other that thou didst unto me." But he would not hearken unto her. [17] Then he called his servant that ministered unto him, and said, "Put now this woman out from me, and bolt the door after her." [18] And she had [g]a garment of divers colors upon her; for with such robes were the king's daughters that were virgins apparelled. Then his servant brought her out, and bolted the door after her. [19] And Tamar put [h]ashes on her head, and rent her garment of divers colors that was on her, and [i]laid her hand on her head, and went on crying. [20] And Absalom her brother said unto her, "Hath †Amnon thy brother been with thee? but hold now thy peace, my sister; he is thy brother, ‡regard not this thing." So Tamar remained *desolate in her brother Absalom's house.

[21] But when king David heard of all these things, he was very wroth. [22] And Absalom spake unto his brother Ammon [j]neither good nor bad; for Absalom [k]hated Ammon, because he had forced his sister Tamar.

2 SAM. xii. 24, 25.

[24] And David comforted Bath-sheba his wife, and went in unto her, and lay with her; and [l]she bare a son, and he [m]called his name Solomon; and the LORD loved him. [25] And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet; and he called his name †Jedidiah, because of the LORD.

2 SAM. xiii. 23, to end.

[23] And it came to pass after two full years, that Absalom [n]had sheepshearers in Baal-hazor, which is beside Ephraim; and Absalom invited all the king's sons. [24] And Absalom came to the king, and said, "Behold now, thy servant hath sheepshearers; let the king, I beseech thee, and his servants go with thy servant." [25] And the king said to Absalom, "Nay, my son, let us not all now go, lest we be chargeable unto thee." And he pressed him; howbeit he would not go, but blessed him. [26] Then said Absalom, "If not, I pray thee, let my brother Amnon go with us." And the king said unto him, "Why should he go with thee?" [27] But Absalom pressed him, that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him.

[28] Now Absalom had commanded his servants, saying, "Mark ye now when Amnon's [o]heart is merry with wine, and when I say unto you, Smite Amnon; then kill him, fear not: ‡have not I commanded you? be courageous, and be *valiant." [29] And the servants of Absalom did unto Amnon as Absalom had commanded. Then all the king's sons arose, and every man †gat him up upon his mule, and fled.

[30] And it came to pass, while they were in the way, that tidings came to David, saying, "Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left." [31] Then the king arose, and tare his garments, and lay on the earth; and all his servants stood by with their clothes rent. [32] And Jonadab, the son of Shimeah, David's brother, answered and said, "Let not my lord suppose that they have slain all the young men the king's sons, for Amnon only is dead; for by the ‡appointment of Absalom this hath been *determined from the day that he forced his sister Tamar. [33] Now therefore let not my lord the king take the thing to his heart, to think that all the king's sons are dead; for Amnon only is dead: [34] but Absalom fled." And the young man that kept the watch lifted up his eyes, and looked, and, behold, there came much people by the way of the hill side behind him. [35] And Jonadab said unto the king, "Behold, the king's sons come: †as thy servant said, so it is." [36] And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of speaking, that, behold, the king's sons came, and lifted up their voice and wept; and the king also and all his servants wept ‡very sore.

[37] But Absalom fled, and went to Talmai, the son of *Ammihud, king of Geshur. And David mourned for his son every day. [38] So Absalom fled, and went to Geshur, and was there three years. [39] And the soul

[8] And the king said unto the woman, "Go to thy house, and I will give charge concerning thee." [9] And the woman of Tekoah said unto the king, "My lord, O king! [10] And the king said, "Whosoever saith aught unto thee, bring him to me, and he shall not touch thee any more." [11] Then said she, "I pray thee, let the king remember the LORD thy God, †that thou wouldest not suffer the revengers of blood to destroy any more, lest they destroy my son." And he said, "As [z]the LORD liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth!" [12] Then the woman said, "Let thy handmaid, I pray thee, speak one word unto my lord the king." And he said, "Say on." [13] And the woman said, "Wherefore then hast thou thought such a thing against the people of God? for the king doth speak this thing as one which is faulty, in that the king doth not fetch home again his banished. [14] For [a]we must needs die, and are as water spilt on the ground, which cannot be gathered up again; ‡neither doth God respect any person: yet doth he [b]devise means, that his banished be not expelled from him."

[18] Then the king answered and said unto the woman, "Hide not from me, I pray thee, the thing that I shall ask thee." And the woman said, "Let my lord the king now speak." [19] And the king said, "Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this?" And the woman answered and said, "As thy soul liveth, my lord the king, none can turn to the right hand or to the left from aught that my lord the king hath spoken;

(58) This arrangement of the contents of 2 Samuel xiv. is made on the authority of Bishop Horsley; who observes, verses 15, 16, 17, should intervene between the 7th and 8th verses; being evidently part of the woman's speech about her own pretended affair; and the 18th verse should immediately follow the 14th.—*Bib. ‡ Heb. And as Absalom there was not a beautiful man in all Israel to praise greatly. [25] ‡But in all Israel there was none to be so much praised as Absalom for his beauty: [e]from the sole of his foot even to the crown of his head

[28] So Absalom dwelt two full years in Jerusalem, and saw not the king's face. [29] Therefore Absalom sent for Joab, to have sent him to the king, but he would not come to him; and when he sent again the second time, he would not come. [30] Therefore he said unto his servants,

2 Sam. xv. 1-29.—Psalm iii.—2 Sam. xv. 30, to the end.—xvi. 1-14.—Psalm vii.—2 Sam. xvi. 15, to the end, and chap. xvii.

Absalom, by fair speeches and courtesies, stealeth the hearts of Israel. 7 Under pretence of a vow he obtaineth leave to go to Hebron. 10 He maketh there a great conspiracy. 13 David upon the news fleeth from Jerusalem. 19 Ittai would not leave him. 24 Zadok and Abiathar are sent back with the ark.—David's Psalm of praise.—30 He and his company go up Mount Olivet weeping. 31 He curseth Ahithophel's counsel. 32 Hushai is sent back with instructions.—Chap. xvi. 1 Ziba, by presents and false suggestions, obtaineth his master's inheritance. 5 At Bahurim Shimei curseth David. 9 David with patience abstaineth, and restraineth others, from revenge.—David composeth another Psalm of praise.—15 Hushai insinuateth himself into Absalom's council. 20 Ahithophel's counsel.—Chap. xvii. 1 It is overthrown by Hushai's, according to God's appointment. 15 Secret intelligence is sent unto David. 23 Ahithophel hangeth himself. 25 Amasa is made captain. 27 David at Mahanaim is furnished with provision.

[1] And it came to pass after this, that Absalom prepared him chariots and horses, and fifty men to run before him. [2] And Absalom rose up early, and stood beside the way of the gate: and it was so, that when
* Heb. to come. any man that had a controversy *came to the king for judgment, then Absalom called unto him, and said, "Of what city art thou?" And he said, "Thy servant is of one of the tribes of Israel." [3] And Absa-is no man deputed of the king to hear thee." [4] Absalom said more-hath any suit or cause might come unto me, and I would do him justice!" [5] And it was so, that when any man came nigh to him to do him obeisance, he put forth his hand, and took him, and kissed him. [6] And on this manner did Absalom to all Israel that came to the king for judgment: [b]so Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel.

[7] And it came to pass [c]after forty years,(59) that Absalom said unto the king, "I pray thee, let me go and pay my vow, which I have vowed unto the Lord, in Hebron. [8] For thy servant [d]vowed a vow while I abode at Geshur in Syria, saying, 'If the Lord shall bring me again indeed to Jerusalem, then I will serve the Lord.'" [9] And the king said unto him, "Go in peace." So he arose, and went to Hebron.

[10] But Absalom sent spies throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, "As soon as ye hear the sound of the trumpet, then ye shall say, Absalom reigneth in Hebron." [11] And with Absalom went two hundred men out of Jerusalem, that were [e]called; and they went [f]in their simplicity, and they knew not any thing. [12] And Absalom sent for Ahithophel the Gilonite, [g]David's counsellor, from his city, even from Giloh, while he offered sacrifices. And the conspiracy was strong; for the people [h]increased continually with Absalom.

[15] And the king's servants said unto the king, "Behold, thy servants are ready to do whatsoever my lord the king shall *appoint." [16] And the king went forth, and all his household †after him. And the king left ten women, which were concubines, to keep the house. [17] And the king went forth, and all the people after him, and tarried in a place that was far off. [18] And all his servants passed on beside him; and all the Cherethites, and all the Pelethites, and all the Gittites, six hundred men which came after him from Gath, passed on before the king.

[22] And David said to Ittai, "Go and pass over." And Ittai the Gittite passed over, and all his men, and all the little ones that were with him. (59) 2 Sam. xv. 7. There is some difficulty in ascertaining what is meant by the "forty years," in this verse. Some read four years only. Lightfoot dates the forty years from the first anointing of David, by Samuel; and this solution is certainly preferable to making any alteration in the text. Dr. Hales supposes, that the proper reading is four years, as being the time from the first fomenting of Absalom's conspiracy, till it broke out into open rebellion: but for this, there does not seem to be sufficient evidence.—Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 379; Lightfoot in loc.; Horsley's Bib.Crit. vol. i. p. 358; Bp. [27] The king said also unto Zadok the priest, "Art not thou a [o]seer? return into the city in peace, and your two sons with you, Ahimaaz thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar. [28] See! I will tarry in the plain of the wilderness, until there come word from you to certify me." [29] Zadok therefore and Abiathar carried the ark of God again to Jerusalem: and they tarried there.

[32] And it came to pass, that when David was come to the top of the mount, where he worshipped God, behold, Hushai the [f]Archite came to meet him with his coat rent, and earth upon his head. [33] Unto whom David said, "If thou passest on with me, then thou shalt be [g]a burden unto me. and a bottle of wine. [2] And the king said unto Ziba, "What meanest thou by these?" And Ziba said, "The asses be for the king's household to ride on; and the bread and summer fruit for the young men to eat; and the wine, that such as be faint in the wilderness may drink." [3] And the king said, "And where is thy master's son?" And Ziba said unto the king, "Behold, he abideth at Jerusalem; for he said, 'To-day shall the house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father.'" [4] Then [i]said the king to Ziba, "Behold, thine are all that pertained unto Mephibosheth." And Ziba said, "†I humbly beseech thee that I may find grace in thy sight, my lord, O king!"

[5] And when king David came to Bahurim, behold, thence came out a man of the family of the house of Saul, whose name was [j]Shimei, the son of Gera: ‡he came forth, and cursed still as he came. [6] And he cast stones at David, and at all the servants of king David; and all the people and all the mighty men were on his right hand and on his left. [7] And thus said Shimei when he cursed, "Come out, come out, thou *bloody man, and thou man of Belial! [10] And the king said, "What [n]have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah? so let him curse, because [o]the Lord hath said unto him, 'Curse David.' [p]Who shall then say, Wherefore hast thou done so?" [11] And David said to Abishai, and to all his servants, "Behold, my son, which came forth of my bowels, seeketh my life: how much more now may this Benjamite do it! let him alone, and let him curse; for the Lord hath bidden him. [12] It may be that the Lord will look on ‡mine affliction, and that the Lord will [q]requite me good for his cursing this day." [13] And as David and his men went by the way, Shimei went along on the hill's side over against him, and cursed as he went, and threw stones at him, and *cast dust. [15] And Absalom, and all the people the men of Israel, came to Jerusalem, and Ahithophel with him. [20] Then said Absalom to Ahithophel, "Give counsel among you what we shall do." [22] So they spread Absalom a tent upon the top of the house; and Absalom went in unto his father's concubines in the sight of all Israel. [10] And he also that is valiant, whose heart is as the heart of a lion, shall utterly melt; for all Israel knoweth that thy father is a mighty man, and they which be with him are valiant men. [11] Therefore I counsel that all Israel be generally gathered unto thee, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, [g]as the sand that is by the sea for multitude; and ‡that thou go to battle in thine own person. [12] So shall we come upon him in some place where he shall be found, and we will light upon him as the dew falleth on the ground; and of him and of all the men that are with him there shall not be left so much as one. [13] Moreover, if he be gotten into a city, then shall all Israel bring ropes to that city, and we will draw it into the river, until there be not one small stone found there." [14] And Absalom and all the men of Israel said, "The counsel of Hushai the Archite is better than the counsel of Ahithophel." For the LORD had *appointed to defeat the good counsel of Ahithophel, to the intent that the LORD might bring evil upon Absalom.

[15] Then said Hushai unto Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, "Thus and thus did Ahithophel counsel Absalom and the elders of Israel; and thus and thus have I counselled. [16] Now therefore send quickly, and tell David, saying, Lodge not this night in the plains of the wilderness, but speedily pass over; lest the king be swallowed up, and all the people that are with him." [17] Now Jonathan and Ahimaaz staid by En-rogel, for they might not be seen to come into the city; and a wench went and told them, and they went and told king David. [18] Nevertheless a lad saw them, and told Absalom; but they went both of them away quickly, and came to a man's house in Bahurim, which had a well in his court, whither they went down. [19] And the woman took and spread a covering over the well's mouth, and spread ground corn thereon, and the thing was not known. [20] And when Absalom's servants came to the woman to the house, they said, "Where is Ahimaaz and Jonathan?" And [h]the woman said unto them, "They be gone over the brook of water." And when they had sought and could not find them, they returned to Jerusalem. [21] And it came to pass, after they were departed, that they came up out of the well, and went and told king David, and said unto David, "Arise, and pass quickly over the water; for thus hath Ahithophel counselled against you." [22] Then David arose, and all the people that were with him, and they passed over Jordan: by the morning light there lacked not one of them that was not gone over Jordan.

PSALM XLII.(62)

David's zeal to serve God in the temple. 5 He encourageth his soul to trust in God.

To the chief Musician, *Maschil, for the sons of Korah.

[1] As the hart †panteth after the water brooks,
So panteth my soul after thee, O God!
[2] My [a]soul thirsteth for God, for [b]the living God:
When shall I come and appear before God?
[3] My [c]tears have been my meat day and night,
While [d]they continually say unto me, "Where is thy God?"
[4] When I remember these things, [e]I pour out my soul in me;
For I had gone with the multitude,
I [f]went with them to the house of God,
With the voice of joy and praise,
With a multitude that kept holyday.
[5] Why [g]art thou ‡cast down, O my soul?
And why art thou disquieted in me?
Hope [h]thou in God—for I shall yet *praise him
†For the help of his countenance.
[6] O my God! my soul is cast down within me:
Therefore will I remember thee from the land of Jordan,
And of the Hermonites, from ‡the hill Mizar.
[7] Deep [i]calleth unto deep at the noise of thy waterspouts:
All [j]thy waves and thy billows are gone over me.
[8] Yet the LORD will [k]command his lovingkindness in the daytime,
And [l]in the night his song shall be with me,
And my prayer unto the God of my life.
[9] I will say unto God my rock, Why hast thou forgotten me?
Why [m]go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?
[10] As with a *sword in my bones, mine enemies reproach me;
While [n]they say daily unto me, "Where is thy God?"
[11] Why art thou cast down, O my soul?
And why art thou disquieted within me?
Hope thou in God—for I shall yet praise him,
Who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

* Or, unmerciful.

(62) Psalm xlii. In his flight from Absalom, David does not rest till he reaches the river Jordan. While reposing on its banks, he composes the forty-second Psalm, and remembers the Lord from the land of Jordan, (ver. 6.) In contemplating the waters of its river, he affectingly alludes to his own misery: "All thy billows and waves are gone over me." (Lightfoot in loc.) That this Psalm was written at this time, is suggested by Dr. Wells, who observes: "This Psalm was most probably composed by David, when he was driven by Absalom from Jerusalem, and so from serving God at his own house or tabernacle, on Mount Sion; which he bewails as a great calamity, with hopes of being enabled by God to return thither again."—Dr. Wells's Comment. vol. iii. p. 133.

(63) This Psalm, in all probability was composed on the same occasion as the 42d, (vide Bishop Patrick in loc.) Bishop Lowth was of opinion that the 42d and 43d Psalms were originally but one · and the supposition is confirmed by more than thirty manuscripts. The 43d Psalm seems to have been written about the same time as the 42d. Compare the last verses of the two Psalms together. —Lightfoot.

† Heb. from a man of deceit and iniquity.

O deliver me †from the deceitful and unjust man.
[2] For thou art the God of my strength:
Why dost thou cast me off?
Why go I mourning because of the oppression of the enemy?

a Ps. 40. 11.

[3] O [a]send out thy light and thy truth:
Let them lead me;
Let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles.
[4] Then will I go unto the altar of God,

‡ Heb. the gladness of my joy.

Unto God ‡my exceeding joy:
Yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God my God!
[5] Why art thou cast down, O my soul?
And why art thou disquieted within me?
Hope in God—for I shall yet praise Him,
Who is the health of my countenance, and my God.

PSALM LV.

PSALM LV.

David in his prayer complaineth of his fearful case. 9 He prayeth against his enemies, of whose wickedness and treachery he complaineth. 16 He comforteth himself in God's preservation of him, and confusion of his enemies.

To the chief Musician on Neginoth, Maschil, A Psalm of David.

[1] Give ear to my prayer, O God!
And hide not thyself from my supplication.
[2] Attend unto me, and hear me:

a Is. 38. 14.

I [a]mourn in my complaint, and make a noise;
[3] Because of the voice of the enemy,
Because of the oppression of the wicked:
For they cast iniquity upon me,
And in wrath they hate me.
[4] My heart is sore pained within me:
And the terrors of death are fallen upon me.
[5] Fearfulness and trembling are come upon me,

* Heb. covered me.

And horror hath *overwhelmed me.
[6] And I said, O that I had wings like a dove!
For then would I fly away, and be at rest.
[7] Lo! then would I wander far off,
And remain in the wilderness. Selah!
[8] I would hasten my escape
From the windy storm and tempest.
[9] Destroy, O LORD, and divide their tongues:

b Je. 6. 7.

For I have seen [b]violence and strife in the city.
[10] Day and night they go about it upon the walls thereof:
Mischief also and sorrow are in the midst of it.
[11] Wickedness is in the midst thereof:
Deceit and guile depart not from her streets.

ii. p. 381.) refer this Psalm to the occasion of Ahithophel's treachery: it is generally considered as a prophecy of the treachery of Judas, and is quoted as such by St. Peter, Acts i. 20.

Psalm iv. David probably composed this Psalm on the same occasion that he wrote the third, (Bishop Patrick.) Lightfoot has a curious thought on the 7th verse of this Psalm. David is expressing his confidence in God; and proceeds to say, that his reliance on the providence of God affords him greater gladness of heart than he felt at that moment when, in the midst of his suffering and weariness, his own temporal wants, as well as those of his followers, were so abundantly relieved by the corn and wine of the three wealthy men who supplied him with provision at Mahanaim, 2 Sam. xvii. 27.

Psalm v. This Psalm is among those of which the date and occasion are quite uncertain. Dr. Edwards conjectures that it was composed when David was persecuted by Saul or Absalom. It is inserted here as more applicable to the circumstances of the revolt of Absalom than the persecution of Saul.

Psalm lxxi. It is generally thought that this Psalm was composed by David on occasion of Absalom's rebellion, when David was old and gray-headed. Dr. Wells in loc.; Calmet; Horne; Dr. Gray.

12 For [c]it was not an enemy that reproached me;
Then I could have borne it:
Neither was it he that hated me that did [d]magnify himself against me;
Then I would have hid myself from him.
13 But it was thou—a man †mine equal,
My guide, and mine acquaintance.
14 ‡We took sweet counsel together,
And walked unto the house of God in company.
15 Let death seize upon them,
And let them go down quick into *hell;
For wickedness is in their dwellings, and among them.
16 As for me, I will call upon God;
And the LORD shall save me.
17 Evening, [e]and morning, and at noon,
Will I pray, and cry aloud;
And he shall hear my voice.
18 He hath delivered my soul in peace
From the battle that was against me;
For there were many with me.
19 God shall hear, and afflict them,
Even [f]he that abideth of old. Selah!
†Because they have no changes,
Therefore they fear not God.
20 He hath [g]put forth his hands against such as be at peace with him:
He hath ‡broken his covenant.
21 The [h]words of his mouth were smoother than butter,
But war was in his heart:
His words were softer than oil,
Yet were they drawn swords.
22 Cast thy *burden upon the LORD,
And he shall sustain thee:
He [i]shall never suffer the righteous to be moved.
23 But thou, O God, shalt bring them down into the pit of destruction:
†Bloody and deceitful men ‡shall not live out half their days;

†Have mercy upon me, and hear my prayer.

7 Thou hast put [g]gladness in my heart,

David prayeth, and professeth his study in prayer. 4 God favoreth not the wicked. 7 David, professing his faith, prayeth unto God to guide him, 10 to destroy his enemies, 11 and to preserve the godly.

To the chief Musician upon Nehiloth, A Psalm of David.

[1] Give ear to my words, O LORD!
Consider my meditation.
[2] Hearken unto the voice of my cry, my King, and my God;
For unto thee will I pray.
[3] My [a]voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O LORD;
In the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up.
[4] For thou art not a God that hath pleasure in wickedness;
Neither shall evil dwell with thee.
[5] The [b]foolish shall not stand *in thy sight:
Thou hatest all workers of iniquity.
[6] Thou [c]shalt destroy them that speak leasing:

[7] But as for me,

And in thy fear will I worship toward ‡thy holy temple.

Make thy way straight before my face.

Cast them out in the multitude of their transgressions;
For they have rebelled against thee.
[11] But let all those that put their trust in thee [f]rejoice:
Let them ever shout for joy, because *thou defendest them:

PSALM LXX.

David soliciteth God to the speedy destruction of the wicked, and preservation of the godly.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David, *to bring to remembrance.

[1] Make haste, O God, to deliver me!
Make haste †to help me, O LORD!
[2] Let them be ashamed and confounded
That seek after my soul:
Let them be turned backward, and put to confusion,
That desire my hurt.
[3] Let [a]them be turned back for a reward of their shame
That say, Aha! aha!
[4] Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee:
And let such as love thy salvation say continually,
Let God be magnified!
[5] But I am poor and needy:
Make haste unto me, O God!
Thou art my help and my deliverer;
O LORD, make no tarrying!

PSALM LXXI.

PSALM LXXI.

David, in confidence of faith, and experience of God's favor, prayeth both for himself, and against the enemies of his soul. 14 He promiseth constancy. 17 He prayeth for perseverance. 19 He praiseth God, and promiseth to do it cheerfully.

[1] In [a]thee, O LORD! do I put my trust:
Let me never be put to confusion.
[2] Deliver [b]me in thy righteousness, and cause me to escape:
Incline [c]thine ear unto me, and save me.
[3] Be thou *my strong habitation, whereunto I may continually resort:

[a] Ps. 25. 2, 3.
[b] Ps. 31. 1.
[c] Ps. 17. 6.
* Heb. to me for a rock of habitation.

Thou hast given commandment to save me;
For thou art my rock and my fortress.
[4] Deliver me, O my God, out of the hand of the wicked,
Out of the hand of the unrighteous and cruel man.
[5] For thou art [d]my hope, O Lord GOD!
Thou art my trust from my youth.
[6] By [e]thee have I been holden up from the womb:
Thou art he that took me out of my mother's bowels:
My praise shall be continually of thee.
[7] I [f]am as a wonder unto many;
But thou art my strong refuge.
[8] Let my mouth be filled with thy praise
And with thine honor all the day.
[9] Cast me not off in the time of old age;
Forsake me not when my strength faileth.
[10] For mine enemies speak against me;
And they that †lay wait for my soul [g]take counsel together, [11] Saying, "God hath forsaken him:
Persecute and take him;
For there is none to deliver him."
[12] O [h]God, be not far from me!
O my God, make haste for my help!
[13] Let [i]them be confounded and consumed
That are adversaries to my soul;
Let them be covered with reproach and dishonor
That seek my hurt.
[14] But I will hope continually,
And will yet praise thee more and more.
[15] My [j]mouth shall show forth thy righteousness
And thy salvation all the day;
For I know not the numbers thereof.
[16] I will go in the strength of the Lord GOD:
I will make mention of thy righteousness, even of thine only.
[17] O God, thou hast taught me from my youth;
And hitherto have I declared thy wondrous works.
[18] Now also ‡when I am old and gray-headed, O God! forsake me not;
Until I have showed *thy strength unto this generation,
And thy power to every one that is to come.
[19] Thy righteousness also, O God, is very high,
Who hast done great things:
O [k]God, who is like unto thee!
[20] Thou, which hast showed me great and sore troubles,
Shalt [l]quicken me again,
And shalt bring me up again from the depths of the earth.
[21] Thou shalt increase my greatness,
And comfort me on every side.
[22] I will also praise thee †with the psaltery,
Even thy truth, O my God!
Unto thee will I sing with the harp, O thou [m]Holy One of Israel!
[23] My lips shall greatly rejoice when I sing unto thee;
And my soul, which thou hast redeemed.
[24] My tongue also shall talk of thy righteousness all the day long;
For they are confounded, for they are brought unto shame,
That seek my hurt.

The Wood of Ephraim.

2 Samuel xviii., xix., and xx. 3.

David viewing the armies in their march giveth them charge of Absalom. 6 The Israelites are sore smitten in the wood of Ephraim. 9 Absalom, hanging in an oak, is slain by Joab, and cast into a pit. 18 Absalom's place. 19 Ahimaaz and Cushi bring tidings to David. 33 David mourneth for Absalom. — Chap. xix. 1 Joab causeth the king to cease his mourning. 9 The Israelites are earnest to bring the king back. 11 David sendeth to the priests to incite them of Judah. 18 Shimei is pardoned. 24 Mephibosheth is excused. 32 Barzillai is dismissed, Chimham his son is taken into the king's family. 41 The Israelites expostulate with Judah for bringing home the king without them. — Chap. xx. 3 David's ten concubines are shut up in perpetual prison.

[1] And David numbered the people that were with him, and set captains of thousands and captains of hundreds over them. [2] And David sent forth a third part of the people under the hand of Joab, and a third part under the hand of Abishai the son of Zeruiah, Joab's brother, and a third part under the hand of Ittai the Gittite. And the king said unto the people, "I will surely go forth with you myself also." [3] But the people answered, "Thou shalt not go forth; for if we flee away, they will not *care for us; neither if half of us die, will they care for us: but now thou art †worth ten thousand of us; therefore now it is better that thou ‡succour us out of the city." [4] And the king said unto them, "What seemeth you best I will do." And the king stood by the gate side, and all the people came out by hundreds and by thousands. [5] And the king commanded Joab and Abishai and Ittai, saying, "Deal gently for my sake with the young man, even with Absalom." And all the people heard when the king gave all the captains charge concerning Absalom.

[6] So the people went out into the field against Israel; and the battle was in the wood of Ephraim, [7] where the people of Israel were slain before the servants of David, and there was there a great slaughter that day of twenty thousand men. [8] For the battle was there scattered over the face of all the country; and the wood *devoured more people that day than the sword devoured.

* Heb. multiplied to devour.

[9] And Absalom met the servants of David. And Absalom rode upon a mule, and the mule went under the thick boughs of a great oak, and his head caught hold of the oak, and he was taken up between the heaven and the earth; and the mule that was under him went away. [10] And a certain man saw it, and told Joab, and said, "Behold, I saw Absalom hanged in an oak." [11] And Joab said unto the man that told him, "And, behold, thou sawest him, and why didst thou not smite him there to the ground? and I would have given thee ten shekels of silver, and a girdle." [12] And the man said unto Joab, "Though I should †receive a thousand shekels of silver in my hand, yet would I not put forth my hand against the king's son; for in our hearing the king charged thee and Abishai and Ittai, saying, 'Beware ‡that none touch the young man Absalom.' [13] Otherwise I should have wrought falsehood against mine own life; for there is no matter hid from the king, and thou thyself wouldest have set thyself against me." [14] Then said Joab, "I may not tarry thus *with thee." And he took three darts in his hand, and thrust them through the heart of Absalom, while he was yet alive in the †midst of the oak. [15] And ten young men that bare Joab's armor compassed about, and smote Absalom, and slew him. [16] And Joab blew the trumpet, and the people returned from pursuing after Israel; for Joab held back the people. [17] And they took Absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the wood, and laid a very great heap of stones upon him; and all Israel fled every one to his tent.

[18] Now Absalom in his lifetime had taken and reared up for himself a pillar, which is in [a]the king's dale; for he said, "I [b]have no son to keep my name in remembrance." And he called the pillar after his own name; and it is called unto this day, Absalom's Place.

[19] Then said Ahimaaz the son of Zadok, "Let me now run, and bear the king tidings, how that the Lord hath ‡avenged him of his enemies." [20] And Joab said unto him, "Thou shalt not *bear tidings this day, but thou shalt bear tidings another day; but this day thou shalt bear no tidings, because the king's son is dead." [21] Then said Joab to Cushi, "Go tell the king what thou hast seen." And Cushi bowed himself unto Joab, and ran. [22] Then said Ahimaaz the son of Zadok yet again to Joab, "But †howsoever, let me, I pray thee, also run after Cushi." And Joab said, "Wherefore wilt thou run, my son, seeing that thou hast no tidings ‡ready?" [23] "But howsoever," said he, "let me run." And he said unto him, "Run." Then Ahimaaz ran by the way of the plain, and overran Cushi. [24] And David sat between the two gates; and [c]the watchman went up to the roof over the gate unto the wall, and lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold a man running alone. [25] And the watchman cried, and told the king. And the king said, "If he be alone, there is tidings in his mouth." And he came apace, and drew near. [26] And the watchman saw another man running; and the watchman called unto the porter, and said, "Behold another man running alone." And the king said, "He also bringeth tidings." [27] And the watchman said, "*Me thinketh the running of the foremost is like the running of Ahimaaz the son of Zadok." And the king said, "He is a good man, and cometh with good tidings." [28] And Ahimaaz called, and said unto the king, "†All is well!" And he fell down to the earth upon his face before the king, and said, "Blessed be the Lord thy God, which hath ‡delivered up the men that lifted up their hand against my lord the king." [29] And the king said, "*Is the young man Absalom safe?" And Ahimaaz answered, "When Joab sent the king's servant, and me thy servant, I saw a great tumult, but I knew not what it was." [30] And the king said unto him, "Turn aside, and stand here." And he turned aside, and stood still. [31] And, behold, Cushi came; and Cushi said, "†Tidings, my lord the king! for the Lord hath avenged thee this day of all them that rose up against thee." [32] And the king said unto Cushi, "Is the young man Absalom safe?" And Cushi answered, "The enemies of my lord the king, and all that rise against thee to do thee hurt, be as that young man is."

[33] And the king was much moved, and went up to the chamber over the gate, and wept: and as he went, thus he said, "O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! would God I had died for thee, O Absalom, my son, my son!"

[1] And it was told Joab, "Behold, the king weepeth and 2 Sam. xix. mourneth for Absalom." [2] And the ‡victory that day was turned into mourning unto all the people; for the people heard say that day how the king was grieved for his son. [3] And the people gat them by stealth that day into the city, as people being ashamed steal away when they flee in battle. [4] But the king covered his face, and the king cried with a loud voice, "O my son Absalom, O Absalom, my son, my son!" [5] And Joab came into the house to the king, and said, "Thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy servants, which this day have saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and the lives of thy concubines; [6] *in that thou lovest thine enemies, and hatest thy friends. For thou hast declared this day, †that thou regardest neither princes nor servants; for this day I perceive, that if Absalom had lived, and all we had died this day, then it had pleased thee well. [7] Now therefore arise, go forth, and speak ‡comfortably unto thy servants: for I swear by the Lord, if thou go not forth, there will not tarry one with thee this night; and that will be worse unto thee than all the evil that befell thee from thy youth until now." [8] Then the king arose, and sat in the gate. And they told unto all the people, saying, "Behold, the king doth sit in the gate." And all the people came before the king; for Israel had fled every man to his tent.

[9] And all the people were at strife throughout all the tribes of Israel, saying, "The king saved us out of the hand of our enemies, and he delivered us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. [10] And Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in battle. Now therefore why *speak ye not a word of bringing the king back?"

* Heb. are ye silent?

[11] And king David sent to Zadok and to Abiathar the priests, saying, "Speak unto the elders of Judah, saying, Why are ye the last to bring the king back to his house? seeing the speech of all Israel is come to the king, even to his house. [12] Ye are my brethren, ye are my bones and my flesh: wherefore then are ye the last to bring back the king? [13] And say ye to Amasa, Art thou not of my bone, and of my flesh? God do so to me, and more also, if thou be not captain of the host before me continually in the room of Joab!" [14] And he bowed the heart of all the men of Judah, even as the heart of one man; so that they sent this word unto the king, "Return thou, and all thy servants." [15] So the king returned, and came to Jordan. And Judah came to Gilgal, to go to meet the king, to conduct the king over Jordan. [16] And [f]Shimei the son of Gera, a Benjamite, which was of Bahurim, hasted and came down with the men of Judah to meet king David. [17] And there were a thousand men of Benjamin with him, and Ziba the servant of the house of Saul, and his fifteen sons and his twenty servants with him; and they went over Jordan before the king. [18] And there went over a ferry-boat to carry over the king's household, and to do †what he thought good. And Shimei the son of Gera fell down before the king, as he was come over Jordan; [19] and said unto the king, "Let not my lord impute iniquity unto me, neither do thou remember that which thy servant did perversely the day that my lord the king went out of Jerusalem, that the king should take it to his heart. [20] For thy servant doth know that I have sinned; therefore, behold, I am come the first this day of all [g]the house of Joseph to go down to meet my lord the king." [21] But Abishai the son of Zeruiah answered and said, "Shall not Shimei be put to death for this, because he [h]cursed the Lord's anointed?" [22] And David said, "What have I to do with you, ye sons of Zeruiah, that ye should this day be adversaries unto me? [i]shall there any man be put to death this day in Israel? for do not I know that I am this day king over Israel?" [23] Therefore [j]the king said unto Shimei, "Thou shalt not die." And the king sware unto him.

[24] And Mephibosheth the son of Saul came down to meet the king, and had neither dressed his feet, nor trimmed his beard, nor washed his clothes, from the day the king departed until the day he came again in peace. [25] And it came to pass, when he was come to Jerusalem to meet the king, that the king said unto him, "Wherefore wentest not thou with me, Mephibosheth?" [26] And he answered, "My lord, O king, my servant deceived me; for thy servant said, I will saddle me an ass, that I may ride thereon, and go to the king, because thy servant is lame. [27] And he hath slandered thy servant unto my lord the king; but my lord the king is as an angel of God: do therefore what is good in thine eyes. [28] For all of my father's house were but ‡dead men before my lord the king; yet didst thou set thy servant among them that did eat at thine own table. What right therefore have I yet to cry any

[31] And Barzillai the Gileadite came down from Rogelim, and went over Jordan with the king, to conduct him over Jordan. [32] Now Barzillai was a very aged man, even fourscore years old; and he had provided the king of sustenance while he lay at Mahanaim, for he was a very great man. [33] And the king said unto Barzillai, "Come thou over with me, and I will feed thee with me in Jerusalem." [34] And Barzillai said unto the king, "How *long have I to live, that I should go up with the king unto Jerusalem? [35] I am this day [k]fourscore years old; and can I discern between good and evil? can thy servant taste what I eat or what I drink? can I hear any more the voice of singing men and singing women? wherefore then should thy servant be yet a burden unto my lord the king? [36] Thy servant will go a little way over Jordan with the king; and why should the king recompense it me with such a reward? [37] Let thy servant, I pray thee, turn back again, that I may die in mine own city, and be buried by the grave of my father and of my mother. But behold thy servant [l]Chimham; let him go over with my lord the king; and do to him what shall seem good unto thee." [38] And the king answered, "Chimham shall go over with me, and I will do to him that which shall seem good unto thee; and whatsoever thou shalt †require of me, that will I do for thee." [39] And all the people went over Jordan. And when the king was come over, the king kissed Barzillai, and blessed him; and he returned unto his own place. [43] And the men of Israel answered the men of Judah, and said, "We have ten parts in the king, and we have also more right in David than ye: why then did ye *despise us, that our advice should not be first had in bringing back our king?" By occasion of the quarrel, Sheba maketh a party in Israel. 4 Amasa, made captain over Judah, is slain by Joab. 14 Joab pursueth Sheba unto Abel. 16 A wise woman saveth the city by Sheba's head. 23 David's officers.

[1] And there happened to be there a man of Belial, whose name was Sheba, the son of Bichri, a Benjamite; and he blew a trumpet, and said, "We have no part in David, neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: [a]every man to his tents, O Israel!" [2] So every man of Israel went up from after David, and followed Sheba the son of Bichri;

[4] Then said the king to Amasa, "*Assemble me the men of Judah within three days, and be thou here present." [5] So Amasa went to assemble the men of Judah; but he tarried longer than the set time which he had appointed him. [6] And David said to Abishai, "Now shall Sheba the son of Bichri do us more harm than did Absalom: take thou thy lord's servants, and pursue after him, lest he get him fenced cities, and †escape us." [7] And there went out after him Joab's men, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and all the mighty men: and they went out of Jerusalem, to pursue after Sheba the son of Bichri.

[8] When they were at the great stone which is in Gibeon, Amasa went before them. And Joab's garment that he had put on was girded unto him, and upon it a girdle with a sword fastened upon his loins in the sheath thereof; and as he went forth it fell out. [9] And Joab said to Amasa, "Art thou in health, my brother?" [b]And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him. [10] But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand: so he smote him therewith in the fifth rib, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and ‡struck him not again; and he died. So Joab and Abishai his brother pursued after Sheba the son of Bichri. [11] And one of Joab's men stood by him, and said, "He that favoreth Joab, and he that is for David, let him go after Joab." [12] And Amasa wallowed in blood in the midst of the highway. And when the man saw that all the people stood still, he removed Amasa out of the highway into the field, and cast a cloth upon him, when he saw that every one that came by him stood still. [13] When he was removed out of the highway, all the people went on after Joab, to pursue after Sheba the son of Bichri.

And the LORD answered, "It is for Saul, and for his bloody house, because he slew the Gibeonites." [2] And the king called the Gibeonites, and said unto them, (now the Gibeonites were not of the children of Israel, *a*but of the remnant of the Amorites, and the children of Israel had sworn unto them; and Saul sought to slay them in his zeal to the children of Israel and Judah;) [3] wherefore David said unto the Gibeonites, "What shall I do for you? and wherewith shall I make the atonement, that ye may bless the inheritance of the LORD?" [4] And the Gibeonites said unto him, "†We will have no silver nor gold of Saul, nor of his house; neither for us shalt thou kill any man in Israel." And he said, "What ye shall say, that will I do for you." [5] And they answered the king, "The man that consumed us, and that ‡devised against us that we should be destroyed from remaining in any of the coasts of Israel, [6] let seven men of his sons be delivered unto us, and we will hang them up unto the LORD in Gibeah of Saul, *whom the LORD did choose." And the king said, "I will give them." [7] But the king spared Mephibosheth, the son of Jonathan the son of Saul, because of *b*the LORD's oath that was between them, between David and Jonathan the son of Saul. [8] But the king took the two sons of Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, whom she bare unto Saul, Armoni and Mephibosheth; and the five sons of †Michal the daughter of Saul whom she ‡brought up for Adriel the son of Barzillai the Meholathite; [9] and he delivered them into the hands of the Gibeonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the LORD: and they fell all seven together, and were put to death in the days of harvest, in the first days, in the beginning of barley harvest.

[10] And Rizpah the daughter of Aiah took sackcloth, and spread it for her upon the rock, *c*from the beginning of harvest until water dropped upon them out of heaven, and suffered neither the birds of the air to rest on them by day, nor the beasts of the field by night. [11] And it was told David what Rizpah the daughter of Aiah, the concubine of Saul, had done.

[12] And David went and took the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son from the men of Jabesh-gilead, which had stolen them from the street of Beth-shan, where the Philistines had hanged them, when the Philistines had slain Saul in Gilboa. [13] And he brought up from thence the bones of Saul and the bones of Jonathan his son; and they gathered the bones of them that were hanged. [14] And the bones of Saul and Jonathan his son buried they in the country of Benjamin in Zelah, in the sepulchre of Kish his father; and they performed all that the king commanded. And after that *d*God was entreated for the land.

SECTION XVII.—Last War with the Philistines;—David's Psalms of Thanksgiving for God's Blessings.

2 SAM. xxi. 15, to the end, and chap. xxii.—PSALM xviii.—1 CHRON. xx. 4, to the end.

[15] MOREOVER the Philistines had yet war again with Israel; and

(64) At this time, when the Israelites had been weakened by two rebellions and three years of famine, the Philistines, thinking it a favorable opportunity of shaking off the yoke, renew the war;

David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines: and David waxed faint. [16] And Ishbi-benob, which was of the sons of *the giant, the weight of whose †spear weighed three hundred shekels of brass in weight, he being girded with a new sword, thought to have slain David. [17] But Abishai the son of Zeruiah succoured him, and smote the Philistine, and killed him. Then the men of David sware unto him, saying, "Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, that thou quench not the ‡light of Israel."

[18] And it came to pass after this, that there was again a battle with the Philistines at Gob; then Sibbechai the Hushathite slew *Saph, which was of the sons of †the giant. [19] And there was again a battle in Gob with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of ‡Jaare-oregim, a Beth-lehemite, slew [a]the brother of Goliath the Gittite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam. [20] And there was yet a battle in Gath, where was a man of great stature, that had on every hand six fingers, and on every foot six toes, four and twenty in number; and he also was born to *the giant. [21] And when he †defied Israel, Jonathan the son of [b]Shimeah the brother of David slew him. [22] These [c]four were born to the giant in Gath, and fell by the hand of David, and by the hand of his servants.

2 Sam. xxii.

[1] And David [d]spake unto the Lord the words of this song in the day that the Lord had delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul. [2] And he said,—

"The [e]Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer;
[3] The God of my rock; [f]in him will I trust:
He is my shield, and the [g]horn of my salvation,
My high [h]tower, and my [i]refuge, my saviour;
Thou savest me from violence.
[4] I will call on the Lord, who is worthy to be praised:
So shall I be saved from mine enemies.
[5] When the ‡waves of death compassed me,
The floods of *ungodly men made me afraid;
[6] The †sorrows of hell compassed me about;
The snares of death prevented me;
[7] In my distress [j]I called upon the Lord,
And cried to my God:
And he did [k]hear my voice out of his temple,
And my cry did enter into his ears.
[8] "Then [l]the earth shook and trembled;
The [m]foundations of heaven moved
And shook, because he was wroth.
[9] There went up a smoke ‡out of his nostrils,
And [n]fire out of his mouth devoured:
Coals were kindled by it.
[10] He [o]bowed the heavens also, and came down;
And [p]darkness was under his feet.
[11] And he rode upon a cherub, and did fly:
And he was seen [q]upon the wings of the wind.
[12] And he made [r]darkness pavilions round about him,
†Dark waters, and thick clouds of the skies.

but are defeated in four engagements, and are finally subdued. After these deliverances it is probable that David, who composed the 18th Psalm at an early period of his life, when, according to the title, he had been delivered from the hand of Saul, now again applies it, on being rescued from the last assault of his enemies. This appears to account for the differences between this Psalm and the parallel passage in 2 Sam. xxii.—Dr. Wells's Commentary. I have therefore inserted the 18th Psalm after 2 Sam. xxii. We learn by the title that David recomposed it after all his deliverances, and of course after this last war of the Philistines.

14 The LORD [s]thundered from heaven,
And the Most High uttered his voice.
15 And he sent out [t]arrows—and scattered them ;
Lightning—and discomfited them.
16 And the channels of the sea appeared,
The foundations of the world were discovered,
At the [u]rebuking of the LORD,
At the blast of the breath of his ‡nostrils.
17 “ He sent from above,
He took me—he drew me out of *many waters ;
18 He delivered me from my strong enemy,
And from them that hated me :
For they were too strong for me.
19 They prevented me in the day of my calamity ;
But the LORD was my stay.
20 He brought me forth also into a large place :
He delivered me, because he [v]delighted in me.
21 The [w]LORD rewarded me according to my righteousness :
According to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.
22 For I have [x]kept the ways of the LORD,
And have not wickedly departed from my God.
23 For all his [y]judgments were before me ;
And as for his statutes, I did not depart from them.
24 I was also upright †before him,
And have kept myself from mine iniquity.
25 Therefore the LORD hath recompensed me
According to my righteousness ;
According to my cleanness ‡in his eyesight.

And with the upright man thou wilt show thyself upright.
27 With the pure thou wilt show thyself pure ;
And [a]with the froward thou wilt *show thyself unsavoury.
28 And the [b]afflicted people thou wilt save ;
But thine eyes are upon [c]the haughty,
That thou mayest bring them down.

And the LORD will lighten my darkness.

David, tempted by Satan, forceth Joab to number the people. The captains, in nine months and twenty days, bring the muster of thirteen hundred thousand fighting men David, having three plagues propounded by Gad, repenteth, and chooseth the three days' pestilence. After the death of seventy thousand, David by repentance preventeth the destruction of Jerusalem David, by Gad's direction, purchaseth Ornan's threshingfloor, where, having built an altar, God giveth a sign of his favor by fire, and stayeth the plague. David sacrificeth there, being restrained from Gibeon by fear of the angel. David's psalm of praise.

(65) David's motive for numbering his people was pride of heart. It is curious to observe the different phraseology of Scripture: in 2 Sam. xxiv. 1. it says, "God moved him;" [but see reference in the margin.—Ed.] in another part, that Satan provoked him; and it is again decidedly spoken of as his own act, for which he was not only accountable, but punished.

*he moved David against them to say, "Go, number Israel and Judah." [2]For the king said to Joab the captain of the host, which was with him, "†Go now through all the tribes of Israel, from Dan even to Beer-sheba, and number ye the people, that [b]I may know the number of the people." [3]And Joab said unto the king, "Now the LORD thy God add unto the people, how many soever they be, an hundredfold, and that the eyes of my lord the king may see it; but why doth my lord the king delight in this thing?" [4]Notwithstanding the king's word prevailed against Joab, and against the captains of the host. And Joab and the captains of the host went out from the presence of the king, to number the people of Israel.

[8]So when they had gone through all the land, they came to Jerusalem at the end of nine months and twenty days. And David said unto the LORD, "I have sinned greatly in that I have done; and now, I beseech thee, O LORD, take away the iniquity of thy servant, for I have done very foolishly." [11]For when David was up in the morning, the word of the LORD came unto the prophet Gad, David's seer, saying, [12]"Go and say unto David, Thus saith the LORD, I offer thee three things; choose thee one of them, that I may do it unto thee." [13]So Gad came to David, and told him, and said unto him, "Shall seven years of famine come unto thee in thy land? Or wilt thou flee three months before thine enemies, while they pursue thee? Or that there be three days' pestilence in thy land? now advise, and see what answer I shall return to Him that sent me." [14]And David said unto Gad, "I am in a great strait. Let us fall now into the hand of the LORD, [d]for his mercies are *great; and [e]let me not fall into the hand of man."

[15]So the LORD sent a pestilence upon Israel from the morning even to the time appointed; and there died of the people from Dan even to Beer-sheba seventy thousand men.

(66) In the Book of Samuel it is said, Joab numbered 800,000 for Israel, and 500,000 for Judah; and in the Book of Chronicles, that he numbered 1,100,000 for Israel, and 470,000 for Judah. In the former list, the amount of the standing army of Israel is omitted; or, as it appears from 1 Chron. xxvii. 23, 24. the returns were not completed that were sent in to the king, and the author of the Book of Samuel mentions the number according to the list actually given in; and the author of the Book of Chronicles, according to the list not laid before the king, or inserted in the public records, but generally known among the people. repented him of the evil, and said to the Angel that destroyed it, "It is enough, stay now thy hand." And the Angel of the LORD stood by the threshingfloor of †Ornan the Jebusite. [16] And David lifted up his eyes, and [g]saw the Angel of the LORD stand between the earth and the heaven, having a drawn sword in his hand stretched out over Jerusalem. Then David and the elders of Israel, who were clothed in sackcloth, fell upon their faces.

[17] And David spake unto the LORD when he saw the Angel that smote the people, and said, "Lo! I have sinned, and I have done wickedly; but these sheep, what have they done? let thy hand, I pray thee, be against me, and against my father's house, [17] but not on thy people, that they should be plagued."

1 CHRON. xxi. latter part of ver. 17, to end.

[18] Then the Angel of the LORD commanded Gad to say to David, that David should go up, and set up an altar unto the LORD in the threshingfloor of Ornan the Jebusite. [19] And David went up at the saying of Gad, which he spake in the name of the LORD. [20] ‡And Ornan turned back, and saw the Angel; and his four sons with him hid themselves. Now Ornan was threshing wheat. [21] And as David came to Ornan, Ornan looked and saw David, and went out of the threshingfloor, and bowed himself to David with his face to the ground. [22] Then David said to Ornan, "*Grant me the place of this threshingfloor, that I may build an altar therein unto the LORD, (thou shall grant it me for the full price,) that the plague may be stayed from the people." [23] And Ornan said unto David, "Take it to thee, and let my lord the king do that which is good in his eyes: lo! I give thee the oxen also for burnt offerings, and the threshing instruments for wood, and the wheat for the meat offering; I give it all." [24] And king David said to Ornan, "Nay, but I will verily buy it for the full price; for I will not take that which is thine for the LORD, nor offer burnt offerings without cost." [25] So David gave to Ornan for the place six hundred shekels of gold by weight. [26] And David built there an altar unto the LORD, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings, and called upon the LORD; and [h]he answered him from heaven by fire upon the altar of burnt offering. [27] And the LORD commanded the Angel; and he put up his sword again into the sheath thereof.

1 Chron. xxi. 1–5, 8–14.—1 And Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel. 2 And David said to Joab and to the rulers of the people, "Go, number Israel from Beer-sheba even to Dan; and bring the number of them to me, that I may know it." 3 And Joab answered, "The Lord make his people an hundred times so many more as they be; but, my lord the king, are they not all my lord's servants? why then doth my lord require this thing? why will he be a cause of trespass to Israel?" 4 Nevertheless the king's word prevailed against Joab. Wherefore Joab departed, and went throughout all Israel, and came to Jerusalem.

5 And Joab gave the sum of the number of the people unto David. And all they of Israel were a thousand thousand and an hundred thousand men that drew sword; and Judah was four hundred threescore and ten thousand men that drew sword.

[d]And David said, "To buy the threshingfloor of thee, to build an altar unto the Lord, that [e]the plague may be stayed from the people." 22 And Araunah said unto David, "Let my lord the king take and offer up what seemeth good unto him: [f]behold, here be oxen for burnt sacrifice, and threshing instruments and other instruments of the oxen for wood." 23 All these things did Araunah, as a king, give unto the king. And Araunah said unto the king, "The Lord thy God [g]accept thee!" 24 And the king said unto Araunah, "Nay, but I will surely buy it of thee at a price; neither will I offer burnt offerings unto the Lord my God of that which doth cost me nothing." So David bought the threshingfloor and the oxen for fifty shekels of silver. [25] And David built there an altar unto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings. So the Lord was entreated for the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel.

1 Chronicles xxii.

David, foreknowing the place of the temple, prepareth abundance for the building of it. 6 He instructeth Solomon in God's promises, and his duty in building the temple. 17 He chargeth the princes to assist his son.

[1] Then David said, "This [a]is the house of the Lord God, and this is the altar of the burnt offering for Israel." [2] And David commanded to gather together [b]the strangers that were in the land of Israel; and he set masons to hew wrought stones to build the house of God. [3] And David prepared iron in abundance for the nails for the doors of the gates, and for the joinings; and brass in abundance [c]without weight; [4] also cedar trees in abundance: for [d]the Zidonians and they of Tyre brought much cedar wood to David. [5] And David said, "Solomon my son is young and tender, and the house that is to be builded for the Lord must be exceeding magnifical, of fame and of glory throughout all countries: I will therefore now make preparation for it." So David prepared abundantly before his death.

[6] Then he called for Solomon his son, and charged him to build a house for the Lord God of Israel. [7] And David said to Solomon, "My son, as for me, [e]it was in my mind to build a house [f]unto the name of the Lord my God. (68) The arrangement of the events related in this section varies considerably from their order as proposed by Lightfoot. The difficulty of placing them is very great; but the following considerations appear to warrant the present disposition of the text.

Solomon had been intended by his father, from his very birth, as the successor to the throne. It is generally supposed that Nathan assured David that his son would succeed him, when the name Jedidiah, "Beloved of the Lord," was given him; and when he was commanded not to build the temple.

When David, however, was now very old and infirm, Adonijah began to assume the honors of royalty, and to consider himself as the successor. Adonijah was the fourth son of David: Absalom and Amnon were dead, and his other brother, Daniel, or Chileab, was born before David was king. According to the custom of the East, therefore, Adonijah considered himself the eldest son, and heir to the kingdom. Lightfoot ascribes the rash and ambitious schemes of this prince, to his knowledge of his father's decrepitude and age; and places, therefore, the passage 1 Kings i. before the account of the address of David to Solomon. This, however, does not appear an adequate cause; for if Adonijah really supposed himself to be the destined heir, the very conviction he entertained of his father's infirmity ought to have induced him to remain quiet. The suspicion of David's determination to anoint Solomon as his successor, is more likely to have influenced his conduct. Adonijah, therefore, relying on the attachment of Joab the head of the army, and on that of Abiathar the high priest, as well as on the silence hitherto maintained in public respecting Solomon, endeavoured to form a party too strong for his father to oppose, and by these means to prevent the intended advancement of Solomon.

The promptitude and decision of David defeated this bold enterprise. Though he was confined to his couch by infirmities (1 Kings i. 47.), he ordered Solomon to be immediately crowned king, and declared partner of the throne: thus investing him with power to punish all conspiracies against the sovereign. This unexpected firmness entirely dispersed the adherents of Adonijah. David, however, not content with this, had recourse to another step, which secured the throne to Solomon against all further attempts. David summoned the princes and heads of Israel, and, leaving his couch, went to the assembly, presented Solomon to them as king, and declared the promise of God, that Solomon alone should build the temple, and establish the kingdom as his successor.

After this first assembly, more extensive preparations were made to build the temple: the priests and Levites are called together, and divided into their several courses; they do not appear to have been summoned to the first assembly. It is probable that the chief Psalms composed by David were delivered to the priests and singers. And when all the preparations for the objects which David had in view were completed, the congregation is summoned a second time—the magnificent presents of David to the intended building are recorded—the heads of the nation contribute to the work—a solemn festival was held, at which Solomon was again anointed—and all the princes publicly submitted themselves to him, as they had before done to his father.

for my name; and [j]he shall be my son, and I will be his father; and I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel for ever.' [11] Now, my son, the LORD be with thee! and prosper thou, and build the house of the LORD thy God, as he hath said of thee. [12] Only the LORD [k]give thee wisdom and understanding, and give thee charge concerning Israel, that thou mayest keep the law of the LORD thy God. [13] Then [l]shalt thou prosper, if thou takest heed to fulfil the statutes and judgments which the LORD charged Moses with concerning Israel! [m]be strong, and of good courage; dread not, nor be dismayed. [14] Now, behold! †in my trouble I have prepared for the house of the LORD an hundred thousand talents of gold, and a thousand thousand talents of silver; and of brass and iron without weight; for it is in abundance: timber also and stone have I prepared; and thou mayest add thereto. [15] Moreover there are workmen with thee in abundance, hewers and ‡workers of stone and timber, and all manner of cunning men for every manner of work. [16] Of the gold, the silver, and the brass, and the iron, there is no number. Arise therefore, and be doing, and the LORD be with thee!"

[17] David also commanded all the princes of Israel to help Solomon his son, saying, [18] "Is not the LORD your God with you? [n]and hath he not given you rest on every side? for he hath given the inhabitants of the land into my hand; and the land is subdued before the LORD, and before his people. [19] Now [o]set your heart and your soul to seek the LORD your God; arise therefore, and build ye the sanctuary of the LORD God, to [p]bring the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and the holy vessels of God, into the house that is to be built to the name of the LORD."

1 KINGS i.

Abishag cherisheth David in his extreme age. 5 Adonijah, David's darling, usurpeth the kingdom. 11 By the counsel of Nathan, 15 Bath-sheba moveth the king, 22 and Nathan secondeth her. 28 David reneweth his oath to Bath-sheba. 32 Solomon, by David's appointment, being anointed king by Zadok and Nathan, the people triumph. 41 Jonathan bringing these news, Adonijah's guests flee. 50 Adonijah, fleeing to the horns of the altar, upon his good behaviour is dismissed by Solomon.

[1] Now king David was old and *stricken in years; and they covered him with clothes, but he gat no heat. [2] Wherefore his servants said unto him, "Let †there be sought for my lord the king ‡a young virgin; and let her stand before the king, and let her *cherish him, and let her lie in thy bosom, that my lord the king may get heat." [3] So they sought for a fair damsel throughout all the coasts of Israel, and found Abishag a Shunammite, and brought her to the king. [4] And the damsel was very fair, and cherished the king, and ministered to him; but the king knew her not.

[5] Then [a]Adonijah the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying, "I will †be king:" and he prepared him chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. [6] And his father had not displeased him ‡at any time in saying, "Why hast thou done so?" and he also was a very goodly man; and his mother bare him after Absalom. [7] And *he conferred with Joab the son of Zeruiah, and with Abiathar the priest; and they, †following Adonijah, helped him. [8] But Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and Nathan the prophet, and Shimei, and Rei, and [b]the mighty men which belonged to David, were not with Adonijah. [9] And Adonijah slew sheep and oxen and fat cattle by the stone of Zoheleth, which is by ‡En-rogel, and called all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of Judah the king's servants; [10] but Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah, and the mighty men, and Solomon his brother, he called not.

And the king said, “†What wouldest thou?” [17] And she said unto him, “My lord, thou swarest by the LORD thy God unto thy handmaid, saying, ‘Assuredly Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne.’ [18] And now, behold, Adonijah reigneth; and now, my lord the king, thou knowest it not. [24] And Nathan said, “My lord, O king, hast thou said, Adonijah shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne? [25] For he is gone down this day, and hath slain oxen and fat cattle and sheep in abundance, and hath called all the king’s sons, and the captains of the host, and Abiathar the priest; and, behold, they eat and drink before him, and say, ‘*God save king Adonijah!’ [26] But me, even me thy servant, and Zadok the priest, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and thy servant Solomon, hath he not called. [41] And Adonijah and all the guests that were with him heard it as they had made an end of eating. And when Joab heard the sound of the trumpet, he said, "Wherefore is this noise of the city being in an uproar?" [42] And while he yet spake, behold, Jonathan, the son of Abiathar the priest came; and Adonijah said unto him, "Come in; for thou art a valiant man, and bringest good tidings." [43] And Jonathan answered and said to Adonijah, "Verily our lord king David hath made Solomon king. [44] And the king hath sent with him Zadok the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Benaiah the son of Jehoiada, and the Cherethites, and the Pelethites, and they have caused him to ride upon the king's mule. [45] And Zadok the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon; and they are come up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again. This is the noise that ye have heard. [46] And also Solomon sitteth on the throne of the kingdom. [47] And moreover the king's servants came to bless our lord king David, saying, 'God make the name of Solomon better than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne!' [n]and the king bowed himself upon the bed. [48] And also thus said the king, 'Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, which hath [o]given one to sit on my throne this day, mine eyes even seeing it!'" [49] And all the guests that were with Adonijah were afraid, and rose up, and went every man his way.

[50] And Adonijah feared because of Solomon, and arose, and went, and caught hold on the horns of the altar. [52] And Solomon said, "If he will show himself a worthy man, [p]there shall not a hair of him fall to the earth; but if wickedness shall be found in him, he shall die." 1 CHRON. xxiii. 1. and xxviii. 1–10.—PSALMS xci. and cxlv.

David, in a solemn assembly having declared God's favor to him, and promise to his son Solomon, exhorteth him to fear God. His Psalms.

[1] So when David was old and full of days, he made Solomon his son king over Israel.

1 CHRON. xxviii. 1–10.

[1] And David assembled all the princes of Israel, the princes of the tribes, and the captains of the companies that ministered to the king by course, and the captains over the thousands, and captains over the hundreds, and the stewards over all the substance and *possession of the king, †and of his sons, with the ‡officers, and with [a]the mighty men, and with all the valiant men, unto Jerusalem. and my people! As for me, [b]I had in my heart to build a house of rest for the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and for the footstool of our God, and had made ready for the building. [3] But God said unto me, 'Thou [c]shalt not build a house for my name, because thou hast been a man of war, and hast shed *blood.' [4] Howbeit the LORD God of Israel [d]chose me before all the house of my father to be king over Israel for ever: for he hath chosen [e]Judah to be the ruler; and of the house of Judah, [f]the house of my father; and among the sons of my father he liked me to make me king over all Israel. [5] And [g]of all my sons, (for the LORD hath given me many sons,) [h]he hath chosen Solomon my son to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the LORD over Israel. [6] And he said unto me, 'Solomon [i]thy son, he shall build my house and my courts; for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be his father. [7] Moreover I will establish his kingdom for ever, if he be †constant to do my commandments and my judgments, as at this day.' [8] Now therefore in the sight of all Israel the congregation of the LORD, and in the audience of our God, keep and seek for all the commandments of the LORD your God: that ye may possess this good land, and leave it for an inheritance for your children after you for ever.—[9] And thou, Solomon my son, [j]know thou the God of thy father, and serve him [k]with a perfect heart and with a willing mind: for [l]the LORD searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the imaginations of the thoughts: [m]if thou seek him, he will be found of thee; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off for ever. (69) This Psalm seems, from its internal evidence, to be addressed to Solomon; to encourage him to persevere in his allegiance to the King of kings. It describes the security, the reward, and the happiness of religion. I have inserted it therefore after the charge of David to his son. It is prophetic of Christ, and is quoted by him as applicable to himself.

Psalm cxlv. This fine hymn of praise was not improbably written towards the termination of David's life; on surveying the wisdom, mercy, and goodness of God both to himself and to all nature.

[12] They shall bear thee up in their hands,
Lest [f]thou dash thy foot against a stone.
[13] Thou shalt tread upon the lion, and †adder:
The young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under feet.
[14] Because he hath set his love upon Me,
Therefore will I deliver him:
I will set him on high,
Because he hath known my name.

I [h]will be with him in trouble;

[1] I will extol thee, my God, O King!
And I will bless thy name for ever and ever.
[2] Every day will I bless thee;
And I will praise thy name for ever and ever.
[3] Great [b]is the Lord, and greatly to be praised;
*And his greatness is unsearchable.
[4] One [c]generation shall praise thy works to another,

[5] I will speak of the glorious honor of thy majesty,

[7] They shall abundantly utter the memory of thy great goodness,
And shall sing of thy righteousness.
[8] The [d]Lord is gracious, and full of compassion;

[9] The [e]Lord is good to all;
And his tender mercies are over all his works.
[10] All [f]thy works shall praise thee, O Lord!
And thy saints shall bless thee.
[11] They shall speak of the glory of thy kingdom,
And talk of thy power;
[12] To make known to the sons of men his mighty acts,
And the glorious majesty of his kingdom.
[13] Thy kingdom is †an everlasting kingdom,

And *holy in all his works.
[18] The [j]Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him,
To all that call upon him [k]in truth.

[2] AND he gathered together all the princes of Israel, with the priests and the Levites. [3] Now the Levites were numbered from the age of [a]thirty years and upward; and their number by their polls, man by man, was thirty and eight thousand. [4] Of which, twenty and four thousand were *to set forward the work of the house of the LORD; and six thousand were [b]officers and judges. [5] Moreover four thousand were porters; and four thousand praised the LORD with the instruments [c]which I made, said David, to praise therewith. [6] And [d]David divided them into †courses among the sons of Levi, namely, Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

[7] Of the Gershonites were, ‡Laadan, and Shimei. [8] The sons of Laadan; the chief was Jehiel, and Zetham, and Joel, three. [9] The sons of Shimei; Shelomith, and Haziel, and Haran, three: these were the chief of the fathers of Laadan. [10] And the sons of Shimei were, Jahath, *Zina, and Jeush, and Beriah: these four were the sons of Shimei. [11] And Jahath was the chief, and Zizah the second: but Jeush and Beriah †had not many sons; therefore they were in one reckoning, according to their father's house.

[12] The [e]sons of Kohath; Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel, four. [13] The sons of Amram; Aaron and Moses: and [f]Aaron was separated, that he should sanctify the most holy things, he and his sons for ever, [g]to burn incense before the LORD, [h]to minister unto him, and [i]to bless in his name for ever. [14] Now concerning Moses the man of God, his sons were named of the tribe of Levi. [15] The [j]sons of Moses were, Gershom, and Eliezer. [16] Of the sons of Gershom, ‡Shebuel was the chief. [17] And the sons of Eliezer were, Rehabiah *the chief. And Eliezer had none other sons; but the sons of Rehabiah were †very many. [18] Of the sons of Izhar; ‡Shelomith the chief. [19] Of the sons of Hebron; Jeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, and Jekameam the fourth. [20] Of the sons of Uzziel; Micah the first, and Jesiah the second.

[21] The sons of Merari; Mahli, and Mushi. The sons of Mahli; Eleazar, and Kish. [22] And Eleazar died, and had no sons, but daughters; and their *brethren the sons of Kish [k]took them. [23] The sons of Mushi; Mahli, and Eder, and Jeremoth, three.

[24] These were the sons of Levi after the house of their fathers; even the chief of the fathers, as they were counted by number of names by their polls, that did the work for the service of the house of the LORD, from the age of twenty years and upward. [25] For David said, "The LORD God of Israel hath given rest unto his people, †that they may dwell in Jerusalem for ever: [26] and also unto the Levites; they shall no more [l]carry the tabernacle, nor any vessel of it for the service thereof." 1 CHRON. XXIV.

[1] Now these are the divisions of the sons of Aaron. The sons of Aaron; Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. [2] But [t]Nadab and Abihu died before their father, and had no children: therefore Eleazar and Ithamar executed the priest's office. [3] And David distributed them, both Zadok of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech of the sons of Ithamar, according to their offices in their service.

[4] And there were more chief men found of the sons of Eleazar than of the sons of Ithamar; and thus were they divided. Among the sons of Eleazar there were sixteen chief men of the house of their fathers, and eight among the sons of Ithamar according to the house of their fathers. [5] Thus were they divided by lot, one sort with another; for the governors of the sanctuary, and governors of the house of God, were of the sons of Eleazar, and of the sons of Ithamar.

[6] And Shemaiah the son of Nethaneel the scribe, one of the Levites, wrote them before the king, and the princes, and Zadok the priest, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, and before the chief of the fathers of the priests and Levites: one ‡principal household being taken for Eleazar, and one taken for Ithamar.

[7] Now the first lot came forth to Jehoiarib, the second to Jedaiah, [8] the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, [9] the fifth to Malchijah, the sixth to Mijamin, [10] the seventh to Hakkoz, the eighth to [u]Abijah, [11] the ninth to Jeshuah, the tenth to Shecaniah, [12] the eleventh to Eliashib, the twelfth to Jakim, [13] the thirteenth to Huppah, the fourteenth to Jeshebeab, [14] the fifteenth to Bilgah, the sixteenth to Immer, [15] the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Aphses, [16] the nineteenth to Pethahiah, the twentieth to Jehezekel, [17] the one and twentieth to Jachin, the two and twentieth to Gamul, [18] the three and twentieth to Delaiah, the four and twentieth to Maaziah. [19] These were the orderings of them in their service to come into the house of the LORD, according to their manner, under Aaron their father, as the LORD God of Israel had commanded him.

[20] And the rest of the sons of Levi were these. Of the sons of Amram; [v]Shubael: of the sons of Shubael; Jehdeiah. [21] Concerning Rehabiah: of the sons of Rehabiah, the first was Isshiah. [22] Of the Izharites; [w]Shelomoth: of the sons of Shelomoth; Jahath. [23] And the sons of Hebron; Jeriah the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third, Jekameam the fourth. [24] Of the sons of Uzziel; Michah: of the sons of Michah; Shamir. [25] The brother of Michah was Isshiah: of the sons of Isshiah; Zechariah. [26] The [x]sons of Merari were Mahli and Mushi: the sons of Jaaziah; Beno. [27] The sons of Merari by Jaaziah; Beno, and Shoham, and Zaccur, and Ibri. [28] Of Mahli came Eleazar, who had no sons. [29] Concerning Kish: the son of Kish was Jerahmeel. [30] The sons also of Mushi; Mahli, and Eder, and Jerimoth.—These were the sons of the Levites after the house of their fathers. of Obed-edom were, Shemaiah the firstborn, Jehozabad the second, Joah the third, and Sacar the fourth, and Nethaneel the fifth, [5] Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Peulthai the eighth: for God blessed †him. [6] Also unto Shemaiah his son were sons born, that ruled throughout the house of their father: for they were mighty men of valor. [7] The sons of Shemaiah; Othni, and Rephael, and Obed, Elzabad, whose brethren were strong men, Elihu, and Semachiah. [8] All these of the sons of Obed-edom; they and their sons and their brethren, able men for strength for the service, were threescore and two of Obed-edom. [9] And Meshelemiah had sons and brethren, strong men, eighteen. [10] Also Hosah, of the children of Merari, had sons: Simri the chief, (for though he was not the firstborn, yet his father made him the chief;) [11] Hilkiah the second, Tebaliah the third, Zechariah the fourth: all the sons and brethren of Hosah were thirteen.

[12] Among these were the divisions of the porters, even among the chief men, having wards one against another, to minister in the house of the Lord. [13] And they cast lots, ‡as well the small as the great, according to the house of their fathers, for every gate. [14] And the lot eastward fell to *Shelemiah. Then for Zechariah his son, a wise counsellor, they cast lots; and his lot came out northward. [15] To Obed-edom southward; and to his sons the house of †Asuppim. [16] To Shuppim and Hosah the lot came forth westward, with the gate Shallecheth, by the causeway of the going ‡up, ward against ward. [17] Eastward were six Levites, northward four a day, southward four a day, and toward Asuppim two and two. [18] At Parbar westward, four at the causeway, and two at Parbar. [19] These are the divisions of the porters among the sons of Kore, and among the sons of Merari.

[20] And of the Levites, Ahijah was [z]over the treasures of the house of God, and over the treasures of the *dedicated things. [21] As concerning the sons of †Laadan; the sons of the Gershonite Laadan, chief fathers, even of Laadan the Gershonite, were ‡Jehieli. [22] The sons of Jehieli; Zetham, and Joel his brother, which were over the treasures of the house of the Lord. [23] Of the Amramites, and the Izharites, the Hebronites, and the Uzzielites: [24] and Shebuel the son of Gershom, the son of Moses, was ruler of the treasures. [25] And his brethren by Eliezer; Rehabiah his son, and Jeshahiah his son, and Joram his son, and Zichri his son, and Shelomith his son; [26] which Shelomith and his brethren were over all the treasures of the dedicated things, which David the king, and the chief fathers, the captains over thousands and hundreds, and the captains of the host, had dedicated. [27] *Out of the spoils won in battles did they dedicate to maintain the house of the Lord. [28] And all that Samuel the seer, and Saul the son of Kish, and Abner the son of Ner, and Joab the son of Zeruiah, had dedicated; and whosoever had dedicated any thing, it was under the hand of Shelomith, and of his brethren.

[29] Of the Izharites, Chenaniah and his sons were for the outward business over Israel, for officers and judges. [30] And of the Hebronites, Hashabiah and his brethren, men of valor, a thousand and seven hundred, were †officers among them of Israel on this side Jordan westward in all the business of the Lord, and in the service of the king. [31] Among the Hebronites was Jerijah the chief, even among the Hebronites, according to the generations of his fathers. In the fortieth year of the reign of David they were sought for, and there were found among them mighty men of valor [a]at Jazer of Gilead. [32] And his brethren, men of valor, were two thousand and seven hundred chief fathers, whom king David made rulers over the Reubenites, the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasseh, for every matter pertaining to God, and ‡affairs of the king.

[11] Then David gave to Solomon his son [g]the pattern of the porch, and of the houses thereof, and of the treasuries thereof, and of the upper chambers thereof, and of the inner parlors thereof, and of the place of the mercy seat, [12] and the pattern *of all that he had by the Spirit, of the courts of the house of the LORD, and of all the chambers round about, of the treasuries of the house of God, and of the treasuries of the dedicated things. [13] Also for the courses of the priests and the Levites, and for all the work of the service of the house of the LORD, and for all the vessels of service in the house of the LORD. [14] He gave of gold by weight for things of gold, for all instruments of all manner of service; silver also for all instruments of silver by weight, for all instruments of every kind of service. [15] Even the weight for the candlesticks of gold, and for their lamps of gold, by weight for every candlestick, and for the lamps thereof; and for the candlesticks of silver by weight, both for the candlestick, and also for the lamps thereof, according to the use of every candlestick. [16] And by weight he gave gold for the tables of showbread, for every table; and likewise silver for the tables of silver. [17] Also pure gold for the flesh-hooks, and the bowls, and the cups: and for the golden basons he gave gold by weight for every bason; and likewise silver by weight for every bason of silver. [18] And for the altar of incense refined gold by weight; and gold for the pattern of the chariot of the [h]cherubim, that spread out their wings, and covered the ark of the covenant of the LORD. [19] "All this," said David, "the LORD made me understand in writing by his hand upon me, even all the works of this pattern." [20] And David said to Solomon his son, "Be [i]strong and of good courage, and do it: fear not, nor be dismayed; for the LORD God, even my God, will be with thee; [j]he will not fail thee, nor forsake thee, until thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the LORD. [21] And, behold, the courses of the priests and the Levites, even they shall be with thee for all the service of the house of God; and there shall be with thee for all manner of workmanship [k]every willing skilful man, for any manner of service; also the princes and all the people will be wholly at thy commandment."

PSALM XL.

PSALM XL.

The benefit of confidence in God. 6 Obedience is the best sacrifice. 11 The sense of David's evils inflameth his prayer.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

1 *I waited patiently for the LORD;
And he inclined unto me, and heard my cry.
2 He brought me up also out of †a horrible pit,
Out of the miry clay,
And set my feet upon a rock,
And established my goings;
3 And he hath put a new song in my mouth,
Even praise unto our God.
Many [a]shall see it, and fear,
And shall trust in the LORD.
4 Blessed [b]is that man that maketh the LORD his trust,
And respecteth not the proud, nor such as turn aside to lies.

* Heb. In waiting I waited. Ps. 27. 14.
† Heb. a pit of noise.
[a] Ps. 52. 6.
[b] Ps. 34. 8. Je. 17. 7.

[5] Many, [c]O LORD my God, are thy wonderful works which thou hast done,
And [d]thy thoughts which are to us-ward:
‡They cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee:
If I would declare and speak of them,
They are more than can be numbered.
[6] Sacrifice [e]and offering thou didst not desire;
Mine ears hast thou *opened:
Burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required.
[7] Then said I, "Lo! I come:
In the volume of the book it is [f]written of me.
[8] I [g]delight to do thy will, O my God!
Yea, thy law is †within my heart.
[9] I have preached righteousness in the great congregation:
Lo! I have not refrained my lips, O LORD! thou knowest.
[10] I [h]have not hid thy righteousness within my heart;
I have declared thy faithfulness and thy salvation;
I have not concealed thy loving-kindness and thy truth
From the great congregation."
[11] Withhold not thou thy tender mercies from me, O LORD!
Let thy loving-kindness and thy truth continually preserve me.
[12] For innumerable evils have compassed me about:
Mine [i]iniquities have taken hold upon me,
So that I am not able to look up;
They are more than the hairs of my head:
Therefore my heart ‡faileth me.
[13] Be pleased, O LORD, to deliver me!
O LORD, make haste to help me!
[14] Let them be ashamed and confounded together
That seek after my soul to destroy it;
Let them be driven backward and put to shame that wish me evil.
[15] Let them be desolate for a reward of their shame
That say unto me, Aha! aha!
[16] Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee:
Let such as love thy salvation
Say continually, The LORD be magnified!
[17] But I am poor and needy;
Yet [j]the LORD thinketh upon me:
Thou art my help and my deliverer;
Make no tarrying, O my God!

PSALM XLI.

PSALM XLI.

God's care of the poor. 4 David complaineth of his enemies' treachery. 10 He fleeth to God for succour.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

[1] Blessed [a]is he that considereth *the poor:
The LORD will deliver him †in time of trouble.
[2] The LORD will preserve him, and keep him alive;
And he shall be blessed upon the earth:
And ‡thou wilt not deliver him unto the will of his enemies.
[3] The LORD will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing:
Thou wilt *make all his bed in his sickness.
[4] I said, "LORD, be merciful unto me:
Heal [b]my soul; for I have sinned against thee."
[5] Mine enemies speak evil of me,
"When shall he die, and his name perish?"
[6] And if he come to see me, he [c]speaketh vanity:
His heart gathereth iniquity to itself;
When he goeth abroad, he telleth it.

7 All that hate me whisper together against me:
Against me do they devise †my hurt.
8 "‡An evil disease," say they, "cleaveth fast unto him;
And now that he lieth he shall rise up no more."
9 Yea, *mine own familiar friend,
(In whom I trusted, [d]which did eat of my bread,)
Hath †lifted up his heel against me.
10 But, thou, O LORD! be merciful unto me,
And raise me up, that I may requite them.
11 By this I know that thou favorest me,
Because mine enemy doth not triumph over me.
12 And as for me, thou upholdest me in mine integrity,

PSALM LXI.

PSALM LXI.

David fleeth to God upon his former experience. 4 He voweth perpetual service unto him, because of his promises.

To the chief Musician upon Neginah, A Psalm of David.

1 Hear my cry, O God!
Attend unto my prayer.
2 From the end of the earth will I cry unto thee,
When my heart is overwhelmed:
Lead me to the rock that is higher than I.
3 For thou hast been a shelter for me,
And [a]a strong tower from the enemy.
4 I will abide in thy tabernacle for ever:
I will *trust in the covert of thy wings. Selah!
5 For thou, O God! hast heard my vows:
Thou hast given me the heritage of those that fear thy name.
6 †Thou wilt prolong the king's life;
And his years as ‡many generations.
7 He shall abide before God for ever:

PSALM LXV.

David praiseth God for his grace. 4 The blessedness of God's chosen by reason of benefits.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm and Song of David.

1 Praise *waiteth for thee, O God! in Zion;
And unto thee shall the vow be performed.
2 O thou that hearest prayer,
Unto [a]thee shall all flesh come.
3 †Iniquities prevail against me:
As for our transgressions, thou shalt [b]purge them away.
4 Blessed is the man whom thou choosest,
And causest to approach unto thee, that he may dwell in thy courts:
We shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house,
Even of thy holy temple.
5 By terrible things in righteousness
Wilt thou answer us, O God of our salvation!
Who art the confidence of all the ends of the earth,
And of them that are afar off upon the sea:
6 Which by his strength setteth fast the mountains;
Being girded with power:
7 Which [c]stilleth the noise of the seas,

Thou greatly enrichest it with the river of God, which is full of [water;
Thou preparest them corn, when thou hast so provided for it.

[3] I am weary of my crying; my throat is dried;

[4] They that [c]hate me without a cause are more than the hairs of my [head:
They that would destroy me, being mine enemies wrongfully, are [mighty:

[8] I [d]am become a stranger unto my brethren,
And an alien unto my mother's children.
[9] For [e]the zeal of thy house hath eaten me up;
And [f]the reproaches of them that reproached thee are fallen upon [me.
[10] When I wept, and chastened my soul with fasting,
That was to my reproach.
[11] I made sackcloth also my garment;
And [g]I became a proverb to them.
[12] They that sit in the gate speak against me;
And [h]I was the song of the †drunkards.
[13] But as for me,
My prayer is unto thee, O Lord, [i]in an acceptable time:
O God, in the multitude of thy mercy hear me,
In the truth of thy salvation.
[14] Deliver me out of the mire, and let me not sink:
Let me be delivered from them that hate me,
And out of the deep waters.
[15] Let not the water-flood overflow me,
Neither let the deep swallow me up,
And [j]let not the pit shut her mouth upon me.

16 Hear me, O LORD; for thy lovingkindness is good:
Turn unto me according to the multitude of thy tender mercies.
17 And hide not thy face from thy servant;
For I am in trouble: ‡hear me speedily.
18 Draw nigh unto my soul, and redeem it:
Deliver me because of mine enemies.
19 Thou hast known [k]my reproach,
And my shame, and my dishonor:
Mine adversaries are all before thee.
20 Reproach hath broken my heart; and I am full of heaviness:
And [l]I looked for some *to take pity—but there was none;
And for [m]comforters—but I found none.
21 They gave me also gall for my meat;
And [n]in my thirst they gave me vinegar to drink.
22 Let [o]their table become a snare before them;
And that which should have been for their welfare, let it become a trap.
23 Let [p]their eyes be darkened, that they see not;
And make their loins continually to shake.
24 Pour [q]out thine indignation upon them,
And let thy wrathful anger take hold of them.
25 Let their †habitation be desolate;
And ‡let none dwell in their tents.
26 For [r]they persecute [s]him whom thou hast smitten;
And they talk to the grief of *those whom thou hast wounded.
27 Add †iniquity to their iniquity;
And [t]let them not come into thy righteousness.
28 Let them [u]be blotted out of the book of the living,
And [v]not be written with the righteous.
29 But I am poor and sorrowful:
Let thy salvation, O God! set me up on high.
30 I will praise the name of God with a song,
And will magnify him with thanksgiving.
31 This [w]also shall please the LORD better than an ox
Or bullock that hath horns and hoofs.
32 The ‡humble shall see this, and be glad;
And [x]your heart shall live that seek God.
33 For the LORD heareth the poor,
And despiseth not [y]his prisoners.
34 Let [z]the heaven and earth praise him,
The seas, [a]and every thing that *moveth therein.
35 For [b]God will save Zion, and will build the cities of Judah;

PS. LXXVIII.

PSALM LXXVIII.

An exhortation both to learn and to preach the law of God. 9 The story of God's wrath against the incredulous and disobedient. 67 The Israelites being rejected, God chose Judah, Zion, and David.

*Maschil of Asaph.

1 Give [a]ear, O my people, to my law:
Incline your ears to the words of my mouth.
2 I [b]will open my mouth in a parable
I will utter dark sayings of old:
3 Which we have heard and known,
And our fathers have told us.
4 We [c]will not hide them from their children,
Showing [d]to the generation to come the praises of the LORD,
And his strength, and his wonderful works that he hath done.

* Or, A Psalm for Asaph to give instruction. Ps. 74, title.
a Is. 51. 4.
b Ps. 49. 4. Mat. 13. 35.
c De. 4. 9. Joel 1. 3.
d Ex. 12. 26, 27.

5 For he established a testimony in Jacob,
And appointed a law in Israel,
Which he commanded our fathers,
That [e]they should make them known to their children:
6 That the generation to come might know them,
Even the children which should be born;
Who should arise and declare them to their children:
7 That they might set their hope in God,
And not forget the works of God,
But keep his commandments:
8 And [f]might not be as their fathers,
A [g]stubborn and rebellious generation;
A generation †that set not their heart aright,
And whose spirit was not steadfast with God.
9 The children of Ephraim, being armed, and ‡carrying bows,
Turned back in the day of battle.
10 They [h]kept not the covenant of God,
And refused to walk in his law;
11 And forgat his works,
And his wonders that he had showed them.
12 Marvellous [i]things did he in the sight of their fathers,
In the land of Egypt, [j]in the field of Zoan.
13 He [k]divided the sea, and caused them to pass through;
And [l]he made the waters to stand as a heap.
14 In [m]the daytime also he led them with a cloud,
And all the night with a light of fire.
15 He [n]clave the rocks in the wilderness,
And gave them drink as out of the great depths.
16 He brought [o]streams also out of the rock,
And caused waters to run down like rivers.
17 And they sinned yet more against him
By [p]provoking the Most High in the wilderness.
18 And [q]they tempted God in their heart
By asking meat for their lust.
19 Yea, [r]they spake against God;
They said, "Can God *furnish a table in the wilderness?
20 (Behold, [s]he smote the rock, that the waters gushed out,
And the streams overflowed!)
Can he give bread also?
Can he provide flesh for his people?"
21 Therefore the LORD heard this, and [t]was wroth:
So a fire was kindled against Jacob,
And anger also came up against Israel;
22 Because they [u]believed not in God,
And trusted not in his salvation:
23 Though he had commanded the clouds from above,
And [v]opened the doors of heaven,
24 And [w]had rained down manna upon them to eat,
And had given them of the corn of heaven.
25 †Man did eat angels' food:
He sent them meat to the full.
26 He [x]caused an east wind ‡to blow in the heaven;
And by his power he brought in the south wind.
27 He rained flesh also upon them as dust,
And *feathered fowls like as the sand of the sea:
28 And he let it fall in the midst of their camp,
Round about their habitations.

29 So [y]they did eat, and were well filled;
For he gave them their own desire.
30 They were not estranged from their lust;
But [z]while their meat was yet in their mouths,
31 The wrath of God came upon them,
And slew the fattest of them,
And †smote down the ‡chosen men of Israel.
32 For all this [a]they sinned still,
And believed not for his wondrous works.
33 Therefore [b]their days did he consume in vanity,
And their years in trouble.
34 When [c]he slew them, then they sought him;
And they returned and inquired early after God.
35 And they remembered that [d]God was their rock,
And the High God [e]their redeemer.
36 Nevertheless they did [f]flatter him with their mouth,
And they lied unto him with their tongues.
37 For their heart was not right with him,
Neither were they steadfast in his covenant.
38 But [g]he, being full of compassion, forgave their iniquity,
And destroyed them not:
Yea, many a time [h]turned he his anger away,
And [i]did not stir up all his wrath.
39 For [j]he remembered [k]that they were but flesh;
A [l]wind that passeth away, and cometh not again.
40 How oft did they *provoke him in the wilderness,
And grieve him in the desert!
41 Yea, [m]they turned back and tempted God,
And limited the Holy One of Israel.
42 They remembered not his hand,
Nor the day when he delivered them †from the enemy.
43 How he had ‡wrought his signs in Egypt,
And his wonders in the field of Zoan;
44 And [n]had turned their rivers into blood;
And their floods, that they could not drink:
45 He [o]sent divers sorts of flies among them, which devoured them;
And [p]frogs, which destroyed them:
46 He [q]gave also their increase unto the caterpillar,
And their labor unto the locust:
47 He *destroyed their vines with hail,
And their sycamore trees with †frost:
48 He ‡gave up their cattle also to the hail,
And their flocks to *hot thunderbolts:
49 He cast upon them the fierceness of his anger,
Wrath, and indignation, and trouble,
By sending evil angels among them:
50 †He made a way to his anger;
He spared not their soul from death,
But gave ‡their life over to the pestilence;
51 And [r]smote all the firstborn in Egypt;
The chief of their strength in the tabernacles of Ham:
52 But made his own people to go forth like sheep,
And guided them in the wilderness like a flock.
53 And [s]he led them on safely, so that they feared not;
But the sea *overwhelmed their enemies.
54 And he brought them to the border of his [t]sanctuary,
Even to this mountain, which his right hand had purchased.

55 He cast out the heathen also before them,
And [u]divided them an inheritance by line,
And made the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tents.
56 Yet [v]they tempted and provoked the Most High God,
And kept not his testimonies;
57 But [w]turned back, and dealt unfaithfully like their fathers;
They were turned aside [x]like a deceitful bow.
58 For [y]they provoked him to anger with their [z]high places,
And moved him to jealousy with their graven images.
59 When God heard this, he was wroth,
And greatly abhorred Israel.
60 So [a]that he forsook the tabernacle of Shiloh,
The tent which he placed among men;
61 And [b]delivered his strength into captivity,
And his glory into the enemy's hand.
62 He [c]gave his people over also unto the sword;
And was wroth with his inheritance.
63 The fire consumed their young men;
And [d]their maidens were not †given to marriage.
64 Their [e]priests fell by the sword;
And [f]their widows made no lamentation.
65 Then the LORD awaked as one out of sleep,
And [g]like a mighty man that shouteth by reason of wine.
66 And [h]he smote his enemies in the hinder part:
He put them to a perpetual reproach.
67 Moreover he refused the tabernacle of Joseph,
And chose not the tribe of Ephraim;
68 But chose the tribe of Judah,
The Mount Zion which he loved.
69 And he [i]built his sanctuary like high palaces,
Like the earth which he hath ‡established for ever.
70 He [j]chose David also his servant,
And took him from the sheepfolds:
71 From *following the [k]ewes great with young
He brought him [l]to feed Jacob his people,
And Israel his inheritance.
72 So he fed them according to the [m]integrity of his heart;
And guided them by the skilfulness of his hands.

SECT. XXIV.
PSALM VI.

SECTION XXIV.—Psalms composed by David after his Accession, of which the Dates and the Occasions are uncertain.

PSALM VI.

David's complaint in his sickness. 8 By faith he triumpheth over his enemies.

To the chief Musician on Neginoth, upon *Sheminith, A Psalm of David.

1 O [a]LORD! rebuke me not in thine anger,
Neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure.
2 Have mercy upon me, O LORD! for I am weak;
O LORD, [b]heal me; for my bones are vexed.
3 My soul is also sore vexed;
But thou, O LORD, how long?
4 Return, O LORD, deliver my soul:
Oh save me for thy mercies' sake.
5 For [c]in death there is no remembrance of thee:
In the grave who shall give thee thanks?
6 I am weary with my groaning;
†All the night make I my bed to swim;
I water my couch with my tears.

† Or, Every night.

7 Mine [d]eye is consumed because of grief;
It waxeth old because of all mine enemies.
8 Depart [e]from me, all ye workers of iniquity;
For the LORD hath heard the voice of my weeping.
9 The LORD hath heard my supplication;
The LORD will receive my prayer.
10 Let all mine enemies be ashamed and sore vexed:
Let them return and be ashamed suddenly.

PSALM VIII.

PSALM VIII.

God's glory is magnified by his works, and by his love to man.

To the chief Musician upon *Gittith, A Psalm of David.

1 O LORD our Lord,
How excellent is thy name in all the earth!
Who hast set thy glory above the heavens.
2 Out [a]of the mouth of babes and sucklings
Hast thou †ordained strength because of thine enemies,
That thou mightest still the enemy and the avenger.
3 When I [b]consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers,
The moon and the stars, which thou hast ordained;
4 What [c]is man, that thou art mindful of him?
And the son of man, that thou visitest him?
5 For thou hast made him a little lower than the angels,
And hast crowned him with glory and honor.
6 Thou [d]madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands;
Thou [e]hast put all things under his feet:
7 ‡All sheep and oxen,
Yea, and the beasts of the field;
8 The fowl of the air, and the fish of the sea,
And whatsoever passeth through the paths of the seas.
9 O LORD our Lord,
How excellent is thy name in all the earth!

PSALM XII.

David, destitute of human comfort, craveth help of God. 3 He comforteth himself with God's judgments on the wicked, and confidence in God's tried promises.

To the chief Musician, *upon Sheminith, A Psalm of David.

1 †Help, LORD; for [a]the godly man ceaseth;
For the faithful fail from among the children of men.
2 They speak vanity every one with his neighbour:
With [b]flattering lips and with ‡a double heart do they speak.
3 The LORD shall cut off all flattering lips,
And the tongue that speaketh *proud things;
4 Who have said, "With our tongue will we prevail;
Our lips †are our own: who is lord over us?"
5 "For the oppression of the poor, for the sighing of the needy,
Now [c]will I arise," saith the LORD;
"I will set him in safety from him that ‡puffeth at him."
6 The words of the LORD are [d]pure words:
As silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times.
7 Thou shalt keep them, O LORD!
Thou shalt preserve *them from this generation for ever.

PSALM XIX.

PSALM XIX.

The creatures show God's glory. 7 The word his grace. 12 David prayeth for grace.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

1 The [a]heavens declare the glory of God;
And the firmament showeth his handiwork.

a See Ge. 1. 6, 14.

[2] Day unto day uttereth speech,
And night unto night showeth knowledge.
[3] There is no speech nor language,
*Where their voice is not heard.
[4] Their †line is gone out through all the earth,
And their words to the end of the world.
In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,
[5] Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber,
And [b]rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race.
[6] His going forth is from the end of the heaven,
And his circuit unto the ends of it;
And there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.
[7] The ‡law of the LORD is perfect, *converting the soul:
The testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple.
[8] The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart:
The commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes.
[9] The fear of the LORD is clean, enduring for ever:
The judgments of the LORD are †true and righteous altogether.
[10] More to be desired are they than gold,
Yea, [c]than much fine gold:
Sweeter also than honey and ‡the honeycomb.
[11] Moreover by them is thy servant warned;
And [d]in keeping of them there is great reward.
[12] Who can understand his errors?
Cleanse [e]Thou me from secret faults.
[13] Keep [f]back thy servant also from presumptuous sins;
Let [g]them not have dominion over me:
Then shall I be upright,
And I shall be innocent from *the great transgression.

Be acceptable in thy sight,

David's confidence in God's grace.

A Psalm of David.

[1] The LORD is [a]my shepherd—I [b]shall not want.
[2] He [c]maketh me to lie down in *green pastures:
He [d]leadeth me beside the †still waters.
[3] He restoreth my soul:
He [e]leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake.
[4] Yea, though I walk through the valley of [f]the shadow of death,
I will fear no evil—for [g]Thou art with me;
Thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
[5] Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies:

God's lordship in the world. 3 The citizens of his spiritual kingdom. 7 An exhortation to receive him.

A Psalm of David.

[1] The [a]earth is the LORD's, and the fulness thereof;
The world, and they that dwell therein.
[2] For he hath founded it upon the seas,
And established it upon the floods.
[3] Who shall ascend into the hill of the LORD?
And who shall stand in his holy place?

[a] See Ge. 1. 19. & 14. 19.

[4] *He that hath [b]clean hands, and [c]a pure heart;
Who hath not lifted up his soul unto vanity, nor sworn deceitfully;
[5] He shall receive the blessing from the LORD,
And righteousness from the God of his salvation.
[6] This is the generation of them that seek Him,
That seek thy face, †O Jacob! Selah!
[7] Lift [d]up your heads, O ye gates!
And be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors!
And [e]the King of glory shall come in.
[8] Who is this King of glory?
The LORD strong and mighty,
The LORD mighty in battle.
[9] Lift up your heads, O ye gates!
Even lift them up, ye everlasting doors!
And the King of glory shall come in.

PSALM XXVIII.

David prayeth earnestly against his enemies. 6 He blesseth God. 9 He prayeth for the people.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Unto thee will I cry, O LORD my rock!
Be not silent *to me:
Lest, if thou be silent to me,
I become like them that go down into the pit.
[2] Hear the voice of my supplications, when I cry unto thee,
When [a]I lift up my hands toward †thy holy oracle.
[3] Draw me not away with the wicked,
And with the workers of iniquity,
Which [b]speak peace to their neighbours,
But mischief is in their hearts.
[4] Give [c]them according to their deeds,
And according to the wickedness of their endeavours:
Give them after the work of their hands;
Render to them their desert.
[5] Because [d]they regard not the works of the LORD,
Nor the operation of his hands,
He shall destroy them, and not build them up.
[6] Blessed be the LORD,
Because he hath heard the voice of my supplications.
[7] The LORD is my strength and my shield;
My heart trusted in him, and I am helped:
Therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth;
And with my song will I praise him.

PSALM XXIX.

David exhorteth princes to give glory to God, 3 by reason of his power, 11 and protection of his people.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Give [a]unto the LORD, O *ye mighty!
Give unto the LORD glory and strength.

PSALM XXXVIII.

David moveth God to take compassion of his pitiful case.

A Psalm of David, *to bring to remembrance.

[1] O Lord, rebuke me not in thy wrath;
Neither chasten me in thy hot displeasure.
[2] For [a]thine arrows stick fast in me,
And [b]thy hand presseth me sore.
[3] There is no soundness in my flesh because of thine anger;
Neither is there any †rest in my bones because of my sin.
[4] For [c]mine iniquities are gone over my head:
As a heavy burden they are too [d]heavy for me.
[5] My wounds stink and are corrupt
Because of my foolishness.
[6] I am ‡troubled; I am bowed down greatly;
I [e]go mourning all the day long.
[7] For my loins are filled with [f]a loathsome disease;
And there is no soundness in my flesh.
[8] I am feeble and sore broken:
I [g]have roared by reason of the disquietness of my heart.
[9] Lord, all my desire is before thee;
And my groaning is not hid from thee.
[10] My heart panteth, my strength faileth me:
As for the light of mine eyes, it also is *gone from me.
[11] My [h]lovers and my friends [i]stand aloof from my †sore;
And my ‡kinsmen [j]stand afar off.
[12] They also that seek after my life [k]lay snares for me;
And they that seek my hurt [l]speak mischievous things,
And imagine deceits all the day long.
[13] But [m]I, as a deaf man, heard not;
And I was as a dumb man that openeth not his mouth.
[14] Thus I was as a man that heareth not,
And in whose mouth are no reproofs.
[15] For *in thee, O Lord! [n]do I hope:
Thou wilt †hear, O Lord my God!
[16] For I said, "Hear me, lest otherwise they should rejoice over me:"

PSALM XXXIX.

David's care of his thoughts. 4 The consideration of the brevity and vanity of life. 7 The reverence of God's judgments, 10 and prayer, are his bridles of impatience.

To the chief Musician, even to *Jeduthun, A Psalm of David.

[1] I said, I will [a]take heed to my ways,
That I sin not with my tongue:
I will keep †my mouth with a bridle,
While [b]the wicked is before me.
[2] I was dumb with silence,
I held my peace, even from good;
And my sorrow was ‡stirred.
[3] My heart was hot within me,
While I was musing [c]the fire burned:
Then spake I with my tongue,
[4] LORD, make me to know mine end,
And the measure of my days, what it is;
That I may know *how frail I am.
[5] Behold, thou hast made my days [d]as a handbreadth;
And mine age is as nothing before thee:
Verily every man †at his best state is altogether vanity. Selah!
[6] Surely every man walketh in ‡a vain show:
Surely they are disquieted in vain:
He [e]heapeth up riches—and knoweth not who shall gather them.
[7] And now, LORD, what wait I for?
My hope is in thee.
[8] Deliver me from all my transgressions:
Make me not the reproach of the foolish.
[9] I [f]was dumb, I opened not my mouth;
Because [g]thou didst it.
[10] Remove [h]thy stroke away from me:
I am consumed by the *blow of thy hand.
[11] When thou with rebukes dost correct man for iniquity,
Thou makest †his beauty to consume away like a moth:
Surely every man is vanity. Selah!
[12] Hear my prayer, O LORD! and give ear unto my cry;
Hold not thy peace at my tears:
For [i]I am a stranger with thee,
And a sojourner, [j]as all my fathers were.
[13] O [k]spare me, that I may recover strength,

David strengtheneth his prayer by the conscience of his religion, 5 by the goodness and power of God. 11 He desireth the continuance of former grace. 14 Complaining of the proud he craveth some token of God's goodness.

*A Prayer of David.

[1] Bow down thine ear, O LORD! hear me;
For I am poor and needy.

* Or, A Prayer, being a Psalm of David.

[2] Preserve my soul; for I am †holy:
O thou my God! save thy servant [a]that trusteth in thee
[3] Be merciful unto me, O Lord!
For I cry unto thee ‡daily.
[4] Rejoice the soul of thy servant;

[5] For [b]thou, Lord, art good, and ready to forgive;
And plenteous in mercy unto all them that call upon thee.
[6] Give ear, O Lord! unto my prayer;
And attend to the voice of my supplications.
[7] In the day of my trouble I will call upon thee;
For thou wilt answer me.
[8] Among [c]the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord!
Neither [d]are there any works like unto thy works.
[9] All [e]nations whom thou hast made
Shall come and worship before thee, O Lord!
And shall glorify thy name.
[10] For thou art great, and [f]doest wondrous things:
Thou [g]art God alone.
[11] Teach [h]me thy way, O Lord!
I will walk in thy truth: unite my heart to fear thy name.
[12] I will praise thee, O Lord my God, with all my heart;
And I will glorify thy name for evermore.
[13] For great is thy mercy toward me;
And thou hast delivered my soul from the lowest *hell.
[14] O God, the proud are risen against me,
And the assemblies of †violent men have sought after my soul;
And have not set thee before them.
[15] But [i]thou, O Lord, art a God full of compassion, and gracious,
Long suffering, and plenteous in mercy and truth.
[16] O turn unto me, and have mercy upon me;
Give thy strength unto thy servant, and save the son of thy handmaid.

Who [b]stretchest out the heavens like a curtain:
3 Who [c]layeth the beams of his chambers in the waters:

8 †They go up by the mountains;
They go down by the valleys
Unto [h]the place which thou hast founded for them.
9 Thou [i]hast set a bound that they may not pass over;
That [j]they turn not again to cover the earth.

[13] He watereth the hills from his chambers:

That he may bring forth [m]food out of the earth,
[15] And [n]wine that maketh glad the heart of man,

And the rocks for [p]the conies.

[22] The sun ariseth, they gather themselves together,
And lay them down in their dens.
[23] Man goeth forth to [u]his work,
And to his labor until the evening.
[24] O [v]LORD, how manifold are thy works!
In wisdom hast thou made them all:
The earth is full of thy riches:
[25] So is this great and wide sea,
Wherein are things creeping innumerable,
Both small and great beasts.
[26] There go the ships:
There is that [w]leviathan, whom thou hast ‡made to play therein.
[27] These wait all upon thee;
That thou mayest give them their meat in due season.
[28] That thou givest them they gather:
Thou openest thy hand—they are filled with good.
[29] Thou hidest thy face—they are troubled:
Thou [x]takest away their breath—they die, and return to their dust.
[30] Thou [y]sendest forth thy Spirit—they are created:
And thou renewest the face of the earth.
[31] The glory of the LORD *shall endure for ever:
The LORD [z]shall rejoice in his works.
[32] He looketh on the earth, and it [a]trembleth:
He toucheth the hills, and they smoke.
[33] I will sing unto the LORD as long as I live:
I will sing praise unto my God while I have my being.
[34] My meditation of him shall be sweet:
I will be glad in the LORD.
[35] Let [b]the sinners be consumed out of the earth,

Section XXV.—Second Assembly of the People;—David's Charge.

1 Chron. xxix. 1–19.—Psalm lxxii.—1 Chron. xxix. 20–25.

David, by his example and entreaty, 6 causeth the princes and people to offer willingly. 10 David's thanksgiving and prayer.—His Psalm for Solomon.—20 The people, having blessed God and sacrificed, make Solomon king.

[1] Furthermore David the king said unto all the congregation, a 1 Ki. 3. 7. Pr. 4. 3. "Solomon my son, whom alone God hath chosen, is yet [a]young and tender, and the work is great; for the palace is not for man, but for the Lord God. [2] Now I have prepared with all my might for the house of my God the gold for things to be made of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and the brass for things of brass, the iron for things b See Is. 54. 11, 12. Re. 21. 18, &c. of iron, and wood for things of wood; [b]onyx stones, and stones to be set, glistering stones, and of divers colors, and all manner of precious stones, and marble stones in abundance. [3] Moreover, because I have set my affection to the house of my God, I have of mine own proper good, of gold and silver, which I have given to the house of my God, over and above all that I have prepared for the holy house, [4] even three c 1 Ki. 9. 28. thousand talents of gold, of the gold of [c]Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the houses withal;

[5] the gold for things of gold, and the silver for things of silver, and for all manner of work to be made by the hands of artificers. And who then is willing to *consecrate his service this day unto the LORD ?"
[6] Then the chief of the fathers and princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands and of hundreds, with the rulers over the king's work, offered willingly, [7] and gave for the service of the house of God of gold five thousand talents and ten thousand drams, and of silver ten thousand talents, and of brass eighteen thousand talents, and one hundred thousand talents of iron. [8] And they with whom precious stones were found gave them to the treasure of the house of the LORD, by the hand of Jehiel the Gershonite. [9] Then the people rejoiced, for that they offered willingly, because with perfect heart they [d]offered willingly to the LORD; and David the king also rejoiced with great joy.

[10] Wherefore David blessed the LORD before all the congregation: and David said,—

"Blessed be thou, LORD God of Israel our father, for ever and ever!
[11] Thine, [e]O LORD! is the greatness,
And the power, and the glory,
And the victory, and the majesty:
For all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine;
Thine is the kingdom, O LORD,
And thou art exalted as head above all.
[12] Both [f]riches and honor come of thee,
And thou reignest over all;
And in thy hand is power and might;
And in thy hand it is to make great,
And to give strength unto all.
[13] Now therefore, our God, we thank thee,
And praise thy glorious name.
[14] But who am I, and what is my people,
That we should †be able to offer so willingly after this sort?
For all things come of thee,
And of ‡thine own have we given thee.
[15] For [g]we are strangers before thee,
And sojourners, as were all our fathers:
Our [h]days on the earth are as a shadow,
And there is none *abiding.
[16] O LORD our God, all this store that we have prepared
To build thee a house for thy holy name
Cometh of thy hand, and is all thine own.
[17] I know also, my God, that thou [i]triest the heart,
And [j]hast pleasure in uprightness.
As for me—in the uprightness of my heart
I have willingly offered all these things:
And now have I seen with joy thy people,
Which are †present here, to offer willingly unto thee.
[18] O LORD God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, our fathers, Keep this for ever in the imagination of the thoughts of the heart of thy people,
And ‡prepare their heart unto thee;
[19] And [k]give unto Solomon my son a perfect heart,
To keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy statutes,
And to do all these things,
And to build the palace, for the which I have made provision."

(70) Psalm lxxii. This beautiful Psalm is generally supposed to have been written when Solomon was appointed king with his father. It is prophetic of the reign of the Messiah: it describes the peaceful glories of the Messiah's future reign; his righteousness; the universal worship to be paid to him; the perpetuity of his dominion, "whose name shall endure for ever;" in whom mankind shall be blessed, and whom all nations shall call blessed.—Dr. Hales; Travell.

the LORD God of their fathers, and bowed down their heads, and worshipped the LORD, and the king. [21] And they sacrificed sacrifices unto the LORD, and offered burnt offerings unto the LORD, on the morrow after that day, even a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, and a thousand lambs, with their drink offerings, and sacrifices in abundance for all Israel; [22] and did eat and drink before the LORD on that day with great gladness. And they made Solomon the son of David king the second time, and [a]anointed him unto the LORD to be chief governor, and Zadok to be priest. [23] Then Solomon sat on the throne of the LORD as king instead of David his father, and prospered; and all Israel obeyed him. [24] And all the princes, and the mighty men, and all the sons likewise of king David, *submitted themselves unto Solomon the king. [25] And the LORD magnified Solomon exceedingly in the sight of all Israel, and [b]bestowed upon him such royal majesty as had not been on any king before him in Israel.

(71) The charge of David to Solomon has been much misunderstood. He is not directed to put Joab and Shimei to death. These men had become the bitterest enemies to the throne of David and his son. Solomon, therefore, is desired to observe their conduct, and to punish any future treason with death. The expressions in verses 6 and 8, "do therefore according to thy wisdom," and "thou art a wise man," refer to the discretionary power which Solomon possessed, and which he was commanded by his father to use rightly.

Solomon succeedeth. The solemn offering at Gibeon. God endows him with wisdom, riches, and honor. Solomon's judgment between the two harlots maketh him renowned. He returns to Jerusalem. Adonijah, moving Bath-sheba to sue unto Solomon for Abishag, is put to death. Abiathar, having his life given him, is deprived of the priesthood. Joab, fleeing to the horns of the altar, is there slain. Benaiah is put in Joab's room, and Zadok in Abiathar's. Shimei is confined to Jerusalem. Hadad the Edomite leaves Egypt and returns to his own country.

[12] THEN sat Solomon upon the throne of David his father; and his kingdom was established greatly. [1] And Solomon the son of David

(1) The events related in this Section took place within the first year after Solomon's accession. The narrative in the First Book of Kings, immediately on relating the succession of Solomon, proceeds to the account of Adonijah's death; that in the Second Book of Chronicles mentions the offering at Gibeon. The latter event is placed first in this Arrangement, as it is to be supposed that Solo-

[5] In [f]Gibeon the LORD appeared to Solomon [g]in a dream by night; and God said, "Ask what I shall give thee." [6] And Solomon said, "Thou hast showed unto thy servant David my father great †mercy, according as he [h]walked before thee in truth, and in righteousness, and in uprightness of heart with thee; and thou hast kept for him this great kindness, that thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. [7] And now, O LORD my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father: and I am but a little child; I know not how to go out or come in. [8] And thy servant is in the midst of thy people which thou [i]hast chosen, a great people, that [j]cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude. [9] Give [k]therefore thy servant an ‡understanding heart [l]to judge thy people, that I may [m]discern between good and bad; for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?" [10] And the speech pleased the LORD, that Solomon had asked this thing, [11] and God said unto him, "Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast [n]not asked for thyself *long life; neither hast asked riches for thyself, nor hast asked the life of thine enemies; but hast asked for thyself understanding to †discern judgment; [12] behold, [o]I have done according to thy words: [p]lo, I have given thee a wise and an understanding heart; so that there was none like thee before thee, neither after thee shall any arise like unto thee. [13] And I have also [q]given thee that which thou hast not asked, both [r]riches and honor; so that there ‡shall not be any among the kings like unto thee all thy days. [14] And if thou wilt walk in my ways, to keep my statutes and my commandments, [s]as thy father David did walk, then I will [t]lengthen thy days." [15] And Solomon [u]awoke; and, behold, it was a dream. And he came to Jerusalem, and stood before the ark of the covenant of the LORD, and offered up burnt offerings, and offered peace offerings, and [v]made a feast to all his servants.

mon would convoke the people, and offer his sacrifices as soon as possible, after he had succeeded to the crown; and it is probable that Adonijah would not desire to marry the Shunammite immediately on his father's death. It may appear strange that the petition of Adonijah to obtain Abishag should be thought deserving of death; but in those times, the seraglio always descended with the crown, and it was considered as a step to the throne to marry the mistress of the deceased monarch. In requesting, therefore, permission to unite himself to Abishag, Adonijah, in fact, reasserted his pretensions to the crown. Joab, the most powerful military chieftain, and Abiathar, the high priest, were implicated in the intended revolt; which it was necessary to check at the commencement. Adonijah and Joab, therefore, were condemned to death, and Abiathar degraded from his office.—Vide Michaelis, Commentary, &c. vol. i. p. 278–281.

her in the house. [18] And it came to pass the third day after that I was delivered, that this woman was delivered also: and we were together;
there was no stranger with us in the house, save we two in the house.
[19] And this woman's child died in the night; because she overlaid it.
[20] And she arose at midnight, and took my son from beside me, while thy handmaid slept, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom. [21] And when I arose in the morning to give my child suck, behold, it was dead; but when I had considered it in the morning, behold, it was not my son, which I did bear." [22] And the other woman said, "Nay; but the living is my son, and the dead is thy son." And this said, "No; but the dead is thy son, and the living is my son." Thus they spake before the king. [23] Then said the king,
"The one saith, 'This is my son that liveth, and thy son is the dead,' and the other saith, 'Nay; but thy son is the dead, and my son is the living.'" [24] And the king said, "Bring me a sword." And they brought a sword before the king. [25] And the king said, "Divide the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other." [26] Then spake

1 THUS all the work that Solomon made for the house of the Lord was finished: and Solomon brought in all the things that David his father had dedicated; and the silver, and the gold, and all the instruments, put he among the treasures of the house of God.

2 Then Solomon assembled the elders of Israel, and all the heads of the tribes, the chief of the fathers of the children of Israel, unto Jerusalem, to bring up the ark of the covenant of the Lord [a]out of the city of David, which is Zion.

a 2 Sa. 6. 12.

3 Wherefore all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto the king in the feast which was in the seventh month. 4 And all the elders of Israel came; and the Levites took up the ark. 5 And they brought up the ark, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, these did the priests and the Levites bring up. 6 Also king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel that were assembled unto him before the ark, sacrificed sheep and oxen, which could not be told nor numbered for multitude. 7 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord unto his place, to the oracle of the house, into the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubim: 8 For the cherubim spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubim covered the ark and the staves thereof above. 9 And they drew out the staves of the ark, that the ends of the staves were seen from the ark before the oracle; but they were not seen without. (5) Psalm xlvii. was probably composed and sung on the occasion of bringing the ark, either into the tabernacle on Mount Zion by David, or from thence into the temple by Solomon. (Vide Dr. Wells in loc.) I have inserted it here on the supposition that ver. 5. appears to allude rather to the magnificent description in 2 Chron. v. 13.

Psalms xcvii., xcviii., xcix., c. It is quite uncertain when these Psalms were composed. They are inserted here from the apparent allusions they contain to the cloud which filled the temple, to the fire which consumed the sacrifices; and to the description in 2 Chron. v. 13.

Psalms cxxxv., cxxxvi. The first of these Psalms was supposed to have been sung by the Levites on opening the gates of the temple. The second was sung on the great festivals; one half by one half of the choir, the other by either the other half or by the whole chorus uniting in the words, "His mercy endureth for ever." As these Psalms were used in the temple service, and the precise time of their composition is not ascertained, it may be assumed that they were adopted at the beginning of that service, and were composed about this time.

Make a joyful noise before the LORD, the King.

PSALM XCIX.

PSALM XCIX.

The prophet, setting forth the kingdom of God in Zion, 5 exhorteth all, by the example of their forefathers, to worship God at his holy hill.

[1] The LORD reigneth—let the people tremble:
He [a]sitteth between the cherubim—let the earth [*]be moved.
[2] The LORD is great in Zion;
And he is high above all people.
[3] Let them praise [b]thy great and terrible name;
For it is holy.
[4] The [c]king's Strength also loveth judgment;
Thou dost establish equity,
Thou executest judgment and righteousness in Jacob.
[5] Exalt ye the LORD our God,
And worship at his footstool;
For [†]he is holy.
[6] Moses and Aaron among his priests,
And Samuel among them that call upon his name;
They [d]called upon the LORD, and he answered them.
[7] He [e]spake unto them in the cloudy pillar:
They kept his testimonies, and the ordinance that he gave them.
[8] Thou answeredst them, O LORD our God!
Thou [f]wast a God that forgavest them,
Though [g]thou tookest vengeance of their inventions.
[9] Exalt the LORD our God,
And worship at his holy hill;
For the LORD our God is holy.

PSALM C.

An exhortation to praise God cheerfully, 3 for his greatness, 4 and for his power.

[*]A Psalm of [†]Praise.

[1] Make a joyful noise unto the LORD, all [‡]ye lands.
[2] Serve the LORD with gladness:
Come before his presence with singing.
[3] Know ye that the LORD he is God:
It [a]is he that hath made us, [*]and not we ourselves;
We [b]are his people, and the sheep of his pasture.
[4] Enter into his gates with thanksgiving,
And into his courts with praise:
Be thankful unto him, and bless his name.

[1] Praise ye the LORD.
Praise ye the name of the LORD;
Praise him, O ye servants of the LORD!
[2] Ye [a]that stand in the house of the LORD,
In the courts of the house of our God,
[3] Praise the LORD; for the LORD is good:
Sing praises unto his name; for it is pleasant.

2 CHRON. vii. 4–7.

[4] Then the king and all the people offered (6)sacrifices before the LORD. [5] And king Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty and two thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep: so the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. [6] And the priests waited on their offices: the Levites also with instruments of music of the LORD, which David the king had made to praise the LORD, because his mercy endureth for ever, when David praised by their *ministry; and the priests sounded trumpets before them, and all Israel stood. [7] Moreover Solomon hallowed the middle of the court that was before the house of the LORD: for there he offered burnt offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings, because the brazen altar which Solomon had made was not able to receive the burnt offerings, and the meat offerings, and the fat. [1] Then said Solomon,—

"The LORD hath said that he would dwell in the [a]thick darkness! [2] But I have built a house of habitation for thee, and a place for thy dwelling for ever." [3] And the king turned his face, and blessed the whole congregation of Israel: and all the congregation of Israel stood. [4] And he said,—"Blessed be the LORD God of Israel, who hath with his hands fulfilled that which he spake with his mouth to my father David, saying, [5] 'Since the day that I brought forth my people out of the land of Egypt I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel to build a house in, that my name might be there; neither chose I any man to be a ruler over my people Israel: [6] but I have chosen Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and have chosen David to be over my people Israel.' [7] Now [b]it was in the heart of David my father to build a house for the name of the LORD God of Israel. [8] But the LORD said to David my father, 'Forasmuch as it was in thy heart to build a house for my name, thou didst well in that it was in thy heart; [9] notwithstanding thou shalt not build the house, but thy son which shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house for my name.' [10] The LORD therefore hath performed his word that he hath spoken; for I am risen up in the room of David my father, and am set on the throne of Israel, as the LORD promised, and have built the house for the name of the LORD God of Israel. [11] And in it have I put the ark, wherein is the covenant of the LORD, that he made with the children of Israel."

b 2 Sa. 7. 2.

[12] And he stood before the altar of the LORD in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands. [13] For Solomon had made a brazen scaffold, of five cubits †long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high, and had set it in the midst of the court; and upon it he stood, and kneeled down upon his knees before all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven, [14] and said,—

(6) It was the custom both among the Jews, and, before them, among the patriarchs, to offer the sacrifice, and then to make their prayer. Immediately after Solomon's prayer, we read that the fire descended and consumed the sacrifices; which, in compliance with the usual custom, must have been first offered. The events of this third part then would have taken place in the order in which they are here arranged; the ark is removed into the temple—the sacrifices are slain—the prayer is made—and the fire descends to prove that these services were accepted by the God of Israel.

ised him; and spakest with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thy hand, as it is this day. [16] Now therefore, O Lord God of Israel! keep with thy servant David my father that which thou hast promised him, saying, 'There [e]shall not ‡fail thee a man in my sight to sit upon the throne of Israel; [f]yet so that thy children take heed to their way to walk in my Law, as thou hast walked before me.' [17] Now then, O Lord God of Israel! let thy word be verified, which thou hast spoken unto thy servant David.

[18] "But will God in very deed dwell with men on the earth? [g]behold, heaven and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house which I have built! [19] Have respect therefore to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Lord my God! to hearken unto the cry and the prayer which thy servant prayeth before thee; [20] that thine eyes may be open upon this house day and night, upon the place whereof thou hast said that thou wouldest put thy name there; to hearken unto the prayer which thy servant prayeth *toward this place. [21] Hearken therefore unto the supplications of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, which they shall †make toward this place: hear thou from thy dwelling place, even from heaven; and when thou hearest, forgive.

[22] "If a man sin against his neighbour, ‡and an oath be laid upon him to make him swear, and the oath come before thine altar in this house; [23] then hear thou from heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, by requiting the wicked, by recompensing his way upon his own head; and by justifying the righteous, by giving him according to his righteousness.

[24] "And if thy people Israel *be put to the worse before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee; and shall return and confess thy name, and pray and make supplication before thee †in this house; [25] then hear thou from the heavens, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land which thou gavest to them and to their fathers.

[26] "When [h]the heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee; yet if they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, when thou dost afflict them; [27] then hear thou from heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, when thou hast taught them the good way, wherein they should walk; and send rain upon thy land, which thou hast given unto thy people for an inheritance.

[28] "If there [i]be dearth in the land, if there be pestilence, if there be blasting, or mildew, locusts, or caterpillars; if their enemies besiege them ‡in the cities of their land; whatsoever sore or whatsoever sickness there be; [29] then what prayer or what supplication soever shall be made of any man, or of all thy people Israel, when every one shall know his own sore and his own grief, and shall spread forth his hand *in this house: [30] then hear thou from heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive, and render unto every man according unto all his ways, whose heart thou knowest, (for thou only knowest the hearts of the children of men); [31] that they may fear thee, to walk in thy ways, †so long as they live ‡in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

[32] "Moreover concerning the stranger, [j]which is not of thy people Israel, but is come from a far country for thy great name's sake, and thy mighty hand, and thy stretched-out arm; if they come and pray in this house; [33] then hear thou from the heavens, even from thy dwelling place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for; that all people of the earth may know thy name, and fear thee, as doth thy people Israel, and may know that *this house which I have built is called by thy name.

[2] And all the men of Israel assembled themselves unto king Solomon at the feast in the month Ethanim, which is the seventh month. [3] And all the elders of Israel came, and the priests took up the ark. [4] And they brought up the ark of the Lord, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and all the holy vessels that were in the tabernacle, even those did the priests and the Levites bring up. [5] And king Solomon, and all the congregation of Israel, that were assembled unto him, were with him before the ark, sacrificing sheep and oxen, that could not be told nor numbered for multitude. [6] And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord unto his place, into the oracle of the house, to the most holy place, even under the wings of the cherubim. [7] For the cherubim spread forth their two wings over the place of the ark, and the cherubim covered the ark and the staves thereof above. [8] And they drew out the staves, that the †ends of the staves were seen out in the ‡holy place before the oracle, and they were not seen without: and there they are unto this day. [9] There was nothing in the ark save the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, *when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt. [18] And the Lord said unto David my father, 'Whereas it was in thy heart to build a house unto my name, thou didst well that it was in thy heart. [19] Nevertheless thou shalt not build the house; but thy son that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build the house unto my name.' [20] And the Lord hath performed his word that he spake, and I am risen up in the room of David my father, and sit on the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised, and have built a house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. [21] And I have set there a place for the ark, wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which he made with our fathers, when he brought them out of the land of Egypt."

[22] And Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord in the presence of all the congregation of Israel, and spread forth his hands toward heaven; [23] and he said,—

"Lord God of Israel! there is no God like thee, in heaven above, or on earth beneath, who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that walk before thee with all their heart: [24] who hast kept with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him: thou spakest also with thy mouth, and hast fulfilled it with thy hand, as it is this day. [25] Therefore now, Lord God of Israel, keep with thy servant David my father that thou promisedst him, saying, 'There shall not †fail thee a man in my sight to sit on the throne of Israel; ‡so that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked before me.' [26] And now, O God of Israel! let thy word, I pray thee, be verified, which thou spakest unto thy servant David my father.

[27] "But will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded! [28] Yet have thou respect unto the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplication, O Lord my God, to hearken unto the cry and to the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee to-day; [29] that thine eyes may be open toward this house night and day, even toward the place of which thou hast said, 'My name shall be there;' that thou mayest hearken unto the prayer which thy servant shall make *toward this place. [30] And hearken thou to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, when they shall pray †toward this place; and hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place: and when thou hearest, forgive.

[31] "If any man trespass against his neighbour, ‡and an oath be laid upon him to cause him to swear, and the oath come before thine altar in this house; [32] then hear thou in heaven, and do, and judge thy servants, condemning the wicked, to bring his way upon his head; and justifying the righteous, to give him according to his righteousness.

‡ Heb. and he require an oath of him, &c. Le. 5. 1.

[33] "When thy people Israel be smitten down before the enemy, because they have sinned against thee, and shall turn again to thee, and confess thy name, and pray, and make supplication unto thee *in this house; [34] then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them again unto the land which thou gavest unto their fathers.

* Or, toward.

[35] "When heaven is shut up, and there is no rain, because they have sinned against thee; if they pray toward this place, and confess thy name, and turn from their sin, when thou afflictest them; [36] then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy servants, and of thy people Israel, that thou teach them the good way wherein they should walk, and give rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people for an inheritance.

[37] "If there be in the land famine, if there be pestilence, blasting, mildew, locust, or if there be caterpillar; if their enemy besiege them in the land of their †cities; whatsoever plague, whatsoever sickness there be; [38] what prayer and supplication soever be made by any man, or by all thy people Israel, which shall know every man the plague of his own heart, and spread forth his hands toward this house; [39] then hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place, and forgive, and do, and give to every man according to his ways, whose heart thou knowest; (for thou, even thou only, knowest the hearts of all the children of men;) [40] that they may fear thee all the days that they live in the land which thou gavest unto our fathers.

[41] "Moreover concerning a stranger, that is not of thy people Israel, but cometh out of a far country for thy name's sake, [42] (for they shall hear of thy great name, and of thy strong hand, and of thy stretched-out arm); when he shall come and pray toward this house; [43] hear thou in heaven thy dwelling place, and do according to all that the stranger calleth to thee for: that all people of the earth may know thy name, to fear thee, as do thy people Israel; and that they may know that ‡this house, which I have builded, is called by thy name.

[44] "If thy people go out to battle against their enemy, whithersoever thou shalt send them, and shall pray unto the Lord *toward the city which thou hast chosen, and toward the house that I have built for thy name; [45] then hear thou in heaven their prayer and their supplication, and maintain their †cause.

[46] "If they sin against thee (for there is no man that sinneth not), and thou be angry with them, and deliver them to the enemy, so that they carry them away captives unto the land of the enemy, far or near; [47] yet if they shall ‡bethink themselves in the land whither they were carried captives, and repent, and make supplication unto thee in the land of them that carried them captives, saying, We have sinned, and have done perversely, we have committed wickedness; [48] and so return unto thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their enemies, which led them away captive, and pray unto thee toward their land, which thou gavest unto their fathers, the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built for thy name; [49] then hear thou their prayer and their supplication in heaven thy dwelling place, and maintain their *cause, [50] and forgive thy people that have sinned against thee, and all their transgressions wherein they have transgressed against thee.—"

[62] And the king, and all Israel with him, offered sacrifice before the Lord. [63] And Solomon offered a sacrifice of peace offerings, which he offered unto the Lord, two and twenty thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousand sheep. So the king and all the children of Israel dedicated the house of the Lord. [64] The same day did the king hallow the middle of the court that was before the house of the Lord: for there he offered burnt offerings, and meat offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings: because the brazen altar that was before the Lord was too little to receive the burnt offerings, and meat offerings, and the fat of the peace offerings. [65] And at that time Solomon held a feast, and all Israel with him, a great congregation, from the entering in of Hamath unto the river of Egypt, before the Lord our God, seven days and seven days, even fourteen days. [66] On the eighth day he sent the people away; and they †blessed the king, and went unto their tents joyful and glad of heart for all the goodness that the Lord had done for David his servant, and for Israel his people.

OTHER BUILDINGS AND MAGNIFICENCE OF SOLOMON.

Lebanon.

SECTION I.—Building of the House of Lebanon;—God appears to Solomon.

1 KINGS vii. 1–12.—2 CHRON. vii. 11, to the end.—1 KINGS ix. 1–9.

The building of Solomon's house. Of the house of Lebanon. Of the porch of pillars. Of the porch of judgment. Of the house for Pharaoh's daughter. God appearing to Solomon giveth him promises upon condition.

[1] BUT Solomon was building his own house thirteen years, and he finished all his house.

[2] He built also the house of the forest of Lebanon; the length thereof was an hundred cubits, and the breadth thereof fifty cubits, and the height thereof thirty cubits, upon four rows of cedar pillars, with cedar beams upon the pillars. [3] And it was covered with cedar above upon the *beams that lay on forty-five pillars, fifteen in a row. [4] And there were windows in three rows, and †light was against light in three ranks. [5] And all the ‡doors and posts were square, with the windows; and light was against light in three ranks. [6] And he made a porch of pillars; the length thereof was fifty cubits, and the breadth thereof thirty cubits: and the porch was *before them; and the other pillars and the thick beam were †before them. [7] Then he made a porch for the throne where he might judge, even the porch of judgment; and it was covered with cedar ‡from one side of the floor to the other. [8] And his house where he dwelt had another court within the porch, which was of the like work.

† Or, according to them.

a 2 Ch. 8. 11.

Solomon made also a house for Pharaoh's daughter, [a]whom he had taken to wife, like unto this porch.

[9] All these were of costly stones, according to the measures of hewed stones, sawed with saws, within and without, even from the foundation unto the coping, and so on the outside toward the great court. [10] And the foundation was of costly stones, even great stones, stones of ten cubits, and stones of eight cubits. [11] And above were costly stones, after the measures of hewed stones, and cedars. [12] And the great court round about was with three rows of hewed stones, and a row of cedar beams, both for the inner court of the house of the LORD, and for the porch of the house.

2 CHRON. vii. 11, to the end.

[11] Thus Solomon finished the house of the LORD, and the king's house: and all that came into Solomon's heart to make in the house of the LORD, and in his own house, he prosperously effected.

[12] And the LORD appeared to Solomon by night, and said unto him,—"I have heard thy prayer, and [b]have chosen this place to myself for a house of sacrifice. [13] If I shut up heaven that there be no rain, or if I command the locusts to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people; [14] if my people, *which are called by my name, shall [c]humble themselves, and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land. [15] Now mine eyes shall be open, and mine ears attent †unto the prayer that is made in this place. [16] For now have I chosen and sanctified this house, that my name may be there for ever; and mine eyes and my heart shall be there perpetually. [17] And as for thee, if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and shalt observe my statutes and my judgments; [18] then will I stablish the throne of thy kingdom, according as I have covenanted with David thy father, saying, 'There shall not ‡fail thee a man to be ruler in Israel.' [19] But [d]if ye turn away, and forsake my statutes and my commandments, which I have set

[21] And this house, which is high, shall be an astonishment to every one that passeth by it; so that he shall say, [e]Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land and unto this house? [22] And it shall be answered, Because they forsook the LORD God of their fathers, which brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on other gods, and worshipped them, and served them: therefore hath he brought all this evil upon them."

1 KINGS ix. 1–9.—[1] And [a]it came to pass, when Solomon had finished the building of the house of the LORD, and the king's house, and all Solomon's desire which he was pleased to do, [2] that the LORD appeared to Solomon the second time, as he had appeared unto him at Gibeon. [3] And the LORD said unto him,—

"I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, that thou hast made before me: I have hallowed this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there for ever; and mine eyes and my heart shall be there perpetually. [4] And if thou wilt walk before me, as David thy father walked, in integrity of heart, and in uprightness, to do according to all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my statutes and my judgments: [5] then I will establish the throne of thy kingdom upon Israel for ever, as I promised to David thy father, saying, 'There shall not fail thee a man upon the throne of Israel.' [6] But if ye shall at all turn from following me, ye or your children, and will not keep my commandments and my statutes which I have set before you, but go and serve other gods, and worship them; [7] then will I cut off Israel out of the land which I have given them; and this house, which I have hallowed for my name, will I cast out of my sight; and Israel shall be a proverb and a byword among all people: [8] and at this house, which is high, every one that passeth by it shall be astonished, and shall hiss; and they shall say, Why hath the LORD done thus unto this land, and to this house? [9] And they shall answer, Because they forsook the LORD their God, who brought forth their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and have taken hold upon other gods, and have worshipped them, and served them: therefore hath the LORD brought upon them all this evil."

SECTION II.—Conquests, &c. of Solomon.

1 KINGS ix. 10–14.—2 CHRON. viii. 1–11.—1 KINGS ix. 24.

The mutual presents of Solomon and Hiram. Solomon's buildings. The Gentiles which were left Solomon made tributaries, but the Israelites rulers. Pharaoh's daughter removeth to her house.

[10] AND it came to pass at the end of twenty years, when Solomon had built the two houses, the house of the LORD, and the king's house, [11] (now Hiram the king of Tyre had furnished Solomon with cedar trees and fir trees, and with gold, according to all his desire,) that then king Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. [12] And Hiram came out from Tyre to see the cities which Solomon had given him; and they [*]pleased him not. [13] And he said, "What cities are these which thou hast given me, my brother!" And [a]he called them the land of [†]Cabul unto this day. [14] And Hiram sent to the king sixscore talents of gold.

2 CHRON. viii. 1–11.

[1] And it came to pass at the end of twenty years, wherein Solomon had built the house of the LORD and his own house, [2] that the cities which Huram had restored to Solomon, Solomon built them, and caused the children of Israel to dwell there. [3] And Solomon went to Hamath-zobah, and prevailed against it. [4] And he built Tadmor in the wilderness, and all the store cities, which he built in Hamath. [5] Also he built Beth-horon the upper, and Beth-horon the nether, fenced cities, with walls, gates, and bars; [6] and Baalath, and all the store cities that Solomon had, and all the chariot cities, and the cities of the horsemen, and [‡]all that Solomon desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and throughout all the land of his dominion.

[7] As for all the people that were left of the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which were not of Israel, [8] but of their children, who were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel consumed not, them did Solomon make to pay tribute until this day. [9] But of the children of Israel did Solomon make no servants for his work; but they were men of war, and chief of his captains, and captains of his chariots and horsemen. [10] And these were the chief of king Solomon's officers, even two hundred and fifty, that bare rule over the people.

[11] And Solomon brought up the daughter of Pharaoh out of the city of David unto the house that he had built for her; for he said, "My wife shall not dwell in the house of David king of Israel, because the places are *holy, whereunto the ark of the Lord hath come."

* Heb. holiness.

[24] But Pharaoh's daughter came up out of the city of David unto her house which Solomon had built for her: [b]then did he build Millo.

(7) The Book of Canticles is inserted here on the authority of Lightfoot; who observes, that it must have been composed after the building of the summer-house in the forest of Lebanon. He infers this from chap. iv. 8. "Come with me from Lebanon, my spouse;" and chap. vii. 4. The common opinion respecting this much discussed book, that it is a mystical allegory of the union of Christ and his Church, is supported by the best and most abundant evidence. No comparison is more general throughout the books of Scripture, than this of marriage, to express the love of God to his Church. For a full account of this beautiful dramatic poem, the various opinions which have been entertained respecting it, and the division of its contents in the form of scenes, acts, idyls, &c. vide Dr. Wells in loc.; Horne's *Crit. [Spouse.]—[1] By [h]night on my bed I sought him whom my soul loveth:
I sought him, but I found him not.
[2] I will rise now, and go about the city in the streets,
And in the broad ways I will seek him whom my soul loveth:
I sought him—but I found him not.
[3] The watchmen that go about the city found me:
To whom I said, "Saw ye him whom my soul loveth?"
[4] It was but a little that I passed from them,
But I found him whom my soul loveth:
I held him, and would not let him go,
Until I had brought him into my mother's house,
And into the chamber of her that conceived me.

Perfumed with myrrh and frankincense,
With all powders of the merchant?
[7] Behold his bed, which is Solomon's;
Threescore valiant men are about it, of the valiant of Israel.
[8] They all hold swords, being expert in war:
Every man hath his sword upon his thigh because of fear in the night.
[9] King Solomon made himself †a chariot of the wood of Lebanon.
[10] He made the pillars thereof of silver,
The bottom thereof of gold, the covering of it of purple,
The midst thereof being [b]paved with love, for the daughters of Jerusalem.

And behold king Solomon
With the crown wherewith his mother crowned him
In the day of his espousals,
And in the day of the gladness of his heart.

For my head is filled with dew,
And my locks with the drops of the night."
[3] I have put off my coat—how shall I put it on?
I have washed my feet—how shall I defile them?

And my hands dropped with myrrh,
And my fingers with *sweet-smelling myrrh,

[6] I opened to my beloved;
But my beloved had withdrawn himself, and was gone:

[15] AND this is the reason of [a]the levy which king Solomon raised; for to build the house of the LORD, and his own house, and Millo, and the wall of Jerusalem, and Hazor, and Megiddo, and Gezer. [16] For Pharaoh king of Egypt had gone up, and taken Gezer, and burnt it with fire, and slain the Canaanites that dwelt in the city, and given it for a present unto his daughter, Solomon's wife. [17] And Solomon built Gezer, and Beth-horon the nether, [18] and Baalath, and Tadmor in the wilderness, in the land, [19] and all the cities of store that Solomon had, and cities for his chariots, and cities for his horsemen, and that which Solomon *desired to build in Jerusalem, and in Lebanon, and in all the land of his dominion. [21] But of the children of Israel did Solomon [e]make no bondmen; but they were men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and his captains, and rulers of his chariots, and his horsemen. [23] These were the chief of the officers that were over Solomon's work, five hundred and fifty, which bare rule over the people that wrought in the work.

[1] THE PROVERBS OF SOLOMON THE SON OF DAVID, KING OF ISRAEL.
[2] To know wisdom and instruction;
To perceive the words of understanding;
[3] To receive the instruction of wisdom,
Justice, and judgment, and *equity;
[4] To give subtilty to the simple,
To the young man knowledge and †discretion.
[5] A wise man will hear, and will increase learning;
And a man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels:
[6] To understand a proverb, and ‡the interpretation;
The words of the wise, and their dark sayings.

† Or, advisement.
‡ Or, an eloquent speech.

[7] The [a]fear of the Lord is *the beginning of knowledge;
But fools despise wisdom and instruction.

And forsake not the law of thy mother;

(8) The Book of Proverbs may be divided into five parts. The first is a kind of preface, and extends to the end of the ninth chapter; it contains a series of admonitions, cautions, and encouragements to the study of wisdom.

c Je. 5. 26.
Let [c]us lay wait for blood,
Let us lurk privily for the innocent without cause:
12 Let us swallow them up alive as the grave;
d Ps. 28. 1. & 143. 7.
And whole, [d]as those that go down into the pit:
13 We shall find all precious substance,
We shall fill our houses with spoil;
14 Cast in thy lot among us;
Let us all have one purse:
15 My son, walk not thou in the way with them:
Refrain thy foot from their path:
e Is. 59. 7. Ro. 3. 15.
16 For [e]their feet run to evil,
And make haste to shed blood.
17 Surely in vain the net is spread
‡ Heb. eyes of every thing that hath a wing.
In the ‡sight of any bird.
18 And they lay wait for their own blood;
They lurk privily for their own lives.
f 1 Ti. 6. 10.
19 So [f]are the ways of every one that is greedy of gain;
Which taketh away the life of the owners thereof.
* Heb. Wisdoms, that is, excellent wisdom. Jo. 7. 37.
20 *Wisdom crieth without;
She uttereth her voice in the streets:
21 She crieth in the chief place of concourse,
In the openings of the gates:
In the city she uttereth her words, saying—
22 "How long, ye simple ones, will ye love simplicity?
And the scorners delight in their scorning,
And fools hate knowledge?
23 Turn you at my reproof:
g Joel 2. 28.
Behold, [g]I will pour out my spirit unto you,
I will make known my words unto you.
h Is. 65. 12. & 66. 4. Je. 7. 13. Ze. 7. 11.
24 "Because [h]I have called—and ye refused;
I have stretched out my hand—and no man regarded;
i Ps. 107. 11. Lu. 7. 30.
25 But ye [i]have set at nought all my counsel,
And would none of my reproof:
26 I also will laugh at your calamity;
I will mock when your fear cometh;
27 When your fear cometh as desolation,
And your destruction cometh as a whirlwind;
When distress and anguish cometh upon you.
j See Job 27. 9.
28 Then [j]shall they call upon me—but I will not answer;
They shall seek me early—but they shall not find me:
k Job 21. 14.
29 For that they [k]hated knowledge,
l Ps. 119. 173.
And did not [l]choose the fear of the Lord;
m Ps. 81. 11.
30 They [m]would none of my counsel:
They despised all my reproof.
n Job 4. 8. Is. 3. 11. Je. 6. 19.
31 Therefore [n]shall they eat of the fruit of their own way,
And be filled with their own devices.
† Or, ease of the simple.
32 For the †turning away of the simple shall slay them,
And the prosperity of fools shall destroy them.
o Ps. 25. 12, 13.
33 But [o]whoso hearkeneth unto me shall dwell safely, p Ps. 112. 7.
And [p]shall be quiet from fear of evil."

CHAP. ii

1 My son, if thou wilt receive my words,
And hide my commandments with thee;
2 So that thou incline thine ear unto wisdom,
And apply thy heart to understanding;
3 Yea, if thou criest after knowledge,
‡ Heb. givest thy voice.
And ‡liftest up thy voice for understanding;

q Mat. 13. 44.
[4] If [q]thou seekest her as silver,
And searchest for her as for hid treasures;
[5] Then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord,
And find the knowledge of God.
r See Job 32. 8. 1 Ki. 3. 9, 12.
[6] For [r]the Lord giveth wisdom:
Out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding.
[7] He layeth up sound wisdom for the righteous:
s See Ge. 15. 1.
He [s]is a buckler to them that walk uprightly.
[8] He keepeth the paths of judgment,
t 1 Sa. 2. 9. Ps. 66. 9.
And [t]preserveth the way of his saints.
[9] Then shalt thou understand righteousness,
And judgment, and equity—yea, every good path.
[10] When wisdom entereth into thy heart,
And knowledge is pleasant unto thy soul;
[11] Discretion shall preserve thee,
Understanding shall keep thee:
[12] To deliver thee from the way of the evil man,
From the man that speaketh froward things;
[13] Who leave the paths of uprightness, u John 3. 19, 20.
To [u]walk in the ways of darkness;
v Je. 11. 15.
[14] Who [v]rejoice to do evil,
w Ro. 1. 32.
And [w]delight in the frowardness of the wicked;
[15] Whose ways are crooked,
And they froward in their paths:
[16] To deliver thee from the strange woman,
Even from the stranger which flattereth with her words;
x See Mal. 2. 14, 15.
[17] Which [x]forsaketh the guide of her youth,
And forgetteth the covenant of her God.
[18] For her house inclineth unto death,
And her paths unto the dead.
[19] None that go unto her return again,
Neither take they hold of the paths of life.
[20] That thou mayest walk in the way of good men,
And keep the paths of the righteous.
y Ps. 37. 29.
[21] For [y]the upright shall dwell in the land,
And the perfect shall remain in it.
z Job 18. 17. Ps. 37. 28. & 104. 35.
[22] But [z]the wicked shall be cut off from the earth,
And the transgressors shall be *rooted out of it.
* Or, plucked up.

[20] By [s]his knowledge the depths are broken up,
And the clouds drop down the dew.
[21] My son, let not them depart from thine eyes:
Keep sound wisdom and discretion:
[22] So shall they be life unto thy soul,
And grace to thy neck.
[23] Then shalt thou walk in thy way safely,
And thy foot shall not stumble.

t Le. 26. 6. Ps. 3. 5.

[24] When [t]thou liest down, thou shalt not be afraid:
Yea, thou shalt lie down, and thy sleep shall be sweet.
[25] Be not afraid of sudden fear,

And shall keep thy foot from being taken.

But he giveth grace unto the lowly:

CHAP. IV.

[1] Hear, ye children, the instruction of a father,
And attend to know understanding.
[2] For I give you good doctrine,
Forsake ye not my law.

[3] For I was my father's son,
Tender and only beloved in the sight of my mother.
[4] He [b]taught me also, and said unto me,
Let thy heart retain my words:
Keep my commandments, and live.
[5] Get wisdom, get understanding:
Forget it not; neither decline from the words of my mouth.
[6] Forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee:
Love [c]her, and she shall keep thee.
[7] Wisdom [d]is the principal thing, therefore get wisdom;
And with all thy getting get understanding.
[8] Exalt [e]her, and she shall promote thee:
She shall bring thee to honor, when thou dost embrace her.
[9] She shall give to thy head an ornament of grace:
‡A crown of glory shall she deliver to thee.
[10] Hear, O my son! and receive my sayings;
And the years of thy life shall be many.
[11] I have taught thee in the way of wisdom;
I have led thee in right paths.
[12] When thou goest, thy steps shall not be straitened;
And when thou runnest, thou shalt not stumble.
[13] Take fast hold of instruction; let her not go:
Keep her; for she is thy life.
[14] Enter not into the path of the wicked,
And go not in the way of evil men.
[15] Avoid it, pass not by it,
Turn from it, and pass away.
[16] For [f]they sleep not, except they have done mischief;
And their sleep is taken away, unless they cause some to fall.
[17] For they eat the bread of wickedness,
And drink the wine of violence.
[18] But [g]the path of the just [h]is as the shining light,
That shineth more and more unto the perfect day.
[19] The [i]way of the wicked is as darkness:
They know not at what they stumble.
[20] My son, attend to my words;
Incline thine ear unto my sayings.
[21] Let them not depart from thine eyes;
Keep them in the midst of thy heart.
[22] For they are life unto those that find them,
And *health to all their flesh.
[23] Keep thy heart †with all diligence;
For out of it are the issues of life.
[24] Put away from thee ‡a froward mouth,
And perverse lips put far from thee.
[25] Let thine eyes look right on,
And let thine eyelids look straight before thee.
[26] Ponder the path of thy feet,
And *let all thy ways be established.
[27] Turn [j]not to the right hand nor to the left:
Remove [k]thy foot from evil.

Chap. v.

[1] My son, attend unto my wisdom,
And bow thine ear to mine understanding:
[2] That thou mayest regard discretion,
And that thy lips may [l]keep knowledge.

[5] Her feet go down to death;
Her steps take hold on hell.
[6] Lest thou shouldest ponder the path of life,
Her ways are movable, that thou canst not know them.
[7] Hear me now therefore, O ye children!
And depart not from the words of my mouth.
[8] Remove thy way far from her,
And come not nigh the door of her house:
[9] Lest thou give thine honor unto others,
And thy years unto the cruel;

‡ Heb. strength.

[10] Lest strangers be filled with thy ‡wealth;
And thy labors be in the house of a stranger;
[11] And thou mourn at the last,
When thy flesh and thy body are consumed,
[12] And say, How have I hated instruction,
And my heart despised reproof;
[13] And have not obeyed the voice of my teachers,
Nor inclined mine ear to them that instructed me!
[14] I was almost in all evil
In the midst of the congregation and assembly.
[15] Drink waters out of thine own cistern,
And running waters out of thine own well.
[16] Let thy fountains be dispersed abroad,
And rivers of waters in the streets.
[17] Let them be only thine own,
And not strangers with thee.

And embrace the bosom of a stranger?

[22] His [q]own iniquities shall take the wicked himself,
And he shall be holden with the cords of his ‡sins.
[23] He shall die without instruction;
And in the greatness of his folly he shall go astray.

CHAP. VI.

[1] My son, if thou be surety for thy friend,
If thou hast stricken thy hand with a stranger,
[2] Thou art snared with the words of thy mouth,
Thou art taken with the words of thy mouth.
[3] Do this now, my son, and deliver thyself,
When thou art come into the hand of thy friend;

* Or, so shalt thou prevail with thy friend.

Go, humble thyself, *and make sure thy friend.
[4] Give not sleep to thine eyes,
Nor slumber to thine eyelids.
[5] Deliver thyself as a roe from the hand of the hunter,
And as a bird from the hand of the fowler.
[6] Go to the ant, thou sluggard;
Consider her ways, and be wise:
[7] Which having no guide, overseer, or ruler,
[8] Provideth her meat in the summer,
And gathereth her food in the harvest.

[9] How long wilt thou sleep, O sluggard?
When wilt thou arise out of thy sleep?
[10] Yet a little sleep, a little slumber,
A little folding of the hands to sleep:
[11] So shall thy poverty come as one that travelleth,
And thy want as an armed man.

[12] A naughty person, a wicked man,
Walketh with a froward mouth.
[13] He winketh with his eyes,
He speaketh with his feet,
He teacheth with his fingers.
[14] Frowardness is in his heart, [r]he deviseth mischief;
Continually he †soweth discord.
[15] Therefore shall his calamity come suddenly;
Suddenly shall he [s]be broken [t]without remedy.

[16] These six things doth the LORD hate:
Yea, seven are an abomination ‡unto him:
[17] *A proud look, a lying tongue,
And [u]hands that shed innocent blood,
[18] A [v]heart that deviseth wicked imaginations,
Feet [w]that be swift in running to mischief,
[19] A false witness that speaketh lies,
And him that soweth discord among brethren.

[20] My [x]son, keep thy father's commandment,
And forsake not the law of thy mother:
[21] Bind them continually upon thy heart,
And tie them about thy neck.
[22] When thou goest—it shall lead thee;
When thou sleepest—it shall keep thee;
And when thou awakest—it shall talk with thee.
[23] For [y]the commandment is a †lamp; and the law is light;
And reproofs of instruction are the way of life:
[24] To keep thee from the evil woman,
From the flattery ‡of the tongue of a strange woman.
[25] Lust [z]not after her beauty in thy heart;
Neither let her take thee with her eyelids.
[26] For by means of a whorish woman a man is brought to a piece of bread:
And *the adulteress will [a]hunt for the precious life.
[27] Can a man take fire in his bosom,
And his clothes not be burned?
[28] Can one go upon hot coals,
And his feet not be burned?
[29] So [b]he that goeth in to his neighbour's wife;
Whosoever toucheth her shall not be innocent.

[30] Men do not despise a thief,
If he steal to satisfy his soul when he is hungry;
[31] But if he be found, [c]he shall restore sevenfold;
He shall give all the substance of his house.
[32] But whoso committeth adultery with a woman lacketh †understanding:
He that doeth it destroyeth his own soul.
[33] A wound and dishonor shall he get;
And his reproach shall not be wiped away.
[34] For [d]jealousy is the rage of a man:
Therefore he will not spare in the day of vengeance.
[35] He will not ‡regard any ransom;
Neither will he rest content, though thou givest many gifts.

[5] That they may keep thee from the strange woman,
From the stranger which flattereth with her words.
[6] For at the window of my house
I looked through my casement,
[7] And beheld among the simple ones,
I discerned among *the youths,
A young man void of understanding,
[8] Passing through the street near her corner;
And he went the way to her house,

In the black and dark night:

With the attire of a harlot, and subtil of heart.
[11] (She is loud and stubborn:

[12] Now is she without, now in the streets,
And lieth in wait at every corner).

Let us solace ourselves with loves.

With the flattering of her lips she forced him.

Or as a fool to the correction of the stocks;

[24] Hearken unto me now therefore, O ye children!
And attend to the words of my mouth.

CHAP. viii.

1 Doth not Wisdom cry?
And Understanding put forth her voice?
2 She standeth in the top of high places,
By the way in the places of the paths.
3 She crieth at the gates, at the entry of the city,
At the coming in at the doors.
4 Unto you, O men! I call;
And my voice is to the sons of man.
5 O ye simple! understand wisdom:
And, ye fools! be ye of an understanding heart.
6 Hear; for I will speak of excellent things;
And the opening of my lips shall be right things.
7 For my mouth shall speak truth;
And wickedness is †an abomination to my lips.
8 All the words of my mouth are in righteousness;
There is nothing ‡froward or perverse in them.
9 They are all plain to him that understandeth,
And right to them that find knowledge.
10 Receive my instruction, and not silver;
And knowledge rather than choice gold.
11 For [l]wisdom is better than rubies;
And all the things that may be desired are not to be compared to it.
12 I Wisdom dwell with *prudence,
And find out knowledge of witty inventions.
13 The fear of the LORD is to hate evil:
Pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way,
And the froward mouth, do I hate.
14 Counsel is mine, and sound wisdom:
I am understanding; [m]I have strength.
15 By [n]me kings reign,
And princes decree justice.
16 By me princes rule,
And nobles, even all the judges of the earth.
17 I [o]love them that love me;
And [p]those that seek me early shall find me.
18 Riches [q]and honor are with me;
Yea, durable riches and righteousness.
19 My fruit is better than gold, yea, than fine gold;
And my revenue than choice silver.
20 I †lead in the way of righteousness,
In the midst of the paths of judgment.
21 That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance;
And I will fill their treasures.
22 The [r]LORD possessed me in the beginning of his way,
Before his works of old.
23 I [s]was set up from everlasting,
From the beginning, or ever the earth was.
24 When there were no depths, I was brought forth;
When there were no fountains abounding with water.
25 Before [t]the mountains were settled,
Before the hills was I brought forth:
26 While as yet he had not made the earth,
Nor the ‡fields, nor *the highest part of the dust of the world.
27 When he prepared the heavens—I was there:
When he set †a compass upon the face of the depth:
28 When he established the clouds above:
When he strengthened the fountains of the deep:

29 When [u]he gave to the sea his decree,
That the waters should not pass his commandment:
When [v]he appointed the foundations of the earth,—
30 Then [w]I was by him, as one brought up with him:
And [x]I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him,
31 Rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth;
And [y]my delights were with the sons of men
32 Now therefore hearken unto me, O ye children!
For [z]blessed are they that keep my ways.
33 Hear instruction, and be wise,
And refuse it not.
34 Blessed is the man that heareth me,
Watching daily at my gates,
Waiting at the posts of my doors!
35 For whoso findeth me findeth life,
And shall ‡obtain favor of the Lord.
36 But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul:
All they that hate me love death.

Chap. ix.

1 Wisdom hath [a]builded her house,
She hath hewn out her seven pillars:
2 She [b]hath killed *her beasts;
She hath mingled her wine;
She hath also furnished her table.
3 She hath [c]sent forth her maidens:
She crieth upon the highest places of the city,
4 Whoso [d]is simple—let him turn in hither:
As for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,—
5 Come, [e]eat of my bread,
And drink of the wine which I have mingled.
6 Forsake the foolish, and live;
And go in the way of understanding.
7 He that reproveth a scorner getteth to himself shame:
And he that rebuketh a wicked man getteth himself a blot.
8 Reprove [f]not a scorner, lest he hate thee:
Rebuke [g]a wise man, and he will love thee.
9 Give instruction to a wise man, and he will be yet wiser:
Teach a just man, [h]and he will increase in learning.
10 The [i]fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom:
And the knowledge of [a]the Holy is understanding.
11 For by me thy days shall be multiplied,
And the years of thy life shall be increased.
12 If [j]thou be wise, thou shalt be wise for thyself:
But if thou scornest, thou alone shalt bear it.
13 A foolish woman is clamorous:
She is simple, and knoweth nothing.
14 For she sitteth at the door of her house,
On a seat in the high places of the city,
15 To call passengers
Who go right on their ways:
16 Whoso is simple—let him turn in hither:
And as for him that wanteth understanding, she saith to him,
17 Stolen waters are sweet,
And bread †eaten in secret is pleasant.
18 But he knoweth not that the dead are there;
And that her guests are in the depths of hell.

PART II.(9)

CHAP. X. to XXII. 1-16.

[1] THE PROVERBS OF SOLOMON.
A wise son maketh a glad father;
But a foolish son is the heaviness of his mother.
[2] Treasures [a]of wickedness profit nothing;
But [b]righteousness delivereth from death.
[3] The [c]LORD will not suffer the soul of the righteous to famish;
But he casteth away *the substance of the wicked.
[4] He becometh poor that dealeth with a slack hand;
But the hand of the diligent maketh rich.
[5] He that gathereth in summer is a wise son;
But he that sleepeth in harvest is a son that causeth shame.
[6] Blessings are upon the head of the just;
But [d]violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.
[7] The [e]memory of the just is blessed;
But [f]the name of the wicked shall rot.
[8] The wise in heart will receive commandments;
But †a prating fool shall ‡fall.
[9] He [g]that walketh uprightly walketh surely;
But he that perverteth his ways shall be known.
[10] He that winketh with the eye causeth sorrow;
But a prating fool shall *fall.
[11] The [h]mouth of a righteous man is a well of life;
But [i]violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.
[12] Hatred stirreth up strifes;
But [j]love covereth all sins.
[13] In the lips of him that hath understanding wisdom is found;
But a rod is for the back of him that is void of †understanding.
[14] Wise men lay up knowledge;
But the mouth of the foolish is near destruction.
[15] The [k]rich man's wealth is his strong city;
The destruction of the poor is their poverty.
[16] The labor of the righteous tendeth to life;
The fruit of the wicked to sin.
[17] He is in the way of life that keepeth instruction;
But he that refuseth reproof ‡erreth.
[18] He that hideth hatred with lying lips,
And [l]he that uttereth a slander, is a fool.
[19] In [m]the multitude of words there wanteth not sin;
But [n]he that refraineth his lips is wise.
[20] The tongue of the just is as choice silver:
The heart of the wicked is little worth.
[21] The lips of the righteous feed many;
But fools die for want *of wisdom.
[22] The [o]blessing of the LORD, it maketh rich,
And he addeth no sorrow with it.
[23] It is as sport to a fool to do mischief;
But a man of understanding hath wisdom.
[24] The [p]fear of the wicked, it shall come upon him;
But [q]the desire of the righteous shall be granted.
[25] As the whirlwind passeth, [r]so is the wicked no more;
But [s]the righteous is an everlasting foundation.

(9) The second part of this book contains what may, with more strictness, be called Proverbs: that is, unconnected sentences, neat and simple, adapted to the instruction of youth. This part extends from chap. x. to chap. xxii. end of ver. 16.

[26] As vinegar to the teeth, and as smoke to the eyes,
So is the sluggard to them that send him.
[27] The fear of the Lord †prolongeth days;
But [t]the years of the wicked shall be shortened.
[28] The hope of the righteous shall be gladness;
But [u]the expectation of the wicked shall perish.
[29] The way of the Lord is strength to the upright;
But [v]destruction shall be to the workers of iniquity.
[30] The [w]righteous shall never be removed;
But the wicked shall not inhabit the earth.
[31] The [x]mouth of the just bringeth forth wisdom;
But the froward tongue shall be cut out.
[32] The lips of the righteous know what is acceptable;
But the mouth of the wicked speaketh ‡frowardness.

Chap xi.

[1] *A false balance is abomination to the Lord;
But †a just weight is his delight.
[2] When [y]pride cometh, then cometh shame;
But with the lowly is wisdom.
[3] The integrity of the upright shall guide them;
But the perverseness of transgressors shall destroy them.
[4] Riches [z]profit not in the day of wrath;
But [a]righteousness delivereth from death.
[5] The righteousness of the perfect shall ‡direct his way;
But the wicked shall fall by his own wickedness.
[6] The righteousness of the upright shall deliver them;
But [b]transgressors shall be taken in their own naughtiness.
[7] When a wicked man dieth, his expectation shall perish;
And the hope of unjust men perisheth.
[8] The righteous is delivered out of trouble,
And the wicked cometh in his stead.
[9] A [c]hypocrite with his mouth destroyeth his neighbour;
But through knowledge shall the just be delivered.
[10] When [d]it goeth well with the righteous, the city rejoiceth,
And when the wicked perish, there is shouting.
[11] By the blessing of the upright the city is exalted;
But it is overthrown by the mouth of the wicked.
[12] He that is *void of wisdom despiseth his neighbour;
But a man of understanding holdeth his peace.
[13] †A talebearer revealeth secrets;
But he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter.
[14] Where [e]no counsel is, the people fall;
But in the multitude of counsellors there is safety.
[15] He that is surety for a stranger shall ‡smart for it,
And he that hateth *suretiship is sure.
[16] A gracious woman retaineth honor,
And strong men retain riches.
[17] The [f]merciful man doeth good to his own soul;
But he that is cruel troubleth his own flesh.
[18] The wicked worketh a deceitful work;
But [g]to him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward.
[19] As righteousness tendeth to life,
So he that pursueth evil pursueth it to his own death.
[20] They that are of a froward heart are abomination to the Lord;
But such as are upright in their way are his delight.
[21] Though hand join in hand, the wicked shall not be unpunished;
But [h]the seed of the righteous shall be delivered.

[22] As a jewel of gold in a swine's snout,
So is a fair woman which †is without discretion.
[23] The desire of the righteous is only good;
But the expectation of the wicked [i]is wrath.
[24] There is that [j]scattereth, and yet increaseth,
And there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty.
[25] ‡The liberal soul shall be made fat,
And [k]he that watereth shall be watered also himself.
[26] He [l]that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him;
But [m]blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it.
[27] He that diligently seeketh good procureth favor;
But [n]he that seeketh mischief, it shall come unto him.
[28] He [o]that trusteth in his riches shall fall;
But [p]the righteous shall flourish as a branch.
[29] He that troubleth his own house [q]shall inherit the wind;
And the fool shall be servant to the wise of heart.
[30] The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life;
And [r]he that *winneth souls is wise.
[31] Behold, [s]the righteous shall be recompensed in the earth:
Much more the wicked and the sinner!

Chap. xii.

[1] Whoso loveth instruction loveth knowledge;
But he that hateth reproof is brutish.
[2] A good man obtaineth favor of the Lord;
But a man of wicked devices will he condemn.
[3] A man shall not be established by wickedness;
But the root of the righteous shall not be moved.
[4] A [t]virtuous woman is a crown to her husband;
But she that maketh ashamed is as rottenness in his bones.
[5] The thoughts of the righteous are right;
But the counsels of the wicked are deceit.
[6] The words of the wicked are to lie in wait for blood;
But the mouth of the upright shall deliver them.
[7] The [u]wicked are overthrown, and are not;
But the house of the righteous shall stand.
[8] A man shall be commended according to his wisdom;
But [v]he that is †of a perverse heart shall be despised.
[9] He that is despised, and hath a servant,
Is better than he that honoreth himself, and lacketh bread.
[10] A [w]righteous man regardeth the life of his beast;
But the ‡tender mercies of the wicked are cruel.
[11] He [x]that tilleth his land shall be satisfied with bread;
But he that followeth vain persons is void of understanding.
[12] The wicked desireth *the net of evil men;
But the root of the righteous yieldeth fruit.
[13] †The wicked is snared by the transgression of his lips;
But [y]the just shall come out of trouble.
[14] A man shall be satisfied with good by the fruit of his mouth,
And [z]the recompence of a man's hands shall be rendered unto him.
[15] The [a]way of a fool is right in his own eyes;
But he that hearkeneth unto counsel is wise.
[16] A fool's wrath is ‡presently known;
But a prudent man covereth shame.
[17] He that speaketh truth showeth forth righteousness;
But a false witness deceit.
[18] There [b]is that speaketh like the piercings of a sword;
But the tongue of the wise is health.

And †a false balance is not good.
[24] Man's [x]goings are of the LORD;
How can a man then understand his own way?
[25] It is a snare to the man who devoureth that which is holy,
And [y]after vows to make inquiry.
[26] A [z]wise king scattereth the wicked,
And bringeth the wheel over them.
[27] The [a]spirit of man is the ‡candle of the LORD,
Searching all the inward parts of the belly.
[28] Mercy [b]and truth preserve the king,
And his throne is upholden by mercy.
[29] The glory of young men is their strength,
And the beauty of old men is the gray head.
[30] The blueness of a wound *cleanseth away evil,
So do stripes the inward parts of the belly.

CHAP. XXI.

[1] The king's heart is in the hand of the LORD, as the rivers of water:
He turneth it whithersoever he will.
[2] Every way of a man is right in his own eyes;
But [c]the LORD pondereth the hearts.
[3] To [d]do justice and judgment
Is more acceptable to the LORD than sacrifice.
[4] †A high look, and a proud heart,
And ‡the ploughing of the wicked, is sin.
[5] The thoughts of the diligent tend only to plenteousness;
But of every one that is hasty only to want.

[31] Look not thou upon the wine when it is red,
When it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright:

And stingeth like ‡an adder.

CHAP. XXIV.

[1] Be not thou [x]envious against evil men,
Neither desire to be with them.
[2] For their heart studieth destruction,
And their lips talk of mischief.
[3] Through wisdom is a house builded;
And by understanding it is established:
[4] And by knowledge shall the chambers be filled
With all precious and pleasant riches.
[5] A wise man ‡is strong;
Yea, a man of knowledge *increaseth strength.
[6] For [y]by wise counsel thou shalt make thy war;
And in multitude of counsellors there is safety.
[7] Wisdom is too high for a fool:
He openeth not his mouth in the gate.
[8] He that [z]deviseth to do evil shall be called a mischievous person.
[9] The thought of foolishness is sin;
And the scorner is an abomination to men.
[10] If thou faint in the day of adversity,
Thy strength is †small.
[11] If [a]thou forbear to deliver them that are drawn unto death,
And those that are ready to be slain;
[12] If thou sayest, Behold, we knew it not;
Doth not He that pondereth the heart consider it?
And He that keepeth thy soul, doth not He know it?
And shall not He render to every man [b]according to his works?
[13] My son, eat thou honey, because it is good;
And the honeycomb, which is sweet ‡to thy taste:
[14] So [c]shall the knowledge of wisdom be unto thy soul:
When thou hast found it, then there shall be a reward,
And thy expectation shall not be cut off.
[15] Lay not wait, O wicked man! against the dwelling of the righteous;
Spoil not his resting place:
[16] For [d]a just man falleth seven times, and riseth up again;
But [e]the wicked shall fall into mischief.
[17] Rejoice [f]not when thine enemy falleth,
And let not thy heart be glad when he stumbleth:

(11) Part the Fourth is supposed to have been selected from a larger collection of Proverbs by the men of Hezekiah; that is, by the prophets whom he employed to restore the service and writings of the Church, as Eliakim, and Joah, and Shebna; and probably Hosea, Micah, and even Isaiah: all these flourished in the reign of Hezekiah, and endeavoured to revive true religion among the Jews.

Than that thou shouldest be put lower
In the presence of the prince whom thine eyes have seen.
[8] Go [f]not forth hastily to strive,
Lest thou know not what to do in the end thereof,
When thy neighbour hath put thee to shame.
9 Debate [g]thy cause with thy neighbour himself,
And discover not ‡a secret to another;
10 Lest he that heareth it put thee to shame,
And thine infamy turn not away.
[11] A word *fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.
[12] As an earring of gold, and an ornament of fine gold,
So is a wise reprover upon an obedient ear.
[13] As the cold of snow in the time of harvest,
So is a faithful messenger to them that send him;
For he refresheth the soul of his masters.
[14] Whoso boasteth himself †of a false gift
Is like [h]clouds and wind without rain.
[15] By [i]long forbearing is a prince persuaded,
And a soft tongue breaketh the bone.
[16] Hast thou found honey? eat so much as is sufficient for thee,
Lest thou be filled therewith, and vomit it.
[17] ‡Withdraw thy foot from thy neighbour's house;
Lest he be *weary of thee, and so hate thee.
[18] A [j]man that beareth false witness against his neighbour is a maul,
A sword, and a sharp arrow.
[19] Confidence in an unfaithful man in time of trouble
Is like a broken tooth, and a foot out of joint.
[20] As he that taketh away a garment in cold weather,
And as vinegar upon nitre,
So is he that [k]singeth songs to a heavy heart.
[21] If [l]thine enemy be hungry, give him bread to eat,
And if he be thirsty, give him water to drink;
22 For thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head,
And [m]the Lord shall reward thee.
[23] The north wind †driveth away rain,
So doth an angry countenance a backbiting tongue.
[24] It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop,
Than with a brawling woman and in a wide house.
[25] As cold waters to a thirsty soul,
So is good news from a far country.
[26] A righteous man falling down before the wicked
Is as a troubled fountain, and a corrupt spring.
[27] It is not good to eat much honey,
So for men to search their own glory is not glory.
[28] He that hath no rule over his own spirit
Is like a city that is broken down, and without walls.

Chap. xxvi.

[1] As snow in summer, and as rain in harvest,
So honor is not seemly for a fool.
[2] As the bird by wandering, as the swallow by flying,
So [n]the curse causeless shall not come.
[3] A [o]whip for the horse, a bridle for the ass,
And a rod for the fool's back.
[4] Answer not a fool according to his folly,
Lest thou also be like unto him.

‡ Heb. his own eyes.
* Or, violence.

[7] The legs of the lame are †not equal,
So is a parable in the mouth of fools.
[8] As he that ‡bindeth a stone in a sling,
So is he that giveth honor to a fool.
[9] As a thorn goeth up into the hand of a drunkard,
So is a parable in the mouth of fools.
[10] *The great God that formed all things both rewardeth the fool,
And rewardeth transgressors.
[11] As [q]a dog returneth to his vomit,
So a fool †returneth to his folly.
[12] Seest [r]thou a man wise in his own conceit?
There is more hope of a fool than of him.
[13] The slothful man saith, "There is a lion in the way;
A lion is in the streets."
[14] As the door turneth upon his hinges,
So doth the slothful upon his bed.
[15] The slothful hideth his hand in his bosom;
‡It grieveth him to bring it again to his mouth.
[16] The sluggard is wiser in his own conceit
Than seven men that can render a reason.
[17] He that passeth by, and *meddleth with strife belonging not to him,
Is like one that taketh a dog by the ears.
[18] As a mad man who casteth †firebrands, arrows, and death,
[19] So is the man that deceiveth his neighbour,
And saith, [s]Am not I in sport?
[20] ‡Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out,
So where there is no *talebearer, the strife †ceaseth.
[21] As coals are to burning coals, and wood to fire,
So is a contentious man to kindle strife.
[22] The words of a talebearer are as wounds,
And they go down into the ‡innermost parts of the belly.
[23] Burning lips and a wicked heart
Are like a potsherd covered with silver dross.
[24] He that hateth *dissembleth with his lips,
And layeth up deceit within him;
[25] When he †speaketh fair, believe him not;
For there are seven abominations in his heart.
[26] ‡Whose hatred is covered by deceit,
His wickedness shall be showed before the whole congregation.
[27] Whoso [t]diggeth a pit shall fall therein;
And he that rolleth a stone, it will return upon him.
[28] A lying tongue hateth those that are afflicted by it;
And a flattering mouth worketh ruin.
[1] Boast [u]not thyself of *to-morrow; Chap. xxvii.
For thou knowest not what a day may bring forth.
[2] Let another man praise thee, and not thine own mouth;
A stranger, and not thine own lips.
[3] A stone is †heavy, and the sand weighty;
But a fool's wrath is heavier than them both.
[4] Wrath ‡is cruel, and anger is outrageous;
But [v]who is able to stand before *envy?
[5] Open [w]rebuke is better than secret love.
[6] Faithful are the wounds of a friend;
But the kisses of an enemy are †deceitful.
[7] The full soul ‡loatheth a honeycomb;
But to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet.

[8] As a bird that wandereth from her nest,
So is a man that wandereth from his place.
[9] Ointment and perfume rejoice the heart,
So doth the sweetness of a man's friend *by hearty counsel.
[10] Thine own friend, and thy father's friend, forsake not;
Neither go into thy brother's house in the day of thy calamity:
For better is a neighbour that is near than a brother far off.
[11] My son, be wise, and make my heart glad,
That I may answer him that reproacheth me.
[12] A prudent man foreseeth the evil, and hideth himself;
But the simple pass on, and are punished.
[13] Take [x]his garment that is surety for a stranger,
And take a pledge of him for a strange woman.
[14] He that blesseth his friend with a loud voice, rising early in the morning,
It shall be counted a curse to him.
[15] A continual dropping in a very rainy day
And a contentious woman are alike.
[16] Whosoever hideth her hideth the wind,
And the ointment of his right hand, which bewrayeth itself.
[17] Iron sharpeneth iron,
So a man sharpeneth the countenance of his friend.
[18] Whoso [y]keepeth the fig tree shall eat the fruit thereof:
So he that waiteth on his master shall be honored.
[19] As in water face answereth to face,
So the heart of man to man.
[20] Hell [z]and destruction are †never full,
So [a]the eyes of man are never satisfied.
[21] As the fining pot for silver, and the furnace for gold,
So is a man to his praise.
[22] Though [b]thou shouldest bray a fool in a mortar
Among wheat with a pestle,
Yet will not his foolishness depart from him.
[23] Be thou diligent to know the state of thy flocks,
And ‡look well to thy herds.
[24] For *riches are not for ever;
And doth the crown endure †to every generation?
[25] The hay appeareth, and the tender grass showeth itself,
And herbs of the mountains are gathered.
[26] The lambs are for thy clothing,
And the goats are the price of the field.
[27] And thou shalt have goats' milk enough for thy food,
For the food of thy household,
And for the ‡maintenance for thy maidens.

CHAP. XXVIII.

[1] The [c]wicked flee when no man pursueth;
But the righteous are bold as a lion.
[2] For the transgression of a land many are the princes thereof;
But *by a man of understanding and knowledge the state thereof shall be prolonged.
[3] A [d]poor man that oppresseth the poor
Is like a sweeping rain †which leaveth no food.
[4] They [e]that forsake the law praise the wicked;
But [f]such as keep the law contend with them.
[5] Evil men understand not judgment;
But [g]they that seek the LORD understand all things.
[6] Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness,
Than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.

[7] Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son;
But he that ‡is a companion of riotous men shameth his father.
[8] He [h]that by usury and *unjust gain increaseth his substance,
He shall gather it for him that will pity the poor.
[9] He [i]that turneth away his ear from hearing the law,
Even his prayer shall be abomination.
[10] Whoso causeth the righteous to go astray in an evil way,
He shall fall himself into his own pit;
But [j]the upright shall have good things in possession.
[11] The rich man is wise in his †own conceit;
But the poor that hath understanding searcheth him out.
[12] When [k]righteous men do rejoice, there is great glory;
But when the wicked rise, a man is ‡hidden.
[13] He [l]that covereth his sins shall not prosper;
But whoso confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.
[14] Happy is the man that feareth always;
But [m]he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into mischief.
[15] As [n]a roaring lion, and a ranging bear,
So [o]is a wicked ruler over the poor people.
[16] The prince that wanteth understanding is also a great oppressor;
But he that hateth covetousness shall prolong his days.
[17] A [p]man that doeth violence to the blood of any person
Shall flee to the pit; let no man stay him.
[18] Whoso walketh uprightly shall be saved;
But he that is perverse in his ways shall fall at once.
[19] He that tilleth his land shall have plenty of bread;
But he that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough.
[20] A faithful man shall abound with blessings;
But he that maketh haste to be rich shall not be *innocent.
[21] To have respect of persons is not good;
For [q]for a piece of bread that man will transgress.
[22] He that †hasteth to be rich hath an evil eye,
And considereth not that poverty shall come upon him.
[23] He that rebuketh a man afterwards shall find more favor
Than he that flattereth with the tongue.
[24] Whoso robbeth his father or his mother, and saith, It is no transgression;
The same is the companion of ‡a destroyer.
[25] He that is of a proud heart stirreth up strife;
But [r]he that putteth his trust in the Lord shall be made fat.
[26] He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool;
But whoso walketh wisely, he shall be delivered.
[27] He [s]that giveth unto the poor shall not lack;
But he that hideth his eyes shall have many a curse.
[28] When the wicked rise, men hide themselves;
But when they perish, the righteous increase.

Chap. xxix.

[1] *He, that being often reproved hardeneth his neck,
Shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy.
[2] When [t]the righteous are †in authority, the people rejoice;
But when the wicked beareth rule, [u]the people mourn.
[3] Whoso loveth wisdom rejoiceth his father;
But [v]he that keepeth company with harlots spendeth his substance.
[4] The king by judgment establisheth the land;
But ‡he that receiveth gifts overthroweth it.
[5] A man that flattereth his neighbour
Spreadeth a net for his feet.

[2] SURELY I am more brutish than any man,
And have not the understanding of a man.

---

(12) Part V. consists only of two chapters, xxx. and xxxi. In the former are included the wise observations and instructions delivered by Agur, the son of Jakeh, to his pupils, Ithiel and Ucal. The thirty-first contains the precepts delivered to Lemuel by his mother, who was supposed to have been a Jewish woman, married to a neighbouring prince, and to have been anxious to establish the mind of her son in virtuous principles, and to unite him to a wife professing the same regard for religion. Others believe the mother of Lemuel to have been Abijah, the daughter of the high priest Zechariah, and mother of king Hezekiah: others, that she was the mother of Solomon.—Vide Horne, Gray, Lightfoot.

3 I neither learned wisdom,
Nor *have the knowledge of the holy.
4 Who [a]hath ascended up into heaven, or descended?
Who [b]hath gathered the wind in his fists?
Who hath bound the waters in a garment?
Who hath established all the ends of the earth?
What is his name, and what is his son's name,—if thou canst tell?
5 Every [c]word of God is †pure:
He is a shield unto them that put their trust in him.
6 Add [d]thou not unto his words,
Lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar.
7 Two things have I required of thee;
‡Deny me them not before I die:
8 Remove far from me vanity and lies:
Give me neither poverty nor riches;
Feed [e]me with food *convenient for me:
9 Lest [f]I be full, and †deny thee,
And say, Who is the LORD? or lest I be poor, and steal,
And take the name of my God in vain.
10 ‡Accuse not a servant unto his master,
Lest he curse thee, and thou be found guilty.
11 There is a generation that curseth their father,
And doth not bless their mother.
12 There is a generation [g]that are pure in their own eyes,
And yet is not washed from their filthiness.
13 There is a generation, O how lofty are their eyes!
And their eyelids are lifted up.
14 There [h]is a generation, whose teeth are as swords,
And their jaw-teeth as knives,
To [i]devour the poor from off the earth,
And the needy from among men.
15 The horseleech hath two daughters, crying, "Give! give!"
There are three things that are never satisfied,
Yea, four things say not, *It is enough—
16 The [j]grave; and the barren womb;
The earth that is not filled with water;
And the fire that saith not, It is enough.
17 The [k]eye that mocketh at his father,
And despiseth to obey his mother,
The ravens of the †valley shall pick it out,
And the young eagles shall eat it.
18 There be three things which are too wonderful for me,
Yea, four which I know not;
19 The way of an eagle in the air,
The way of a serpent upon a rock,
The way of a ship in the ‡midst of the sea,
And the way of a man with a maid.
20 Such is the way of an adulterous woman;
She eateth, and wipeth her mouth,
And saith, I have done no wickedness.
21 For three things the earth is disquieted,
And for four which it cannot bear;
22 For [l]a servant when he reigneth,
And a fool when he is filled with meat,
23 For an odious woman when she is married,
And a handmaid that is heir to her mistress

Yet they prepare their meat in the summer;

27 The locusts have no king,
† Heb. gathered together.
Yet go they forth all of them †by bands;
28 The spider taketh hold with her hands,
And is in kings' palaces.
29 There be three things which go well,
Yea, four are comely in going:
30 A lion which is strongest among beasts,
And turneth not away for any;
‡ Or, horse. Heb. girt in the loins.
31 A ‡greyhound, a he-goat also,
And a king, against whom there is no rising up.

Or if thou hast thought evil, [n]lay thy hand upon thy mouth.

So the forcing of wrath bringeth forth strife.

[11] Wherefore the LORD said unto Solomon, "Forasmuch as statutes, which I have commanded thee, I will surely rend the kingdom from thee, and will give it to thy servant. [12] Notwithstanding in thy of the hand of thy son. [13] Howbeit I will not rend away all the kingdom;

but will give one tribe to thy son for David my servant's sake, and for Jerusalem's sake which I have chosen."

[14] And the LORD stirred up an adversary unto Solomon, Hadad the Edomite: he was of the king's seed in Edom.

[23] And God stirred him up another adversary, Rezon the son of Eliadah, which fled from his lord Hadadezer king of Zobah. [24] And he i 2 Sa. 8. 3. & 10. 8, 18. gathered men unto him, and became captain over a band, [i]when David slew them of Zobah; and they went to Damascus, and dwelt therein, and reigned in Damascus. [25] And he was an adversary to Israel all the days of Solomon, besides the mischief that Hadad did; and he abhorred Israel, and reigned over Syria.

that he lifted up his hand against the king: Solomon built Millo, and and they two were alone in the field. [30] And Ahijah caught the new

I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel:) [33] because that they have forsaken me, and have worshipped Ashtoreth the goddess of the Zidonians, of his hand; but I will make him prince all the days of his life for to all that thy soul desireth, and shalt be king over Israel. [38] And it shall be, if thou wilt hearken unto all that I command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do that is right in my sight, to keep my statutes and my commandments, as David my servant did; that I will be with

(13) The book of Ecclesiastes was written by Solomon after his allegiance to God had yielded to the attractions of idolatrous women. It has been divided variously by different commentators. The more usual division is that of Dr. Wells, into two general parts: the first showing that all things relating to this world are vain and perishing, and can afford no true or lasting happiness; the second proving that the fear of God alone is real and permanent satisfaction and wisdom. Many passages in this book have been misunderstood; it has been supposed to savor of irreligion and immorality. The passages, however, in question, do not express the opinion of the king: they contain the false arguments which he puts into the mouth of the imaginary interlocutor whose opinions he opposes. The best analysis of this book, excepting, perhaps, that of Diodati, which is too long to be inserted here, is that by Mr. Des Voeux, which is given in Horne's Critical Introduction, and which I have extracted as a useful illustration of its various obscurities and difficulties.

"Mr. Des Voeux," says Mr. Horne, "reduces the whole discourse to three propositions, every one of which, when properly reflected upon, yields a strong proof of a state of future rewards and punishments."

Ch. i. 1. The introduction.
2, 3. THE FIRST PROPOSITION:—"No labor or trouble of men in this world can ever be so profitable as to produce in them a lasting contentment and thorough satisfaction of mind."
4–11. 1st proof. The course of nature,
12, &c. 2d proof. Men's occupations.
16–18. 1st head. Wisdom or philosophy.
Ch. ii. 1, 2. 2d head. Pleasure.
3–10. Both jointly.
11. General conclusion of the second proof.
A review of the second proof, with special conclusions relating to every particular therein mentioned, viz.
12–17. 1. Wisdom.
18–23. 2. Riches.
24–26. 3. Pleasure.
Ch. iii. 1, &c. 3d proof. Inconstancy of men's will.
9. Conclusion of the third proof.
A review of the second and third proofs considered conjointly, with special observations and corollaries.
Ch. iii. 10, 11. 1st observation. God is inculpable.
12–15. 2d observation. God is the author of whatever befalls us in this world.
16, 17. 1st corollary. God shall redress all grievances.
18–21. 2d corollary. God must be exalted, and man humbled.
22. 3d corollary. God alloweth men to enjoy the present.
Ch. iv. 1. 4th proof. Men's neglect of proper opportunities evidenced in several instances, viz.
1–3. 1. Oppression:
4. 2. Envy:
5, 6. 3. Idleness:
7–12. 4. Avarice:
13–16. 5. Misapplication of esteem and regard.
Ch. v. N.B. verses 1–9, is a digression, containing several admonitions, in order to prevent any misconstruction of the foregoing remarks.
10–12. 6. Expensive living.
13. THE SECOND PROPOSITION:—"Earthly goods, and whatever we can acquire by our utmost trouble and labor in this world, are so far from making us lastingly happy, that they may even be regarded as real obstacles to our ease, quiet, and tranquillity.'
14–17. 1st proof. Instability of riches.
Ch. vi. 18. 2d proof. Insufficiency of riches to
Ch. vii. 2. make one happy.
3–6. Corollary. The fate of an abortive is preferable, upon the whole, to that of one who lives without enjoying life.
7–9. 3d proof. Men's insatiableness.
10, 11. General conclusion from the first and second proposition.
12. THE THIRD PROPOSITION:—"Men know not what is or is not truly advantageous to them: because they are either ignorant or unmindful of that which must come to pass after they are dead."

vanity! [3] What profit hath a man of all his labor which he taketh under the sun? [4] One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh; but the earth abideth for ever. [5] The [c]sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and *hasteth to his place where he arose.

[6] The [d]wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits. [7] All [e]the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they †return again. [8] All things are full of labor; man cannot utter it: [f]the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing.

[9] The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun. [10] Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? it hath been already of old time, which was before us. [11] There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after.

[12] I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem. [13] And I gave my heart to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven—this [g]sore travail hath God given to the sons of man ‡to be exercised therewith.

[14] I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit! [15] That which is crooked cannot be made straight; and *that which is wanting cannot be numbered. [16] I communed with mine own heart, saying, "Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten [h]more wisdom than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem:" yea, my heart had †great experience of wisdom and knowledge. [17] And [i]I gave my heart to know wisdom, and

Ch. vii. 1–8. 1st proof. Wrong estimation of things.
A digression intended (like that in ver. 1–9,) to prevent any misconstruction of the foregoing observations, and containing several advices, together with a strong commendation of him who gives them, in order to enforce the observation of the rules laid down by him.
9–12. 1st advice. Not to blame Providence.
13. 2d advice. Not to judge of Providence.
14, 15. 3d advice. To submit to Providence.
16–20. 4th advice. To avoid excess.
21, 22. 5th advice. Not to mind idle reports.

2d proof. Anticipated judgments.
9–14. 1. That sin shall not go unpunished, because it is so in this world.
Ch. ix. 15. Ch. x. 6. 2. That life is preferable to death.
7–9. 1st corollary. Earthly enjoyments are not criminal.
10. 2d corollary. A proper use must be made of our faculties.
11–15. 3d proof. Judgments that are seemingly right, yet truly false.
16, &c. 4th proof. Little regard paid to wisdom.
16. 1. Past services are forgotten.
Ch. x. 17. Ch. xi. 1–4. 2. The least fault is taken notice of.
5–19. 3. Favor gets what is due to merit.
20. A caution, to prevent the abuse of the foregoing remarks.

PRACTICAL INFERENCES.

Ch. xi. 1–4. 1. From the first proposition: We must give unto earthly goods that stability which they are capable of.
5, 6. 2. From the first and second proposition: We must, in our conduct, conform to the design of Providence concerning us, and leave the success to God.
7–10. xii. 1–8. 3. From the three propositions, but especially from the third, we must seek for happiness beyond the grave.
9–12. Commendation of the work, from several considerations.
13, 14. THE CONCLUSION of the whole:—That there must be a state of true and solid happiness for men in a future state.—In other words, the fear of God, and keeping his commandments, is the whole of man, that is, his chief good, his whole interest, privilege, honor, and happiness, as well as duty: for, after this vain life is past, another scene will succeed, and men shall be judged and recompensed according to their conduct, secret as well as open, and whether it may have been good or evil.

to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit. [18] For in much wisdom is much grief; and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

CHAP. ii.

[1] I [j]said in my heart, "Go to now, I will prove thee with mirth, therefore enjoy pleasure; and, behold, [k]this also is vanity! [2] I [l]said of laughter, "It is mad;" and of mirth, "What doeth it?"

[3] I sought in my heart ‡to give myself unto wine, yet acquainting my heart with wisdom; and to lay hold on folly, till I might see what was that good for the sons of men, which they should do under the heaven *all the days of their life. [4] I made me great works; I builded me houses; I planted me vineyards; [5] I made me gardens and orchards, and I planted trees in them of all kind of fruits; [6] I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees. [7] I got me servants and maidens, and had †servants born in my house; also I had great possessions of great and small cattle above all that were in Jerusalem before me. [8] I [m]gathered me also silver and gold, and the peculiar treasure of kings and of the provinces; I gat me men singers and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, as ‡musical instruments, and that of all sorts. [9] So I was great, and increased more than all that were before me in Jerusalem: also my wisdom remained with me. [10] And whatsoever mine eyes desired I kept not from them, I withheld not my heart from any joy; for my heart rejoiced in all my labor: and this was my portion of all my labor. [11] Then I looked on all the works that my hands had wrought, and on the labor that I had labored to do; and, behold, all was vanity and vexation of spirit, and there was no profit under the sun.

[12] And I turned myself to behold wisdom, and madness, and folly: (for what can the man do that cometh after the king? *even that which hath been already done.) [13] Then I saw †that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness. [14] The [n]wise man's eyes are in his head; but the fool walketh in darkness: and I myself perceived also that [o]one event happeneth to them all.

* Or, in those things which have been already done.

[15] Then said I in my heart, "As it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth ‡even to me; and why was I then more wise?" Then I said in my heart, that this also is vanity. [16] For there is no remembrance of the wise more than of the fool for ever; seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man?—as the fool. [17] Therefore I hated life; because the work that is wrought under the sun is grievous unto me: for all is vanity and vexation of spirit! [18] Yea, I hated all my labor which I had *taken under the sun: because [p]I should leave it unto the man that shall be after me. [19] And who knoweth whether he shall be a wise man or a fool? yet shall he have rule over all my labor wherein I have labored, and wherein I have showed myself wise under the sun.—This is also vanity.

‡ Heb. to me, even to me.
* Heb. labored.

[20] Therefore I went about to cause my heart to despair of all the labor which I took under the sun. [21] For there is a man whose labor is in wisdom, and in knowledge, and in equity; yet to a man that hath not labored therein shall he †leave it for his portion.—This also is vanity and a great evil. [22] For what hath man of all his labor, and of the vexation of his heart, wherein he hath labored under the sun? [23] For all his days [q]are sorrows, and his travail grief; yea, his heart taketh not rest in the night.—This is also vanity. [24] There is nothing better for a man, than that he should eat and drink, and that he ‡should make his soul enjoy good in his labor. This also I saw, that it was from the hand of God. [25] For who can eat, or who else can hasten hereunto, more than I? [26] For God giveth to a man that is good *in his sight wisdom, and knowledge, and joy; but to the sinner he giveth travail, to gather and to heap up, [r]that he may give to him that is good before God.—This also is vanity and vexation of spirit.

Chap. iii.

[1] To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven:—

[2] A time †to be born,—and [s]a time to die;
A time to plant,—and a time to pluck up that which is planted;
[3] A time to kill,—and a time to heal;
A time to break down,—and a time to build up;
[4] A time to weep,—and a time to laugh;
A time to mourn,—and a time to dance;
[5] A time to cast away stones,—and a time to gather stones together;
A time to embrace,—and a time ‡to refrain from embracing;
[6] A time to *get,—and a time to lose;
A time to keep,—and a time to cast away;
[7] A time to rend,—and a time to sew;
A [t]time to keep silence,—and a time to speak;
[8] A time to love,—and a time [u]to hate;
A time of war,—and a time of peace.

[9] What profit hath he that worketh in that wherein he laboreth?

[10] I have seen the travail, which God hath given to the sons of men to be exercised in it. [11] He hath made every thing beautiful in his time: also he hath set the world in their heart, so that [v]no man can find out the work that God maketh from the beginning to the end. [12] I know that there is no good in them, but for a man to rejoice, and to do good in his life. [13] And also that every man should eat and drink, and enjoy the good of all his labor—it is the gift of God. [14] I know that whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: [w]nothing can be put to it, nor any thing taken from it: and God doeth it, that men should fear before him. [15] That which hath been is now; and that which is to be hath already been; and God requireth that which is †past.

[16] And moreover I saw under the sun the place of judgment, that wickedness was there; and the place of righteousness, that iniquity was there. [17] I said in my heart, "God [x]shall judge the righteous and the wicked; for there is a time there for every purpose and for every work."

[18] I said in my heart concerning the estate of the sons of men, ‡that God might manifest them, and that they might see that they themselves are beasts. [19] For [y]that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth beasts; even one thing befalleth them: as the one dieth, so dieth the other: yea, they have all one breath; so that a man hath no preëminence above a beast: for all is vanity! [20] All go unto one place; [z]all are of the dust, and all turn to dust again. [21] Who knoweth the spirit *of man that †goeth upward, and the spirit of the beast that goeth downward to the earth? [22] Wherefore I perceived that there is nothing better than that a man should rejoice in his own works; for that is his portion: for who shall bring him to see what shall be after him?

Chap. iv.

[1] So I returned, and considered all the oppressions that are done under the sun: and behold the tears of such as were oppressed, and they had no comforter; and on the ‡side of their oppressors there was power; but they had no comforter. [2] Wherefore [a]I praised the dead which are already dead more than the living which are yet alive. [3] Yea, [b]better is he than both they which hath not yet been, who hath not seen the evil work that is done under the sun.

[4] Again, I considered all travail, and *every right work, that †for this a man is envied of his neighbour.—This is also vanity and vexation of spirit. [5] The [c]fool foldeth his hands together, and eateth his own flesh.

alone, and there is not a second; yea, he hath neither child nor brother:
e Pr. 27. 20. 1 Jo. 2. 16. yet is there no end of all his labor; neither is his [e]eye satisfied with riches; neither saith he, For whom do I labor, and bereave my soul of good? This is also vanity, yea, it is a sore travail. [9] Two are better than one; because they have a good reward for their labor. [10] For if they fall, the one will lift up his fellow: but woe to him that is alone when he falleth; for he hath not another to help him up. [11] Again, if two lie together, then they have heat; but how can one be warm alone?
[12] And if one prevail against him, two shall withstand him; and a threefold cord is not quickly broken. [13] Better is a poor and a wise child ‡Heb. who knoweth not to be admonished. than an old and foolish king, ‡who will no more be admonished. [14] For out of prison he cometh to reign; whereas also he that is born in his kingdom becometh poor. [15] I considered all the living which walk under the sun, with the second child that shall stand up in his stead. [16] There is no end of all the people, even of all that have been before them: they also that come after shall not rejoice in him. Surely this also is vanity and vexation of spirit.

[10] Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these?
For thou dost not inquire *wisely concerning this.
[11] Wisdom †is good with an inheritance;
And by it there is profit to them that see the sun.
[12] For wisdom is a ‡defence, and money is a defence;
But the excellency of knowledge is,
That wisdom giveth life to them that have it.
[13] Consider the work of God;
For [i]who can make that straight, which he hath made crooked?
[14] In [j]the day of prosperity be joyful,
But in the day of adversity consider:
God also hath *set the one over against the other,
To the end that man should find nothing after him.

[15] All things have I seen in the days of my vanity; there is a just man that perisheth in his righteousness, and there is a wicked man that prolongeth his life in his wickedness. [16] Be [k]not righteous over much; [l]neither make thyself over wise:—why shouldest thou †destroy thyself? [17] Be not over much wicked, neither be thou foolish:—why [m]shouldest thou die ‡before thy time? [18] It is good that thou shouldest take hold of this; yea, also from this withdraw not thy hand; for he that feareth God shall come forth of them all.

[19] Wisdom [n]strengtheneth the wise more than ten mighty men which are in the city. [20] For [o]there is not a just man upon earth that doeth good, and sinneth not.

[21] Also *take no heed unto all words that are spoken; lest thou hear thy servant curse thee: [22] for oftentimes also thine own heart knoweth that thou thyself likewise hast cursed others. [23] All this have I proved by wisdom: [p]I said, I will be wise; but it was far from me. [24] That [q]which is far off, and [r]exceeding deep—who can find it out?

[25] †I applied my heart to know, and to search, and to seek out wisdom, and the reason of things, and to know the wickedness of folly, even of foolishness and madness: [26] and [s]I find more bitter than death the woman, whose heart is snares and nets, and her hands as bands: ‡whoso pleaseth God shall escape from her; but the sinner shall be taken by her. [27] Behold, this have I found, saith the Preacher, *counting one by one, to find out the account: [28] which yet my soul seeketh, but I find not: [t]one man among a thousand have I found; but a woman among all those have I not found. [29] Lo, this only have I found, [u]that God hath made man upright; but [v]they have sought out many inventions.

[8] There [a]is no man that hath power [b]over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death: and there is no †discharge in that war; neither shall wickedness deliver those that are given to it.

[9] All this have I seen, and applied my heart unto every work that is done under the sun; there is a time wherein one man ruleth over another to his own hurt. [10] And so I saw the wicked buried, who had come and gone from the place of the holy, and they were forgotten in the city where they had so done:—this is also vanity.

[11] Because [c]sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil.
[12] Though [d]a sinner do evil an hundred times, and his days be prolonged, yet surely I know that [e]it shall be well with them that fear God, which fear before him: [13] but it shall not be well with the wicked, neither shall he prolong his days, which are as a shadow; because he feareth not before God.

[14] There is a vanity which is done upon the earth; that there be just men, unto whom it [f]happeneth according to the work of the wicked; again, there be wicked men, to whom it happeneth according to the work of the righteous:—I said that this also is vanity. [15] Then I commended mirth, because a man hath no better thing under the sun, than to eat, and to drink, and to be merry; for that shall abide with him of his labor the days of his life, which God giveth him under the sun.

[16] When I applied my heart to know wisdom, and to see the business that is done upon the earth; (for also there is that neither day nor night seeth sleep with his eyes;) [17] then I beheld all the work of God, that [g]a man cannot find out the work that is done under the sun:
because though a man labor to seek it out, yet he shall not find it; yea, farther; though a wise man think to know it, [h]yet shall he not be able to find it.

CHAP. IX.

[1] For all this ‡I considered in my heart even to declare all this, that the righteous, and the wise, and their works, are in the hand of God: no man knoweth either love or hatred by all that is before them. [2] All [i]things come alike to all: there is one event to the righteous, and to the wicked; to the good, and to the clean, and to the unclean; to him that sacrificeth, and to him that sacrificeth not; as is the good, so is the sinner; and he that sweareth, as he that feareth an oath. [3] This is an evil among all things that are done under the sun, that there is one event unto all: yea, also the heart of the sons of men is full of evil, and madness is in their heart while they live, and after that they go to the dead. [4] For to him that is joined to all the living there is hope: for a living dog is better than a dead lion. [5] For the living know that they shall die; [j]but the dead know not any thing, neither have they any more a reward; [k]for the memory of them is forgotten.
[6] Also their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is now perished; neither have they any more a portion for ever in any thing that is done under the sun.

[7] Go thy way, eat thy bread with joy, and drink thy wine with a merry heart; for God now accepteth thy works. [8] Let thy garments be always white; and let thy head lack no ointment. [9] *Live joyfully with the wife whom thou lovest all the days of the life of thy vanity, which he hath given thee under the sun, all the days of thy vanity, for that is thy portion in this life, and in thy labor which thou takest under the sun. [10] Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.

[11] I returned, [l]and saw under the sun, that the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, neither yet bread to the wise, nor yet riches to men of understanding, nor yet favor to men of skill; but time and chance happeneth to them all. [12] For man also knoweth not his time: as the fishes that are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in the snare; so are the sons of men [m]snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them.

[13] This wisdom have I seen also under the sun, and it seemed great unto me:—[14] There [n]was a little city, and few men within it; and there came a great king against it, and besieged it, and built great bulwarks against it. [15] Now there was found in it a poor wise man, and he by his wisdom delivered the city; yet no man remembered that same poor man. [16] Then [o]said I, "Wisdom is better than strength;" nevertheless [p]the poor man's wisdom is despised, and his words are not heard.

[17] The words of wise men are heard in quiet
More than the cry of him that ruleth among fools.
[18] Wisdom is better than weapons of war;
But [q]one sinner destroyeth much good.

[1] †Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savor:
So doth a little folly him that is in reputation for wisdom and honor.

But a fool's heart is at his left.

The Israelites assembled at Shechem to crown Rehoboam, by Jeroboam make a suit of relaxation unto him. Rehoboam, refusing the old men's counsel by the advice of young men, answereth them roughly. Ten tribes revolting kill Adoram, and make Rehoboam to flee. Rehoboam raising an army, is forbidden by Shemaiah. Rehoboam strengtheneth his kingdom with forts and provisions. The priests and Levites and such as feared God forsaken by Jeroboam, strengthen the kingdom of Judah. The wives and children of Rehoboam. He relapses into idolatry. He is punished by Shishak. He and the princes, repenting at the preaching of Shemaiah, are delivered from destruction, but not from spoil. His reign and death.

[21] AND Rehoboam the son of Solomon reigned in Judah. Rehoboam was forty and one years old when he began to reign.

1 Kings xii. 1–24.

[1] And Rehoboam went to Shechem; for all Israel were come to Shechem to make him king. [2] And it came to pass, when Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who was yet in [a]Egypt, heard of it, (for he was fled from the presence of king Solomon, and Jeroboam dwelt in Egypt;) [3] that they sent and called him. And Jeroboam and all the congregation of Israel came, and spake unto Rehoboam, saying, [4] "Thy father made our [b]yoke grievous: now therefore make thou the grievous service of thy father, and his heavy yoke which he put upon us, lighter, and we will serve thee." [5] And he said unto them, "Depart yet for three days, then come again to me." And the people departed.

b 1 Sa. 8. 11-18. 1 Ki. 4. 7.

[6] And king Rehoboam consulted with the old men, that stood before Solomon his father while he yet lived, and said, "How do ye advise that I may answer this people?" [7] And they spake unto him, saying, "If [c]thou wilt be a servant unto this people this day, and wilt serve them, and answer them, and speak good words to them, then they will be thy servants for ever." [8] But he forsook the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men that were grown up with him, and which stood before him. [9] And he said unto them, "What counsel give ye that we may answer this people, who have spoken to me, saying, 'Make the yoke which thy father did put upon us lighter?'" [10] And the young men that were grown up with him spake unto him, saying, "Thus shalt thou speak unto this people, that spake unto thee, saying, 'Thy father made our yoke heavy, but make thou it lighter unto us;' thus shalt thou say unto them, My little finger shall be thicker than my father's loins. [11] And now whereas my father did lade you with a heavy yoke, I will add to your yoke: my father hath chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions."

c Pr. 15. 1.

* From the difficulty of arranging the events in this Period, it has been thought most advisable to divide each part into Two Portions. The First Portion contains the reign of a king of Judah; the Second, the events in the kingdom of Israel contemporary with his reign. The Books of Kings and Chronicles are harmonized throughout in this Period, and the Prophecies are arranged as they were delivered in the reigns of their respective kings, so far, at least, as can be ascertained from internal evidence and the testimony of various authors.

day." [13] And the king answered the people *roughly, and forsook the old men's counsel that they gave him; [14] and spake to them after the counsel of the young men, saying, "My father made your yoke heavy, and I will add to your yoke: my father also chastised you with whips, but I will chastise you with scorpions." [15] Wherefore the king hearkened not unto the people; for [d]the cause was from the Lord, that he might perform his saying, which the Lord spake by Ahijah the Shilonite unto Jeroboam the son of Nebat.

[16] So when all Israel saw that the king hearkened not unto them, the people answered the king, saying, "What [e]portion have we in David? neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse: to your tents, O Israel! now see to thine own house, David!" So Israel departed unto their tents. [17] But as for the children of Israel which dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them.

[18] Then king Rehoboam sent Adoram, who was over the tribute; and all Israel stoned him with stones, that he died. Therefore king Rehoboam †made speed to get him up to his chariot, to flee to Jerusalem. [19] So Israel ‡rebelled against the house of David unto this day. [20] And it came to pass, when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come again, that they sent and called him unto the congregation, and made him king over all Israel; there was none that followed the house of David, but the tribe of Judah only.

[21] And when Rehoboam was come to Jerusalem, he assembled all the house of Judah, with the tribe of Benjamin, an hundred and fourscore thousand chosen men, which were warriors, to fight against the house of Israel, to bring the kingdom again to Rehoboam the son of Solomon. [22] But the word of God came unto Shemaiah the man of God, saying, [23] "Speak unto Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, king of Judah, and unto all the house of Judah and Benjamin, and to the remnant of the people, saying, [24] Thus saith the Lord, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel: return every man to his house; for this thing is from me." They hearkened therefore to the word of the Lord, and returned to depart, according to the word of the Lord.

[5] And Rehoboam dwelt in Jerusalem, and built cities for defence in Judah. [6] He built even Beth-lehem, and Etam, and Tekoa, [7] and Beth-zur, and Shoco, and Adullam, [8] and Gath, and Mareshah, and Ziph, [9] and Adoraim, and Lachish, and Azekah, [10] and Zorah, and Aijalon, and Hebron, which are in Judah and in Benjamin, fenced cities. [11] And he fortified the strong holds, and put captains in them, and store of victual, and of oil and wine. [13] And the priests and the Levites that were in all Israel *resorted to him out of all their coasts. [14] For the Levites left [f]their suburbs and their possession, and came to Judah and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sons had cast them off from executing the priest's office unto the Lord: [15] and [g]he ordained him priests for the high places, and for [h]the devils, and for the calves which he had made. [16] And after them out of all the tribes of Israel such as set their hearts to seek the Lord God of Israel came to Jerusalem, to sacrifice unto the Lord God of their fathers. [17] So they strengthened the kingdom of Judah, and made Rehoboam the son of Solomon strong, three years: for three years they walked in the way of David and Solomon.

[18] And Rehoboam took him Mahalath the daughter of Jerimoth the son of David to wife, and Abihail the daughter of Eliab the son of Jesse; [19] which bare him children; Jeush, and Shamariah, and Zaham. [20] And after her he took [i]Maachah the daughter of Absalom; which bare him Abijah, and Attai, and Ziza, and Shelomith. [21] And Rehoboam loved Maachah the daughter of Absalom above all his wives and his concubines, (for he took eighteen wives, and threescore concubines; and begat twenty and eight sons, and threescore daughters.) [22] And Rehoboam [j]made Abijah the son of Maachah the chief, to be ruler among his brethren: for he thought to make him king. [23] And he dealt wisely, and dispersed of all his children throughout all the countries of Judah and Benjamin, unto every fenced city: and he gave them victual in abundance. [22] And Judah did evil in the sight of the LORD, and they [k]provoked him to jealousy with their sins which they had committed, above all that their fathers had done. [23] For they also built them [l]high places, and ‡images, and groves, on every high hill, and [m]under every green tree. [2] And it came to pass, that in the fifth year of king Rehoboam, Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, because they had transgressed against the LORD, [3] with twelve hundred chariots, and threescore thousand horsemen: and the people were without number that came with him out of Egypt; the Lubims, the Sukkiims, and the Ethiopians. [4] And he took the fenced cities which pertained to Judah, and came to Jerusalem.

[5] Then came Shemaiah the prophet to Rehoboam, and to the princes of Judah, that were gathered together to Jerusalem because of Shishak, and said unto them, "Thus saith the LORD, Ye have forsaken me, and therefore have I also left you in the hand of Shishak." [6] Whereupon the princes of Israel and the king [o]humbled themselves; and they said, "The [p]LORD is righteous." [7] And when the LORD saw that they humbled themselves, the word of the LORD came to Shemaiah, saying, "They have humbled themselves; therefore I will not destroy them, but I will grant them *some deliverance; and my wrath shall not be poured out upon Jerusalem by the hand of Shishak. [8] Nevertheless [q]they shall be his servants; that they may know [r]my service, and the service of the kingdoms of the countries." [9] So Shishak king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem, and took away the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king's house; he took all: he carried away also the shields of gold which Solomon [s]had made. [10] Instead of which king Rehoboam made shields of brass, and committed them to the hands of the chief of the guard, that kept the entrance of the king's house. [11] And when the king entered into the house of the LORD, the guard came and fetched them, and brought them again into the guard chamber. [12] And when he humbled himself, the wrath of the LORD turned from him, that he would not destroy him altogether: †and also in Judah things went well.

And his mother's name was Naamah an Ammonitess. [14] And he did evil, because he ‡prepared not his heart to seek the LORD. So all Israel went to their tents. [17] But as for the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Judah, Rehoboam reigned over them. EVENTS IN THE KINGDOM OF ISRAEL, CONTEMPORARY WITH THE REIGN OF REHOBOAM KING OF JUDAH.

Idolatry of the Golden Calves;—History of the Prophet of Beth-el.

1 Kings xii. 25, to the end, and xiii.

Jeroboam strengtheneth himself by cities, and by the idolatry of the two calves.—1 Kings xiii. 1 Jeroboam's hand, that offered violence to him that prophesied against his altar at Beth-el, withereth, 6 and at the prayer of the prophet is restored. 7 The prophet, refusing the king's entertainment, departeth form Beth-el. 11 An old prophet, seducing him, bringeth him back. 20 He is reproved by God, 23 slain by a lion, 26 buried by the old prophet, 31 who confirmeth his prophecy. 33 Jeroboam's obstinacy.

[25] Then Jeroboam [a]built Shechem in Mount Ephraim, and dwelt therein; and went out from thence, and built [b]Penuel. [26] And Jeroboam said in his heart, "Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David. [27] If this people [c]go up to do sacrifice in the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, then shall the heart of this people turn again unto their lord, even unto Rehoboam king of Judah, and they shall kill me, and go again to Rehoboam king of Judah." [28] Whereupon the king took counsel, and [d]made (1)two calves of gold, and said unto them, "It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem: [e]behold thy gods, O Israel! which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt." [29] And he set the one in [f]Beth-el, and the other put he in [g]Dan. [30] And this thing became [h]a sin: for the people went to worship before the one, even unto Dan. [31] And he made a house of high places, [i]and made priests of the lowest of the people, which were not of the sons of Levi. (1) Few subjects seem, at first sight, to be attended with more difficulties than the scriptural history of the idolatry of the golden calf. Immediately after the exodus, while the impression of the stupendous miracles, which had delivered the Israelites from Egypt, was still fresh in their remembrance, they worshipped an Egyptian idol; and, in the history of the revolt of the ten tribes, we are informed that Jeroboam, to perpetuate the rebellion of the people, and to prevent their returning to their legitimate sovereign, set up, at the opposite end of his dominions, two calves of gold. He professed to do this to save them the unnecessary trouble of going up to Jerusalem to worship. "It is too much for you to go up to Jerusalem; behold thy gods, O Israel! which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt." The people submitted to the new mode of worship, although they had, only the week before their rebellion, acknowledged the exclusive worship of Jehovah. They suddenly change their faith, contrary to every known principle of action, without scruple, without hesitation, without any apparent consciousness of inconsistency or impiety.

To account for this extraordinary conduct, we must observe how skilfully the rebellious Jeroboam adapted his innovation to the received opinions of the people. The new worship which he was desirous of establishing, was a studied imitation of the regular service at Jerusalem. Priests were consecrated, and the great festivals observed; sacrifices were offered, and the worship of Jehovah professedly continued. Some alterations were indeed made, in conformity to those erroneous notions which the Israelites had imbibed from the surrounding idolators, and from which they were never entirely emancipated till after the Babylonish captivity.

Within the sanctuary, in the temple at Jerusalem, were the figures of the cherubim. These figures were a combination of the forms of a man, a bull, a lion, and an eagle, in one body, in which the form of the bull predominated. It is generally affirmed, therefore, that the two calves which Jeroboam set up, were intended to represent these cherubim. They were either the complete figure of the cherubim, or the form of an ox or calf only, or, as is sometimes supposed, the head alone of a calf. Had Jeroboam been contented with this innovation, he would have been guilty only of schism, not of idolatry. But he had no sooner set up the golden calves, than he gave them the names of the Egyptian idols; he declared the cherubim to be the bulls Apis and Mnevis; he pronounced them the deliverers of Israel from Egypt, and worshipped them with the same rites with which Jehovah was worshipped in the temple at Jerusalem. That this was the sin of Jeroboam, who is so repeatedly said "to have made Israel to sin," may be collected from Scripture itself. Hosea styles the idols of Jeroboam "the calves of Beth-aven." Aven was the same as the Egyptian deity Aun or On. The letters of the two words in Hebrew are the same; the apparent difference between them is made only by the Masoretic punctuation. Aven, Aun, or On, was the Sun, the same as Osiris; the worship of the calves therefore must have been, substantially, the worship of the Sun.

By this insidious stratagem, we find that Jeroboam contrived to retain in his dominions a great number of the nominal worshippers of Jehovah; and, at the same time, strengthened his government by the adherence of many thousands of those who had long been attached, particularly in the northern parts of Judea, to the idolatries of the surrounding pagans.—Vide Selden's De Diis Syr. p. 51, Amsterdam, edit. 1680; Pfeiffer, Diff. Loc. SS. p. 247; Bishop Patrick; Faber. Orig. of Pagan Idolatry, book ii. chap. vi. p. 434; Horsley, Bib. Crit. vol. iii. p. 241; Witsius, Egyptiaca, p. 63.

* Heb. to burn incense.

[1] And, behold, there came a man of God out of Judah by the word of the LORD unto Beth-el; and Jeroboam stood by the altar †to burn incense. [2] And he cried against the altar in the word of the LORD, and said, "O altar, altar! thus saith the LORD; Behold, a child shall be born unto the house of David, [m]Josiah by name; and upon thee shall he offer the priests of the high places that burn incense upon thee, and men's bones shall be burnt upon thee." [3] And he gave [n]a sign the same day, saying, "This is the sign which the LORD hath spoken; Behold, the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out." [4] And it came to pass, when king Jeroboam heard the saying of the man of God, which had cried against the altar in Beth-el, that he put forth his hand from the altar, saying, "Lay hold on him." And his hand, which he put forth against him, dried up, so that he could not pull it in again to him. [5] The altar also was rent, and the ashes poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given by the word of the LORD. [6] And the king answered and said unto the man of God, "Entreat [o]now the face of the LORD thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored me again." And the man of God besought ‡the LORD, and the king's hand was restored him again, and became as it was before. [7] And the king said unto the man of God, "Come home with me, and refresh thyself, and [p]I will give thee a reward." [8] And the man of God said unto the king, "If [q]thou wilt give me half thy house, I will not go in with thee, neither will I eat bread nor drink water in this place; [9] for so was it charged me by the word of the LORD, saying, "Eat [r]no bread, nor drink water, nor turn again by the same way that thou camest." [10] So he went another way, and returned not by the way that he came to Beth-el.

[11] Now there dwelt an old prophet in Beth-el; and his *sons came and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Beth-el: the words which he had spoken unto the king, them they told also to their father. [12] And their father said unto them, "What way went he?" For his sons had seen what way the man of God went, which came from Judah. [13] And he said unto his sons, "Saddle me the ass." So they saddled him the ass; and he rode thereon, [14] and went after the man of God, and found him sitting under an oak; and he said unto him, "Art thou the man of God that camest from Judah?" And he said, "I am." [15] Then he said unto him, "Come home with me, and eat bread." [16] And he said, "I may not return with thee, nor go in with thee; neither will I eat bread nor drink water with thee in this place. [17] For †it was said to me by the word of the LORD, Thou shalt eat no bread nor drink water there, nor turn again to go by the way that thou camest." [18] He said unto him, "I am a prophet also as thou art; and an angel spake unto me by the word of the LORD, saying, Bring him back with thee into thy house, that he may eat bread and drink water." But he lied unto him. [19] So he went back with him, and did eat bread in his house, and drank water.

[20] And it came to pass, as they sat at the table, that the word of the LORD came unto the prophet that brought him back. [21] And he cried unto the man of God that came from Judah, saying, "Thus saith the LORD, Forasmuch as thou hast disobeyed the mouth of the LORD, and hast not kept the commandment which the LORD thy God commanded thee, [22] but camest back, and hast eaten bread and drunk water in the place, of the which the LORD did say to thee, Eat no bread, and drink no water; thy carcass shall not come unto the sepulchre of thy fathers."

[23] And it came to pass, after he had eaten bread, and after he had drunk, that he saddled for him the ass, to wit, for the prophet whom the way, and slew him: and his carcass was cast in the way, and the ass stood by it, the lion also stood by the carcass. [25] And, behold, men passed by, and saw the carcass cast in the way, and the lion standing by the carcass: and they came and told it in the city where the old prophet dwelt. [26] And when the prophet, that brought him back from the way, heard thereof, he said, "It is the man of God, who was disobedient unto the word of the LORD: therefore the LORD hath delivered him unto the [29] And the prophet took up the carcass of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and brought it back; and the old prophet came to the city, to mourn and to bury him. [30] And he laid his carcass in his own Abijah begins to reign. He maketh war against Jeroboam. He declareth the right of his cause. Trusting in God he overcometh Jeroboam. The wives and children of Abijah. His wicked reign, and death.

[1] NOW in the eighteenth year of king Jeroboam began (2)Abijah to reign over Judah. [2] He reigned three years in Jerusalem. His mother's

(2) Abijah is called Abijam. 1 Kings xv. 1; his mother also is spoken of both as Maachah and Micah; and his grandfather, by his mother's side, is called both Absalom and Uriel. Such changes of names are not unfrequent in Scripture, and are either so used by the inspired writers purposely to hint something to us concerning the person; or else they were occasioned by the people, who frequently appropriated names to individuals in reference to their characters or to some qualification or action, by which they had been distinguished, and often from their family, or some person of their family from whom they descended. Thus Maachah might have had her name changed when she was made queen, when she assumed the name of the first mother of a renowned family in that tribe from whence she descended. (1 Chron. viii. 29.) She was of Gibeah, the city of Saul; and, it is very probable, of the kindred of Saul: and therefore her father, who was properly called Absalom, is called Uriel, which name is very similar, in its signification, to Ner and Eshbaal, men of the stock and family of Saul. There is therefore no inconsistency, when the same persons are called in Scripture by different names.—Lightfoot's Works, vol. i. p. 78, 79.

[4] And Abijah stood up upon Mount Zemaraim, which is in Mount Ephraim, and said, "Hear me, thou Jeroboam, and all Israel; [5] ought ye not to know that the Lord God of Israel [b]gave the kingdom over Israel to David for ever, even to him and to his sons [c]by a covenant of salt? [6] Yet Jeroboam the son of Nebat, the servant of Solomon the son of David, is risen up, and hath rebelled against his lord. [7] And there are gathered unto him vain men, the children of Belial, and have strengthened themselves against Rehoboam the son of Solomon, when Rehoboam was young and tenderhearted, and could not withstand them. [8] And now ye think to withstand the kingdom of the Lord in the hand of the sons of David; and ye be a great multitude, and there are with you golden calves, which Jeroboam [d]made you for gods. [9] Have [e]ye not cast out the priests of the Lord, the sons of Aaron, and the Levites, and have made you priests after the manner of the nations of other lands? [f]so that whosoever cometh †to consecrate himself with a young bullock and seven rams, the same may be a priest of them that are no gods. [10] But as for us, the Lord is our God, and we have not forsaken him; and the priests, which minister unto the Lord, are the sons of Aaron, and the Levites wait upon their business: [11] and they burn unto the Lord every morning and every evening burnt sacrifices and sweet incense: [g]the showbread also set they in order upon the pure table; and the candlestick of gold with the lamps thereof, [h]to burn every evening: for we keep the charge of the Lord our God; but ye have forsaken him. [12] And, behold, God himself is with us for our Captain, [i]and his priests with sounding trumpets to cry alarm against you. O children of Israel! [j]fight ye not against the Lord God of your fathers; for ye shall not prosper."

[13] But Jeroboam caused an ambushment to come about behind them; so they were before Judah, and the ambushment was behind them. [14] And when Judah looked back, behold, the battle was before and behind; and they cried unto the Lord, and the priests sounded with the trumpets. [15] Then the men of Judah gave a shout; and as the men of Judah shouted, it came to pass, that God smote Jeroboam and all Israel before Abijah and Judah. [16] And the children of Israel fled before Judah; and God delivered them into their hand. [17] And Abijah and his people slew them with a great slaughter; so there fell down slain of Israel five hundred thousand chosen men. [18] Thus the children of Israel were brought under at that time, and the children of Judah prevailed, [k]because they relied upon the Lord God of their fathers. [19] And Abijah pursued after Jeroboam, and took cities from him, Beth-el with the towns thereof, and Jeshanah with the towns thereof, and [l]Ephraim with the towns thereof. [20] Neither did Jeroboam recover strength again in the days of Abijah: and the Lord struck him, and he died.

[21] But Abijah waxed mighty, and married fourteen wives, and begat twenty and two sons, and sixteen daughters.

REIGN OF ASA, THE THIRD KING OF JUDAH.(4)

1 Kings xv. 9–11.—2 Chron. xiv. 3.—1 Kings xv. 12–15.—2 Chron. xiv. 4–6, part of 1, and 7, to the end, xv. 1–15, 18, 19.—1 Kings xv. 16–22.—2 Chron. xvi. 7, to the end.—1 Kings xv. 23, 24.—2 Chron. xiv. 2, and xv. 16, 17, and xvi. 1–6.

Asa's good reign. He destroyeth idolatry. Having peace he strengtheneth his kingdom with forts and armies. Calling on God, he overthroweth Zerah, and spoileth the Ethiopians. Asa, with Judah, and many of Israel, moved by the prophecy of Azariah the son of Oded, make a solemn covenant with God. He bringeth dedicate things into the house of God, and enjoyeth a long peace. The war between Baasha and him causeth him to make a league with Ben-hadad. Being reproved thereof by Hanani, he putteth him in prison. Among his other acts in his disease he seeketh not to God but to the physicians. His death and burial.

[9] AND in the twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel reigned Asa over Judah. [10] And forty and one years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his *mother's name was Maachah, the daughter of Abishalom. [11] And Asa did that which was right in the eyes of the Lord, as did David his father; [3] for he took away the altars of the strange gods, and the high places, and brake down the †images, and cut down the groves; [12] and he took away the sodomites out of the land, and removed all the idols that his fathers had made. [13] And also Maachah his mother, even her he removed from being queen, because she had made an idol in a grove; and Asa ‡destroyed her idol, and [a]burnt it by the brook Kidron. [14] But the high places were not removed: nevertheless Asa's heart was perfect with the Lord all his days. [15] And he brought in the *things which his father had dedicated, and the things which himself had dedicated, into the house of the Lord, silver, and gold, and vessels; [4] and commanded Judah to seek the Lord God of their fathers, and to do the law and the commandment. [5] Also he took away out of all the cities of Judah the high places and the †images: and the kingdom was quiet before him.

[6] And he built fenced cities in Judah: for the land had rest, and he had no war in those years; because the Lord had given him rest: [1] in his days the land was quiet ten years. [7] Therefore he said unto Judah, "Let us build these cities, and make about them walls, and towers, gates,

(3) This part has no second portion; because the only event, in the reign of Jeroboam, contemporary with the reign of Abijah, which is related in Scripture, was the battle which took place between the armies of their respective kingdoms; and this event is necessarily related in the history of the king of Judah.

(4) Asa began his reign in the twentieth year of Jeroboam It is evident, therefore, that the three years of Abijah, were years current; for Abijah began to reign in the eighteenth year of Jeroboam. The reigns indeed of all the kings (according to the popular mode of computation in the East) are computed in current time. Thus the reign of Zedekiah in said to have been eleven years; it was in fact merely ten years, four months, and eight days. It is usual in Scripture, to put the whole for a part, even when days only are computed. Thus our Saviour is said to have remained in the grave three days and three nights. It is well known, that he was confined in the sepulchre one whole day, and a comparatively small space of the two other days. —Vide Bp. Patrick in loc.; the Tables of the Kings of Judah and Israel at the end of Whiston's Chronology; and Hales's Analysis, vol. ii. p. 408.

and bars, while the land is yet before us; because we have sought the Lord our God, we have sought him, and he hath given us rest on every side." So they built and prospered. [8] And Asa had an army of men that bare targets and spears, out of Judah three hundred thousand; and out of Benjamin, that bare shields and drew bows, two hundred and fourscore thousand: all these were mighty men of valor.

[9] And there came out against them Zerah the Ethiopian with a host of a thousand thousand, and three hundred chariots; and came unto Mareshah. [10] Then Asa went out against him, and they set the battle in array in the valley of Zephathah at Mareshah. [11] And Asa [b]cried unto the Lord his God, and said, "Lord, it is [c]nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power: help us, O Lord our God! for we rest on thee, and [d]in thy name we go against this multitude. O Lord, thou art our God; let not ‡man prevail against thee." [12] So the Lord smote the Ethiopians before Asa, and before Judah; and the Ethiopians fled. [13] And Asa and the people that were with him pursued them unto Gerar: and the Ethiopians were overthrown, that they could not recover themselves; for they were *destroyed before the Lord, and before his host, and they carried away very much spoil. [14] And they smote all the cities round about Gerar, for [e]the fear of the Lord came upon them; and they spoiled all the cities, for there was exceeding much spoil in them. [15] They smote also the tents of cattle, and carried away sheep and camels in abundance, and returned to Jerusalem.

[1] And [f]the Spirit of God came upon Azariah the son of Oded. [2] And he went out †to meet Asa, and said unto him, "Hear ye me, Asa, and all Judah and Benjamin! [g]The Lord is with you, while ye be with him; [h]and if ye seek him, he will be found of you; but if ye forsake him, he will forsake you. [3] Now [i]for a long season Israel hath been without the true God, and without [j]a teaching priest, and without law. [4] But [k]when they in their trouble did turn unto the Lord God of Israel, and sought him, he was found of them. [5] And [l]in those times there was no peace to him that went out, nor to him that came in, but great vexations were upon all the inhabitants of the countries. [6] And nation was ‡destroyed of nation, and city of city; for God did vex them with all adversity. [7] Be ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak; for your work shall be rewarded." [8] And when Asa heard these words, and the prophecy of Oded the prophet, he took courage, and put away the *abominable idols out of all the land of Judah and Benjamin, and out of the cities which he had taken from Mount Ephraim, and renewed the altar of the Lord, that was before the porch of the Lord. [9] And he gathered all Judah and Benjamin, and the strangers with them out of Ephraim and Manasseh, and out of Simeon; for they fell to him out of Israel in abundance, when they saw that the Lord his God was with him. [10] So they gathered themselves together at Jerusalem in the third month, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Asa. [11] And they offered unto the Lord †the same time, of the spoil which they had brought, seven hundred oxen and seven thousand sheep. [12] And they [m]entered into a covenant to seek the Lord God of their fathers with all their heart and with all their soul; [13] that [n]whosoever would not seek the Lord God of Israel [o]should be put to death, whether small or great, whether man or woman. [14] And they sware unto the Lord with a loud voice, and with shouting, and with trumpets, and with cornets. [15] And all Judah rejoiced at the oath; for they had sworn with all their heart, and sought him with their whole desire, and he was found of them: and the Lord gave them rest round about.

SECTION I.—Death of Jeroboam and his Son.

1 KINGS xiv. 1–20.

Abijah being sick, Jeroboam sendeth his wife disguised with presents to the prophet Ahijah at Shiloh. 5 Ahijah, forewarned by God, denounceth God's judgments. 17 Abijah dieth, and is buried. 19 Nadab succeedeth Jeroboam.

[1] AT that time Abijah the son of Jeroboam fell sick. [2] And Jeroboam said to his wife, "Arise, I pray thee, and disguise thyself, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam; and get thee to Shiloh: behold, there is Ahijah the prophet, which told me that [a]I should be king over this people. [3] And take *with thee ten loaves, and †cracknels, and a ‡cruse of honey, and go to him; he shall tell thee what shall become of the child." [4] And Jeroboam's wife did so, and arose, and went to Shiloh, and came to the house of Ahijah. But Ahijah could not see, for his eyes *were set by reason of his age.

[5] And the LORD said unto Ahijah, "Behold! the wife of Jeroboam cometh to ask a thing of thee for her son, for he is sick: thus and thus shalt thou say unto her; for it shall be, when she cometh in, that she shall feign herself to be another woman." [6] And it was so, when Ahijah heard the sound of her feet, as she came in at the door, that he said, "Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam, why feignest thou thyself to be another? for I am sent to thee with †heavy tidings. [7] Go, tell Jeroboam, Thus saith the LORD God of Israel, [b]Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel, [8] and rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it thee; and yet thou hast not been as my servant David, who kept my commandments, and who followed me with all his heart, to do that only which was right in mine eyes; [9] but hast done evil above all that were before thee, for thou hast gone and made thee other gods, and molten images, to provoke me to anger, and [c]hast cast me behind thy back: [10] therefore, behold, I will bring evil upon the house of Jeroboam, and [d]will cut off from Jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, [e]and him that is shut up and left in Israel, and will take away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as a man taketh away dung, till it be all gone. [11] Him [f]that dieth of Jeroboam in the city shall the dogs eat, and him that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat: for the LORD hath spoken it. [12] Arise thou therefore, get thee to thine own house; and when thy feet enter into the city, the child shall die. [13] And all Israel shall mourn for him, and bury him; for he only of Jeroboam shall come to the grave, because in him [g]there is found some good thing toward the LORD God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. [14] Moreover the LORD shall raise him up a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam that day—but what? even now. [15] For the Lord shall smite Israel, as a reed is shaken in the water, and he shall [h]root up Israel out of this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and shall scatter them beyond the river, [i]because they have made their groves, provoking the Lord to anger. [16] And he shall give Israel up because of the sins of Jeroboam, who did sin, and who made Israel to sin."

[17] And Jeroboam's wife arose, and departed, and came to Tirzah: and when she came to the threshold of the door, the child died; [18] and they buried him; and all Israel mourned for him, according to the word of the Lord, which he spake by the hand of his servant Ahijah the prophet.

* Heb. reigned.

[25] And Nadab the son of Jeroboam *began to reign over Israel in the second year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned over Israel two years. [26] And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin.

[27] And Baasha the son of Ahijah, of the house of Issachar, conspired against him; and Baasha smote him at Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines, for Nadab and all Israel laid siege to Gibbethon. [28] Even in the third year of Asa king of Judah did Baasha slay him, and reigned in his stead. [29] And it came to pass, when he reigned, that he smote all the house of Jeroboam; he left not to Jeroboam any that breathed, until he had destroyed him, according unto the saying of the Lord, which he spake by his servant Ahijah the Shilonite: [30] because of the sins of Jeroboam which he sinned, and which he made Israel sin, by his provocation wherewith he provoked the Lord God of Israel to anger.

[32] And there was war between Asa and Baasha king of Israel all their days. [33] In the third year of Asa king of Judah began Baasha the son of Ahijah to reign over all Israel in Tirzah, twenty and four years. [34] And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in [a]the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin wherewith he made Israel to sin.

[1] Then the word of the Lord came to Jehu the son 1 Kings xvi. 1–7.

(5) Nadab reigned in the second, and was killed in the third year of Asa. But Jeroboam, his father, reigned twenty-two years, and Asa began to reign in the twentieth year of Jeroboam. Nadab therefore was made king in his father's life; and died in the same year as his son. It is necessary to observe these points; as the chronology otherwise appears confused.

(6) Baasha began to reign in the third year of Asa; and he reigned twenty-four years. He died therefore in the twenty-seventh year of Asa; yet we read (2 Chron. xvi. 1.) in the thirty-sixth year of the reign of Asa, Baasha came up against Asa: when he must have been dead more than eight years. Dr. Hales solves this apparent difficulty by proposing an alteration in the text: the Masorite text, he observes, corruptly reads in the thirty-fifth year. Lightfoot, however, who on all occasions shows a laudable anxiety to maintain the text in its present form, and to prevent any needless alteration, says, that the word מלכות is not to be understood of Asa's reign, but of the kingdom of Asa, as distinct from the kingdom of Israel. And if the reader will calculate, he will find that the year in which Baasha built Ramah, and invaded Judah, was the thirty-sixth year from the division of the kingdoms.—Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 417.—Lightfoot in loc.

of Hanani against Baasha, saying, [2] "Forasmuch as I exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins; [3] behold, I will take away the posterity of Baasha, and the posterity of his house, and will make thy house like [b]the house of Jeroboam the son of Nebat. [4] Him [c]that dieth of Baasha in the city shall the dogs eat; and him that dieth of his in the fields shall the fowls of the air eat."

[b] 1 Ki. 14. 10. & 15. 29.

[5] Now the rest of the acts of Baasha, and what he did, and his might, [d]are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [6] So Baasha slept with his fathers, and was buried in Tirzah: and Elah his son reigned in his stead. [7] And also by the hand of the prophet Jehu the son of Hanani came the word of the Lord against Baasha, and against his house, even for all the evil that he did in the sight of the Lord, in provoking him to anger with the work of his hands, in being like the house of Jeroboam; and because [e]he killed him.

Section IV.—The Reign of Elah.

1 Kings xvi. 8–14.

Elah succeeds his father Baasha. Zimri, conspiring against him, executes Jehu's prophecy, by slaying Elah and all Baasha's family.

[8] In the twenty and sixth year of Asa king of Judah began Elah the son of Baasha to reign over Israel in Tirzah, two years. [9] And [a]his servant Zimri, captain of half his chariots, conspired against him, as he was in Tirzah, drinking himself drunk in the house of Arza *steward of his house in Tirzah. [10] And Zimri went in and smote him, and killed him, in the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah, and reigned in his stead.

[11] And it came to pass, when he began to reign, as soon as he sat on his throne, that he slew all the house of Baasha: he left him not one that pisseth against a wall, †neither of his kinsfolks, nor of his friends. [12] Thus did Zimri destroy all the house of Baasha, according to the word of the Lord, which he spake against Baasha ‡by Jehu the prophet, [13] for all the sins of Baasha, and the sins of Elah his son, by which they sinned, and by which they made Israel to sin, in provoking the Lord God of Israel to anger [b]with their vanities. Section V.—The Reign of Zimri.

1 Kings xvi. 15–22.

Omri, made king by the soldiers, forceth Zimri desperately to burn himself. The kingdom being divided, Omri prevaileth against Tibni.

[15] In the twenty and seventh year of Asa king of Judah did Zimri reign seven days in Tirzah. And the people were encamped against Gibbethon, which belonged to the Philistines. [16] And the people that were encamped heard say, "Zimri hath conspired, and hath also slain the king:" wherefore all Israel made Omri, the captain of the host, king over Israel that day in the camp. [17] And Omri went up from Gibbethon, and all Israel with him, and they besieged Tirzah. [18] And it came to pass, when Zimri saw that the city was taken, that he went into the palace of the king's house, and burnt the king's house over him with fire, and died, [19] for his sins which he sinned in doing evil in the sight of the Lord, [a]in walking in the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin which he did, to make Israel to sin. [20] Now the rest of the acts of Zimri, and his treason that he wrought, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel?

[21] Then were the people of Israel divided into two parts: half of the people followed Tibni the son of Ginath, to make him king; and half followed Omri. [22] But the people that followed Omri prevailed against the people that followed Tibni the son of Ginath: so Tibni died, and Omri reigned.

Omri buildeth Samaria. His wicked reign. His death.

[23] In the thirty and first year of Asa king of Judah began Omri to reign over Israel, twelve years; six years reigned he in Tirzah. [27] Now the rest of the acts of Omri which he did, and his might that he showed, are they not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Israel? [28] So Omri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria: and Ahab his son reigned in his stead.

[29] And in the thirty and eighth year of Asa king of Judah began Ahab the son of Omri to reign over Israel; and Ahab the son of Omri reigned over Israel in Samaria twenty and two years. [30] And Ahab the son of Omri did evil in the sight of the Lord above all that were before him. [31] And it came to pass, *as if it had been a light thing for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, [a]that he took to wife Jezebel the daughter of Ethbaal king of [b]the Zidonians, [c]and went and served Baal, and worshipped him. [32] And he reared up an altar for Baal in the house of Baal, which he had built in Samaria. (7) In the thirty and first year of Asa (1 Kings xvi 23.), Omri began to reign; and he reigned twelve years: but in the thirty-eighth year of Asa we read that Omri died, and Ahab reigned. The difficulty is solved by observing that the reign of Omri is computed from the death of Zimri. Through the first six years of his reign there was civil war between Omri and Tibni; who were both made kings by the soldiers and people. The party of Omri prevailed, and he was sole king of Israel six years, beginning in the thirty-first year of Asa.

(8) The idolatry and corruption of the kingdom of apostate Israel had now increased to its greatest height. At this time, in open defiance of the curse pronounced by Joshua against the rebuilder of Jericho, Hiel the Beth-elite again laid the foundation of that city, and verified the prediction of the prophet, who declared that his eldest son would be slain in laying the foundation, and his youngest in setting up the gates. Joshua vi. 26. For an account of those prophecies which referred to events which were soon to have their accomplishment, vide Allix's Reflections on the Old Testament, chapter 3.

Jehoshaphat's good reign. His acts. He sendeth Levites with the princes to teach Judah. His enemies being terrified by God, some of them bring him presents and tribute. His greatness, captains, and armies. His treaty with Ahab. He is reproved by Jehu. He visits his kingdom. His instructions to the judges, and the Levites. The Moabites and Ammonites declare war against Jehoshaphat. He proclaimeth a fast. His prayer. The prophecy of Jahaziel. Jehoshaphat exhorteth the people and setteth singers to praise the Lord. The great overthrow of the enemies. The people bless God. They return home. Jehoshaphat's convoy of ships, which he made with Ahaziah, according to the prophecy of Eliezer, unhappily perished. He refuses to join Ahaziah in another expedition. His death.

[41] AND Jehoshaphat the son of Asa [a]began to reign over Judah in the fourth year of Ahab king of Israel. [42] Jehoshaphat was thirty and five years old when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Azubah the daughter of Shilhi. [43] And he walked in all the way of Asa his father; he turned not aside from it, doing that which was right in the eyes of the LORD: nevertheless [b]the high places were not taken away; for the people offered and burnt incense yet in the high places. [44] And [c]Jehoshaphat made peace with the king of Israel. [46] And [d]the remnant of the sodomites, which remained in the days of his father Asa, he took out of the land. [47] (There [e]was then no king in Edom: a deputy was king.) [2] And [a]he placed forces in all the fenced cities of Judah, and set garrisons in the land of Judah, and in the cities of Ephraim, [f]which Asa his father had taken. [3] And the LORD was with Jehoshaphat, because he walked in the first ways *of his father David, and sought not unto Baalim; [4] but sought to the LORD God of his father, and walked in his commandments, and not after the doings of Israel. [5] Therefore the LORD established the kingdom in his hand; and all Judah †brought to Jehoshaphat presents; [g]and he had riches and honor in abundance. [6] And his heart ‡was lifted up in the ways of the LORD; moreover he took away the high places and groves out of Judah.

[1] It came to pass after this also, that the children of Moab, and the children of Ammon, and with them other besides the Ammonites, came against Jehoshaphat to battle. [2] Then there came some that told Jehoshaphat, saying, "There cometh a great multitude against thee from beyond the sea on this side Syria; and, behold, they be in Hazazon-tamar, which is En-gedi." [3] And Jehoshaphat feared, and set †himself to seek the LORD, and [d]proclaimed a fast throughout all Judah. [4] And Judah gathered themselves together, to ask help of the LORD: even out of all the cities of Judah they came to seek the LORD. [5] And Jehoshaphat stood in the congregation of Judah and Jerusalem, in the house of the LORD, before the new court, [6] and said,—

[13] And all Judah stood before the LORD, with their little ones, their wives, and their children. [14] Then upon Jahaziel the son of Zechariah, the son of Benaiah, the son of Jeiel, the son of Mattaniah, a Levite of the sons of Asaph, [n]came the Spirit of the LORD in the midst of the congregation; [15] and he said, "Hearken ye, all Judah, and ye inhabitants of Jerusalem, and thou king Jehoshaphat! [18] And Jehoshaphat bowed his head with his face to the ground; and all Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem fell before the LORD, worshipping the LORD. [19] And the Levites, of the children of the Kohathites, and of the children of the Korhites, stood up to praise the LORD God of Israel with a loud voice on high.

PSALM CXV.

PSALM CXV.(10)

Because God is truly glorious, 4 and idols are vanity, 9 the psalmist exhorteth to confidence in God. 12 God is to be blessed for his blessings.

[1] Not [a]unto us, O Lord! not unto us,
But unto thy name give glory,
For thy mercy, and for thy truth's sake.
[2] Wherefore should the heathen say,
Where [b]is now their God?
[3] But [c]our God is in the heavens:
He hath done whatsoever he pleased.
[4] Their [d]idols are silver and gold,
The work of men's hands.
[5] They have mouths—but they speak not:
Eyes have they—but they see not:
[6] They have ears—but they hear not:
Noses have they—but they smell not:
[7] They have hands—but they handle not:
Feet have they—but they walk not:
Neither speak they through their throat.
[8] They [e]that make them are like unto them;
So is every one that trusteth in them.
[9] O [f]Israel, trust thou in the Lord:
He is their help and their shield.
[10] O house of Aaron, trust in the Lord:
He is their help and their shield.
[11] Ye that fear the Lord, trust in the Lord:
He [g]is their help and their shield.
[12] The Lord hath been mindful of us: he will bless us;
He will bless the house of Israel;
He will bless the house of Aaron.
[13] He will bless them that fear the Lord,
Both small *and great.
[14] The Lord shall increase you more and more,
You and your children.

[1] AND *Elijah the Tishbite, who was of the inhabitants of Gilead, said unto Ahab, "As the LORD God of Israel liveth, before whom I stand, [a]there shall not be dew nor rain [b]these years, but according to my word." [2] And the word of the LORD came unto him, saying, [3] "Get thee hence, and turn thee eastward, and hide thyself by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan. [4] And it shall be, that thou shalt drink of the brook; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there." [5] So he went and did according unto the word of the LORD: for he went and dwelt by the brook Cherith, that is before Jordan, [6] and the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening; and he drank of the brook. And when he came to the gate of the city, behold, the widow woman was there gathering of sticks; and he called to her, and said, "Fetch me, I pray thee, a little water in a vessel, that I may drink." [19] And he said unto her, "Give me thy son." And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him up into a loft, where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed. [20] And he cried unto the LORD, and said, "O LORD my God, hast thou also brought evil upon the widow with whom I sojourn, by slaying her son?" [21] And he ‡stretched himself upon the child three times, and cried unto the LORD, and said, "O LORD my God, I pray thee, let this child's soul come *into him again." SECTION II.—Elijah proves the Truth of his Mission, and flies from Jezebel;—the Calling of Elisha.

1 KINGS xviii., and xix. 1–21.

Elijah meeteth with good Obadiah. 17 He reproveth Ahab, and convinceth Baal's prophets: 41 He obtaineth rain. — Chap. xix. 1 Elijah, threatened by Jezebel, 4 is comforted by an Angel. 9 God sendeth him to anoint Hazael, Jehu, and Elisha. 19 Elisha followeth Elijah.

[1] AND it came to pass after [a]many days, that the word of the LORD came to Elijah in the third year, saying, "Go show thyself unto Ahab; and [b]I will send rain upon the earth." [2] And Elijah went to show himself unto Ahab. And there was a sore famine in Samaria. [3] And Ahab called *Obadiah, which was †the governor of his house. (Now Obadiah feared the LORD greatly. [4] For it was so, when ‡Jezebel cut off the prophets of the LORD, that Obadiah took an hundred prophets, and hid them by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water.) [5] And Ahab said unto Obadiah, "Go into the land, unto all fountains of water, and unto all brooks; peradventure we may find grass to save the horses and mules alive, *that we lose not all the beasts." [6] So they divided the land between them to pass throughout it; Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself.

[7] And as Obadiah was in the way, behold, Elijah met him: and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said, "Art thou that my lord Elijah?" [8] And he answered him, "I am: go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here!" [9] And he said, "What have I sinned, that thou wouldest deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me? [10] As the LORD thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee; and when they said, 'He is not there;' he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that they found thee not.

[11] And now thou sayest, 'Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here!' [12] And it shall come to pass, as soon as I am gone from thee, that [c]the Spirit of the Lord shall carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he shall slay me; but I thy servant fear the Lord from my youth. [13] Was it not told my lord what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the Lord, how I hid an hundred men of the Lord's prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water? [14] And now thou sayest, 'Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here!' and he shall slay me." [15] And Elijah said, "As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself unto him to-day." [16] So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him; and Ahab went to meet Elijah.

c 2 Ki. 2. 16. Ez. 3. 12, 14. Mat. 4. 1. Ac. 8. 39.

[17] And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, "Art thou he that [d]troubleth Israel?" [18] And he answered, "I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou hast followed Baalim. [19] Now therefore send, and gather to me all Israel unto Mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves four hundred, which eat at Jezebel's table." [20] So Ahab sent unto all the children of Israel, and gathered the prophets together unto Mount Carmel. [21] And Elijah came unto all the people, and said, "How [e]long halt ye between two ‡opinions? if the Lord be God, follow him—but if Baal, [f]then follow him." And the people answered him not a word. [22] Then said Elijah unto the people, "I, even I only, remain a prophet of the Lord; but Baal's prophets are four hundred and fifty men. [23] Let them therefore give us two bullocks; and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under: and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under. [24] And call ye on the name of your gods, and I will call on the name of the Lord; and the God that answereth by fire, let him be God." And all the people answered and said, "*It is well spoken." [25] And Elijah said unto the prophets of Baal, "Choose you one bullock for yourselves, and dress it first; for ye are many; and call on the name of your gods, but put no fire under." [26] And they took the bullock which was given them, and they dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning even until noon, saying, "O Baal, †hear us!" But there was [g]no voice, nor any that ‡answered. And they *leaped upon the altar which was made. [27] And it came to pass at noon, that Elijah mocked them, and said, "Cry †aloud! for he is a god; either ‡he is talking, or he *is pursuing, or he is in a journey, or peradventure he sleepeth, and must be awaked." [28] And they cried aloud, and [h]cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till †the blood gushed out upon them. [29] And it came to pass, when mid-day was past, [i]and they prophesied until the time of the ‡offering of the evening sacrifice, that there was neither voice, nor any to answer, nor any *that regarded.

[32] And with the stones he built an altar [k]in the name of the Lord; and he made a trench about the altar, as great as would contain two measures of seed. [36] And it came to pass at the time of the offering of the evening sacrifice, that Elijah the prophet came near, and said, "LORD [l]God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel, [m]let it be known this day that thou art God in Israel, and that I am thy servant, and that [n]I have done all these things at thy word. [37] Hear me, O LORD, hear me, that this people may know that thou art the LORD God, and that thou hast turned their heart back again." [38] Then [o]the fire of the LORD fell, and consumed the burnt sacrifice, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench. [39] And when all the people saw it, they fell on their faces; and they said, "The LORD, he is the God! the LORD, he is the God!" [40] And Elijah said unto them, "‡Take the prophets of Baal; let not one of them escape." And they took them; and Elijah brought them down to the brook Kishon, and [p]slew them there.

[41] And Elijah said unto Ahab, "Get thee up, eat and drink; for there is *a sound of abundance of rain." [42] So Ahab went up to eat and to drink. And Elijah went up to the top of Carmel; [q]and he cast himself down upon the earth, and put his face between his knees, [43] and said to his servant, "Go up now, look toward the sea." And he went up, and looked, and said, "There is nothing." And he said, "Go again seven times." [44] And it came to pass at the seventh time, that he said, "Behold, there ariseth a little cloud out of the sea, like a man's hand." And he said, "Go up, say unto Ahab, †Prepare thy chariot, and get thee down, that the rain stop thee not.'" [45] And it came to pass in the mean while, that the heaven was black with clouds and wind, and there was a great rain. And Ahab rode, and went to Jezreel. [46] And the hand of the LORD was on Elijah; and he girded up his loins, and ran before Ahab ‡to the entrance of Jezreel.

1 KINGS xix. 1–21.

[1] And Ahab told Jezebel all that Elijah had done, and withal how he had slain all the prophets with the sword. [2] Then Jezebel sent a messenger unto Elijah, saying, "So [r]let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as the life of one of them by to-morrow about this time." [3] And when he saw that, he arose, and [s]went for his life, and came to Beer-sheba, which belongeth to Judah, and left his servant there. [4] But he himself went a day's journey into the wilderness, and came and sat down under a juniper tree; and [t]he requested *for himself that he might die; and said, "It is enough; now, O LORD! take away my life; for I am not better than my fathers."

[5] And as he lay and slept under a juniper tree, behold, then an angel touched him, and said unto him, "Arise and eat." [6] And he looked, and, behold, there was a cake baken on the coals, and a cruse of water at his †head. And he did eat and drink, and laid him down again. [7] And the angel of the LORD came again the second time, and touched him, and said, "Arise and eat; because the journey is too great for thee." [8] And he arose, and did eat and drink, and went in the strength of that meat [u]forty days and forty nights unto Horeb the mount of God.

[9] And he came thither unto a cave, and lodged there; and, behold, the word of the LORD came to him, and he said unto him, "What doest thou here, Elijah?" [10] And he said, "I [v]have been very [w]jealous for the LORD God of hosts: for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant, thrown down thine altars, and slain thy prophets with the sword; [x]and I, even I only, am left; and they seek my life, to take it away." Section III.—Ben-hadad besieges Samaria;—He is defeated;—He is conquered at Aphek.

1 Kings xx. 1–43.

[1] And Ben-hadad the king of Syria gathered all his host together, (and there were thirty and two kings with him, and horses, and chariots;) and he went up and besieged Samaria, and warred against it. [2] And he sent messengers to Ahab king of Israel into the city, and said unto him, "Thus saith Ben-hadad, [3] Thy silver and thy gold is mine; thy wives also and thy children, even the goodliest, are mine." And the king of Israel answered and said, "My lord, O king, according to thy saying, I am thine, and all that I have." [5] And the messengers came again, and said, "Thus speaketh Ben-hadad, saying, Although I have sent unto thee, saying, 'Thou shalt deliver me thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children;' [6] yet I will send my servants unto thee to-morrow about this time, and they shall search thy house, and the houses of thy servants; and it shall be, that whatsoever is *pleasant in thine eyes, they shall put it in their hand, and take it away." [7] Then the king of Israel called all the elders of the land, and said, "Mark, I pray you, and see how this man seeketh mischief; for he sent unto me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver, and for my gold, and †I denied him not." [8] And all the elders and all the people said unto him, "Hearken not unto him, nor consent." [9] Wherefore he said unto the messengers of Ben-hadad, "Tell my lord the king, All that thou didst send for to thy servant at the first I will do: but this thing I may not do." And the messengers departed, and brought him word again. [10] And Ben-hadad sent unto him, and said, "The gods do so unto me, and more also, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that ‡follow me." [11] And the king of Israel answered and said, "Tell him, Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off." [12] And it came to pass, when Ben-hadad heard this *message, as he was drinking, he and the kings in the †pavilions, that he said unto his servants, "‡ Set yourselves in array." [15] Then he numbered the young men of the princes of the provinces, and they were two hundred and thirty-two: and after them he numbered all the people, even all the children of Israel, being seven thousand. [16] And they went out at noon. But Ben-hadad was drinking himself drunk in the pavilions, he and the kings, the thirty and two kings that helped him. [17] And the young men of the princes of the provinces went out first; and Ben-hadad sent out, and they told him, saying, "There are men come out of Samaria." [18] And he said, "Whether they be come out for peace, take them alive; or whether they be come out for war, take them alive." [19] So these young men of the princes of the provinces came out of the city, and the army which followed them. [20] And they slew every one his man: and the Syrians fled, and Israel pursued them; and Ben-hadad the king of Syria escaped on a horse with the horsemen. [21] And the king of Israel went out, and smote the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter.

[22] And the prophet came to the king of Israel, and said unto him, "Go, strengthen thyself, and mark, and see what thou doest; for at the return of the year the king of Syria will come up against thee." [23] And the servants of the king of Syria said unto him, "Their gods are gods of the hills; therefore they were stronger than we; but let us fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they. [24] And do this thing, Take the kings away, every man out of his place, and put captains in their rooms. [25] And number thee an army, like the army *that thou hast lost, horse for horse, and chariot for chariot; and we will fight against them in the plain, and surely we shall be stronger than they." [29] And they pitched one over against the other seven days. And so it was, that in the seventh day the battle was joined; and the children of Israel slew of the Syrians an hundred thousand footmen in one day. to the king of Israel, and said, "Thy servant Ben-hadad saith, I pray thee, let me live." And he said, "Is he yet alive? he is my brother."
[33] Now the men did diligently observe whether any thing would come

SECTION IV.—Seizure of Naboth's Vineyard by Ahab.

1 KINGS xxi.

Ahab being denied Naboth's vineyard is grieved. 5 Jezebel causeth Naboth to be condemned. 17 Elijah denounceth judgments against Ahab and Jezebel.

[1] AND it came to pass after these things, that Naboth the Jezreelite had a vineyard, which was in Jezreel, hard by the palace of Ahab king of Samaria. [2] And Ahab spake unto Naboth, saying, "Give me thy a 1 Sa. 8. 14. [a]vineyard, that I may have it for a garden of herbs, because it is near unto my house, and I will give thee for it a better vineyard than it;
* Heb. be good in thine eyes. or, if it *seem good to thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money."
b Le. 25. 23. Ez. 46. 18. [3] And Naboth said to Ahab, "The LORD forbid it me, [b]that I should give the inheritance of my fathers unto thee." [4] And Ahab came into his house heavy and displeased because of the word which Naboth the Jezreelite had spoken to him; for he had said, "I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers." And he laid him down upon his bed, and turned away his face, and would eat no bread.

[5] But Jezebel his wife came to him, and said unto him, "Why is thy spirit so sad, that thou eatest no bread?" [6] And he said unto her, "Because I spake unto Naboth the Jezreelite, and said unto him, 'Give me thy vineyard for money; or else, if it please thee, I will give thee another vineyard for it:' and he answered, 'I will not give thee my vineyard.'" [7] And Jezebel his wife said unto him, "Dost thou now govern the kingdom of Israel? arise, and eat bread, and let thy heart be merry: I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite." [8] So she wrote letters in Ahab's name, and sealed them with his seal, and sent the letters unto the elders and to the nobles that were in his city, dwelling with Naboth. [9] And she wrote in the letters, saying, "Proclaim a fast, and set Naboth †on high among the people. [10] And set two men, sons of Belial, before him, to bear witness against him, saying, Thou didst [c]blaspheme God and the king. And then carry him out, and [d]stone him, that he may die." [11] And the men of his city, even the elders and the nobles who were the inhabitants in his city, did as Jezebel had sent unto them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent unto them. [12] They [e]proclaimed a fast, and set Naboth on high among the people. [13] And there came in two men, children of Belial, and sat before him; and the men of Belial witnessed against him, even against Naboth, in the presence of the people, saying, "Naboth did blaspheme God and the king." [f]Then they carried him forth out of the city, and stoned him with stones, that he died. [14] Then they sent to Jezebel, saying, "Naboth is stoned, and is dead."

[15] And it came to pass, when Jezebel heard that Naboth was stoned, and was dead, that Jezebel said to Ahab, "Arise, take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, which he refused to give thee for money; for Naboth is not alive, but dead." [16] And it came to pass, when Ahab heard that Naboth was dead, that Ahab rose up to go down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite, to take possession of it.

[17] And the word of the LORD came to Elijah the Tishbite, saying, [18] "Arise, go down to meet Ahab king of Israel, which is in Samaria; behold, he is in the vineyard of Naboth, whither he is gone down to possess it. [19] And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, Hast thou killed, and also taken possession? And thou shalt speak unto him, saying, Thus saith the LORD, [g]In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth shall dogs lick thy blood, even thine." [20] And Ahab said to Elijah, "Hast thou found me, O mine enemy?" And he answered, "I have found thee; because [h]thou hast sold thyself to work evil in the sight of the LORD. [21] Behold, [i]I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy posterity, and will cut off from Ahab him that pisseth against the wall, and [j]him that is shut up and left in Israel, [22] and will make thy house like the house of [k]Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of [l]Baasha the son of Ahijah, for the provocation wherewith thou hast provoked me to anger, and made Israel to sin." [23] And [m]of Jezebel also spake the LORD, saying, "The dogs shall eat Jezebel by the ‡wall of Jezreel. [24] Him [n]that dieth of Ahab in the city the dogs shall eat; and him that dieth in the fields shall the fowls of the air eat."

[25] But there was none like unto Ahab, which did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the LORD, whom Jezebel his wife *stirred up. [26] And he did very abominably in following idols, according to all things [o]as did the Amorites, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel.

[27] And it came to pass, when Ahab heard those words, that he rent his clothes, and [p]put sackcloth upon his flesh, and fasted, and lay in sackcloth, and went softly. [28] And the word of the LORD came to Eli-

[1] AND they continued three years without war between Syria and Israel. [2] And it came to pass in the third year, that Jehoshaphat the king of Judah came down to the king of Israel. [3] And the king of Israel said unto his servants, "Know ye that [a]Ramoth in Gilead is ours, and we be *still, and take it not out of the hand of the king of Syria?" [4] And he said unto Jehoshaphat, "Wilt thou go with me to battle to Ramoth-gilead?" And Jehoshaphat said to the king of Israel, "I am as thou art, my people as thy people, my horses as thy horses." [5] And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, "Inquire, I pray thee, at the word of the LORD to-day." [6] Then the king of Israel gathered the prophets together, about four hundred men, and said unto them, "Shall I go against Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear?" And they said, "Go up; for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king." [7] And Jehoshaphat said, "Is there not here a prophet of the LORD besides, that we might inquire of him?" [8] And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, "There is yet one man, Micaiah the son of Imlah, by whom we may inquire of the LORD: but I hate him; for he doth not prophesy good concerning me, but evil." And Jehoshaphat said, "Let not the king say so." [9] Then the king of Israel called an †officer, and said, "Hasten hither Micaiah the son of Imlah." [10] And the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah sat each on his throne, having put on their robes, in a ‡void place in the entrance of the gate of Samaria; and all the prophets prophesied before them. [11] And Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah made him horns of iron: and he said, "Thus saith the LORD, With these shalt thou push the Syrians, until thou have consumed them." [12] And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, "Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper; for the LORD shall deliver it into the king's hand." [13] And the messenger that was gone to call Micaiah spake unto him, saying, "Behold now, the words of the prophets declare good unto the king with one mouth; let thy word, I pray thee, be like the word of one of them, and speak that which is good." [17] And he said, "I saw all Israel [c]scattered upon the hills, as sheep that have not a shepherd: and the LORD said, 'These have no master: let them return every man to his house in peace.'" [18] And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, "Did I not tell thee that he would prophesy no good concerning me, but evil?" [19] And he said, "Hear thou therefore the word of the LORD. [d]I saw the LORD sitting on his throne, [e]and all the host of heaven standing by him on his right hand and on his left. [29] So the king of Israel and Jehoshaphat the king of Judah went up to Ramoth-gilead. [30] And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, "*I will disguise myself, and enter into the battle; but put thou on thy robes." And the king of Israel [j]disguised himself, and went into the battle. [31] But the king of Syria commanded his thirty and two captains that had rule over his chariots, saying, "Fight neither with small nor great, save only with the king of Israel." [32] And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots saw Jehoshaphat, that they said, "Surely it is the king of Israel." And they turned aside to fight against him: and Jehoshaphat [k]cried out. [33] And it came to pass, when the captains of the chariots perceived that it was not the king of Israel, that they turned back from pursuing him. [34] And a certain man drew a bow †at a venture, and smote the king of Israel between the ‡joints of the harness: wherefore he said unto the driver of his chariot, "Turn thy hand, and carry me out of the host; for I am *wounded." [35] And the battle †increased that day: and the king was stayed up in his chariot against the Syrians, and died at even; and the blood ran out of the wound into the ‡midst of the chariot. [36] And there went a proclamation throughout the host about the going down of the sun, saying, "Every man to his city, and every man to his own country."

2 Chron. xviii. 3, to the end.—[3] And Ahab king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat king of Judah, "Wilt thou go with me to Ramoth-gilead?" And he answered him, "I am as thou art, and my people as thy people; and we will be with thee in the war."

[4] And Jehoshaphat said unto the king of Israel, "Inquire, I pray thee, at the word of the Lord to-day." [5] Therefore the king of Israel gathered together of prophets four hundred men, and said unto them, "Shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear?" And they said, "Go up; for God will deliver it into the king's hand." [6] But Jehoshaphat said, "Is there not here a prophet of the Lord *besides, that we might inquire of him?" [7] And the king of Israel said unto Jehoshaphat, "There is yet one man, by whom we may inquire of the Lord: but I hate him; for he never prophesied good unto me, but always evil; the same is Micaiah the son of Imla." And Jehoshaphat said, "Let not the king say so." [8] And the king of Israel called for one of his †officers, and said, "‡Fetch quickly Micaiah the son of Imla." [11] And all the prophets prophesied so, saying, "Go up to Ramoth-gilead, and prosper; for the LORD shall deliver it into the hand of the king." [12] And the messenger that went to call Micaiah spake to him, saying, "Behold, the words of the prophets declare good to the king ‡with one assent; let thy word, therefore, I pray thee, be like one of theirs, and speak thou good." [13] And Micaiah said, "As the LORD liveth, even what my God saith, that will I speak." [14] And when he was come to the king, the king said unto him, "Micaiah, shall we go to Ramoth-gilead to battle, or shall I forbear?" And he said, "Go ye up, and prosper, and they shall be delivered into your hand." [15] And the king said to him, "How many times shall I adjure thee that thou say nothing but the truth to me in the name of the LORD?" [16] Then he said, "I did see all Israel scattered upon the mountains, as sheep that have no shepherd: and the LORD said, 'These have no master; let them return therefore every man to his house in peace.'" [17] And the king of Israel said to Jehoshaphat, "Did I not tell thee that he would not prophesy good unto me, *but evil?" [18] Again he said, "Therefore hear the word of the LORD; I saw the LORD sitting upon his throne, and all the host of heaven standing on his right hand and on his left. [19] And the LORD said, 'Who shall entice Ahab king of Israel, that he may go up and fall at Ramoth-gilead?' And one spake saying after this manner, and another saying after that manner. [20] Then there came out a spirit, and stood before the LORD, and said, 'I will entice him.' And the LORD said unto him, 'Wherewith?' [21] And he said, 'I will go out, and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets.' And the LORD said, 'Thou shalt entice him, and thou shalt also prevail: go out, and do even so.' [22] Now therefore, behold, the LORD hath put a lying spirit in the mouth of these thy prophets, and the LORD hath spoken evil against thee." [23] Then Zedekiah the son of Chenaanah came near, and smote Micaiah upon the cheek, and said, "Which way went the Spirit of the LORD from me to speak unto thee?" [24] And Micaiah said, "Behold, thou shalt see on that day when thou shalt go †into ‡an inner chamber to hide thyself." [25] Then the king of Israel said, "Take ye Micaiah, and carry him back to Amon the governor of the city, and to Joash the king's son; [26] and say, Thus saith the king, Put this fellow in the prison, and feed him with bread of affliction and with water of affliction, until I return in peace." SECTION VI.—Reign and Death of Ahaziah.

1 KINGS xxii. 51, to the end.—2 KINGS i.

Ahaziah commits idolatry. Moab rebelleth. Ahaziah, sending to Baal-zebub, hath his judgment by Elijah. Elijah twice bringeth fire from heaven on Ahaziah's messengers. Jehoram succeedeth Ahaziah.

[51] AHAZIAH the son of Ahab began to reign over Israel in Samaria the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat king of Judah, and reigned two years over Israel. [52] And he did evil in the sight of the LORD, and [a]walked in the way of his father, and in the way of his mother, and in the way of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin; [53] for [b]he served Baal, and worshipped him, and provoked to anger the LORD God of Israel, according to all that his father had done.

[1] Then Moab rebelled against Israel after the death of Ahab. 2 KINGS i.
[2] And Ahaziah fell down through a lattice in his upper chamber that was in Samaria, and was sick; and he sent messengers, and said unto them, "Go, inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron whether I shall recover of this disease." [3] But the Angel of the LORD said to Elijah the Tishbite, "Arise, go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say unto them, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that ye go to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron? [4] Now therefore thus saith the LORD, *Thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die." And Elijah departed.

* Heb. The bed whithor thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down from it.

[5] And when the messengers turned back unto him, he said unto them, "Why are ye now turned back?" [6] And they said unto him, "There came a man up to meet us, and said unto us, "Go, turn again unto the king that sent you, and say unto him, Thus saith the LORD, Is it not because there is not a God in Israel, that thou sendest to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron? therefore thou shalt not come down from that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die." [7] And he said unto them, "†What manner of man was he which came up to meet you, and told you these words?" [8] And they answered him, "He was [c]a hairy man, and girt with a girdle of leather about his loins." And he said, "It is Elijah the Tishbite." [9] Then the king sent unto him a captain of fifty with his fifty. And he went up to him: and, behold, he sat on the top of a hill. And he spake unto him, "Thou man of God, the king hath said, Come down." [10] And Elijah answered and said to the captain of fifty, "If I be a man of God, [d]then let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty." And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty. [11] Again also he sent unto him another captain of fifty with his fifty. And he answered and said unto him, "O man of God, thus hath the king said, Come down quickly." [12] And Elijah answered and said unto them, "If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty." [14] Behold, there came fire down from heaven, and burnt up the two captains of the former fifties with their fifties; therefore let my life now be precious in thy sight." [15] And the Angel of the LORD said unto Elijah, "Go down with him; be not afraid of him." And he arose, and went down with him unto the king. [16] And he said unto him, "Thus saith the LORD, Forasmuch as thou hast sent messengers to inquire of Baal-zebub the god of Ekron, is it not because there is no God in Israel to inquire of his word? therefore thou shalt not come down off that bed on which thou art gone up, but shalt surely die."

(12) The mention here made of the sons, or disciples, or pupils of the prophets, leads us to inquire what mode was adopted among the ancient Israelites to secure to them the advantages of education. When the Israelites first went down into Egypt, and the patriarchal polity flourished among them in its full vigor, every father was of course the instructor as well as the head of his family. During their continuance in that country, although we know but little of the manner in which they preserved among themselves the traditions of their ancestors, or maintained and declared their right to the Holy Land, we may be assured that the national faith was not suffered to decay; nor were they, at their departure from Egypt, that rude and barbarous people which they are generally represented. Moses was skilled in all the wisdom of Egypt, and the perpetual presence of the God of Israel, the wonderful miracles wrought by Moses, the death of the generation which had been in some measure contaminated by idolatry in Egypt, and the consequent instruction of the next, under the immediate superintendence of their inspired leader, prevented the possibility of ignorance, during their wandering in the wilderness. It is generally supposed too, that there was an uninterrupted succession of prophets from the time of Moses to the death of Malachi. The first places for their instruction, appointed by the Jews after their settlement in the Holy Land, were the Levitical cities, which might be called the Universities of Judæa. The Levites too, were scattered through the country, as the standing ministry appointed by God himself, to instruct the people in general in all things which pertained to their Law. It is, therefore, to be supposed that the common business of education fell as naturally into their hands at that time, as it has since done, generally speaking, to the ecclesiastics in Christian countries.

The first notice which is taken in Scripture of the schools of the prophets, is 1 Sam. x. 10, and 1 Sam. xix. 20. The expression "they saw the prophets prophesying, and Samuel standing, as appointed over them," is interpreted by the Chaldee Paraphrast, that Samuel was the head, or president, of a school of prophetical instruction. Samuel is by many supposed to have himself first instituted these schools: but it is more probable that he found them established in the Levitical cities, and in every place where the ark was settled, and where the people went up to worship. It is more certain that from the time of Samuel to the Babylonish captivity, they were never suffered entirely to degenerate, although they were too often influenced by the general bias of the people to idolatry. The most distinguished prophets, till the time of David, were presidents of these colleges. Elkanah, Gad, Nathan, and others, are supposed to have been to the prophets in their day, what Samuel was to the prophets at Naioth. They are said to have selected the most promising of the young Levites, with the Nazarites of other tribes. Hence we read of so many prophets together in the time of Ahab. The chief places where they resided, seems to have been Bethel, Jericho, Gilgal, and the Levitical cities in general. The people in Israel, after the revolt of the ten tribes, were accustomed to attend the prophets for moral and religious instruction; for we read, that when the woman of Shunem was about to go up to Elijah, her husband asked her, "Wherefore wilt thou go to-day? it is neither new moon, nor Sabbath," 2 Kings iv. 23. When the peculiar circumstances of the age demanded it, the prophets were gifted with miraculous power. From the time of Samuel there appears to have been an unbroken succession to the time of Malachi; of whom Elijah and Elisha were the most eminent.

Prophecies were first committed to writing by Elijah, who wrote to Jehoram, predicting his offences and punishment. The volume of Scripture may be considered as having been under the continued superintendence of these holy men; and the prophetical office, as Bishop Stillingfleet ingeniously and justly observes, was a kind of chancery to the Law of Moses.

As God never left himself without witness to the heathen world, in that he gave them rain from heaven, and fruitful seasons; neither did he leave the people of Israel without a constant appeal to their hearts and understandings. Moses, Joshua, the Judges, Samuel, David, Ahijah, Elijah, Elisha, and the prophets whose writings are still preserved, followed each other in close succession. In addition to these, there was a standing miracle of the perpetual accomplishment of the prophecies which referred to events near at hand. The oracular answer in the Holy of Holies: the appearance of the Shechinah; the very nature of the country respectively occupied by the twelve tribes; the residence among them of the ancient Gibeonites; the judgments inflicted both on the idolatrous princes of Israel and Judah, as well as on the surrounding nations; these, with the lessons conveyed by the recurrence of the Sabbath, and of their great festivals, when the Levites taught the meaning of the Ceremonial Law, and otherwise instructed the people, took away all excuse for the frequent relapses of the Israelites into idolatry. Yet, if their repeated offences, in this respect, excite astonishment, let the present condition of the Christian world be considered; which presents us with too many instances of ingratitude and infidelity. The appeals which were made to the ancient Church of God were not more powerful than those which the Christian Church now enjoys: for in those days God spake by his prophets; to us he has spoken by his Son.

el came forth to Elisha, and said unto him, "Knowest thou that the Lord will take away thy master from thy head to-day?" And he said, "Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace." [4] And Elijah said unto him, "Elisha, tarry here, I pray thee; for the Lord hath sent me to Jericho." And he said, "As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee!" So they came to Jericho. [5] And the sons of the prophets that were at Jericho came to Elisha, and said unto him, "Knowest thou that the Lord will take away thy master from thy head to-day?" And he answered, "Yea, I know it; hold ye your peace." [6] And Elijah said unto him, "Tarry, I pray thee, here; for the Lord hath sent me to Jordan." And he said, "As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee!" And they two went on. [7] And fifty men of the sons of the prophets went, and stood *to view afar off; and they two stood by Jordan. And he said, "I will go up: I am as thou art, my people as thy people, and my horses as thy horses." [8] And he said, "Which way shall we go up?" And he answered, "The way through the wilderness of Edom."

h Am. 2. 1.

[26] And when the king of Moab saw that the battle was too sore for him, he took with him seven hundred men that drew swords, to break through even unto the king of Edom; but they could not. [27] Then [h]he took his eldest son that should have reigned in his stead, and offered him for a burnt offering upon the wall. And there was great indignation against Israel; and they departed from him, and returned to their own land.

[1] Now there cried a certain woman of the wives of [a]the sons of the prophets unto Elisha, saying, "Thy servant my husband is dead; and thou knowest that thy servant did fear the Lord: and the creditor is come [b]to take unto him my two sons to be bondmen." [2] And Elisha said unto her, "What shall I do for thee? tell me, what hast thou in the house?" And she said, "Thy handmaid hath not any thing in the house, save a pot of oil." [3] Then he said, "Go, borrow thee vessels abroad of all thy neighbours, even empty vessels; *borrow not a few. [4] And when thou art come in, thou shalt shut the door upon thee and upon thy sons, and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full." [5] So she went from him, and shut the door upon her and upon her sons, who brought the vessels to her; and she poured out. [6] And it came to pass, when the vessels were full, that she said unto her son, "Bring me yet a vessel." And he said unto her, "There is not a vessel more." And the oil stayed. [7] Then she came and told the man of God. And he said, "Go, sell the oil, and pay thy †debt, and live thou and thy children of the rest."

[8] And ‡it fell on a day, that Elisha passed to Shunem, where was a great woman; and she *constrained him to eat bread. And so it was, that as oft as he passed by, he turned in thither to eat bread. [9] And she said unto her husband, "Behold now, I perceive that this is a holy man of God, which passeth by us continually. [10] Let us make a little chamber, I pray thee, on the wall; and let us set for him there a bed, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick: and it shall be, when he cometh to us, that he shall turn in thither." [11] And it fell on a day, that he came thither, and he turned into the chamber, and lay there. [12] And he said to Gehazi his servant, "Call this Shunammite." And when he had called her, she stood before him. [13] And he said unto him, "Say now unto her, Behold, thou hast been careful for us with all this care; what is to be done for thee? wouldest thou be spoken for to the king, or to the captain of the host?" And she answered, "I dwell among mine own people." [14] And he said, "What then is to be done for her?" And Gehazi answered, "Verily she hath no child, and her husband is old." [15] And he said, "Call her." And when he had called her, she stood in the door. [16] And he said, "About this †season, according to the time of life, thou shalt embrace a son." And she said, "Nay, my lord, thou man of God, do not lie unto thy handmaid." [17] And the woman conceived, and bare a son at that season that Elisha had said unto her, according to the time of life.

[18] And when the child was grown, it fell on a day, that he went out to his father to the reapers. [19] And he said unto his father, "My head! my head!" And he said to a lad, "Carry him to his mother." [20] And when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, he sat on her knees till noon, and then died. [21] And she went up, and laid him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the door upon him, and went out. [22] And she called unto her husband, and said, "Send me, I pray thee, one of the young men, and one of the asses, that I may run to the man of God, and come again." [23] And he said, "Wherefore wilt thou go to him to-day? it is neither new moon, nor Sabbath." And she said, "It shall be ‡well." [24] Then she saddled an ass, and said to her servant, "Drive, and go forward; *slack not thy riding for me, except I bid thee." [25] So she went and came unto the man of God to Mount Carmel. And it came to pass, when the man of God saw her afar off, that he said to Gehazi his servant, "Behold, yonder is that Shunammite. [26] Run now, I pray thee, to meet her, and say unto her, Is it well with thee? is it well with thy husband? is it well with the child?" And she answered, "It is well." [27] And when she came to the man of God to the hill, she caught †him by the feet; but Gehazi came near to thrust her away. And the man of God said, "Let her alone, for her soul is ‡vexed within her; and the Lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me." [28] Then she said, "Did I desire a son of my lord? did I not say, 'Do not deceive me?'" [29] Then he said to Gehazi, "Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thy hand, and go thy way: if thou meet any man, [c]salute him not; and if any salute thee, answer him not again: and [d]lay my staff upon the face of the child." [30] And the mother of the child said, "As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee!" And he arose, and followed her. [31] And Gehazi passed on before them, and laid the staff upon the face of the child; but there was neither voice, nor *hearing. Wherefore he went again to meet him, and told him, saying, "The child is [e]not awaked." [32] And when Elisha was come into the house, behold, the child was dead, and laid upon his bed. [33] He [f]went in therefore, and shut the door upon them twain, and [g]prayed unto the Lord. [34] And he went up, and lay upon the child, and put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands; and he stretched himself upon the child, and the flesh of the child waxed warm. [35] Then he returned, and walked in the house †to and fro; and went up, and stretched himself upon him: and the child sneezed seven times, and the child opened his eyes. [36] And he called Gehazi, and said, "Call this Shunammite." So he called her. And when she was come in unto him, he said, "Take up thy son." [37] Then she went in, and fell at his feet, and bowed herself to the ground, and [h]took up her son, and went out.

[38] And Elisha came again to Gilgal; and there was a dearth in the land. And the sons of the prophets were [i]sitting before him; and he said unto his servant, "Set on the great pot, and seethe pottage for the sons of the prophets." [39] And one went out into the field to gather herbs, and found a wild vine, and gathered thereof wild gourds his lap full, and came and shred them into the pot of pottage; for they knew them not. [40] So they poured out for the men to eat. And it came to pass, as they were eating of the pottage, that they cried out, and said, "O thou man of God, there is [j]death in the pot!" And they could not eat thereof. [41] But he said, "Then bring meal." And [k]he cast it into the pot; and he said, "Pour out for the people, that ye may eat." And there was no ‡harm in the pot.

[42] And there came a man from Baal-shalisha, [l]and brought the man of God bread of the first fruits, twenty loaves of barley, and full ears

[44] So he set it before them, and they did eat, [o]and left thereof, according to the word of the Lord.

[1] Now [p]Naaman, captain of the host of the king of Syria, was a great man †with his master, and ‡honorable, because by him the Lord had given *deliverance unto Syria: he was also a mighty man in valor, but he was a leper. [2] And the Syrians had gone out by companies, and had brought away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid; and she †waited on Naaman's wife. [3] And she said unto her mistress, "Would God my lord were ‡with the prophet that is in Samaria! for he would *recover him of his leprosy." [4] And one went in, and told his lord, saying, "Thus and thus said the maid that is of the land of Israel." [5] And the king of Syria said, "Go to, go, and I will send a letter unto the king of Israel." And he departed, and took †with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment. [6] And he brought the letter to the king of Israel, saying, "Now when this letter is come unto thee, behold, I have therewith sent Naaman my servant to thee, that thou mayest recover him of his leprosy." [7] And it came to pass, when the king of Israel had read the letter, that he rent his clothes, and said, "Am I [q]God, to kill and to make alive, that this man doth send unto me to recover a man of his leprosy? wherefore consider, I pray you, and see how he seeketh a quarrel against me."

2 Kings v.

[8] And it was so, when Elisha the man of God had heard that the king of Israel had rent his clothes, that he sent to the king, saying, "Wherefore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come now to me, and he shall know that there is a prophet in Israel." [9] So Naaman came with his horses and with his chariot, and stood at the door of the house of Elisha. [10] And Elisha sent a messenger unto him, saying, "Go and [r]wash in Jordan seven times, and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean." [11] But Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, "Behold, ‡I thought, He will surely come out to me, and stand, and call on the name of the Lord his God, and *strike his hand over the place, and recover the leper. [12] Are not †Abana and Pharpar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel? may I not wash in them, and be clean?" So he turned and went away in a rage. [13] And his servants came near, and spake unto him, and said, "My father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, wouldest thou not have done it? how much rather then, when he saith to thee, 'Wash, and be clean?'" [14] Then went he down, and dipped himself seven times in Jordan, according to the saying of the man of God; and [s]his flesh came again like unto the flesh of a little child, and [t]he was clean.

[15] And he returned to the man of God, he and all his company, and came, and stood before him: and he said, "Behold, now I know that there [u]is no God in all the earth, but in Israel: now therefore, I pray thee, take [v]a blessing of thy servant." [16] But he said, "As the Lord liveth, before whom I stand, [w]I will receive none!" And he urged him to take it; but he refused. [17] And Naaman said, "Shall there not then, I pray thee, be given to thy servant two mules' burden of earth? for thy servant will henceforth offer neither burnt offering nor sacrifice unto other gods, but unto the Lord. [18] In this thing the Lord pardon thy servant, that when my master goeth into the house of Rimmon to worship there, and he leaneth on my hand, and I bow myself in the [20] But Gehazi, the servant of Elisha the man of God, said, "Behold, my master hath spared Naaman this Syrian, in not receiving at his hands that which he brought: but, as the LORD liveth, I will run after him, and take somewhat of him." [21] So Gehazi followed after Naaman. And when Naaman saw him running after him, he lighted down from the chariot to meet him, and said, "*Is all well?" [22] And he said, "All is well. My master hath sent me, saying, Behold, even now there be come to me from Mount Ephraim two young men of the sons of the prophets; give them, I pray thee, a talent of silver, and two changes of garments." [23] And Naaman said, "Be content, take two talents." And he urged him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, with two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants; and they bare them before him. [24] And when he came to the †tower, he took them from their hand, and bestowed them in the house; and he let the men go, and they departed. [25] But he went in, and stood before his master. And Elisha said unto him, "Whence comest thou, Gehazi?" And he said, "Thy servant went ‡no whither." [26] And he said unto him, "Went not my heart with thee, when the man turned again from his chariot to meet thee? Is it a time to receive money, and to receive garments, and oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and menservants, and maidservants? [27] The leprosy therefore of Naaman [z]shall cleave unto thee, and unto thy seed for ever." And he went out from his presence [y]a leper as white as snow.

[3] And one said, "Be content, I pray thee, and go with thy servants." And he answered, "I will go." [4] So he went with them. And when they came to Jordan, they cut down wood. [5] But as one was felling a beam, the *axe head fell into the water; and he cried, and said, "Alas, master! for it was borrowed." [6] And the man of God said, "Where fell it?" And he showed him the place. And he cut down a stick, and cast it in thither; and the iron did swim. [7] Therefore said he, "Take it up to thee." And he put out his hand, and took it.

[8] Then the king of Syria warred against Israel, and took counsel with his servants, saying, "In such and such a place shall be my †camp." [9] And the man of God sent unto the king of Israel, saying, "Beware that thou pass not such a place; for thither the Syrians are come down." [10] And the king of Israel sent to the place which the man of God told him and warned him of, and saved himself there, not once nor twice. [11] Therefore the heart of the king of Syria was sore troubled for this thing; and he called his servants, and said unto them, "Will ye not show me which of us is for the king of Israel?" And the LORD opened their eyes, and they saw; and, behold, they were in the midst of Samaria! [21] And the king of Israel said unto Elisha, when he saw them, "My father, shall I smite them? shall I smite them?" [22] And he answered, "Thou shalt not smite them; wouldest thou smite those whom thou hast taken captive with thy sword and with thy bow? [d]set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master." [23] And he prepared great provision for them; and when they had eaten and drunk, he sent them away, and they went to their master. So the bands of Syria came no more into the land of Israel.

THE REIGN OF JEHORAM, KING OF JUDAH.

2 CHRON. xxi. 1, 5–7, 2–4, 11–15, 8–10, and 16, to the end.—2 KINGS viii. 23, 24 and 17–22.

Jehoram's wicked reign. He slayeth his brethren. The prophecy of Elijah against him. Edom and Libnah revolt. The Philistines and Arabians oppress him. His incurable disease, infamous death, and burial.

[1] Now (13) Jehoshaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with his fathers in the city of David. And Jehoram his son *reigned in his stead. [5] Jehoram [a]was thirty and two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. [6] And he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, like as did the house of Ahab, (for he had the daughter of Ahab to wife;) and he wrought that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD. [7] Howbeit the LORD would not destroy the house of David, because of the covenant that he had made with David, and as he promised to give a †light to him and to his [b]sons for ever.

[2] And he had brethren the sons of Jehoshaphat, Azariah, and Jehiel, and Zechariah, and Azariah, and Michael, and Shephatiah: all these were the sons of Jehoshaphat king of Israel. [3] And their father gave them great gifts of silver, and of gold, and of precious things, with fenced cities in Judah; but the kingdom gave he to ‡Jehoram, because he was the firstborn. [4] Now when Jehoram was risen up to the kingdom of his father, he strengthened himself, and slew all his brethren with the sword, and divers also of the princes of Israel.

[11] Moreover he made high places in the mountains of Judah, and caused the inhabitants of Jerusalem to [c]commit fornication, and compelled Judah thereto.

(13) To understand the chronology of Jehoram's reign, it is necessary to observe that three several dates are assigned to the beginning of it: the first in the seventeenth year of Jehoshaphat his father, compare 2 Kings xxii. 51. 2 Kings i. 17. 2 Kings iii. 1.; the second in the fifth year of Joram the son of Ahab, 2 Kings viii. 16. which was in the two and twentieth year of Jehoshaphat; and the third at his father's death. The first time, he was made viceroy, when his father went out to fight for the recovery of Ramoth-gilead; and the second, he was again made viceroy on his father's absence in Moab with Jehoram.—Lightfoot's Prolegomena to the Harmony of the Evang., Works, vol. i. p. 387.

[12] And ⁽¹⁴⁾there came a *writing to him from Elijah the prophet, saying, "Thus saith the LORD God of David thy father, Because thou hast not walked in the ways of Jehoshaphat thy father, nor in the ways of Asa king of Judah, [13] but hast walked in the way of the kings of Israel, and hast made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to [d]go a whoring, like to the [e]whoredoms of the house of Ahab, and also hast slain thy brethren of thy father's house, which were better than thyself: [14] behold, with a great †plague will the LORD smite thy people, and thy children, and thy wives, and all thy goods; [15] and thou shalt have great sickness by disease of thy bowels, until thy bowels fall out by reason of the sickness day by day."

[8] In his days the Edomites revolted from under the ‡dominion of Judah, and made themselves a king. [9] Then Jehoram went forth with his princes, and all his chariots with him; and he rose up by night, and smote the Edomites which compassed him in, and the captains of the chariots. [10] So the Edomites revolted from under the hand of Judah unto this day. The same time also did Libnah revolt from under his hand; because he had forsaken the LORD God of his fathers.

[16] Moreover the LORD stirred up against Jehoram the spirit of the Philistines, and of the Arabians, that were near the Ethiopians. [17] And they came up into Judah, and brake into it, and *carried away all the substance that was found in the king's house, and his sons also, and his wives; so that there was never a son left him, save †Jehoahaz, the youngest of his sons.

[18] ‡And after all this the LORD smote him in his bowels with an incurable disease. [19] And it came to pass, that in process of time, after the end of two years, his bowels fell out by reason of his sickness: so he died of sore diseases. And his people made no burning for him, like [f]the burning of his fathers. [20] Thirty and two years old was he when he began to reign, and he reigned in Jerusalem eight years, and

(14) The letter from Elijah to Jehoram has given rise to much discussion. Elijah the Tishbite was taken up to heaven in the reign of Ahab, many years before the last accession of Jehoram. Jehoram was made king three several times. Once before the battle of Ramoth-gilead, in which Ahab was killed: (compare 1 Kings xxii. 51. 2 Kings i. 17. 2 Kings iii. 1.); once upon his father's going to war against the Moabites; and again on his father's death. It is doubtful on which of these occasions he destroyed his brothers, and attempted to restore idolatry. If on his first or second accession, the letter might have been written by Elijah immediately preceding his assumption. But it does not appear probable either that Jehoram would have acted in this cruel and unnatural manner, or that he would have endeavoured to establish idolatry during the lifetime of his father, who was zealous for the worship of the true God. This argument, therefore, prevents us from supposing that he deserved to receive the letter after his first or second accession; we must therefore conclude he destroyed his brothers and restored superstition after his father's death.

But at this time, Elijah had ascended into heaven. Three hypotheses have been framed to account for this apparent difficulty. One supposes, that for Elijah we ought to read Elisha. Another, that the Elijah here mentioned is another prophet of that name, and not Elijah the Tishbite. The third is, that immediately preceding his ascension into heaven, when Jehoram was first raised to the joint administration of the kingdom by his father Jehoshaphat, Elijah predicted the enormities of which he would be guilty, and left the writing with the sons of the prophets. When the circumstances prophesied by Elijah had actually taken place, the writing was sent to Jehoram; the account of the punishment of his offences was laid before him; an interval was allowed him for repentance; and, at the end of a short time, he fell a victim to the disease foretold by Elijah.

If, then, we come to the conclusion, that this letter of Elijah to Jehoram was written by the prophet before the murder of his brothers, it may be esteemed one of the most important passages in the books of Scripture. It may be regarded as the commencement of that part of the dispensations of Providence, which was continued nearly to the close of the canon of Scripture; that is, it was the first written prophecy of which we read, which confined itself to the judgments about to be inflicted on an individual. It was a new mode of appeal to the princes and people of Israel and Judah. It was made at a time when the public corruption was at its height; it was confirmed by the most wonderful miracles, and authenticated by the witnesses among whom it was deposited, who were most probably the sons of the prophets.

Lightfoot is of opinion that the letter was sent by Elijah after Jehoram's first accession to the throne. Of the three hypotheses above mentioned, the first is maintained by Dr. Hales; the second by Dr. Wall; the third by Pfeiffer, and Bishop Patrick on the authority of Kimchi. There is yet another, which I mention as a specimen of the sober judgment exercised in Jewish or Rabbinical criticism. The Jews believe that Elijah sent the letter to Jehoram from heaven. In one of their books, indeed, it is asserted that Elijah is still engaged in writing a history of the world.—Vide Patrick and Lightfoot in loc.; Pfeiffer, Dubia Vexata, &c. p. 471.

EVENTS IN THE KINGDOM OF ISRAEL, CONTEMPORARY WITH THE REIGN OF JEHORAM, KING OF JUDAH.

Continuation of the Reign of Jehoram, King of Israel;—Siege of Samaria;—The Famine and sudden Deliverance.

2 KINGS vi. 24, to the end, vii. and viii. 1–6.

The famine in Samaria causeth women to eat their own children. 30 The king sendeth to slay Elisha. — Chap. vii. 1 Elisha prophesieth incredible plenty in Samaria. 3 Four lepers bring tidings of the flight of the Syrians. 12 The king spoileth their tents. 17 The lord, who would not believe the prophecy of plenty, is trodden to death in the press. — Chap. viii 1 The Shunammite, having left her country seven years, to avoid the forewarned famine, for Elisha's miracle sake hath her land restored by the king.

[24] AND it came to pass after this, that Ben-hadad king of Syria gathered all his host, and went up, and besieged Samaria. [25] And there was a great famine in Samaria; and, behold, they besieged it, until an ass's head was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cab of dove's dung for five pieces of silver. [26] And as the king of Israel was passing by upon the wall, there cried a woman unto him, saying, "Help, my lord, O king!" [27] And he said, "*If the LORD do not help thee, whence shall I help thee? out of the barnfloor, or out of the winepress?" [28] And the king said unto her, "What aileth thee?" And she answered, "This woman said unto me, 'Give thy son, that we may eat him to-day, and we will eat my son to-morrow.' [29] So [a]we boiled my son, and did eat him; and I said unto her on the †next day, 'Give thy son, that we may eat him;' and she hath hid her son."

* Or, Let not the LORD save thee.

[30] And it came to pass, when the king heard the words of the woman, that he rent his clothes; and he passed by upon the wall, and the people looked, and, behold, he had sackcloth within upon his flesh. [31] Then he said, "God do so and more also to me, if the head of Elisha the son of Shaphat shall stand on him this day." [32] But Elisha sat in his house, and [b]the elders sat with him. And the king sent a man from before him; but ere the messenger came to him, he said to the elders, "See [c]ye how this son of [d]a murderer hath sent to take away my head? look, when the messenger cometh, shut the door, and hold him fast at the door: is not the sound of his master's feet behind him?" [33] And while he yet talked with them, behold, the messenger came down unto him: and he said, "Behold, this evil is of the LORD; [e]what should I wait for the LORD any longer?"

2 KINGS vii.

[1] Then Elisha said, "Hear ye the word of the LORD. Thus saith the LORD, To-morrow about this time shall a measure of fine flour be sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, in the gate of Samaria." [2] Then a lord ‡on whose hand the king leaned answered the man of God, and said, "Behold, [f]if the LORD would make windows in heaven, might this thing be?" And he said, "Behold, thou shalt see it with thine eyes, but shalt not eat thereof."

[3] And there were four leprous men [g]at the entering in of the gate; and they said one to another, "Why sit we here until we die? [4] If we say, We will enter into the city, then the famine is in the city, and we shall die there: and if we sit still here, we die also. Now therefore come, and let us fall unto the host of the Syrians; if they save us alive, we shall live, and if they kill us, we shall but die." [5] And they rose up in the twilight, to go unto the camp of the Syrians; and when they were come to the uttermost part of the camp of Syria, behold, there was no man there! [6] For the LORD had made the host of the Syrians [h]to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even the noise of a great host: and they said one to another, "Lo! the king of Israel hath hired against us the kings of the Hittites, and the kings of the Egyptians, to come upon us." [7] Wherefore they [i]arose and fled in the twilight, and left their tents, and their horses, and their asses, even the camp as it was, and fled for their life. [8] And when these lepers came to the uttermost part of the camp, they went into one tent, and did eat and drink, and carried thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went and hid it; and came again, and entered into another tent, and carried thence also, and went and hid it. [9] Then they said one to another, "We do not well; this day is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace. If we tarry till the morning light, *some mischief will come upon us; now therefore come, that we may go and tell the king's household." [10] So they came and called unto the porter of the city; and they told them, saying, "We came to the camp of the Syrians, and, behold, there was no man there, neither voice of man, but horses tied, and asses tied, and the tents as they were." [11] And he called the porters; and they told it to the king's house within.

[12] And the king arose in the night, and said unto his servants, "I will now show you what the Syrians have done to us. They know that we be hungry; therefore are they gone out of the camp to hide themselves in the field, saying, When they come out of the city, we shall catch them alive, and get into the city." [13] And one of his servants answered and said, "Let some take, I pray thee, five of the horses that remain, which are left †in the city, (behold, they are as all the multitude of Israel that are left in it: behold, I say, they are even as all the multitude of the Israelites that are consumed;) and let us send and see." [14] They took therefore two chariot horses; and the king sent after the host of the Syrians, saying, "Go and see." [15] And they went after them unto Jordan; and, lo! all the way was full of garments and vessels, which the Syrians had cast away in their haste. And the messengers returned, and told the king. [16] And the people went out, and spoiled the tents of the Syrians. So a measure of fine flour was sold for a shekel, and two measures of barley for a shekel, according to the word of the LORD.

[17] And the king appointed the lord on whose hand he leaned to have the charge of the gate; and the people trode upon him in the gate, and he died, as the man of God had said, who spake when the king came down to him. [18] And it came to pass as the man of God had spoken to the king, saying, "Two measures of barley for a shekel, and a measure of fine flour for a shekel, shall be to-morrow about this time in the gate of Samaria." [19] And that lord answered the man of God, and said, "Now, behold, if the LORD should make windows in heaven,

(15) In 2 Kings viii. 25. we read that in the "twelfth year" of Joram, Ahaziah began to reign; and in 2 Kings ix. 29. that it was in the "eleventh year." The commencement of Ahaziah's reign is computed in the first passage from the year when Joram assumed the reins of government, in the last year of his father's life; in the second passage it is dated from his father's death.—Vide Lightfoot's Prolegomena to the Harmony of the Evangelists; Works. vol. i. p. 388.

(16) In 2 Chronicles xxii. 2, we read, Ahaziah was forty-two years old when he began to reign; and in 2 Kings viii. 26. we read, he was twenty-two years old at that time. This difficulty is solved, by reading with the Septuagint. Syriac, and Arabic versions, "twenty-two" instead of "forty-two" in the first passage; or by supposing with Lightfoot, that the author of the Book of Chronicles computed from the accession of the house of Omri, his mother's name being Athaliah the daughter of Omri. The original properly signifies, "Ahaziah was the son of the two and forty years," namely, of the house of Omri. A similar mode of reckoning occurs in 2 Kings xxiv. 8, compared with 2 Chronicles xxxvi. 9.—Vide Lightfoot in loc.; Hales's Anal. vol. ii. p. 428.

2 CHRON. xxii. middle of ver. 9.—And when they had slain him, they buried him;—

(17) This passage refers to the death of Joram, who was slain when he went out to meet Jehu, accompanied by Ahaziah, 2 Kings ix. 23. The abruptness of this division is unavoidable, as the death of Ahaziah is related by the inspired writers in intimate connection with that of Jehoram: but in this arrangement it was absolutely necessary to separate them, that the account of Ahaziah's death might be given with his life and reign.

The circumstances attending on the death of this king, as they are related in 2 Chron. xxii. 8, 9, seem at first sight to differ materially from those mentioned in 2 Kings ix. 27, 28. In the former passage we read, that Ahaziah, after making his escape from Jezreel, was brought to Jehu in Samaria, and when they had slain him they buried him. From which it might be inferred, that Jehu had commanded that Ahaziah should be slain in Samaria. In the latter passage we, on the contrary, read, that he was mortally wounded at Gur, near Ibleam, while Jehu was following him. Notwithstanding these apparent contradictions, the two accounts, I think, may be reconciled, by observing the order of the events, as shown in the Book of Chronicles.

The chief cause of the apparent inconsistency lies in the expression (2 Chron. xxii. 9,) "they brought him to Jehu;" from which phrase it would appear, that Ahaziah was actually made a prisoner, and as such brought to Jehu. But the word in the original, ויבאהו, though it signifies "brought," as our translators have rendered it, may have a wider signification, and may be thus translated, "They caused him to be seen by Jehu:" Ahaziah was pointed out, or made to appear, or caused to be seen by Jehu, when he fled from Samaria; who immediately, upon seeing him, issued the order to his soldiers, "Smite him also in the chariot.

By interpreting the phrase in question in this manner, we solve the whole difficulty. Ahaziah, after the death of Joram, made his escape to Samaria, to which place he is followed (after Jehu had destroyed Ahab's brethren and children, as well as Ahaziah's kindred), by Jehu and his soldiers. On their arrival at Samaria, they search for, and discover, the retreat of Ahaziah; who, on perceiving that his hiding place was known, again attempted to make his escape. In so doing, Jehu sees him, and immediately gives the order, "Smite him also in the chariot," (as Joram was smitten,) and they did so at the going up to Gur, which is by Ibleam, where Ahaziah was overtaken. After the soldiers of Jehu had mortally wounded him, his charioteer escaped with him to Megiddo, where he died.

On consulting the map of the tribe of Manasseh, in which these events took place, it will be found that they might all have occurred within the space of two days. Joram was killed at Jezreel, from which place Samaria was ten miles distant; from Samaria to Gur, not quite eight; from Gur to Ibleam, twelve more; and Ibleam was less than four miles from Megiddo.—Vide the map of the tribe of Ephraim, in Heming's Scripture Atlas.

Section I.—Murder of Ben-hadad by Hazael.

2 Kings viii. 7–15.

Hazael being sent with a present by Ben-hadad to Elisha at Damascus, after he had heard the prophecy, killeth his master and succeedeth him.

[7] And Elisha came to Damascus; and Ben-hadad the king of Syria was sick; and it was told him, saying, "The man of God is come hither." [8] And the king said unto [a]Hazael, "Take [b]a present in thy hand, and go, meet the man of God, and inquire of the Lord by him, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?" [9] So Hazael went to meet him, and took a present [*]with him, even of every good thing of Damascus, forty camels' burden, and came and stood before him, and said, "Thy son Ben-hadad king of Syria hath sent me to thee, saying, Shall I recover of this disease?" [10] And Elisha said unto him, "Go, say unto him, Thou mayest certainly recover; howbeit the Lord hath showed me that he shall surely (18)die." [11] And he settled his countenance [†]steadfastly, until he was ashamed; and the man of God [c]wept. [12] And Hazael said, "Why weepeth my lord?" And he answered, "Because I know [d]the evil that thou wilt do unto the children of Israel: their strongholds wilt thou set on fire, and their young men wilt thou slay with the sword, and [e]wilt dash their children, and rip up their women with child." [13] And Hazael said, "But what, is thy servant a dog, that he should do this great thing?" And Elisha answered, "The [f]Lord hath showed me that thou shalt be king over Syria." [14] So he departed from Elisha, and came to his master, who said to him, "What said Elisha to thee?" And he answered, "He told me that thou shouldest surely recover." [15] And it came to pass on the morrow, that he took a thick cloth, and dipped it in water, and spread it on his face, so that he died; and Hazael reigned in his stead.

Section II.—Conspiracy of Jehu;—Death of Jehoram.

2 Kings ix. 1–26.

Elisha sendeth a young prophet with instructions to anoint Jehu at Ramoth-gilead. 4 The prophet having done his message fleeth. 11 Jehu, being made king by the soldiers, killeth Joram in the field of Naboth.

[1] And Elisha the prophet called one of the children of the prophets, and said unto him, "Gird up thy loins, and take this box of oil in thy hand, and go to Ramoth-gilead. [2] And when thou comest thither, look out there Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi, and go in, and make him arise up from among his brethren, and carry him to an [*]inner chamber; [3] then take the box of oil, and pour it on his head, and say, Thus saith the Lord, I have anointed thee king over Israel. Then open the door, and flee, and tarry not."

[*] Heb. chamber in a chamber.

[4] So the young man, even the young man the prophet, went to Ramoth-gilead. [5] And when he came, behold, the captains of the host were sitting; and he said, "I have an errand to thee, O captain!" And Jehu said, "Unto which of all us?" And he said, "To thee, O captain!" [6] And he arose, and went into the house; and he poured the oil on his head, and said unto him, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, I have anointed thee king over the people of the Lord, even over Israel. [7] And thou shalt smite the house of Ahab thy master, that

(18) This passage has been much misunderstood. The most probable meaning seems to be, "Tell the king that his disease is not mortal, and therefore he might recover from it." The prophet, however, who foresaw that Hazael would murder the king, adds in a reproachful and significant manner, "Howbeit the Lord hath showed me that he shall surely die;" intimating, by these words, "the king will die, but he would have recovered, had he not been prevented by your violence and treachery.

I may avenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the Lord, at the hand of Jezebel. [8] For the whole house of Ahab shall perish; and [a]I will cut off from Ahab him that pisseth against the wall, and [b]him that is shut up and left in Israel. [9] And I will make the house of Ahab like the house of [c]Jeroboam the son of Nebat, and like the house of [d]Baasha the son of Ahijah. [10] And [e]the dogs shall eat Jezebel in the portion of Jezreel, and there shall be none to bury her." And he opened the door, and fled.

[11] Then Jehu came forth to the servants of his lord: and one said unto him, "Is all well? wherefore came [f]this mad fellow to thee?" And he said unto them, "Ye know the man, and his communication." [12] And they said, "It is false; tell us now." And he said, "Thus and thus spake he to me, saying, 'Thus saith the Lord, I have anointed thee king over Israel.'" [13] Then they hasted, and [g]took every man his garment, and put it under him on the top of the stairs, and blew with trumpets, saying, "Jehu †is king!" [14] So Jehu the son of Jehoshaphat the son of Nimshi conspired against Joram. (Now Joram had kept Ramoth-gilead, he and all Israel, because of Hazael king of Syria. [15] But king ‡Joram was returned to be healed in Jezreel of the wounds which the Syrians *had given him, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria.) And Jehu said, "If it be your minds, then †let none go forth nor escape out of the city to go to tell it in Jezreel." [16] So Jehu rode in a chariot, and went to Jezreel; for Joram lay there. And Ahaziah king of Judah was come down to see Joram. [17] And there stood a watchman on the tower in Jezreel, and he spied the company of Jehu as he came, and said, "I see a company." And Joram said, "Take a horseman, and send to meet them, and let him say, Is it peace?" [18] So there went one on horseback to meet him, and said, "Thus saith the king, Is it peace?" And Jehu said, "What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me." And the watchman told, saying, "The messenger came to them, but he cometh not again." [19] Then he sent out a second on horseback, which came to them, and said, "Thus saith the king, Is it peace?" And Jehu answered, "What hast thou to do with peace? turn thee behind me." [20] And the watchman told, saying, "He came even unto them, and cometh not again; and the ‡driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Nimshi, for he driveth *furiously." [21] And Joram said, "†Make ready." And his chariot was made ready. And Joram king of Israel and Ahaziah king of Judah went out, each in his chariot, and they went out against Jehu, and ‡met him in the portion of Naboth the Jezreelite. [22] And it came to pass, when Joram saw Jehu, that he said, "Is it peace, Jehu?" And he answered, "What peace, so long as the whoredoms of thy mother Jezebel and her witchcrafts are so many?" [23] And Joram turned his hands, and fled, and said to Ahaziah, "There is treachery, O Ahaziah!" [24] And Jehu *drew a bow with his full strength, and smote Jehoram between his arms, and the arrow went out at his heart, and he †sunk down in his chariot. [25] Then said Jehu to Bidkar his captain, "Take up, and cast him in the portion of the field of Naboth the Jezreelite; for remember how that, when I and thou rode together after Ahab his father, [h]the Lord laid this burden upon him. [26] 'Surely I have seen yesterday the ‡blood of Naboth, and the blood of his sons,' saith the Lord; 'and [i]I will requite thee in this *plat,' saith the Lord. [30] AND when Jehu was come to Jezreel, Jezebel heard of it; and she *painted her face, and tired her head, and looked out at a window. [31] And as Jehu entered in at the gate, she said, "Had [a]Zimri peace, who slew his master?" [32] And he lifted up his face to the window, and said, "Who is on my side? who?" And there looked out to him two or three †eunuchs. [33] And he said, "Throw her down." So they threw her down; and some of her blood was sprinkled on the wall, and on the horses: and he trode her under foot. [34] And when he was come in, he did eat and drink, and said, "Go, see now this cursed woman, and bury her; [b]for she is a king's daughter." [35] And they went to bury her; but they found no more of her than the skull, and the feet, and the palms of her hands. [36] Wherefore they came again, and told him. And he said, "This is the word of the LORD, which he spake ‡by his servant Elijah the Tishbite, saying, 'In [c]the portion of Jezreel shall dogs eat the flesh of Jezebel. [1] And Ahab had seventy sons in Samaria. And Jehu wrote letters, and sent to Samaria, unto the rulers of Jezreel, to the elders, and to *them that brought up Ahab's children, saying, [2] "Now as soon as this letter cometh to you, seeing your master's sons are with you, and there are with you chariots and horses, a fenced city also, and armor; [3] look even out the best and meetest of your master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for your master's house." [4] But they were exceedingly afraid, and said, "Behold, two kings stood not before him: how then shall we stand?" [5] And he that was over the house, and he that was over the city, the elders also, and the bringers up of the children, sent to Jehu, saying, "We are thy servants, and will do all that thou shalt bid us; we will not make any king: do thou that which is good in thine eyes." [6] Then he wrote a letter the second time to them, saying, "If ye be †mine, and if ye will hearken unto my voice, take ye the heads of the men your master's sons, and come to me to Jezreel by to-morrow this time." Now the king's sons, being seventy persons, were with the great men of the city, which brought them up. [7] And it came to pass, when the letter came to them, that they took the king's sons, and [e]slew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent him them to Jezreel.

[10] Know now that there shall [f]fall unto the earth nothing of the word of the LORD, which the LORD spake concerning the house of Ahab; for the LORD hath done that which he spake ‡by his servant Elijah." [18] And Jehu gathered all the people together, and said unto them, "Ahab [l]served Baal a little; but Jehu shall serve him much. [19] Now therefore call unto me all the prophets of Baal, all his servants, and all his priests; let none be wanting; for I have a great sacrifice to do to Baal; whosoever shall be wanting, he shall not live." But Jehu did it in subtilty, to the intent that he might destroy the worshippers of Baal. [20] And Jehu said, "*Proclaim a solemn assembly for Baal." And they proclaimed it. [21] And Jehu sent through all Israel; and all the worshippers of Baal came, so that there was not a man left that came not. And they came into the house of Baal; and the house of Baal was †full from one end to another. [22] And he said unto him that was over the vestry, "Bring forth vestments for all the worshippers of Baal." And he brought them forth vestments. [23] And Jehu went, and Jehonadab the son of Rechab, into the house of Baal, and said unto the worshippers of Baal, "Search, and look that there be here with you none of the servants of the LORD, but the worshippers of Baal only." [24] And when they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings, Jehu appointed fourscore men without, and said, "If any of the men whom I have brought into your hands escape, he that letteth him go, his life shall be for the life of him." [25] And it came to pass, as soon as he had made an end of offering the burnt offering, that Jehu said to the guard and to the captains, "Go in, and slay them; let none come forth." And they smote them with ‡the edge of the sword; and the guard and the captains cast them out, and went to the city of the house of Baal. [26] And they brought forth the *images out of the house of Baal, and burned them. [27] And they brake down the image of Baal, and brake down the house of Baal, [m]and made it a draught-house unto this day. [28] Thus Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel.

THE REIGN OF ATHALIAH, QUEEN OF JUDAH.

2 CHRON. xxii. 10, to the end, xxiv. 7–11, xxiii. 1–15.—2 KINGS xi. 1–16.

Athaliah, destroying all the seed royal, save Joash, whom Jehoshabeath his aunt hid, usurpeth the kingdom. Athaliah's sons bestow all the dedicated things upon Baalim. Jehoiada maketh Joash king. Athaliah is slain.

[a] 2 Ki. 11. 2. Jehosheba.

[10] BUT when Athaliah the mother of Ahaziah saw that her son was dead, she arose and destroyed all the seed royal of the house of Judah. [11] But [a]Jehoshabeath, the daughter of the king, took Joash the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons that were slain, and put him and his nurse in a bedchamber. So Jehoshabeath, the daughter of king Jehoram, the wife of Jehoiada the priest, (for she was the sister of Ahaziah,) hid him from Athaliah, so that she slew him not. [12] And he was with them hid in the house of God six years; and Athaliah reigned over the land.

up the house of God; and also all the dedicated things of the house of the Lord did they bestow upon Baalim. [8] And at the king's commandment they made a chest, and set it without at the gate of the house
* Heb. a voice. of the Lord. [9] And they made *a proclamation through Judah and Jerusalem, to bring in to the Lord the collection that Moses the servant of God laid upon Israel in the wilderness. [10] And all the princes and all the people rejoiced, and brought in, and cast into the chest, until they had made an end. [11] Now it came to pass, that at what time the chest was brought unto the king's office by the hand of the Levites, and c 2 Ki. 12. 10. [c]when they saw that there was much money, the king's scribe and the high priest's officer came and emptied the chest, and took it, and carried it to his place again. Thus they did day by day, and gathered money in abundance.

[1] And in the seventh year Jehoiada strengthened himself, 2 Chron. xxiii. 1–15.
and took the captains of hundreds, Azariah the son of Jeroham, and Ishmael the son of Jehohanan, and Azariah the son of Obed, and Maaseiah the son of Adaiah, and Elishaphat the son of Zichri, into covenant with him. [2] And they went about in Judah, and gathered the Levites out of all the cities of Judah, and the chief of the fathers of Israel, and they came to Jerusalem. [3] And all the congregation made a covenant with the king in the house of God. And he said unto them, d 2 Sa. 7. 12. "Behold, the king's son shall reign, as the Lord hath [d]said of the sons of David. [4] This is the thing that ye shall do;—A third part of you entering on the Sabbath, of the priests and of the Levites, shall be porters of † Heb. thresholds. the †doors; [5] and a third part shall be at the king's house; and a third part at the gate of the foundation: and all the people shall be in the courts of the house of the Lord. [6] But let none come into the house of they shall go in, for they are holy; but all the people shall keep the watch of the Lord. [7] And the Levites shall compass the king round about, every man with his weapons in his hand; and whosoever else cometh into the house, he shall be put to death: but be ye with the king when he cometh in, and when he goeth out." [8] So the Levites and all Judah did according to all things that Jehoiada the priest had commanded, and took every man his men that were to come in on the Sabbath, with them that were to go out on the Sabbath; for Jehoiada the priest dismissed not the courses. [9] Moreover Jehoiada the priest delivered to the captains of hundreds spears, and bucklers, and shields, that had been king David's, which were in the house of God. [10] And he set all the people, every man having his weapon in his hand, from [12] Now when Athaliah heard the noise of the people running and entering in, and the princes and the trumpets by the king; and all the

For the priest had said, "Let her not be slain in the house of the LORD." REIGN OF JOASH, KING OF JUDAH.

Early Reign of Joash;—He repairs the Temple;—His Apostacy;—His Death.

2 KINGS xii. part of 1, xi. 21, xii. end of 1, 2, 3.—2 CHRON. xxiii. 16, to the end, xxiv. 3–5.—2 KINGS xii. 4–6.—2 CHRON. xxiv. 6.—2 KINGS xii. 7–14.—2 CHRON. xxiv. 12–14.—2 KINGS xii. 15–18.—2 CHRON. xxiv. 15–27.—2 KINGS xii. 19.—2 KINGS xi. 17–20, and xii. 20, 21.—2 CHRON. xxiv. 1, 2.

2 KINGS xi. 21.

[1] IN the seventh year of Jehu, Jehoash began to reign; [21] seven years old was Jehoash when he began to reign. [1] And forty years reigned he in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Zibiah of Beer-sheba. [2] And Jehoash did that which was right in the sight of the LORD all his days wherein Jehoiada the priest instructed him. [3] But [a]the high places were not taken away; the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places.

2 Chron. xxiii. 16, to the end.

[16] And Jehoiada made a covenant between him and between all the people, and between the king, that they should be the Lord's people. [17] Then all the people went to the house of Baal, and brake it down, and brake his altars and his images in pieces, and [b]slew Mattan the priest of Baal before the altars. [18] Also Jehoiada appointed the officers of the house of the Lord by the hand of the priests the Levites, whom David had [c]distributed in the house of the Lord, to offer the burnt offerings of the Lord, as it is written in the [d]Law of Moses, with rejoicing and with singing, as it was ordained *by David. [19] And he set the [e]porters at the gates of the house of the Lord, that none which was unclean in any thing should enter in. [20] And he took the captains of hundreds, and the nobles, and the governors of the people, and all the people of the land, and brought down the king from the house of the Lord; and they came through the high gate into the king's house, and set the king upon the throne of the kingdom. [21] And all the people of the land rejoiced; and the city was quiet, after that they had slain Athaliah with the sword.

[4] And it came to pass after this, that Joash was minded †to repair the house of the Lord. [5] And he gathered together the priests and the Levites, and said to them, "Go out unto the cities of Judah, and gather of all Israel money to repair the house of your God from year to year, and see that ye hasten the matter." Howbeit the Levites hastened it not.

[7] Then king Jehoash called for Jehoiada the priest, and the other priests, and said unto them, "Why repair ye not the breaches of the house? now therefore receive no more money of your acquaintance, but deliver it for the breaches of the house." [8] And the priests consented to receive no more money of the people, neither to repair the breaches of the house. [9] But Jehoiada the priest took a chest, and bored a hole in the lid of it, and set it beside the altar, on the right side as one cometh into the house of the Lord; and the priests that kept the *door put therein all the money that was brought into the house of the Lord. [10] And it was so, when they saw that there was much money in the chest, that the king's †scribe and the high priest came up, and they ‡put up in bags, and told the money that was found in the house of the Lord. [11] And they gave the money, being told, into the hands of them that did the work, that had the oversight of the house of the Lord; and they *laid it out to the carpenters and builders, that wrought upon the house of the Lord, [12] and to masons,

[12] And the king and Jehoiada gave it to such as did the work of the service of the house of the Lord, and hired masons and carpenters to repair the house of the Lord, and also such as wrought iron and brass to mend the house of the Lord. [13] So the workmen wrought, and ‡the work was perfected by them, and they set the house of God in his state, and strengthened it. [17] Then [j]Hazael king of Syria went up, and fought against Gath, and took it; and Hazael set his face to go up to Jerusalem. [15] But Jehoiada waxed old, and was full of days when he died; an hundred and thirty years old was he when he died. [16] And they buried him in the city of David among the kings, because he had done good in Israel, both toward God, and toward his house. [17] Now after the death of Jehoiada came the princes of Judah, and made obeisance to the king. Then the king hearkened unto them. [19] Yet [n]he sent prophets to them, to bring them again unto the Lord; and they testified against them, but they would not give ear. [20] And [o]the Spirit of God ‡came upon Zechariah the son of Jehoiada the priest, which stood above the people, and said unto them, "Thus saith God, [p]Why transgress ye the commandments of the Lord, that ye cannot prosper? [q]because ye have forsaken the Lord, he hath also forsaken you." [21] And they conspired against him, and [r]stoned him with stones at the commandment of the king in the court of the house of the Lord. [22] Thus Joash the king remembered not the kindness which Jehoiada his father had done to him, but slew his son. And when he died, he said, "The Lord look upon it, and require it."

THE REIGN OF AMAZIAH.

Amaziah punishes the Murderers of his Father;—War with Edom;—War with Israel;—His death.

2 KINGS xiv. 1–6.—2 CHRON. xxv. 5–11.—2 KINGS xiv. part of 7.—2 CHRON. xxv. 12–16. 2 KINGS xiv. 8–14.—2 CHRON. xxv. 27, 28, 25, 26.—2 KINGS xiv. part of 7, 17–20.—2 CHRON. xxv. 1–4, and 17–24.

[1] IN the second year of Joash son of Jehoahaz king of Israel reigned Amaziah the son of Joash king of Judah. [2] He was twenty and five years old when he began to reign, and reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jehoaddan of Jerusalem. [3] And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, yet not like David his father: he did according to all things as Joash his father did. [4] Howbeit the high places were not taken away: as yet the people did sacrifice and burnt incense on the high places.

b De. 24. 16. Ez. 18. 4, 20.

[5] And it came to pass, as soon as the kingdom was confirmed in his hand, that he slew his servants [a]which had slain the king his father. [6] But the children of the murderers he slew not: according unto that which is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, wherein the Lord commanded, saying, "The [b]fathers shall not be put to death for the children, nor the children be put to death for the fathers; but every man shall be put to death for his own sin."

[5] Moreover Amaziah gathered Judah together, and made them captains over thousands, and captains over hundreds, according to the houses of their fathers, throughout all Judah and Benjamin; and he numbered them [c]from twenty years old and above, and found them three hundred thousand choice men, able to go forth to war, that could handle spear and shield. [6] He hired also an hundred thousand mighty men of valor out of Israel for an hundred talents of silver. [7] But there came a man of God to him, saying, "O king, let not the army of Israel go with thee; for the Lord is not with Israel, to wit, with all the children of Ephraim. [8] But if thou wilt go, do it, be strong for the battle: God shall make thee fall before the enemy; for God hath power to help, and to cast down." [9] And Amaziah said to the man of God, "But what shall we do for the hundred talents which I have given to the *army of Israel?" And the man of God answered, "The Lord is able to give thee much more than this." [10] Then Amaziah separated them, to wit, the army that was come to him out of Ephraim, to go †home again; wherefore their anger was greatly kindled against Judah, and they returned home ‡in great anger.

[15] Wherefore the anger of the Lord was kindled against Amaziah, and he sent unto him a prophet, which said unto him, "Why hast thou sought after the gods of the people, which could not deliver their own people out of thy hand?" [16] And it came to pass, as he talked with him, that the king said unto him, "Art thou made of the king's counsel? forbear; why shouldest thou be smitten?" Then the prophet forbare, and said, "I know that God hath ‡determined to destroy thee, because thou hast done this, and hast not hearkened unto my counsel."

[8] Then Amaziah sent messengers to Jehoash, the son of Jehoahaz son of Jehu, king of Israel, saying, "Come, let us look one another in the face." (19) The kingdom of Judah began to decline immediately after the murder of Zacharias, son of Barachias or Jehoiada. Then it was that the prophet and the priest of the Lord was slain in the very courts of the temple. This was the climax of their wickedness, when, in the language of Hosea, "blood touched blood," (Hosea iv. 2.); when the people strove with the priest, and the blood of the sacrificer was mingled with the blood of the sacrifice. The king and people of Judah became open idolators, as Israel had long been, and Syria and Israel punished and oppressed them together.

At this period, the providence of God began to raise up that succession of prophets whose writings have been transmitted to, and have ever been held sacred by, the Christian Church. Joel, Amos, and Hosea, flourished together, predicting the future calamities of the Jews, the blessings of their restoration, the judgments of God upon their enemies, with other subjects of this high nature. These prophets commenced their office by predicting three judgments of the most fearful kind. The earthquake, which took place in the reigns of Uzziah and Jeroboam the Second, was foretold by Amos two years before it happened, (Amos i. 1.) Many suppose it was likewise predicted by Joel, about the same time. The second plague was that of locusts, caterpillars, and cankerworms, such as the oldest men had never seen, (Joel i. 2, 3, &c.); these came towards harvest time, in the beginning of the growth after mowing, (Amos vii. 1.); the vines were laid waste, the fig trees were barked, (Joel i. 7.); the harvest perished, and the trees withered, so that there was not corn and wine sufficient for a meat offering and a drink offering in the house of the Lord. The third plague was a miraculous drought, attended with fearful flashes of fire from heaven; the fire (Joel i. 19.) devoured all the pastures of the wilderness, and the flame burnt up all the trees of the field. Hosea also alludes to the same plague, (Hos. iv. 3.) Jonah is supposed to have been the contemporary of these prophets; but none of his prophecies are extant, except that against Nineveh.

The prophecy of Joel seems to have been the first that was delivered to the kingdom of Judah; though some have supposed that he lived in the reign of Joram, and others place him in the reign of Manasseh. He predicted, according to the best authorities, the same immediate events as Amos; and it is therefore natural to presume he lived about the same time. The book of Joel is placed here on the united authorities of its internal evidence, and the general opinion of modern commentators: viz.

Hath this been in your days,
Or even in the days of your fathers?
[a] See Ex. 10. 2.
[3] Tell [a]ye your children of it,
And let your children tell their children,
And their children another generation.

Test.* p. 120, 121; of Rosenmüller, in his Scholia in Vet. Test. partis septimæ, vol. i. p. 433, 434; and of Dr. Taylor. It is inserted here too, because Joel only speaks of Egypt and Edom (iii. 19.) as the enemies of Judea, without mentioning the Assyrians or Babylonians; he likewise denounces the same judgments as Amos against the Tyrians, Sidonians, and Idumeans, who had invaded the kingdom of Judah, and taken off many of the inhabitants for slaves; and in his time, the Jews were in full possession of their religious worship, (ii. 15–17.) Vide Horne's Introduction, vol. ii. p. 264.

The great majority of commentators having thus assigned the publication of the prophecy of Joel to the reign of Uzziah, we may conclude from internal evidence, that it was delivered at the time when that king had increased his army, and made himself formidable to the surrounding nations by the number of his engines of war, and the abundance of his arms. Confiding in his military power and greatness, "his heart was lifted up to his destruction," (2 Chron. xxvi. 16.) At this time, it is most probable, Joel predicted the entire overthrow of the kingdom of Judah by a foreign army, which he beautifully compares to that predicted flight of locusts, which about this time ravaged the country. The prophets commonly took advantage of the passing events of the day, to predict from them the future destiny of nations and empires. The occasions on which the prophecies were delivered, therefore, are generally to be found in the history of their own times.

For [k]the day of the LORD is at hand,
And as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come.
16 Is not the meat cut off before our eyes,
Yea, [l]joy and gladness from the house of our God?
17 The †seed is rotten under their clods,
The garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down;
For the corn is withered.
18 How do the beasts groan!
The herds of cattle are perplexed, because they have no pasture;
Yea, the flocks of sheep are made desolate.
19 O LORD, to thee will I cry;
For [m]the fire hath devoured the ‡pastures of the wilderness,
And the flame hath burned all the trees of the field.
20 The beasts of the field [n]cry also unto thee;
For [o]the rivers of waters are dried up,
And the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.
1 Blow [p]ye the *trumpet in Zion! CHAP. ii.
And sound an alarm in my holy mountain;
Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble;
For [q]the day of the LORD cometh, for it is nigh at hand.
2 A [r]day of darkness and of gloominess,
A day of clouds and of thick darkness,
As the morning spread upon the mountains:
A great people and a strong;
There hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it,
Even to the years †of many generations.
3 A fire devoureth before them;
And behind them a flame burneth:
The land is as [s]the garden of Eden before them,
And behind them a desolate wilderness—
Yea, and nothing shall escape them.
4 The [t]appearance of them is as the appearance of horses;
And as horsemen so shall they run.
5 Like the noise of chariots, on the tops of mountains shall they leap,
Like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble,
As a strong people set in battle array.
6 Before their face the people shall be much pained:
All [u]faces shall gather ‡blackness.
7 They shall run like mighty men;
They shall climb the wall like men of war;
And they shall march every one on his ways,
And they shall not break their ranks.
8 Neither shall one thrust another;
They shall walk every one in his path;
And when they fall upon the *sword, they shall not be wounded.
9 They shall run to and fro in the city;
They shall run upon the wall, they shall climb up upon the houses;
They shall enter in at the windows [v]like a thief.
10 The earth shall quake before them;
The heavens shall tremble;
The [w]sun and the moon shall be dark,
And the stars shall withdraw their shining.
11 And [x]the LORD shall utter his voice before his army;
For his camp is very great;
For he is strong that executeth his word;
For [y]the day of the LORD is great and very terrible—
And [z]who can abide it?

[12] Therefore also now, saith the Lord,
Turn [a]ye even to me with all your heart,

That the heathen should †rule over them:
Wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

And [i]pity his people.
[19] Yea, the Lord will answer and say unto his people,
Behold, I will send you corn,
And wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith:
And I will no more make you a reproach among the heathen;
[20] But [j]I will remove far off from you [k]the northern army,
And will drive him into a land barren and desolate,

And his hinder part [l]toward the utmost sea,
And his stink shall come up, and his ill savor shall come up,
Because he hath ‡done great things.”
[21] Fear not, O land! be glad and rejoice;
For the Lord will do great things.
[22] Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field:
For the pastures of the wilderness do spring,
For the tree beareth her fruit,
The fig tree and the vine do yield their strength.
[23] Be glad then, ye children of Zion,
And rejoice in the Lord your God:
For he hath given you *the former rain †moderately,
And he [m]will cause to come down for you [n]the rain,
The former rain, and the latter rain in the first month.
[24] And the floors shall be full of wheat,
And the vats shall overflow with wine and oil.
[25] And [a]I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten,
The cankerworm, and the caterpillar, and the palmerworm,
My great army which I sent among you.
[26] And ye shall [o]eat in plenty, and be satisfied,
And praise the name of the Lord your God,
That hath dealt wondrously with you;
And my people shall never be ashamed.

And sold a girl for wine,

4 Yea, and what have ye to do with me, [d]O Tyre, and Zidon!
And all the coasts of Palestine?
Will ye render me a recompence?
And if ye recompense me,

Have ye sold unto *the Grecians,
That ye might remove them far from their border.
7 Behold, [e]I will raise them out of the place

And will return your recompence upon your own head:

And they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people far off:
For the Lord hath spoken it.

Go out of the sanctuary, for thou hast trespassed; neither shall it be for thine honor from the Lord God." 19 Then Uzziah was wroth, and had a censer in his hand to burn incense; and while he was wroth with the priests, [e]the leprosy even rose up in his forehead before the priests in the house of the Lord, from beside the incense-altar. 20 And Azariah the chief priest, and all the priests, looked upon him, and, behold, he was leprous in his forehead, and they thrust him out from thence; yea, himself [f]hasted also to go out, because the Lord had smitten him. 21 And [g]Uzziah the king was a leper unto the day of his death, and dwelt in a *several house, being a leper, (for he was cut off from the house of the Lord;) and Jotham his son was over the king's house, judging the people of the land.

(20) The question has been much controverted, whether the vision of Isaiah, in the sixth chapter, was seen on his designation to the prophetic office, or after that time? Isaiah prophesied (i. 1.) in the days of Uzziah; and afterwards we find that he saw the vision in the year that king Uzziah died, (Isa. vi. 1.) Bishop Lowth is of opinion, that the first five chapters were delivered prior to the death of Uzziah, and the sixth immediately after it, and he interprets the phrase "in the year that king Uzziah died," to signify, after his death, in the year that he died. Dr. Wells and Lightfoot agree in this opinion. Bishop Horsley and Dr. Taylor unite in supposing that the first chapter is more descriptive of the reign of Ahaz than that of Uzziah; as in the reign of the latter the land was at rest, and the king good. It flourished likewise under the government of Jotham, who was also a good man; therefore, from its internal evidence, which is certainly the best, as well as from the opinion of many commentators, the first chapter of Isaiah is placed in the reign of Ahaz, with the exception of the first verse of that chapter, which may be considered as an introduction to the whole book. Isaiah was the greatest of all the prophets, through all ages of the church, and was in all probability appointed to his great office with more than usual solemnity. Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, &c. all give some account, in the beginning of their writings, of the manner, or of the circumstances under which they were respectively called to fill the prophetic office. We have every reason to suppose, therefore, that the chief prophet would likewise have been favored with similar demonstrations of his divine appointment.—Vide Lowth's Isaiah, note in loc.; Lightfoot, vol. i. p. 98.; Horsley's Bib. Crit. vol. ii. p. 4.; Vitringa, tom. i. p. 25–29.; Gray's and Horne's Introduc.; Taylor's Scheme of Divinity, ch. xxxiv.

12 And [h]the Lord have removed men far away,
And there be a great forsaking in the midst of the land.
13 But yet in it shall be a tenth,

When they cast their leaves:
So [i]the holy seed shall be the substance thereof."

Chap. ii

2 [a]And it shall come to pass in the last days,
That the mountain of the Lord's house
Shall †be established in the top of the mountains,
And shall be exalted above the hills;
And all nations shall flow unto it.
3 And many people shall go and say,
Come [j]ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord,
To the house of the God of Jacob;
And he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths
For [k]out of Zion shall go forth the law,
And the word of the Lord from Jerusalem;
4 And he shall judge among the nations,
And shall rebuke many people.
And [l]they shall beat their swords into ploughshares,
And their spears into ‡pruning-hooks:
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war any more.
5 O house of Jacob! come ye,
And let us [m]walk in the light of the Lord.
6 Therefore thou hast forsaken thy people the house of Jacob,
Because they be replenished *from the east,
And are soothsayers like the Philistines,
And they †please themselves in the children of strangers.
7 Their land also is full of silver and gold,
Neither is there any end of their treasures;
Their land is also full of horses,
Neither is there any end of their chariots:
8 Their [n]land also is full of idols;
They worship the work of their own hands,
That which their own fingers have made:
9 And the mean man boweth down,
And the great man humbleth himself:
Therefore forgive them not.
10 Enter [o]into the rock, and hide thee in the dust,
For fear of the Lord, and for the glory of his majesty.
11 The lofty looks of man shall be humbled,
And the haughtiness of men shall be bowed down,
And the Lord alone shall be exalted [p]in that day.
12 For the day of the Lord of hosts shall be Upon every one that is proud and lofty,
And upon every one that is lifted up;
And he shall be brought low:
13 And upon all the cedars of Lebanon, that are high and lifted up,
And upon all the oaks of Bashan,
14 And upon all the high mountains,
And upon all the hills that are lifted up,

[a] This chapter is a good example to illustrate one of the chief difficulties in the prophetical writings, viz. the change of the person speaking, or of the person spoken to, while the subject continues the same, or the prophet is virtually the speaker throughout. In v. 2, the prophet speaks in his own proper person. In v. 3, he puts language into the mouths of the people. In v. 6, he addresses the Deity. In v. 10, as though what he saw in vision was actually present, he calls on the people for expressions of fear or homage.—Ed.

CHAP. V.

1 Now will I sing to my well-beloved
A song of my beloved touching [k]his vineyard.
My well-beloved hath a vineyard
In †a very fruitful hill:
2 And he ‡fenced it, and gathered out the stones thereof,
And planted it with the choicest vine,
And built a tower in the midst of it,
And also *made a winepress therein:
And [l]he looked that it should bring forth grapes,
And it brought forth wild grapes!
3 And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem, and men of Judah!
Judge, [m]I pray you, betwixt me and my vineyard.
4 What could have been done more to my vineyard,
That I have not done in it?
Wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes,
Brought it forth wild grapes?
5 And now go to; I will tell you
What I will do to my vineyard:
I will take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be eaten up;
And break down the wall thereof, and it shall be †trodden down:
6 And I will lay it waste:
It shall not be pruned, nor digged;
But there shall come up briers and thorns:
I will also command the clouds
That they rain no rain upon it.
7 For the vineyard of the LORD of hosts is the house of Israel,
And the men of Judah ‡his pleasant plant:
And he looked for judgment—but behold *oppression;
For righteousness—but behold a cry.
8 Woe unto them that join house to house,
That lay field to field,
Till there be no place,
That †they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth!
9 ‡In mine ears, said the LORD of hosts,
*Of a truth many houses shall be desolate,
Even great and fair, without inhabitant.
10 Yea, ten acres of vineyard shall yield one bath
And the seed of an homer shall yield an ephah.
11 Woe [n]unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink;
That continue until night, till wine †inflame them!
12 And the harp, and the viol, the tabret, and pipe,
And wine, are in their feasts;
But [o]they regard not the work of the LORD,
Neither consider the operation of his hands.
13 Therefore [p]my people are gone into captivity, [q]because they have no knowledge;
And ‡their honorable men are famished,
And their multitude dried up with thirst.

[1] The Word of the Lord that came unto Hosea, the Son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, Kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the Son of Joash, King of Israel.

---

(21) The first three chapters of Hosea are inserted here, on the joint authorities of Dr. Wells, Blair, Dr. Gray, Lightfoot, Taylor, and the introductory verse. Hosea is supposed to have been the most ancient of the minor prophets. The general scope of this prophet's predictions is supposed by all commentators to be, 1. Partly to detect, reprove, and convince the Jewish nation generally, and the Israelites in particular, of their many and heinous sins, especially of their gross idolatry: the corrupt state of the kingdom is also incidentally noticed:—2. Partly to denounce the imminent and utter rejection, final captivity, and destruction of the Israelites by the Assyrians (if the former persisted in their wicked career), notwithstanding all their vain confidence in the assistance to be afforded them by Egypt: and, 3. Partly to invite them to repentance, with promises of mercy, and evangelical predictions of the future restoration of the Israelites and Jews, and of their ultimate conversion to Christianity. Bishop Horsley, in the introduction to his translation of this book, observes, that the prophecies ought by no means to be limited to their inferior and literal signification. Acting upon that system of interpretation laid down in his beautiful sermon on 2 Peter i. 20, 21., "No Scripture is of private interpretation," or "No prophecy of Scripture is of self-interpretation," he shows that the prophecies of Hosea, like all others in the volume of Scripture, are not predictions of separate and independent events, but are united in a regular and entire system, all terminating in one great object, the promulgation of the Gospel, and the complete establishment of the Messiah's kingdom. Of this system, every particular prophecy makes a part, and bears a more immediate or more remote relation to that which is children of whoredoms; for [a]the land hath committed great whoredom, departing from the LORD."

[3] So he went and took Gomer the daughter of Diblaim; which conceived and bare him a son. [4] And the LORD said unto him, "Call his name Jezreel; for yet a little while [b]and I will *avenge the blood of Jezreel upon the house of Jehu, [c]and will cause to cease the kingdom of the house of Israel. [5] And [d]it shall come to pass at that day, that I will break the bow of Israel in the valley of Jezreel."

[6] And she conceived again, and bare a daughter. And God said unto him, "Call her name †Lo-ruhamah: for ‡I will no more have mercy upon the house of Israel; *but I will utterly take them away. [7] But [e]I will have mercy upon the house of Judah, and will save them by the LORD their God, and [f]will not save them by bow, nor by sword, nor by battle, by horses, nor by horsemen."

[8] Now when she had weaned Lo-ruhamah, she conceived, and bare a son. [9] Then said God, "Call his name †Lo-ammi; for ye are not my people, and I will not be your God. [10] Yet [g]the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; [h]and it shall come to pass, that ‡in the place where it was said unto them, 'Ye are not my people,' there it shall be said unto them, Ye [i]are the sons of the living God. [11] Then [j]shall the children of Judah and the children of Israel be gathered together, and appoint themselves one head, and they shall come up out of the land; for great shall be the day of Jezreel."

[1] Say ye unto your brethren, *Ammi:
And to your sisters, †Ruhamah.
[2] Plead with your mother, plead;
For she is not my wife,
Neither am I her husband:
Let her therefore put away her whoredoms out of her sight,
And her adulteries from between her breasts;
[3] Lest I strip her naked,
And set her as in the day that she was born,
And make her as a wilderness,
And set her like a dry land,
And slay her with thirst.
[4] And I will not have mercy upon her children;
For they be the [k]children of whoredoms.

the great object of the whole. Acting upon the principles thus clearly laid down, the Bishop observes, "A prejudice, which for a long time possessed the minds of Christians, against the literal sense of the prophecies relating to the future exaltation of the Jewish nation, gave occasion to a false scheme of interpretation; which, assuming it as a principle, that prophecy, under the old dispensation, looked forward to nothing beyond the abrogation of the Mosaic ritual and the dispersion of the Jews by the Romans, either wrested every thing to the history antecedent to that epoch, and, generally, as near as possible to the prophet's times (as if it were not the gift and business of a prophet to see far before him), or, by figurative interpretations, for the most part forced and unnatural, applied what could not be so wrested to the Christian Church: and rarely to the Christian Church on earth, but to the condition of the glorified saints in heaven. This method of exposition, while it prevailed generally, and it is not yet sufficiently exploded, wrapped the writings of all the prophets in tenfold obscurity, and those of Hosea more than the rest. Because, what with all the prophets was the principal, with him is the single subject. It might have been expected, that when once the principle was understood to be false, a better system of interpretation would have been immediately adopted. But this has only partially taken place. Expositions of many passages upon the erroneous scheme had obtained a general currency in the world, and were supported by the authority of great names. Among ourselves, it has long been the persuasion of our best biblical scholars and ablest divines, that the restoration of the Jews is a principal article of the prophecy, being indeed a principal branch of the great scheme of general redemption. Notwithstanding this, we have followed expositors who had a contrary prejudice, with too much deference to their authority; and, discarding their principle, have, in too many instances, sitten down content with the interpretations they have given us."—Bishop Horsley on Hosea. The whole of this translation, the introduction, and the notes, are well worthy the study of the biblical reader.

She that conceived them hath done shamefully;
For she said, I will go after my lovers,
That give me my bread and my water,
My wool and my flax, mine oil and my ‡drink.
[6] Therefore, behold! [m]I will hedge up thy way with thorns,
And *make a wall,
That she shall not find her paths.
[7] And she shall follow after her lovers—
But she shall not overtake them;
And she shall seek them—but shall not find them:
Then shall she say, [n]I will go and return to my first husband;
For then was it better with me than now.
[8] For she did not know that I gave her corn, and †wine, and oil,
And multiplied her silver and gold,
‡Which they prepared for Baal.
[9] Therefore will I return, and take away my corn in the time thereof,
And my wine in the season thereof,
And will *recover my wool and my flax
Given to cover her nakedness.
[10] And now will I discover her †lewdness in the sight of her lovers,
And none shall deliver her out of my hand.
[11] I [o]will also cause all her mirth to cease,
Her [p]feast-days, her new-moons, and her Sabbaths,
And all her solemn feasts.
[12] And I will ‡destroy her vines and her fig trees,
Whereof she hath said, These are my rewards
That my lovers have given me:
And [q]I will make them a forest,
And the beasts of the field shall eat them.
[13] And I will visit upon her the days of Baalim,
Wherein she burned incense to them,
And she decked herself with her earrings and her jewels,
And she went after her lovers,
And forgat me, saith the Lord.
[14] Therefore, behold, I will allure her,
And bring her into the wilderness,
And speak *comfortably unto her.
[15] And I will give her her vineyards from thence,
And [r]the Valley of Achor for a door of hope:
And she shall sing there, as in [s]the days of her youth,
And [t]as in the day when she came up out of the land of Egypt.
[16] And it shall be at that day, saith the Lord,
That thou shalt call me †Ishi;
And shalt call me no more ‡Baali.
[17] For [u]I will take away the names of Baalim out of her mouth,
And they shall no more be remembered by their name.
[18] And in that day will I make [v]a covenant for them
With the beasts of the field,
And with the fowls of heaven,
And with the creeping things of the ground:
And [w]I will break the bow and the sword and the battle out of the earth,
And will make them [x]to lie down safely.
[19] And I will betroth thee unto me for ever;
Yea, I will betroth thee unto me in righteousness, and in judgment,
And in lovingkindness, and in mercies.
[20] I will even betroth thee unto me in faithfulness;
And [y]thou shalt know the Lord.

(22) Amos prophesied two years before the earthquake which devastated Judæa in the days of Uzziah, but we have no means of ascertaining the exact year in which this event took place. It is generally referred by commentators to the year when that prince usurped the sacerdotal office, by attempting to offer incense. Dr. Hales supposes it occurred in the year when Uzziah was struck with leprosy; fixing it as the twenty-fourth of his reign. Others again conjecture, that the king was not afflicted with this disease till about seven years before his death. But the earthquake could not then have happened, as Amos prophesied during the life of Jeroboam the Second, who must have been long dead at this period of Uzziah's reign. It must, therefore, have occurred, either in the last year of Jeroboam the Second's reign, or in the year after his death. An eminent commentator is of opinion that the prophet Amos (in chap. viii. 9, 10) foretells that, during their solemn festivals, the sun should be darkened by an eclipse, which in those days was accounted ominous, and should turn their joy into mourning. According to Archbishop Usher, about eleven years after Amos prophesied (A. M. 3213,) there were two great eclipses of the sun, one at the feast of Tabernacles, the other at the time of the Passover. Dr. Hales coincides with this opinion; and fixes, accordingly, the date of Amos's prediction in the year B. C. 793. The first chapters of Amos are inserted here on the joint authorities of Archbishop Usher, Dr. Hales, Taylor, Lightfoot, and Dr. Gray. On the authority of Lightfoot, I have placed the latter part of the prophecy a few years later.

*And for four, I will not †turn away the punishment thereof;
Because [c]they have threshed Gilead with threshing instruments of iron:
4 But [d]I will send a fire into the house of Hazael,
Which shall devour the palaces of Ben-hadad.
5 I will break also [e]the bar of Damascus,
And cut off the inhabitant from ‡the plain of Aven,
And him that holdeth the sceptre from *the house of Eden:
And [f]the people of Syria shall go into captivity unto Kir, saith the LORD.
6 Thus saith the LORD,
For three transgressions of [g]Gaza,
And for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof;
Because they †carried away captive the whole captivity,
To deliver them up to Edom:
7 But I will send a fire on the wall of Gaza,
Which shall devour the palaces thereof;
8 And I will cut off the inhabitant [h]from Ashdod,
And him that holdeth the sceptre from Ashkelon,
And I will turn my hand against Ekron;
And the remnant of the Philistines shall perish, saith the Lord GOD.
9 Thus saith the LORD,
For three transgressions of [i]Tyrus,
And for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof;
Because they delivered up the whole captivity to Edom,
And remembered not ‡the brotherly covenant:
10 But I will send a fire on the wall of Tyrus,
Which shall devour the palaces thereof.
11 Thus saith the LORD,
For three transgressions of [j]Edom,
And for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof;
Because he did pursue [k]his brother [l]with the sword,
And *did cast off all pity,
And his anger did tear perpetually,
And he kept his wrath for ever;
12 But [m]I will send a fire upon Teman,
Which shall devour the palaces of Bozrah.
13 Thus saith the LORD,
For three transgressions of [n]the children of Ammon,
And for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof;
Because they have †ripped up the women with child of Gilead,
That [o]they might enlarge their border:
14 But I will kindle a fire in the wall of [p]Rabbah,
And it shall devour the palaces thereof, with shouting in the day of battle,
With a tempest in the day of the whirlwind;
15 And their king shall go into captivity,
He and his princes together, saith the LORD.

CHAP. ii.

1 Thus saith the LORD,
For three transgressions of [q]Moab,
And for four, I will not turn away the punishment thereof;
Because [r]he burned the bones of the king of Edom into lime:
2 But I will send a fire upon Moab,
And it shall devour the palaces of [s]Kirioth;
And Moab shall die with tumult,
With shouting, and with the sound of the trumpet;
3 And I will cut off the judge from the midst thereof,
And will slay all the princes thereof with him, saith the LORD.

To possess the land of the Amorite.
11 And I raised up of your sons for prophets,
And of your young men for [d]Nazarites.
Is it not even thus, O ye children of Israel? saith the Lord.
12 But ye gave the Nazarites wine to drink;
And commanded the prophets,
Saying, "Prophesy not."
13 Behold, †I am pressed under you,
As a cart is pressed that is full of sheaves.
14 Therefore [e]the flight shall perish from the swift,
And the strong shall not strengthen his force,
Neither shall the mighty deliver ‡himself;
15 Neither shall he stand that handleth the bow,
And he that is swift of foot shall not deliver himself;
Neither shall he that rideth the horse deliver himself.
16 And he that is *courageous among the mighty
Shall flee away naked in that day, saith the Lord.

[2] The virgin of Israel is fallen—she shall no more rise:
She is forsaken upon her land—there is none to raise her up.
[3] For thus saith the Lord God;
The city that went out by a thousand shall leave an hundred,
And that which went forth by an hundred shall leave ten,
To the house of Israel.
[4] For thus saith the Lord unto the house of Israel,
Seek ye me, and ye shall live:
[5] But seek not Beth-el, nor enter into Gilgal,
And pass not to Beer-sheba;
For Gilgal shall surely go into captivity,

w Ho. 4. 15. & 10. 8.

And [w]Bethel shall come to nought.
[6] Seek the Lord, and ye shall live;
Lest he break out like fire in the house of Joseph,
And devour it, and there be none to quench it in Beth-el.
[7] Ye who turn judgment to wormwood,
And leave off righteousness in the earth,

And turneth the shadow of death into the morning,

That [y]calleth for the waters of the sea,
And poureth them out upon the face of the earth;

So that the spoiled shall come against the fortress.

10 They hate him that rebuketh in the gate,
And they [z]abhor him that speaketh uprightly.
11 Forasmuch therefore as your treading is upon the poor,
And ye take from him burdens of wheat;
Ye [a]have built houses of hewn stone, but ye shall not dwell in them;
Ye have planted †pleasant vineyards, but ye shall not drink wine of them.
12 For I know your manifold transgressions and your mighty sins:
They afflict the just, they take a ‡bribe,
And they [b]turn aside the poor in the gate from their right.
13 Therefore the prudent shall keep silence in that time;
For it is an evil time.
14 Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live;
And so the LORD, the God of hosts, shall be with you,
As ye have spoken.
15 Hate [c]the evil, and love the good,
And establish judgment in the gate:
It [d]may be that the LORD God of hosts will be gracious
Unto the remnant of Joseph.
16 Therefore the LORD, the God of hosts, the Lord, saith thus;
Wailing shall be in all streets;
And they shall say in all the highways, Alas! alas!
And they shall call the husbandman to mourning,
And [e]such as are skilful of lamentation to wailing.
17 And in all vineyards shall be wailing:
For [f]I will pass through thee, saith the LORD.
18 Woe [g]unto you that desire the day of the LORD!
To what end is it for you?
The [h]day of the LORD is darkness, and not light.
19 As if a man did flee from a lion—
And a bear met him;
Or went into the house, and leaned his hand on the wall—
And a serpent bit him.
20 Shall not the day of the LORD be darkness, and not light?
Even very dark, and no brightness in it?
21 I [i]hate, I despise your feast days,
And [j]I will not *smell in your solemn assemblies.
22 Though ye offer me burnt offerings and your meat offerings,
I will not accept them:
Neither will I regard the †peace offerings of your fat beasts.
23 Take thou away from me the noise of thy songs;
For I will not hear the melody of thy viols.
24 But let judgment ‡run down as waters,
And righteousness as a mighty stream.
25 Have [k]ye offered unto me sacrifices and offerings
In the wilderness forty years, O house of Israel?
26 But ye have borne *the tabernacle [l]of your Moloch
And Chiun your images,
The star of your god, which ye made to yourselves.
27 Therefore will I cause you to go into captivity [m]beyond Damascus,
Saith the LORD, whose name is The God of Hosts.

(23) The first mention of the prophet Jonah, in Scripture, is found in 2 Kings xiv. 25. "Jeroboam restored the coast of Israel from the entering of Hamath, unto the sea of the plain, according to the word of the LORD God of Israel, which he spake by the hand of his servant Jonah, the son of Amittai, the prophet, which was of Gath-hepher." Bishop Lloyd fixes the date of this book nearer to the probable time of Jonah's first prophecy, than other commentators have done. Archbishop Newcome places it between 856 and 784—Taylor, in the year 770, in the second year of Menahem, and about the 70th year of Jonah's age. At this time, when his reputation was established by the accomplishment of his first prophecy, it is by many supposed that Jonah was commanded to go to Nineveh. He was peculiarly qualified for the performance of this commission, from being a native of Gath-hepher, in the tribe of Zebulun; a town in the most remote part of that district. This province was that part of the district of Galilee, more particularly called Galilee of the Gentiles, on account of the great admixture of people who had forced themselves into the country, and had brought with them their various forms of worship. In the midst of these lived Jonah, who appears to have been more or less affected with the idolatry of this mixed multitude, and to have imbibed an idea, very prevalent among the Pagan nations, that particular gods presided over particular districts or provinces. In conformity to this doctrine, he considers Jehovah as the local God of Judæa, and in order to escape from his presence he "rose up to flee unto Tarshish." And for this purpose "he went down to Joppa." At the latter place was worshipped a marine deity, Derceto, Atergatis, or Cetus, θαλάσσιος ἰχθὺς παμμεγέθης, a sea fish of an immense size; and Jonah, who at this time must have apostatized from the faith of the true God, would, without doubt, now commit himself to the protection of this idol, and we must conclude that "when the mariners were afraid, and cried every one unto his god," that they invoked this sea deity. What must have been their astonishment then, on throwing Jonah overboard, to behold him swallowed up by their own god, who was thus converted into an unresisting instrument of punishment and preservation by the God of heaven, "which hath made the sea and the dry land," on whom the prophet in his distress had professed to believe! But to give a more unequivocal and general demonstration of the weakness and helplessness of this deified monster of the deep, Jonah, after having passed three days and three nights in the belly of the fish, was brought back again to Joppa (the very place he had so lately left), and in the immediate view of the temple of Derceto, and in the presence of its numerous votaries, the prophet was disgorged from the belly of their god! That Jonah was ejected at Joppa seems to be confirmed by the large bones of such an animal being there preserved. Pliny mentions these enormous bones, and informs us they were brought as a great curiosity to Rome, and they were exhibited by M. Scaurus in his edileship. The ribs appeared more in height than those of an Indian elephant, and the length of the bones forty feet.

The history of Jonah has been esteemed by many as merely allegorical and descriptive; but it cannot for a moment be considered in this light, when it is remembered that our Lord himself refers to it as a type of his own imprisonment in the bosom of the earth; and he alludes, likewise, to the history of Jonah as a fact, when he declares that the Ninevites repented at his preaching. Without this incontestable evidence, there is a reason and fitness throughout the whole relation, which wonderfully prove the propriety, justice, wisdom, and power of the Supreme Being, and the object and design of this miracle. No punishment could have been more analogous to the offence of the prophet, and no appeal more convincing to the idolators, of the inferiority of their powerless god. To this miracle may be attributed, in great measure, through the mercy of God, the successful preaching of Jonah to the Ninevites.

Vide Observations upon some Passages of Scripture, which the Enemies to Religion have thought most obnoxious, and attended with Difficulties not to be surmounted, by Jacob Bryant, 4to. p. 199, &c.

[5] Then the mariners were afraid, and cried every man unto his god, and [d]cast forth the wares that were in the ship into the sea, to lighten it of them. But Jonah was gone down into the sides of the ship; and he lay, and was fast asleep. [6] So the shipmaster came to him, and said unto him, "What meanest thou, O sleeper? arise, call upon thy God, if so be that God will think upon us, that we perish not." [7] And they said every one to his fellow, "Come, and let us [e]cast lots, that we may know for whose cause this evil is upon us." So they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah. [8] Then said they unto him, "Tell us, we pray thee, for whose cause this evil is upon us; what is thine occupation? and whence comest thou? what is thy country? and of what people art thou?" [9] And he said unto them, "I am a Hebrew; and I fear *the Lord, the God of heaven, [f]which hath made the sea and the dry land." [10] Then were the men †exceedingly afraid, and said unto him, "Why hast thou done this?" For the men knew that he fled from the presence of the Lord, because he had told them. [11] Then said they unto him, "What shall we do unto thee, that the sea ‡may be calm unto us?" for the sea *wrought, and was tempestuous. [12] And he said unto them, "Take [g]me up, and cast me forth into the sea, so shall the sea be calm unto you; for I know that for my sake this great tempest is upon you." [13] Nevertheless the men †rowed hard to bring it to the land; [h]but they could not, for the sea wrought, and was tempestuous against them. [14] Wherefore they cried unto the Lord, and said, "We beseech thee, O Lord! we beseech thee, let us not perish for this man's life, and [i]lay not upon us innocent blood: for thou, O Lord! hast done as it pleased thee." [15] So they took up Jonah, and cast him forth into the sea; and [j]the sea ‡ceased from her raging. [16] Then the men [k]feared the Lord exceedingly, and *offered a sacrifice unto the Lord, and made vows.

[17] Now the Lord had prepared a great fish to swallow up Jonah And [l]Jonah was in the †belly of the fish three days and three nights. [1] Then Jonah prayed unto the Lord his God out of the fish's belly, [2] and said,— Chap. ii.

"I cried ‡by reason of mine affliction unto the Lord,
And he heard me;
Out of the belly of *hell cried I,
And thou heardest my voice.
[3] For thou hadst cast me into the deep,
In the †midst of the seas;
And the floods compassed me about:
All thy billows and thy waves passed over me.
[4] Then I said, 'I am cast out of thy sight;
Yet I will look again [m]toward thy holy temple.'
[5] The waters compassed me about, even to the soul:
The depth closed me round about,
The weeds were wrapped about my head.
[6] I went down to the ‡bottoms of the mountains;
The earth with her bars was about me for ever:
Yet hast thou brought up my life from *corruption,
O Lord my God!
[7] When my soul fainted within me—I remembered the Lord:
And my prayer came in unto thee—into thy holy temple.

CHAP. iii.

[1] And the word of the LORD came unto Jonah the second time, saying, [2] "Arise, go unto Nineveh, that great city, and preach unto it the preaching that I bid thee." [3] So Jonah arose, and went unto Nineveh, according to the word of the LORD. Now Nineveh was an †exceeding great city of three days' journey. [4] And Jonah began to enter into the city a day's journey, and he cried, and said, "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

[5] So the people of Nineveh [p]believed God, and proclaimed a fast, and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them even to the least of them. [6] For word came unto the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, and he laid his robe from him, and covered him with sackcloth, and sat in ashes. [7] And [q]he caused it to be proclaimed and ‡published through Nineveh by the decree of the king and his *nobles, saying, "Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste any thing: let them not feed, nor drink water; [8] but let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and cry mightily unto God: yea, [r]let them turn every one from his evil way, and from the violence that is in their hands. [9] Who [s]can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?"

[10] And [t]God saw their works, that they turned from their evil way; and God repented of the evil, that he had said that he would do unto them: and he did it not.

CHAP. iv.

[1] But it displeased Jonah exceedingly, and he was very angry. [2] And he prayed unto the LORD, and said, "I pray thee, O LORD, was not this my saying, when I was yet in my country? Therefore I fled before unto Tarshish; for I knew that thou art a [u]gracious God, and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repentest thee of the evil. [3] Therefore now, O LORD, take, I beseech thee, my life from me; for it is better for me to die than to live."

[4] Then said the LORD, "†Doest thou well to be angry?" [5] So Jonah went out of the city, and sat on the east side of the city, and there made him a booth, and sat under it in the shadow, till he might see what would become of the city. [6] And the LORD God prepared a ‡gourd, and made it to come up over Jonah, that it might be a shadow over his head, to deliver him from his grief. So Jonah *was exceeding glad of the gourd. [7] But God prepared a worm when the morning rose the next day, and it smote the gourd that it withered. [8] And it came to pass, when the sun did arise, that God prepared a †vehement east wind; and the sun beat upon the head of Jonah, that he fainted, and wished in himself to die, and said, "It is better for me to die than to live." [9] And God said to Jonah, "‡Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd?" And he said, "*I do well to be angry, even unto death." [10] Then said the LORD, "Thou hast †had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not labored, neither madest it grow; which ‡came up in a night, and perished in a night. [11] And should not I spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left hand; and also much cattle?"

'Surely, [h]I will never forget any of their works.'

And I will darken the earth in the clear day;

And all your songs into lamentation;
And [j]I will bring up sackcloth upon all loins,
And baldness upon every head;

And [k]I will make it as the mourning of an only son,
And the end thereof as a bitter day.'
11 "'Behold, the days come,' saith the Lord GOD,
'That I will send a famine in the land,
Not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water,
But of hearing the words of the LORD;
12 And they shall wander from sea to sea,
And from the north even to the east, they shall run to and fro
To seek the word of the LORD, and shall not find it.

AMOS IX.

1 "I saw the Lord standing upon the altar: and he said,
'Smite the †lintel of the door, that the posts may shake:
And ‡cut them in the head, all of them;
And I will slay the last of them with the sword:
He that fleeth of them shall not flee away,
And he that escapeth of them shall not be delivered.
2 Though [n]they dig into hell, thence shall my hand take them;
Though [o]they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down:
3 And though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel,
I will search and take them out thence;
And though they be hid from my sight in the bottom of the sea,
Thence will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them:
4 And though they go into captivity before their enemies,
Thence [p]will I command the sword, and it shall slay them:
And I [q]will set mine eyes upon them for evil, and not for good.'

And I will destroy it from off the face of the earth;

1 Hear the word of the Lord, ye children of Israel:
For the Lord hath a controversy with the inhabitants of the land,
Because there is no truth, nor mercy, [a]nor knowledge of God in the land.
2 By swearing, and lying, and killing,
And stealing, and committing adultery, they break out,
And *blood toucheth blood.
3 Therefore [b]shall the land mourn,
And [c]every one that dwelleth therein shall languish,
With the beasts of the field, and with the fowls of heaven;
Yea, the fishes of the sea also shall be taken away.
4 Yet let no man strive, nor reprove another;
For thy people are as they that strive with the priest.
5 Therefore shalt thou fall [d]in the day,
And the prophet also shall fall with thee in the night,
And I will †destroy thy mother.
6 My [a]people are ‡destroyed for lack of knowledge.
Because thou hast rejected knowledge,
I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me:
Seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God,
I will also forget thy children.
7 As they were increased, so they sinned against me:
Therefore [e]will I change their glory into shame.
8 They eat up the sin of my people,
And they *set their heart on their iniquity.
9 And there shall be, like people, like priest:
And I will †punish them for their ways,
And ‡reward them their doings.
10 For [f]they shall eat—and not have enough;
They shall commit whoredom—and shall not increase:
Because they have left off to take heed to the Lord.

(24) The fourth chapter of Hosea contains a description of the violence, idolatry, and disorder, which existed in Israel during the interregnum between the death of Jeroboam and the accession of Zachariah. A civil war raged in the country, and a general and increasing corruption of manners characterized the apostate tribes. The chapter is inserted here on the joint authorities of Dr. Wells and Taylor.

11 Whoredom and wine and new wine [g]take away the heart.
12 My people ask counsel at their [h]stocks,
And their staff declareth unto them:
For [i]the spirit of whoredoms hath caused them to err,
And they have gone a whoring from under their God.
13 They [j]sacrifice upon the tops of the mountains,
And burn incense upon the hills,
Under oaks and poplars and elms,
Because the shadow thereof is good:
Therefore [k]your daughters shall commit whoredom,
And your spouses shall commit adultery.
14 *I will not punish your daughters when they commit whoredom,
Nor your spouses when they commit adultery:
For themselves are separated with whores,
And they sacrifice with harlots;
Therefore the people that doth not understand shall ‡fall.
15 Though thou, Israel, play the harlot,
Yet let not Judah offend;
And come not ye unto Gilgal,
Neither go ye up to [l]Beth-aven,
Nor [m]swear, The Lord liveth.
16 For Israel slideth back as a backsliding heifer:
Now the Lord will feed them as a lamb in a large place.
17 Ephraim is joined to idols: [n]let him alone!
18 Their drink ‡is sour:
They have committed whoredom continually:
Her *rulers, with shame! do love, Give ye.
19 The wind hath bound her up in her wings,

(25) I. Micah, the third of the minor prophets, according to the arrangement in the Hebrew and all modern copies, as well as in the Septuagint, was a native of Morasthi, a small town in the southern part of the territory of Judah; and, as we learn from the commencement of his predictions, prophesied in the reigns of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of that country: consequently he was contemporary with Isaiah, Joel, Hosea, and Amos.

profane and impenitent in the days of Isaiah, (in consequence of which the Assyrian captivity was then hastening upon Israel, and the Chaldean not long after fell upon Judah,) the prophet Micah was raised up to second Isaiah, and to confirm his predictions against the Jews and Israelites, whom he invited to repentance, both by threatened judgments and by promised mercies.

III. These two chapters were delivered before the destruction of Samaria, which is predicted (chap. i. 6.), in the reign of Jotham. Dr. Wells differs from Taylor and Lightfoot, and places the first chapter in this reign: he refers the second to the reign of Ahaz. There does not, however, appear sufficient grounds for his conjecture. The first chapter denounces the judgments of God upon Judah and Israel; the second is an uninterrupted continuation of the address to these nations, and specifies those sins for which punishment was threatened.

IV. The book of Micah, the contemporary of Isaiah, contains a summary of the prophecies delivered by the latter concerning the Messiah and the final return of the Jews, which are thus translated and arranged by Dr. Hales:—

Ch. v. 2. "And art thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, little to be [esteemed]
Among the thousands of Judah?——
From thee shall issue [THE LEADER,]
Who shall rule my people, the Israel [of God]
ii. (But his issuings are from old,
From days of eternity.)
iii. 3. Therefore he will give them up [for a season]
Until the time that she which shall bear
Have borne: Then shall return
The residue of thy brethren [the Jews]
Along with the outcasts of Israel.
iv. 4. And he shall stand and guide them
In the strength of THE LORD,
In the majesty of THE NAME OF THE LORD HIS GOD.
And when they return, He shall be magnified
Unto the ends of the earth,
And He shall be their PEACE."

"This prophecy," Dr. Hales remarks, "consists of four parts, 1. The human birthplace of Christ. 2. His eternal generation. 3. His temporary desertion of the Jews, until His miraculous birth of the Virgin, after which they are to return with the true Israelites. 4. His spiritual and universal dominion."

The application of the first part of this prophecy was decided at the time of our Saviour's birth, by the most respectable Jewish synod that ever sate, convened by Herod, to determine from prophecy the birthplace of the Messiah, which they agreed to be Bethlehem, upon the authority of Micah, which they cited. Their citation of the first part only is given by the Evangelist Matthew, in an improved translation of the original, greatly superior to any of the ancient versions.

"And thou, Bethlehem, territory of Judah,
Art by no means least among the captains of Judah;
From thee shall issue THE LEADER,
Who shall guide my people, the Israel [of God.]"
—Matt. ii. 6.

1. Here the Evangelist has removed the ambiguity of the question proposed by the prophet, by supplying the answer in the negative: as in Nathan's prophecy, "Shalt thou build me a house?" 2 Sam. vii. 5.) the parallel passage answers in the negative, "Thou shalt not build me a house," (1 Chron. xvii. 4.)

2. Matthew has supplied a chasm in the Masorete text of נגיד, Nagid, a usual epithet of the Messiah (1 Chron. v. 2. Is. lv. 4. Dan. ix. 25.) usually rendered Ἡγȣμενος, "leader," by the Septuagint, and retained here by the Evangelist, as a necessary distinction of his character, as supreme commander, from "the captains of thousands," styled Ἡγεμοσι, judiciously substituted for the thousands themselves in Micah, to mark the analogy more correctly.

3. Matthew has also determined the pastoral nature of the Messiah's "rule" by the verb ποιμανει, "shall guide as a shepherd," afterwards intimated by Micah, ורעה και ποιμανει, as there rendered by the Septuagint. For Christ is "the Shepherd of Israel," (Gen. xlix. 24. Psalm lxxx. 1.) "the Chief Shepherd," (1 Pet. v. 4.) and "the Good Shepherd," (John x. 14.) who appointed his apostles to "guide and pasture his sheep," (John xxi. 6.)

4. The human birth of the Messiah is carefully distinguished by Micah from his eternal generation, in the parenthetical clause, which strongly resembles the account of the primeval birth of Wisdom, (Prov. viii. 22—25.)

5. The blessed virgin of Isaiah's former prophecy (vii. 14.) is evidently alluded to by Micah, and also the return of the remnant of the Jews (Is. x. 20, 21,) and of the final peace of his kingdom (Isa. ix. 6, 7.)

This prophecy of Micah is perhaps the most important single prophecy in the Old Testament, and the most comprehensive, respecting the personal character of the Messiah, and his successive manifestation to the world: it crowns the whole chain of prophecies descriptive of the several limitations of the blessed seed of the woman to the line of Shem, to the family of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, to the tribe of Judah, and to the royal house of David, here terminating in his birth at Bethlehem, "the city of David." It carefully distinguishes his human nativity from his eternal generation; foretells the rejection of the Israelites and Jews for a season; their final restoration, and the universal peace destined to prevail throughout the earth in the Regeneration. It forms, therefore, the basis of the New Testament, which begins with his human birth at Bethlehem, the miraculous circumstances of which are recorded in the introductions of Matthew's and Luke's Gospels; his eternal generation, as the Oracle of Wisdom, in the sublime introduction of John's Gospel; his prophetic character, and second coming, illustrated in the four Gospels and Epistles, ending with a prediction of the speedy approach of the latter in the Apocalypse, (Rev xxii. 20.)—Dr. Hales's Analysis of Chronology, vol ii. pp. 462, 463.

And for the sins of the house of Israel.
What is the transgression of Jacob? is it not Samaria?
And what are the high places of Judah? are they not Jerusalem?
6 [a]Therefore I will make Samaria [e]as a heap of the field,
And as plantings of a vineyard:
And I will pour down the stones thereof into the valley,
And I will discover the foundations thereof.
7 And all the graven images thereof shall be beaten to pieces,
And all the [f]hires thereof shall be burned with the fire,
And all the idols thereof will I lay desolate:
For she gathered it of the hire of a harlot,
And they shall return to the hire of a harlot.
8 [b]Therefore [g]I will wail and howl,
I will go stripped and naked:
I will make a wailing like the dragons,
And mourning as the [*]owls.
9 For [†]her wound is incurable;
For [h]it is come unto Judah;
He is come unto the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem.
10 Declare ye it not at Gath, weep ye not at all:
In the house of [‡]Aphrah roll thyself in the dust.
11 Pass ye away, [*]thou [†]inhabitant of Saphir, having thy shame naked:
The inhabitant of [‡]Zaanan came not forth
In the mourning of [*]Beth-ezel; he shall receive of you his standing.
12 For the inhabitant of Maroth [†]waited carefully for good:
But evil came down from the LORD unto the gate of Jerusalem.
13 O thou inhabitant of Lachish, bind the chariot to the swift beast:
She is the beginning of the sin to the daughter of Zion:
For the transgressions of Israel were found in thee.
14 Therefore shalt thou give presents [‡]to Moresheth-gath:
The houses of [*]Achzib shall be a lie to the kings of Israel.
15 Yet will I bring an heir unto thee, O inhabitant of Mareshah!
[†]He shall come unto Adullam the glory of Israel.
16 Make thee bald, and poll thee for thy delicate children;
Enlarge thy baldness as the eagle;
For they are gone into captivity from thee.

1 Woe to them [i]that devise iniquity, MICAH ii.
And work evil upon their beds!
When the morning is light, they practise it,
Because [j]it is in the power of their hand.
2 And they covet fields, and take them by violence;
And houses, and take them away:
So they [‡]oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage.
3 Therefore thus saith the LORD;
Behold, against this family do I devise an evil,
From which ye shall not remove your necks;
Neither shall ye go haughtily, [k]for this time is evil.
4 In that day shall one take up a parable against you,
And lament [*]with a doleful lamentation,
And say, We be utterly spoiled:
He hath changed the portion of my people:
How hath he removed it from me!
[†]Turning away he hath divided our fields.
5 Therefore thou shalt have none that shall cast [l]a cord by lot
In the congregation of the LORD.

12 "I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee;

I will put them together as the sheep of Bozrah,
As the flock in the midst of their fold:
They shall make great noise by reason of the multitude of men.

3 [a]He built the high gate of the house of the LORD, and on the wall of *Ophel he built much. 4 Moreover he built cities in the mountains of Judah, and in the forests he built castles and towers. 5 He fought also with the king of the Ammonites, and prevailed against them. And the children of Ammon gave him the same year an hundred talents of silver, and ten thousand measures of wheat, and ten thousand of barley. †So much did the children of Ammon pay unto him, both the second year, and the third. 6 So Jotham became mighty, because he ‡prepared his ways before the LORD his God.

EVENTS IN THE KINGDOM OF ISRAEL, CONTEMPORARY WITH THE REIGN OF JOTHAM KING OF JUDAH.

The Reign of Pekah.

2 Kings xv. 27–29.

[27] In the two and fiftieth year of Azariah king of Judah Pekah the son of Remaliah began to reign over Israel in Samaria, and reigned twenty years. [28] And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord: he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin. [29] In the days of Pekah king of Israel came Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and took Ijon, and Abel-beth-maachah, and Janoah, and Kedesh, and Hazor, and Gilead, and Galilee, all the land of Naphtali, and carried them captive to Assyria.

THE REIGN OF AHAZ.

Section I.—Character of Ahaz;—Invasion of Rezin and Pekah;—The Prophecies of Isaiah.

2 Kings xvi. 1–4.—Isaiah vii., viii., ix., x. 1–4.—2 Kings xvi. 5.

Ahaz, being troubled with fear of Rezin and Pekah, is comforted by Isaiah. 10 Ahaz, having liberty to choose a sign, and refusing it, hath for a sign, Christ promised. 17 His judgment is prophesied to come by Assyria.—Isaiah viii. 1 In Maher-shalal-hash-baz, he prophesieth that Syria and Israel shall be subdued by Assyria. 5 Judah likewise for their infidelity. 9 God's judgments shall be irresistible. 11 Comfort shall be to them that fear God. 19 Great afflictions to idolators.—Isaiah ix. 1 What joy shall be in the midst of afflictions, by the kingdom and birth of Christ. 8 The judgments upon Israel for their pride, 13 for their hypocrisy, 18 and for their impenitency.—Isaiah x. 1–4 The woe of tyrants.

[1] IN the seventeenth year of Pekah the son of Remaliah Ahaz the son of Jotham king of Judah began to reign. [2] Twenty years old was Ahaz when he began to reign, and reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem, and did not that which was right in the sight of the Lord his God, like David his father. [3] But he walked in the way of the kings of Israel, yea, [a]and made his son to pass through the fire, according to the [b]abominations of the heathen, whom the Lord cast out from before the children of Israel. [4] And he sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places, and [c]on the hills, and under every green tree.

[1] And (26) it came to pass in the days of Ahaz the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, king of Judah, that Rezin the king of Syria, and Pekah the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, went up toward Jerusalem to war against it, but could not prevail against it. [2] And it was told the house of David, saying, "Syria *is confederate with Ephraim." And his heart was moved, and the heart of his people, as the trees of the wood are moved with the wind. [3] Then said the Lord unto Isaiah, "Go forth now to meet Ahaz, thou, and †Shear-jashub thy son, at the end of the conduit of the upper pool in the ‡highway of the fuller's field; [4] and say unto him,—

"Take heed, and be quiet;
Fear not, *neither be faint-hearted
For the two tails of these smoking firebrands,
For the fierce anger of Rezin with Syria, and of the son of Remaliah.

Have taken evil counsel against thee, saying,

And let us make a breach therein for us,
And set a king in the midst of it, even the son of Tabeal.' "
7 Thus saith the Lord GOD,
" It [d]shall not stand, neither shall it come to pass.
8 For [e]the head of Syria is Damascus,
And the head of Damascus is Rezin;
(And within threescore and five years shall Ephraim be broken,
‡That it be not a people.)
9 And the head of Ephraim is Samaria,
And the head of Samaria is Remaliah's son.
If *ye will not believe, surely ye shall not be established."
10 †Moreover the LORD spake again unto Ahaz, saying,— 11 " Ask [f]thee a sign of the LORD thy God;
‡Ask it either in the depth, or in the height above."
12 But Ahaz said, " I will not ask, neither will I tempt the LORD."
13 And he said,—
" Hear ye now, O house of David!
Is it a small thing for you to weary men,
But will ye weary my God also?

(27) In this and the following verses are contained the most undoubted and clear predictions of the birth of the Messiah, and as such it is alluded to by the inspired Evangelist, Matt. i. 23. There is great difficulty in apprehending how the birth of this child Immanuel could be a sign to Ahaz, who died several hundred years before our Saviour was born. Ahaz, at the time this prophecy was given, was besieged in Jerusalem by the two kings, Rezin and Pekah, who confederated together in the hopes of taking that city, and of destroying Ahaz and the family of David. But God, who had always, for the sake of his servant David, expressed mercy and favor for this house, sent his prophet to encourage Ahaz, and to assure him that the designs of his enemies should not stand nor come to pass, and that "within threescore and five years, Ephraim shall be broken." He adds, that if the king will not believe this prediction, he "shall not be established." To confirm his faith, Isaiah offers Ahaz any sign that will best satisfy him out of the whole compass of nature; which the king refusing, the prophet immediately addresses the house of David, and declares that God himself will give them a sign; "Behold a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and before the child shall know to refuse the evil, and choose the good, the land that thou abhorrest shall be forsaken of both her kings." It is generally supposed by commentators, that Ahaz received a sign with this prediction; and that the sign given to him, and the original and primary meaning of the prophecy was, that Isaiah should marry a young woman, then a virgin, and that within the time that she should conceive, and bring forth a child, and before that child should arrive at such an age as to be able to distinguish between good and evil, (viii. 4.) the enemies of Judah should be destroyed. Immediately after this, Isaiah takes a wife; and before Maher-shalal-hash-baz, the fruit of that marriage, could discern between evil and good, both these kings were slain; Rezin in the third year of Ahaz, and Pekah the next year after. And, according to the word of the prophet (v. 7), these two kings, failing in their design, were obliged to raise the siege and return home.

But this prophecy is introduced in so solemn a manner; the sign is so marked and peculiar, chosen by God himself; the name of the child so expressive, that it must have raised hopes far beyond what the present occasion suggested, and, in its higher signification, must have been supposed to describe the Great Deliverer, who was to spring from the house of David. The further accomplishment of this prophecy, therefore, must have reference to the birth of the Great Immanuel. Ahaz is told, if "ye believe not, ye shall not be established," (v. 9), that is, unless ye believe this prophecy of the destruction of Israel, ye Jews, also, as well as the people of Ephraim, shall be destroyed. Accordingly, we read that Ephraim was taken captive by Esarhaddon, for the third time, exactly sixty-five years from the beginning of the reign of Ahaz. This king carried all the remnant of the ten tribes of Israel, who had revolted from the house of David, into Babylon and Syria; and they were now brought to full and utter destruction, and never after recovered themselves. After Esarhaddon had possessed himself of the land of Israel, he sent his army into Judæa; where Manasseh was vanquished, taken prisoner, and conveyed in chains to Babylon, the same year,(2 Chron. xxxiii. 11.) The near connection of these two facts makes the prediction of the one naturally cohere with the prediction of the other; and the words are well suited to this event in the history of the people of Judah.

But the full accomplishment of this prophecy could not take place till Immanuel was born, when both these monarchies were brought to an end. The kingdom of Judah, which at that time extended over the dominions of both nations, was destroyed in the second year of our Lord's age, by the death of Herod the Great. Ten years after, Judæa was reduced to the form of a Roman province: in the mean while, it was governed by Archelaüs with the title of ethnarch, who was a mere vassal of the emperor, and to whom he assigned only half his father's dominions.

By referring to the two next sections, it will be seen that after this sign was given, Ahaz sustained the greatest defeat ever experienced by a king of Judah; which must be considered as a punishment to the king for his mistrust of God's promises, as well as for his own and the people's idolatry. The faithful worshippers of Jehovah, in the midst of this calamity, would be comforted by the prediction of the prophet; which strengthened their expectation of the future Saviour, and at the same time convinced them that their kingdom should last till his birth.—Vide Lowth's notes to Isaiah, 4to edit. p. 62; Prideaux, Connection, vol. i. p. 5; Horsley's Biblical Criticisms, vol. ii. p. 46, &c.

Behold, [g]a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son,
And *shall call his name Immanuel.
[15] Butter and honey shall he eat,
That he may know to refuse the evil, and choose the good.
[16] For before the child shall know
To refuse the evil, and choose the good,
The land that thou abhorrest shall be forsaken of [h]both her kings.
[17] "The [i]Lord shall bring upon thee,
And upon thy people, and upon thy father's house,
Days that have not come,
From the day that [j]Ephraim departed from Judah;
Even the king of Assyria.
[18] And it shall come to pass in that day,
That the Lord shall hiss for the fly that is in the uttermost part of the rivers of Egypt,
And for the bee that is in the land of Assyria.
[19] And they shall come, and shall rest all of them
In the desolate valleys, and in the holes of the rocks,
And upon all thorns, and upon all †bushes.
[20] In the same day shall the Lord shave with a [k]razor that is hired,
Namely, by them beyond the river, by the king of Assyria,
The head, and the hair of the feet:
And it shall also consume the beard.
[21] And it shall come to pass in that day,
That a man shall nourish a young cow, and two sheep;
[22] And it shall come to pass,
For the abundance of milk that they shall give that he shall eat butter:
For butter and honey shall every one eat
That is left ‡in the land.
[23] And it shall come to pass in that day,
That every place shall be,
Where there were a thousand vines at a thousand silverlings,
It shall even be for briers and thorns.
[24] With arrows and with bows shall men come thither;
Because all the land shall become briers and thorns.
[25] And on all hills that shall be digged with the mattock,
There shall not come thither the fear of briers and thorns;
But it shall be for the sending forth of oxen,
And for the treading of lesser cattle."

[1] Moreover the Lord said unto me, "Take thee a great roll, and write in it with a man's pen concerning *Maher-shalal-hash-baz." Then said the Lord to me, "Call his name Maher-shalal-hash-baz. [4] For before the child shall have knowledge to cry, My father, and my mother, ‡the riches of Damascus and the spoil of Samaria shall be taken away before the king of Assyria."

[5] The Lord spake also unto me again, saying,— [6] "Forasmuch as this people refuseth

(28) This prophecy was probably delivered soon after those of the seventh and eighth chapters, in the beginning of the reign of Ahaz; and was fulfilled when Tiglath-pileser, after having slain Rezin its king in battle, took Damascus (2 Kings xvi. 9.), reduced all that country under his dominion, and put an end to the kingdom of the Syrians in Damascus, after it had lasted there for ten generations, that is, from the time of Rezin, the son of Ehadah, who first founded it, while Solomon was king of Israel. After this, Tiglath-pileser marched against Pekah, and seized all that belonged to Israel beyond Jordan, and also all the land of Galilee, and carried a great number of the Israelites captives to Assyria. This prophecy was still more fully accomplished in regard to Israel, by the conquest of the kingdom, and the captivity of the people a few years after by Shalmaneser. (2 Kings xviii. 11.)—Bishop Lowth's notes on Isaiah, 4to edit. p. 205. Prideaux's Connection, vol. i. p. 6.

Bishop Horsley observes, "I think, with Casaubon, that the threatenings against the Jews in this chapter, though the captivity of the ten tribes might be the more immediate object, have a distant reference, however, to the final dispersion of the whole nation by the Romans, which seems particularly to be the subject of the eleventh verse."

After the mention of this ruin of the Jewish nation, the prophet goes on to declare, that, notwithstanding this visitation of God's people, the schemes of the heathen, who thought, in their destruction, to triumph over the true religion, would be disappointed; and the fourteenth verse gives the Jews hope of recovery from the calamities threatened in the eleventh.

[12] Then certain of the heads of the children of Ephraim, Azariah the son of Johanan, Berechiah the son of Meshillemoth, and Jehizkiah the son of Shallum, and Amasa the son of Hadlai, stood up against them that came from the war, [13] and said unto them, "Ye shall not bring in the captives hither: for whereas we have offended against the LORD already, ye intend to add more to our sins and to our trespass; for our trespass is great, and there is fierce wrath against Israel." [14] So the armed men left the captives and the spoi before the princes and all the congregation. (29) The time when Obadiah flourished is quite uncertain. Lightfoot makes him contemporary with Hosea, and imagines that, as the prophecy is solely written against Edom, the Edomites united with Shishak king of Egypt against Jerusalem (1 Kings xiv. 25.), or with the Philistines and Arabians (2 Chron. xxi. 16, 17.), or with Joash king of Israel (2 Chron. xxv. 21.): but in all these expeditions, we have no account whatever that the Edomites took any part. Archbishop Newcome supposes that he prophesied before the taking of Jerusalem and the destruction of Idumea by Nebuchadnezzar; and this opinion is generally adopted.

I have, however, ventured to place the book of Obadiah in this place, from comparing the tenor of the prophecy contained in it with 2 Chron. xxviii. 17, where we expressly read, "For again the Edomites had come, and smitten Judah, and carried away captives." In this passage there is an account of injuries certainly inflicted at a time when Judah was in the greatest distress, and brought very low. It certainly alludes to some predatory incursion of the Edomites alone; apparently unconnected with the invasion of the Philistines mentioned in the following verse. And from the expression, "again the Edomites had come," may be inferred, that they had often before this attack, taken advantage of the calamities and distresses of the land of Judah. Dupin confirms this arrangement of Obadiah's prophecy.

And though thou set thy nest among the stars,
Thence will I bring thee down, saith the Lord.
[5] If thieves came to thee, if robbers by night,
(How art thou cut off!)
Would they not have stolen till they had enough?
If the grapegatherers came to thee,
Would [d]they not leave [*]some grapes?
[6] How are the things of Esau searched out!
How are his hidden things sought up!
[7] All the men of thy confederacy have brought thee even to the border:
[†]The men that were at peace with thee have deceived thee,
And prevailed against thee;
[‡]They that eat thy bread have laid a wound under thee:
There is none understanding [*]in him.
[8] Shall I not in that day, saith the Lord,
Even destroy the wise men out of Edom,
And understanding out of the Mount of Esau?
[9] And thy mighty men, O Teman! shall be dismayed,
To the end that every one of the Mount of Esau
May be cut off by slaughter.
[10] For thy [e]violence against thy brother Jacob shame shall cover thee,
And [f]thou shalt be cut off for ever.
[11] In the day that thou stoodest on the other side,
In the day that the strangers carried away [†]captive his forces,
And foreigners entered into his gates,
And [g]cast lots upon Jerusalem—even thou wast as one of them.
[12] But [‡]thou shouldest not have looked on the day of thy brother
In the day that he became a stranger;
Neither shouldest thou have [h]rejoiced over the children of Judah
In the day of their destruction;
Neither shouldest thou have [*]spoken proudly in the day of distress.
[13] Thou shouldest not have entered into the gate of my people
In the day of their calamity;
Yea, thou shouldest not have looked on their affliction
In the day of their calamity,
Nor have laid hands on their [†]substance in the day of their calamity;
[14] Neither shouldest thou have stood in the crossway,
To cut off those of his that did escape;
Neither shouldest thou have [‡]delivered up those of his
That did remain in the day of distress.
[15] For the day of the Lord is near upon all the heathen:
As [i]thou hast done, it shall be done unto thee:
Thy reward shall return upon thine own head.
[16] For [j]as ye have drunk upon my holy mountain,
So shall all the heathen drink continually,
Yea, they shall drink, and they shall [*]swallow down,
And they shall be as though they had not been.
[17] But upon Mount Zion [k]shall be [†]deliverance,
And [‡]there shall be holiness;
And the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions.
[18] And the house of Jacob shall be a fire,
And the house of Joseph a flame,
And the house of Esau for stubble,
And they shall kindle in them, and devour them;
And there shall not be any remaining of the house of Esau;
For the Lord hath spoken it.
[19] And they of the south shall possess the Mount of Esau;

(30) At this period of the history of Judah, the land was suffering under an idolatrous king, successfully invading armies, captivity, and ruin. In 2 Chron. xxviii. 6, 8, 9, we read that Pekah had slain in Judah an hundred and twenty thousand in one day, that the children of Israel had carried away captive two hundred thousand of their women, sons, and daughters, because the Lord God was wroth with Judah; that the Philistines and Edomites had alike ravaged the country, and taken many of their towns, (ver. 17, 18.) The expressions, therefore, "your country is desolate," "your cities burnt with fire," describe most forcibly the ruinous condition to which Judah was now reduced; and, in all probability, the prophet took advantage of the desolation that surrounded him to exhort the people to repentance. This chapter is an animated appeal to the Jews, both by promises and threatenings, and is well calculated to arrest their attention. It is probable, on this account, that Ezra, when he reformed the canon of Scripture, placed this chapter first in Isaiah, considering it a good introduction to the whole book. Bishop Lowth supposes that it may have been delivered towards the end of the reign of Jotham; but there is no historical proof of the correctness of his supposition. He mentions the general opinion that the chapter describes the distress in the reign of Ahaz, and its unsuitableness to the reigns either of Uzziah or Jotham, who were both powerful princes. And on the strength of those arguments the chapter is inserted here, as being more descriptive of the state of Judah at this time, than at any other period of the prophet's mission.

11 To what purpose is the multitude of your [q]sacrifices unto me? saith the LORD:
I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts;
And I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of *he-goats.
12 When ye come †to appear before me,
Who hath required this at your hand, to tread my courts?
13 Bring no more [r]vain oblations;
Incense is an abomination unto me;
The new-moons and Sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with;
It is ‡iniquity—even the solemn meeting.
14 Your [s]new-moons and your [t]appointed feasts my soul hateth:
They are a trouble unto me;
I am weary to bear them.
15 And [u]when ye spread forth your hands,
I will hide mine eyes from you:
Yea, [v]when ye *make many prayers, I will not hear—
Your hands are full of †blood.
16 Wash you, make you clean;
Put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes;
Cease [w]to do evil; 17 learn to do well;
Seek judgment, ‡relieve the oppressed,
Judge the fatherless, plead for the widow.
18 Come now, and let us reason together, saith the LORD:
Though your sins be as scarlet—they [x]shall be as white as snow;
Though they be red like crimson—they shall be as wool 19 If ye be willing and obedient,
Ye shall eat the good of the land:
20 But if ye refuse and rebel,
Ye shall be devoured with the sword:
For [y]the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.
21 How is the faithful city become a harlot!
It was full of judgment;
Righteousness lodged in it—but now murderers.
22 Thy silver is become dross,
Thy wine mixed with water:
23 Thy princes are rebellious, and [z]companions of thieves:
Every one loveth gifts, and followeth after rewards:
They judge not the fatherless,
Neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them.
24 Therefore saith the LORD,
The LORD of hosts, the mighty One of Israel,
Ah, I will ease me of mine adversaries,
And avenge me of mine enemies:
25 And I will turn my hand upon thee,
And *purely purge away thy dross,
And take away all thy tin:
26 And I will restore thy judges as at the first,
And thy counsellors as at the beginning:
Afterward thou shalt be called,
The city of righteousness, the faithful city.
27 Zion shall be redeemed with judgment,
And †her converts with righteousness.
28 And the ‡destruction of the transgressors and of the sinners shall be together,
And they that forsake the LORD shall be consumed.

Ahaz hireth the aid of Tiglath-pileser. Isaiah threateneth Ephraim for their pride and drunkenness. The residue shall be advanced in the kingdom of Christ. He rebuketh their error. Their untowardness to learn, and their security. Christ the sure foundation is promised. Their security shall be tried. They are incited to the consideration of God's discreet providence. Ahaz is not helped by Tiglath-pileser. In his distress he groweth more idolatrous. He goeth to Damascus, and sends a pattern of an idolatrous altar to Urijah, who erects it, and Ahaz diverteth the brazen altar to his own devotion. He spoileth the temple and committeth idolatry. Hosea prophesies God's judgments against the priests, the people, and the princes of Israel, for their manifold sins, until they repent. His exhortation to repentance. A complaint of their untowardness and iniquity.

[6] AT that time Rezin king of Syria recovered Elath to Syria, and drave the Jews from *Elath; and the Syrians came to Elath, and dwelt there unto this day. [7] So Ahaz sent messengers to †Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, saying, "I am thy servant and thy son: come up, and save me out of the hand of the king of Syria, and out of the hand of the king of Israel, which rise up against me." [8] And Ahaz took the silver and gold that was found in the house of the LORD, and in the treasures of the king's house, and sent it for a present to the king of Assyria. [9] And the king of Assyria hearkened unto him; for the king of Assyria went up against ‡Damascus, and [a]took it, and carried the people of it captive to Kir, and slew Rezin.

[5] In that day shall the LORD of hosts be for a crown of glory,
And for a diadem of beauty, unto the residue of his people,

And for strength to them that turn the battle to the gate.

(31) This chapter denounces the approaching destruction of the ten tribes by Shalmaneser, without any mention of Syria or Damascus. The fifth verse turns to the two tribes of Judah and Benjamin, who were to continue a kingdom after the final captivity of the Israelites. The exact time of its delivery is uncertain; it is conjectured that it was given after the destruction of Damascus, 740, and before the first captivity of the ten tribes, 721.—Lowth; Taylor; Lightfoot.

8 For all tables are full of vomit and filthiness,
So that there is no place clean,
9 Whom shall he teach knowledge?
And whom shall he make to understand *doctrine?
Them that are weaned from the milk,
And drawn from the breasts.
10 For precept †must be upon precept, precept upon precept;
Line upon line, line upon line:
Here a little, and there a little.
11 For [a]with ‡stammering lips and another tongue
*Will he speak to this people.
12 To whom he said,
"This is the rest wherewith ye may cause the weary to rest;"
And "This is the refreshing;"
Yet they would not hear.
13 But the word of the Lord was unto them
Precept upon precept, precept upon precept;
Line upon line, line upon line;
Here a little, and there a little;
That they might go, and fall backward, and be broken,
And snared, and taken.
14 Wherefore hear the word of the Lord, ye scornful men,
That rule this people which is in Jerusalem.
15 Because ye have said,
"We have made a covenant with death,
And with hell are we at agreement;
When the overflowing scourge shall pass through, it shall not come unto us:
For we have made lies our refuge,
And under falsehood have we hid ourselves."
16 Therefore thus saith the Lord God,
Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation [c]a stone,
A tried stone, a precious corner-stone, a sure foundation:
He that believeth shall not make haste.
17 Judgment also will I lay to the line,
And righteousness to the plummet:
And the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies,
And the waters shall overflow the hiding-place.
18 And your covenant with death shall be disannulled,
And your agreement with hell shall not stand;
When the overflowing scourge shall pass through,
Then ye shall be †trodden down by it.
19 From the time that it goeth forth it shall take you:
For morning by morning shall it pass over,
By day and by night:
And it shall be a vexation only ‡to understand the report.
20 For the bed is shorter than that a man can stretch himself on it:
And the covering narrower than that he can wrap himself in it.
21 For the Lord shall rise up as in Mount Perazim,
He shall be wroth as in the Valley of Gibeon,
That he may do his work, his strange work;
And bring to pass his act, his strange act.

Lest your bands be made strong:

[20] And Tilgath-pilneser king of Assyria came unto him, and distressed him, but strengthened him (32)not. [21] For Ahaz took away a portion out of the house of the LORD, and out of the house of the king, and of the princes, and gave it unto the king of Assyria: but he helped him not.

[22] And in the time of his distress did he trespass yet more against the LORD: this is that king Ahaz. [23] For he sacrificed unto the gods of †Damascus, which smote him: and he said, "Because the gods of the kings of Syria help them, therefore will I sacrifice to them, that they may help me." [10] And king Ahaz went to Damascus to meet Tiglath-pileser king of Assyria, and saw an altar that was at Damascus; and king Ahaz sent to Urijah the priest the fashion of the altar, and the pattern of it, according to all the workmanship thereof. [11] And Urijah the priest built an altar according to all that king Ahaz had sent from Damascus; so Urijah the priest made it against king Ahaz came from Damascus. [12] And when the king was come from Damascus, the king saw the altar; and the king approached to the altar, and offered thereon. [13] And he burnt his burnt offering and his meat offering, and poured his drink offering, and sprinkled the blood of ‡his peace offerings, upon the altar. [14] And he brought also the brazen altar, which was before the LORD, from the forefront of the house, from between the altar and the house of the LORD, and put it on the north side of the altar. [15] And king Ahaz commanded Urijah the priest, saying, "Upon the great altar burn [e]the morning burnt offering, and the evening meat offering, and the king's burnt sacrifice, and his meat offering, with the burnt offering of all the people of the land, and their meat offering, and their drink offerings; and sprinkle upon it all the blood of the burnt offering, and all the blood of the sacrifice: and the brazen altar shall be for me to inquire by." (32) Tiglath-pileser, we are informed (2 Kings xvi. 9), hearkened unto Ahaz, and went up against Damascus, and took it; and carried the people of it captive to Kir, and slew Rezin. It seems difficult to reconcile this account with that mentioned in this verse. They are, however, both to be reconciled by considering, that the assistance thus rendered to Ahaz by the king of Assyria was of little real service. He did not assist him in recovering the cities taken from the Philistines, nor did he lend him any forces, or enable him to recruit his strength, but rather weakened him by exhausting his treasures, v. 21, and by destroying Samaria, by which the way was opened for the more easy invasion of the country in the ensuing reign.—Bishop Patrick. Dr. A. Clarke.

2 CHRON. xxviii. 24, 25.

[24] And Ahaz gathered together the vessels of the house of God, and cut in pieces the vessels of the house of God, and shut up the doors of the house of the LORD, and he made him altars in every corner of Jerusalem. [25] And in every several city of Judah he made high places *to burn incense unto other gods, and provoked to anger the LORD God of his fathers.

[1] Hear ye this, O priests!
And hearken, ye house of Israel!
And give ye ear, O house of the king!
For judgment is toward you,
Because ye have been a snare on Mizpah,
And a net spread upon Tabor.

For the spirit of whoredoms is in the midst of them,
And they have not known the LORD.
[5] And the pride of Israel doth testify to his face:
Therefore shall Israel and Ephraim fall in their iniquity;
Judah also shall fall with them.
[6] They [h]shall go with their flocks and with their herds to seek the LORD;
But they shall not find him;
He hath withdrawn himself from them.
[7] They have [i]dealt treacherously against the LORD;
For they have begotten strange children:
Now shall a month devour them with their portions.
[8] Blow ye the cornet in Gibeah,
And the trumpet in Ramah;
Cry aloud at Beth-aven, after thee, O Benjamin!
[9] Ephraim shall be desolate in the day of rebuke:
Among the tribes of Israel have I made known that which shall surely be.
[10] The princes of Judah were like them that remove the bound:
Therefore I will pour out my wrath upon them like water.
[11] Ephraim is oppressed and broken in judgment,
Because he willingly walked after the commandment.

(33) The predictions contained in the fifth and sixth chapters of Hosea, according to Lightfoot, were uttered after Ahaz had applied to the Assyrians for help. In chap. v. 13, both Israel and Judah are reproved for this reliance on Tiglath-pileser, for which they are threatened with punishment. Ephraim is more particularly mentioned in this passage, although Judah was guilty of the same sin; because Ephraim was the first offender. (2 Kings xv. 19.) These chapters are supposed principally to refer to the ten tribes: yet as Judah is so closely connected with them in the prophecy, I have inserted these chapters in the reign of Ahaz, in preference to that of Pekah; as, after the revolt of Israel under Jeroboam, the kingdom of Judah became the chief object of attention.

And [a]sent ‡to king Jareb:
Yet could he not heal you, nor cure you of your wound.

I will take away, and none shall rescue him.
15 I will go and return to my place,
Till they *acknowledge their offence, and seek my face:

In the two succeeding reigns they raised their heads again, and in the reign of Ahaz they got possession of many cities in the south of Judah; 2 Chron. xxviii. 18. But they were again reduced by Hezekiah, and recovered themselves no more. Upon the death of Ahaz, the Prophet denounces their impending fate. He bids them no longer rejoice for their successes in the late reign, the reverse of their fortune being now at hand.—Bishop Horsley on Isaiah, Bishop Lowth, Prideaux.

EVENTS IN THE KINGDOM OF ISRAEL CONTEMPORARY WITH THE REIGN OF AHAZ KING OF JUDAH.

The Reigns of Pekah and Hoshea.

c After an interregnum.

---

(35) Jotham is here said to have reigned twenty years, whereas it has been before asserted that he reigned only sixteen, 2 Kings xv. 33. He must, therefore, have reigned four years with his father, according to the usual custom among the kings of Israel, of associating the son with the father in the government, more effectually to secure the succession. An interregnum appears to have followed the murder of Pekah by Hoshea; as the latter is said, in the first of these passages, to have begun his reign upon Pekah's death, and in the other, not to have reigned till nine years after: by which it may be inferred that he had not secured the kingdom to himself till that interval had elapsed, in consequence of the tumults and disorders which prevailed after the death of Pekah.

THE REIGN OF HEZEKIAH.(36)

SECT. I.

A. M. 3278 to 3307.
B. C. 726 to 697.
HALES, 725 to 696.

SECTION I.—Character of Hezekiah;—He abolishes Idolatry and restores the true Worship.

2 KINGS xviii. 1-6.—2 CHRON. xxix. 3, to the end, xxx. xxxi. xxix. 1, 2.

Hezekiah's good reign. He destroyeth idolatry (2 CHRON. xxix. 3.) and restoreth true religion. 5 He exhorteth the Levites. 12 They sanctify themselves, and cleanse the house of God. 20 Hezekiah offereth solemn sacrifices, wherein the Levites were more favored than the priests.—2 CHRON. xxx. 1 Hezekiah proclaimeth a solemn Passover on the second month for Judah and Israel. 13 The assembly, having destroyed the altars of idolatry, keep the feast fourteen days. 27 The priests and Levites bless the people.—2 CHRON. xxxi. 1 The people is forward in destroying idolatry. 2 Hezekiah ordereth the courses of the priests and Levites, and provideth for their work and maintenance. 5 The people's forwardness in offerings and tithes. 11 Hezekiah appointeth officers to dispose of the tithes. 20 The sincerity of Hezekiah.

[1] Now it came to pass in the third year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that [a]Hezekiah the son of Ahaz king of Judah began to reign. [2] Twenty and five years old was he when he began to reign; and he reigned twenty and nine years in Jerusalem. His mother's name also was [b]Abi, the daughter of Zachariah. [3] And he did that which was right in the sight of the LORD, according to all that David his father did. [4] He removed the high places, and brake the *images, and cut down the groves, and brake in pieces the [c]brazen serpent that Moses had made; for unto those days the children of Israel did burn incense to it: (and he called it †Nehushtan.) [5] He [d]trusted in the LORD God of Israel; so that after him was none like him among all the kings of Judah, nor any that were before him. [6] For [e]he clave to the LORD, and departed not from ‡following him, but kept his commandments, which the LORD commanded Moses.

2 CHRON. xxix. 3, to the end.

[3] He in the first year of his reign, in the first month, opened the doors of the house of the LORD, and repaired them. [4] And he brought in the priests and the Levites, and gathered them together into the east street, [5] and said unto them,—

"Hear me, ye Levites, sanctify now yourselves, and sanctify the house of the LORD God of your fathers, and carry forth the filthiness out of the holy place. [6] For our fathers have trespassed, and done that which was evil in the eyes of the LORD our God, and have forsaken him, and have [f]turned away their faces from the habitation of the LORD, and *turned their backs. [7] Also they have shut up the doors of the porch, and put out the lamps, and have not burned incense nor offered burnt offerings in the holy place unto the God of Israel. [8] Wherefore the [g]wrath of the LORD was upon Judah and Jerusalem, and he hath delivered them to †trouble, to astonishment, and to [h]hissing, as ye see with your eyes. [9] For, lo! our fathers have fallen by the sword, and our sons and our daughters and our wives are in captivity for this. [10] Now it is in my heart to make a covenant with the LORD God of Israel, that his fierce wrath may turn away from us. [11] My sons, ‡be not now negligent: for the LORD hath chosen you to stand before him, to serve him, and that ye should minister unto him, and *burn incense."

[12] Then the Levites arose, Mahath the son of Amasai, and Joel the son of Azariah, of the sons of the Kohathites: and of the sons of

(36) The reign of Hezekiah may be considered more important than that of any other king of Judah. It comprises many remarkable events, miracles, and prophecies; for the better comprehension of which, I insert the following table from the second volume of Prideaux's Connection.

B. C.	HEZEKIAH TWENTY-NINE YEARS.
726,	Hezekiah restores religion;

713,	Merodach Baladan's embassy to Hezekiah—Sennacherib invades Egypt; Sennacherib on his return from Egypt, invades Judæa—his army destroyed;
709,	the Medes revolt from Sennacherib;
706.	Sennacherib slain—Esarhaddon succeeds;
705,	Tirhakah succeeds Sevechus in Egypt;
698,	Hezekiah is succeeded by Manasseh.

Merari, Kish the son of Abdi, and Azariah the son of Jehalelel: and of the Gershonites; Joah the son of Zimmah, and Eden the son of Joah: [13] and of the sons of Elizaphan; Shimri, and Jeiel: and of the sons of Asaph; Zechariah, and Mattaniah: [14] and of the sons of Heman; Jehiel, and Shimei: and of the sons of Jeduthun; Shemaiah, and Uzziel. [15] And they gathered their brethren, and sanctified themselves, and came, according to the commandment of the king, †by the words of the Lord, to cleanse the house of the Lord. [16] And the priests went into the inner part of the house of the Lord, to cleanse it, and brought out all the uncleanness that they found in the temple of the Lord into the court of the house of the Lord. And the Levites took it, to carry it out abroad into the brook Kidron. [17] Now they began on the first day of the first month to sanctify, and on the eighth day of the month came they to the porch of the Lord: so they sanctified the house of the Lord in eight days; and in the sixteenth day of the first month they made an end.

[18] Then they went in to Hezekiah the king, and said, "We have cleansed all the house of the Lord, and the altar of burnt offering, with all the vessels thereof, and the show-bread table, with all the vessels thereof. [19] Moreover all the vessels, which king Ahaz in his reign did cast away in his transgression, have we prepared and sanctified, and, behold, they are before the altar of the Lord." [20] Then Hezekiah the king rose early, and gathered the rulers of the city, and went up to the house of the Lord. [21] And they brought seven bullocks, and seven rams, and seven lambs, and seven he-goats, for [i]a sin offering for the kingdom, and for the sanctuary, and for Judah. And he commanded the priests the sons of Aaron to offer them on the altar of the Lord. [22] So they killed the bullocks, and the priests received the blood, and [j]sprinkled it on the altar: likewise, when they had killed the rams, they sprinkled the blood upon the altar: they killed also the lambs, and they sprinkled the blood upon the altar. [23] And they brought ‡forth the he-goats for the sin offering before the king and the congregation; and they laid their [k]hands upon them. [24] And the priests killed them, and they made reconciliation with their blood upon the altar [l]to make an atonement for all Israel; for the king commanded that the burnt offering and the sin offering should be made for all Israel. [25] And he set the Levites in the house of the Lord with cymbals, with psalteries, and with harps, according to the commandment of David, and of [m]Gad the king's seer, and Nathan the prophet; for so was the commandment *of the Lord †by his prophets. [26] And the Levites stood with the instruments of David, and the priests with the trumpets. [27] And Hezekiah commanded to offer the burnt offering upon the altar. And ‡when the burnt offering began, [n]the song of the Lord began also with the trumpets, and with the *instruments ordained by David king of Israel. [28] And all the congregation worshipped, and the †singers sang, and the trumpeters sounded: and all this continued until the burnt offering was finished. [29] And when they had made an end of offering, the king and all that were ‡present with him bowed themselves, and worshipped. [30] Moreover Hezekiah the king and the princes commanded the Levites to sing praise unto the Lord with the words of David, and of Asaph the seer. And they sang praises with gladness, and they bowed their heads and worshipped.

[31] Then Hezekiah answered and said, "Now ye have *consecrated yourselves unto the Lord, come near and bring sacrifices and [o]thank offerings into the house of the Lord." And the congregation brought in sacrifices and thank offerings, and, as many as were of a free heart, burnt offerings. [32] And the number of the burnt offerings, which the congregation brought, was threescore and ten bullocks, an hundred rams, and two hundred lambs: all these were for a burnt offering to the Lord. [33] And the consecrated things were six hundred oxen and three thousand sheep. [34] But the priests were too few, so that they could not flay all the burnt offerings: wherefore their brethren the Levites †did help them, till the work was ended, and until the other priests had sanctified themselves; for the Levites were more upright in heart to sanctify themselves than the priests. [35] And also the burnt offerings were in abundance, with [p]the fat of the peace offerings, and [q]the drink offerings for every burnt offering. So the service of the house of the Lord was set in order. [36] And Hezekiah rejoiced, and all the people, that God had prepared the people; for the thing was done suddenly.

2 Chron. xxx.

[1] And Hezekiah sent to all Israel and Judah, and wrote letters also to Ephraim and Manasseh, that they should come to the house of the Lord at Jerusalem, to keep the Passover unto the Lord God of Israel. [2] For the king had taken counsel, and his princes, and all the congregation in Jerusalem, to keep the Passover in the second [r]month. [3] For they could not keep it [s]at that time, because the priests had not sanctified themselves sufficiently, neither had the people gathered themselves together to Jerusalem. [4] And the thing ‡pleased the king and all the congregation. [5] So they established a decree to make proclamation throughout all Israel, from Beer-sheba even to Dan, that they should come to keep the Passover unto the Lord God of Israel at Jerusalem; for they had not done it of a long time in such sort as it was written.

[6] So the posts went with the letters *from the king and his princes throughout all Israel and Judah, and according to the commandment of the king, saying, "Ye children of Israel, [t]turn again unto the Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israel, and he will return to the remnant of you, that are escaped out of the hand of [u]the kings of Assyria. [7] And be not ye like your fathers, and like your brethren, which trespassed against the Lord God of their fathers, who therefore gave them up to desolation, as ye see. [8] Now †be ye not [v]stiffnecked, as your fathers were, but ‡yield yourselves unto the Lord, and enter into his sanctuary, which he hath sanctified for ever; and serve the Lord your God, that the fierceness of his wrath may turn away from you. [9] For if ye turn again unto the Lord, your brethren and your children shall find compassion before them that lead them captive, so that they shall come again into this land; for the Lord your God is [w]gracious and merciful, and will not turn away his face from you, if ye [x]return unto him."

[11] Nevertheless [z]divers of Asher and Manasseh and of Zebulun humbled themselves, and came to Jerusalem. ner according to the Law of Moses the man of God: the priests sprinkled the blood, which they received of the hand of the Levites. [17] For there were many in the congregation that were not sanctified: therefore the Levites had the charge of the killing of the Passovers for every one that was not clean, to sanctify them unto the Lord. [18] For a multitude of the people, even many of Ephraim, and Manasseh, Issachar, and Zebulun, had not cleansed themselves, [c]yet did they eat the Passover otherwise than it was written. But Hezekiah prayed for them, saying, "The good Lord pardon every one [19] that prepareth his heart to seek God, the Lord God of his fathers, though he be not cleansed according to the purification of the sanctuary." [20] And the Lord hearkened to Hezekiah, and healed the people.

[23] And the whole assembly took counsel to keep [g]other seven days: and they kept other seven days with gladness. [24] For Hezekiah king of Judah †did give to the congregation a thousand bullocks and seven thousand sheep; and the princes gave to the congregation a thousand bullocks and ten thousand sheep: and a great number of priests sanctified themselves. [25] And all the congregation of Judah, with the priests and the Levites, and all the congregation that came out of Israel, and the strangers that came out of the land of Israel, and that dwelt in Judah, rejoiced. (37) The fifteenth and sixteenth chapters of Isaiah form one entire prophecy, and are very improperly divided into two parts. The time of its delivery, and accomplishment, which was to be three years after, (chap. xvi. 14.) are uncertain. In all probability, it was uttered in the first year of Hezekiah, and fulfilled in his fourth, when Shalmaneser, invading Israel, is supposed to have marched through Moab, and, to secure every thing behind him, took possession of their principal strong places, Ar and Kirhares.—Notes to Isaiah, Lowth, p. 99.—Abp. Usher.

[2] He is gone up to Bajith, and to Dibon, the high places, to weep:

(38) The extent and nature of the apostacy among the people of Judah and Israel may be clearly ascertained from their conduct, when Hezekiah attempted his great reformation. At this time idolatry was so prevalent, and, consequently, the temple service so neglected, that in 2 Chron. xxix. 34, we find there were not a sufficient number of priests to perform the temple service. The temple itself had been so neglected and polluted, that even the inner part of it required to be cleansed. (2 Chron. xxix. 16.) When Hezekiah sent his messengers to invite the people of Israel to keep the Passover of the Lord at Jerusalem, many laughed them to scorn, and mocked them, 2 Chron. xxx. 10. It is not to be supposed, after such a total and long alienation of the Jews from the worship of the true God, that any real reformation could suddenly take place; therefore we must conclude, that the exertions and edict of Hezekiah were only partial, and temporary in their effects. Jeremiah informs us, chap. xxvi. 18 that Micah prophesied in the reign of Hezekiah: he predicted the captivity of the ten tribes (Micah i. 6.) which took place in the year 721, in the sixth year of Hezekiah; and, in the chapters here inserted, he addresses both the princes of Judah and of Israel, and declares that the fate of the former should be similar to that of the latter. He then predicts the ultimate restoration of the Jews, and the reign, the time, and the birthplace of the Messiah.

From the manner in which the prophet addresses the princes of Israel and Judah (chap. iii. 9.) it is probable that the ten tribes had not yet been carried captive; and that the predictions contained in these chapters were given soon after the decree of Hezekiah, when the first affection to the reformation had subsided, and the princes of Israel had again relapsed into the vices of which the prophet complains. These considerations have induced me to place them here, four years after the accession of Hezekiah, and more than one year before the captivity of the ten tribes.

And chop them in pieces, as for the pot,
And as flesh within the caldron.
[4] Then [a]shall they cry unto the Lord, but he will not hear them:
He will even hide his face from them at that time,
As they have behaved themselves ill in their doings.
[5] Thus saith the Lord,
Concerning the prophets that make my people err,
That [b]bite with their teeth, and cry, "Peace;"
And he that putteth not into their mouths, they even prepare war against him:
[6] Therefore night shall be unto you, *that ye shall not have a vision;
And it shall be dark unto you, †that ye shall not divine;
And the sun shall go down over the prophets,
And the day shall be dark over them.
[7] Then shall the seers be ashamed, and the diviners confounded:
Yea, they shall all cover their ‡lips; for there is no answer of God.
[8] But truly I am full of power by the Spirit of the Lord,
And of judgment, and of might,
To declare unto Jacob his transgression,
And to Israel his sin.
[9] Hear this, I pray you, ye heads of the house of Jacob,
And princes of the house of Israel!
That abhor judgment, and pervert all equity.
[10] They build up Zion with *blood,
And Jerusalem with iniquity.
[11] The [c]heads thereof judge for reward,
And [d]the priests thereof teach for hire,
And the prophets thereof divine for money:
Yet [e]will they lean upon the Lord, †and say,
Is not the Lord among us? none evil can come upon us.
[12] Therefore shall Zion for your sake be [f]ploughed as a field,
And [g]Jerusalem shall become heaps,
And [a]the mountain of the house as the high places of the forest.
[1] But [h]in the last days it shall come to pass, Micah iv.
That the mountain of the house of the Lord
Shall be established in the top of the mountains,
And it shall be exalted above the hills;
And people shall flow unto it.
[2] And many nations shall come, and say,
Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord,
And to the house of the God of Jacob;
And he will teach us of his ways,
And we will walk in his paths.
For the law shall go forth of Zion,
And the word of the Lord from Jerusalem;
[3] And he shall judge among many people,
And rebuke strong nations afar off;
And they shall beat their swords into [i]ploughshares,
And their spears into ‡pruning-hooks:
Nation shall not lift up a sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war any more.
[4] But [j]they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree;
And none shall make them afraid:
For the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it.
[5] For all people will walk every one in the name of his god,
And we will walk in the name of the Lord our God for ever and ever.

That I will cut off thy horses out of the midst of thee,
And I will destroy thy chariots:
[11] And I will cut off the cities of thy land,
And throw down all thy strongholds:
[12] And I will cut off witchcrafts out of thy hand;
And thou shalt have no more soothsayers:
[13] Thy graven images also will I cut off,
And thy †standing images out of the midst of thee;
And thou shalt no more worship the work of thy hands.
[14] And I will pluck up thy groves out of the midst of thee:
So will I destroy thy ‡cities.
[15] And I will [u]execute vengeance in anger and fury upon the heathen,
Such as they have not heard.
[1] Hear ye now what the LORD saith; MICAH vi.
Arise, contend thou *before the mountains,
And let the hills hear thy voice!
[2] Hear ye, O mountains! the LORD's controversy,
And ye strong foundations of the earth!
For the LORD hath a controversy with his people,
And he will plead with Israel.
[3] O my people, what have I done unto thee?
And wherein have I wearied thee?
Testify against me.
[4] For [v]I brought thee up out of the land of Egypt,
And redeemed thee out of the house of servants;
And I sent before thee Moses, Aaron, and Miriam.
[5] O my people, remember now what [w]Balak king of Moab consulted,
And what Balaam the son of Beor answered him
From Shittim unto Gilgal;
That ye may know [x]the righteousness of the LORD.
[6] Wherewith shall I come before the LORD,
And bow myself before the High God?
Shall I come before him with burnt offerings,
With calves †of a year old?
[7] Will the LORD be pleased with thousands of rams,
Or with ten thousands of rivers of oil?
Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression,
The fruit of my ‡body for the sin of my soul?

And to *walk humbly with thy God?
9 The Lord's voice crieth unto the city,
And †the man of wisdom shall see thy name:
Hear ye the rod, and who hath appointed it.
10 ‡Are there yet the treasures of wickedness in the house of the wicked,
And the *scant measure [a]that is abominable?
11 Shall I †count them pure with the wicked balances,
And with the bag of deceitful weights?
12 For the rich men thereof are full of violence,
And the inhabitants thereof have spoken lies,
And their tongue is deceitful in their mouth.
13 Therefore also will I [b]make thee sick in smiting thee,
In making thee desolate because of thy sins.
14 Thou [c]shalt eat—but not be satisfied;
And thy casting down shall be in the midst of thee;
And thou shalt take hold—but shalt not deliver;
And that which thou deliverest will I give up to the sword.
15 Thou shalt [d]sow—but thou shalt not reap;
Thou shalt tread the olives—but thou shalt not anoint thee with oil;
And sweet wine—but shalt not drink wine.
16 For ‡the statutes of Omri are kept,
And all the works of the house of [e]Ahab,
And ye walk in their counsels;
That I should make thee a *desolation,
And the inhabitants thereof a hissing:
Therefore ye shall bear the reproach of my people.

Micah vii.

1 Woe is me!
For I am as †when they have gathered the summer fruits,
As the grape-gleanings of the vintage:
There is no cluster to eat—my soul desired the firstripe fruit.
2 The ‡good man is perished out of the earth:
And there is none upright among men:
They all lie in wait for blood;
They hunt every man his brother with a net.
3 That they may do evil with both hands earnestly,

And the great man, he uttereth *his mischievous desire:
So they wrap it up.

Now shall be their perplexity.

Keep the doors of thy mouth from her that lieth in thy bosom.
6 For [h]the son dishonoreth the father,

The daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law;
A man's enemies are the men of his own house.
7 Therefore I will look unto the Lord;
I will wait for the God of my salvation—my God will hear me.
8 Rejoice [i]not against me, O mine enemy!

[1] WOE to the land shadowing with wings,
Which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia:

---

(39) The eighteenth chapter of Isaiah is generally acknowledged to be the most obscure of all his prophecies. The subject, and the end and design of it, the people to whom it is addressed, the person who sends the messengers, and the nation to whom they are sent, are, in Bishop Lowth's opinion, all obscure and doubtful. But Lowth unites with Vitringa in supposing the chapter to refer to Sennacherib, and Houbigant applies it to that king and Tirhaka; the swift messengers representing the messengers sent by Tirhaka to the Jews, to inform them that he was upon the march against their enemy Sennache-

2 That sendeth ambassadors by the sea,
Even in vessels of bulrushes upon the waters, saying,
Go, ye swift messengers, to a nation *scattered and peeled,
To a people terrible from their beginning hitherto;

* Or, outspread and polished

---

rib. Dr. Wells's paraphrase of this chapter is by no means satisfactory. Most interpreters have supposed that this prophecy referred to Egypt, and that it denounced a great woe, or judgment; consequently such interpretations have been adopted as suited this preconceived opinion, without any grammatical examination of the words in which it was delivered. This opinion has been generally founded from the description of the geographical site of the countries "beyond the rivers of Ethiopia," and from this very description Bishop Horsley supposes that it cannot possibly mean Egypt, p. 127, 128. After having ably discussed the different opinions on this difficult prophecy, he concludes that it relates entirely to the restoration of the Jews, and to the ultimate destruction of antichrist, who will be the instrument of those judgments by which the Church will be purified, and that it contains an account of that people, who, under the hand of Providence, will be engaged in the great work of the reëstablishment of the Jews in the Holy Land. The time present in prophetic vision, is not the time of delivery, but the time of accomplishment. If, therefore, the prophecy is not yet fulfilled, the application of it to Egypt must be erroneous, for that people have long since ceased to be of any consideration. While the people of the Jews have been from the very beginning, and are to this day, terrible, or awfully remarkable, (as the word נורא may be here translated,) and, on account of God's plagues, have made all other nations afraid of the like, as God had threatened. The particle הוי, rendered "woe to," in ver. 1, may be used as an exclamation of surprise, and very often it is compellative of persons at a distance, and it is so taken here by Calvin, Castalio, the Great Bible, the Bishops' Bible, and the English Geneva Bible. "Shadowing of wings" may be intended to characterize some great people, and is a usual image in prophetic language for describing protection afforded by the strong to the weak. The expression, a "nation meted out, and trodden down," is particularly descriptive of the present state of the Jews, who are, even at this day, every where trampled under foot, held in subjection, and treated with contempt and derision; and this is likely still to be their condition, till their conversion shall take place. The inundation of rivers is a frequent image, in the prophetic style, of the ravages of armies of foreign invaders, and it is here used to represent the devastation committed by the enemies of Judah. Ver. 3 calls on the whole world to witness a display of God's power and providence, which alludes to a renewed preaching of the Gospel in the latter ages. I will "take my rest," in ver. 4, seems to imply a long suspension of the visible interpositions of Providence in the affairs of this world, and in favor of his people, under an image of the extreme stillness of the atmosphere in summer. "The season of the harvest," and "the gathering of fruit," is the prophetic image of that period, when our Lord will send forth his angels to gather his elect from the four winds of heaven. The awful predictions against insincere and nominal members of the Church, and their separation from it by God's judgments, are illustrated by the cutting off the sprigs with pruning-hooks, and the cutting down of the branches; and this is to take place before that great event. It was a prevailing opinion in the primitive ages, that antichrist's last exploit would be to fix his seat of empire at Jerusalem, where he would ultimately perish. The pronoun translated "them," ("summer upon them," "winter upon them,") in the original is singular, and ought to be rendered "it," as the true antecedent of this pronoun is the word מכובי "my dwelling-place," ver. 4, which dwelling-place may be understood literally of Mount Zion. "In that time," ver. 7, that is, immediately after this purgation of the Church, at the very time when the fowls of the mountains, with all the beasts of the earth, when antichrist with his rebel rout shall have fixed his seat between the seas, in the holy mountain—a present shall be brought; the nation described in ver. 2 shall be brought to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, the Mount Zion. Persuaded as I am that prophecies were generally given in reference to some great passing event, I have endeavoured to connect this with the taking of Samaria, and the captivity of the ten tribes by Shalmaneser. It seems impossible that Isaiah would have permitted this remarkable, and, to the Jews, most interesting event, to pass unnoticed. I suppose, therefore, that he broke out into this prediction of the restoration of the Jews, at the time when the people of Judah witnessed the destruction of their apostate brethren; and, perhaps, from their signal punishment, apprehended for themselves a similar fate. To the remarks above, taken from Bishop Horsley, I shall only add his translation, with notes, on this prophecy; referring the reader to the book itself.—Horsley's Biblical Criticisms, vol. ii. p. 107–178.

1 "Ho! Land spreading wide the shadow of (thy)

2 Accustomed to send‡ messengers by sea,

Go, swift messengers||,

Unto a people wonderful from their beginning hitherto,
A nation, expecting, expecting, and trampled
under foot,
Whose land rivers have spoiled.
3 All the inhabitants of the world and dwellers upon earth

* That is, affording aid and protection to friends and allies in remote countries.

† The land of Cush in holy writ (commonly, but by mistake, rendered Ethiopia) is properly that district of Arabia where the sons of Cush first settled. But as this race multiplied exceedingly, and spread, not only into other parts of Arabia, but eastward, round the head of the Persian Gulf, to the confines of Susiana; and westward, across the Arabian Gulf, into the region since called Abyssinia, which extended along the coast from Ptolemais to Arsinoe, and inland to the very sources of the Nile; the land of Cush is often taken more largely for a great tract of country, not only comprehending the whole of Arabia Felix, but having for its eastern boundary the branch of the Tigris, below the town of Asia, and for its western boundary the Nile. The rivers of Cush, in this place, may be either the Euphrates and the Tigris on the east, or the Nile, the Astaboras, and the Astapus, on the west. But which of these are meant, it must be left for time to show.

‡ "Accustomed to send"—The form of the expression in the original signifies, not a single act of sending once, but the habit of sending perpetually.

§ "Sending by sea, in bulrush-vessels," is a figurative expression, descriptive of skill in navigation, and of the safety and expedition with which the inhabitants of the land called to are supposed to perform distant voyages.

|| "Go, swift messengers"—You who, by your skill in navigation and your extensive commerce and alliances, are so well qualified to be carriers of a message to people in the remotest corners, go with God's message.

¶ "Unto a nation," &c. viz. to the dispersed Jews; a nation dragged away from its proper seat, and plucked of its wealth and power; a people wonderful, from the beginning to this very time, for the special providence which ever has attended them, and directed their fortunes; a nation still lingering in expectation of the Messiah, who so long since came, and was rejected by them, and now is coming again in glory; a nation universally trampled under foot; whose land, 'rivers,' armies of foreign invaders, the Assyrians, Babylonians, Syro-Macedonians, Romans, Saracens, and Turks, have overrun and depopulated.

† Or, A nation that meteth out, and treadeth down. Heb. A nation of line, line, and treading under foot.
‡ Or, despise.
* Or, regard my set dwelling.
† Or, after rain.
‡ Or, outspread and polished; see ver. 2.

†A nation meted out and trodden down,
Whose land the rivers ‡have spoiled!
3 All ye inhabitants of the world, and dwellers on the earth,
See ye! when he lifteth up an ensign on the mountains;
And when he bloweth a trumpet, hear ye!
4 For so the Lord said unto me, "I will take my rest,
And I will *consider in my dwelling-place
Like a clear heat †upon herbs,
And like a cloud of dew in the heat of harvest."
5 For afore the harvest, when the bud is perfect,
And the sour grape is ripening in the flower,
He shall both cut off the sprigs with pruning-hooks,
And take away and cut down the branches.
6 They shall be left together unto the fowls of the mountains,
And to the beasts of the earth;
And the fowls shall summer upon them,
And all the beasts of the earth shall winter upon them.
7 In that time shall the present be brought unto the Lord of hosts
Of a people ‡scattered and peeled,
And from a people terrible from their beginning hitherto;
A nation meted out and trodden under foot,
Whose land the rivers have spoiled,
To the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, the Mount Zion.

1 The Burden of Egypt. (40)Isaiah xix.

Behold, the Lord rideth upon a swift cloud,
And shall come into Egypt:

Shall see the lifting up, as it were, of a banner[*] upon the mountains,
And shall hear the sounding as it were of a trumpet[*].
4 For thus saith Jehovah unto me:
I will sit still[†] (but I will keep mine eye upon my prepared habitation)
As the parching heat just before lightning,
As the dewy cloud in the heat of harvest.
5 For afore the harvest[‡], when the bud is coming to perfection,
And the blossom is become a juicy berry,
He will cut off the useless shoots with pruning-hooks,
And the bill shall take away the luxuriant branches[*].
6 They shall be left together to the bird of prey of the mountains.
And to the beasts of the earth.
And upon it[†] shall the bird of prey summer,
And all beasts of the earth upon it shall winter.
7 At that season a present shall be led[‡]
To Jehovah of hosts,
A people dragged away and plucked;
Even of a people wonderful from their beginning hitherto,
A nation expecting, expecting, and trampled under foot,
Whose land rivers have spoiled,
Unto the place of the name of Jehovah of hosts, Mount Sion."

(40) The nineteenth chapter is inserted in this section on account of its obvious connection with the preceding chapter. The captivity of the ten tribes had been, in a great measure, occasioned by their reliance upon Egypt. Both Israel and Judah placed their dependence upon this country, contrary to the express commands of God, given to them by the prophets; and now Egypt in its turn is threatened with destruction. The fourth verse foretells the invasion and conquest of Egypt by Nebuchadnezzar, and afterwards by the succession of the Persian kings. After ver. 18 is contained an intimation of the future propagation of the knowledge of God in Egypt and Assyria, and an explicit prophecy of the final admission of these countries, as well as of Israel, into the Church of God—forming together one spiritual Church and unity in the common worship of the God of Israel.—Bp. Lowth.

[*] "A banner—a trumpet." The banner of the cross, to be lifted up more conspicuously than ever before; the trumpet of the Gospel, to be sounded more loudly than ever before in the latter ages.

[†] This 4th verse represents a long cessation of visible interpositions of Providence, under the image of God's sitting still; the stillness of that awful pause, under the image of that torpid state of the atmosphere in hot weather, when not a gleam of sunshine breaks for a moment through the sullen gloom; not a breath stirs; not a leaf wags; not a blade of grass is shaken; no rippling wave curls upon the sleeping surface of the waters; the black ponderous cloud covering the whole sky seems to hang fixed and motionless as an arch of stone; nature seems benumbed in all her operations. The vigilance, nevertheless, of God's silent providence is represented under the image of his keeping his eye, while he thus sits still, upon his prepared habitation. The sudden eruption of judgment threatened in the next verse, after this total cessation, just before the final call to Jew and Gentile, answers to the storms of thunder and lightning which, in the suffocating heats of the latter end of summer, succeed that perfect stillness and stagnation of the atmosphere. And as the natural thunder at such seasons is the welcome harbinger of refreshing and copious showers, so it appears the thunder of God's judgments will usher in the long-desired season of the consummation of mercy. So accurate is the allusion in all its parts.

[‡] "The harvest" is the constant image of that season when God shall gather his elect from the four winds of heaven, reap the field of the world, gather his wheat into his barns, and burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire; images which relate not to the translation of the just to heaven, and the burning of the wicked in hell, but to the placing of the faithful in a state of peace and security on earth, and to the excision of the incorrigible of the irreligious faction.

[*] God in the latter ages will purify his Church with sore but wholesome judgments. Compare John xv. 1, 2.

[†] It was a prevailing opinion among the early fathers, that antichrist is to possess himself of the Holy Land, and that there he is to perish.

(41) Nahum describes himself as an Elkoshite, from which expression many suppose that he was a descendant of Elkosha, while others infer that he was born at Elkosh, or Elkosha, a village in Galilee. The subject of his prophecy is the destruction of Nineveh, and the ruin of the Assyrians for their cruel tyranny over the Israelites. The captivity of the ten tribes took place in 721, and, as there is ample authority for concluding that the prophet lived at this period, it is most probable that he made his escape when Israel was taken captive into Judah, and there uttered his predictions against the oppressors of his country.—Archbishop Newcome; Dr. Gray; Horne.

9 What do ye imagine against the Lord?
He will make an utter end:

(43) After the captivity of the ten tribes, the city of Tyre was besieged by Shalmaneser. The siege continued five years, at the end of which time they were delivered by the death of this king. Success made them insolent, and drew upon them this prophecy of Isaiah, which foretells the miserable overthrow the Tyrians should hereafter receive from Nebuchadnezzar.—Prideaux's Connect. vol. i. p. 27.; see, too, Bishop Newton's account of the fulfilment of the prophecies against Tyre.

couraging Hezekiah, when Sennacherib, immediately upon his father Shalmaneser's death, renewed the demand for the tribute money which had been paid to him and to Tiglath-pileser by that king and Ahaz. When Hezekiah refused to comply with this demand, the king of Assyria declared war against Judah. Bishop Horsley supposes that the prophecy extends only to the thirty-second verse of this chapter; its immediate subject, he observes, is Sennacherib's invasion of Judæa; but in speaking of the miraculous deliverance of the Jews from that calamity, the prophet's views are sometimes carried forward to the greater and more general deliverance of the elect of God. And in the end he passes from this subject of Sennacherib into an explicit prophecy of the final redemption, which is contained in the eleventh and twelfth chapters. The transition is so artificial, that the two last verses of this chapter may be considered either as the conclusion of this prophecy, or the beginning of the next.

It is interesting to observe the beautiful manner in which the prophecy of our Saviour is introduced in the beginning of the eleventh chapter. At the conclusion of the tenth, the prophet had compared the enemies of God and his Church to the proud and lofty forests of Lebanon, the ruin of which is thus predicted,—

"He shall cut down the thickets of the forests with iron,
And the high ones of stature shall be hewn down."

Pursuing the metaphor, he represents, in the midst of the general storm, while the proud oaks of the forest are torn up by their roots, or lopped of their branches, the promised Deliverer, as a twig springing out of a tree cut down to the ground,—

"And there shall come forth a Rod out of the stem of Jesse,
And a Branch shall grow out of his roots."

This mention of the stump of Jesse, shows that the royal house of Judah is considered as one of the trees thrown down by the hurricane, which is typical of Sennacherib's invasion, and proves the general extent of that prophetic commination.

Chapters xiii. and xiv. to ver. 28, are added to this prophecy, as well on the authority of Lightfoot, as on account of their apparent connexion with it. The prophecy commences with a denunciation against Assyria, (ch. x. 5, &c.) It proceeds (ch. xi.) to describe the reign of the Messiah, and concludes with a song of praise for the anticipated blessings of that period. The prophet then, foreseeing the fate of Babylon, takes up the burden of its desolation. Isaiah, in prophetic vision, saw that Babylon would become the capital of Assyria (it being taken some few years after by Esarhaddon), and would be the cause of that empire's aggrandizement and consequent fall; therefore, in denouncing vengeance against that city, he was in fact continuing his predictions against Assyria. Animated with this idea, he proceeds to describe the joy of the whole world upon the overthrow of the king of Babylon, when Lucifer, the son of the morning, shall fall from heaven, (ch. xiv. 12.) The bold and emphatic language of chapter xiv. must be referred to the overthrow of that spiritual Babylon, antichrist, of which pagan Babylon was but the type. The capture of Babylon referred to, took place by the Medes and Persians, under Cyrus, about an hundred and seventy-six years after the prediction. At the time of the delivery of the prophecy, the Medes were an obscure people, without any apparent means of obtaining that power necessary to bring about its accomplishment.

[14] And my hand hath found as a nest the riches of the people;
And as one gathereth eggs that are left,
Have I gathered all the earth;
And there was none that moved the wing, or opened the mouth, or peeped."
[15] Shall the axe boast itself against him that heweth therewith?
Or shall the saw magnify itself against him that shaketh it?
† Or, a rod should shake them that lift it up.
As if †the rod should shake itself against them that lift it up,
‡ Or, that which is not wood.

[16] Therefore shall the Lord, the Lord of hosts, send

And under his glory he shall kindle a burning
Like the burning of a fire.
[17] And the light of Israel shall be for a fire,
And his Holy One for a flame:
And it shall burn and devour his thorns
And his briers in one day;

Though thou wast angry with me, thine anger is turned away,

1 BEHOLD, the LORD maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste,

---

(45) Bishop Lowth remarks, that this chapter contains a poem superior to any thing of its kind extant in any language. For beauty of disposition, strength of coloring, greatness of sentiment, brevity, perspicuity, and force of expression, it stands among all the monuments of antiquity unrivalled. Chap. xiii. opens with the gathering together of the different nations, appointed to execute the divine wrath on Babylon; and from ver. 11, to the end, predicts the dreadful destruction of its inhabitants, and the everlasting desolation to which that great city was doomed. It is one of the most beautiful examples of variety of image, sublimity of sentiment and diction, that can be given in the prophetic style. The deliverance of Judah from captivity, the immediate consequence of this great event, is celebrated in ver. 1. 2, chap. xiv. The ode then commences with a chorus of Jews rejoicing in the downfall of the oppressor, and the destruction of the "golden city." The whole earth shouteth for joy, and the cedars of Lebanon (or all those rulers, or kingdoms, who had been harassed or oppressed) utter a severe taunt over the fallen tyrant. The regions of the dead are then laid open, ver. 9, and Hades is represented as rousing up the shades of the departed monarchs, to receive the king of Babylon on his entrance, and to insult him on being reduced to the same miserable state of impotence and dissolution with themselves. The Jews now resume the speech, ver. 12, and address the king of Babylon as the morning star fallen from heaven; and compare, in bitter terms of reproach, his former arrogant boasts of power, with his present low and abject condition. His body is then represented as being cast out, and lying naked on the ground, with the common slain, just after the taking of the city; and he is again reproached, with the severest taunts, for his cruel usage of the conquered, which deservedly brought upon him this ignominious treatment. To complete the whole, God is introduced, declaring the fate of Babylon, the utter extirpation of the royal family, the total dissolution of the city, the deliverance of his people, and the destruction of their enemies; confirming the irreversible decree by the awful sanction of his oath. This prophecy was delivered one hundred and eighty years before its accomplishment; and the Medes, who are expressly mentioned, chap. xiii. 7., as the principal agents in the overthrow of Babylon, were at that time an inconsiderable people, having been in a state of anarchy ever since the fall of the Assyrian empire, of which they had made a part, under Sardanapalus, and did not become a kingdom under Deioces till about the 17th of Hezekiah.—Notes on Isaiah, in loc.—Lowth.

(46) These chapters are generally supposed to allude to Sennacherib's invasion. Bishop Lowth is of opinion, that they refer to the three great desolations of Judæa, by Shalmaneser, Sennacherib, and the Romans.—Bishop Horsley, to the general tribulation of the latter ages, and the succeeding prosperity of the Church in the end of the world. They are placed here chiefly on the authority of Lightfoot; and seem to have been written to console the faithful people of Judæa, in the desolation caused by Sennacherib's army.

And *turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof.
2 And it shall be, as with the people—so with the †priest;
As with the servant—so with his master;
As with the maid—so with her mistress;
As with the buyer—so with the seller;
As with the lender—so with the borrower;
As with the taker of usury—so with the giver of usury to him.
3 The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled;
For the LORD hath spoken this word.
4 The earth mourneth and fadeth away,
The world languisheth and fadeth away,
‡The haughty people of the earth do languish.
5 The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof;
Because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance,
Broken the everlasting covenant.
6 Therefore hath [a]the curse devoured the earth,
And they that dwell therein are desolate:
Therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left.
7 The new wine mourneth,
The vine languisheth,
All the merry-hearted do sigh.
8 The mirth [b]of tabrets ceaseth,
The noise of them that rejoice endeth,
The joy of the harp ceaseth.
9 They shall not drink wine with a song:
Strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it.
10 The city of confusion is broken down:
Every house is shut up, that no man may come in.
11 There is a crying for wine in the streets;
All joy is darkened, the mirth of the land is gone.
12 In the city is left desolation,
And the gate is smitten with destruction.
13 When thus it shall be in the midst of the land among the people,
There shall be as the shaking of an olive tree,
And as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done.
14 They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing;
For the majesty of the LORD, they shall cry aloud from the sea.
15 Wherefore glorify ye the LORD in the *fires,
Even the name of the LORD God of Israel in the isles of the sea.
16 From the †uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs,
Even glory to the righteous!
But I said, ‡My leanness, my leanness, woe unto me!
The treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously;
Yea, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously.
17 Fear, [c]and the pit, and the snare,
Are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth!
18 And it shall come to pass,
That he who fleeth from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit;
And he that cometh up out of the midst of the pit shall be taken in the snare:
For the windows from on high are open,
And the foundations of the earth do shake.
19 The earth is utterly broken down,
The earth is clean dissolved, the earth is moved exceedingly.
20 The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard,
And shall be removed like a cottage;

That the LORD shall [*]punish the host of the high ones that are on high,
And the kings of the earth upon the earth.
22 And they shall be gathered together,
[†]As prisoners are gathered in the [‡]pit,

And after many days shall they be [*]visited.
23 Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed,

ISAIAH XXV.

1 O LORD, thou art my God;
I [f]will exalt thee, I will praise thy name;
For thou hast done wonderful things;
Thy [g]counsels of old are faithfulness and truth.
2 For thou hast made of a city a heap;
Of a defenced city a ruin;
A palace of strangers to be no city—
It shall never be built.
3 Therefore shall the strong people [h]glorify thee,
The city of the terrible nations shall fear thee.
4 For thou hast been a strength to the poor,
A strength to the needy in his distress,
A refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat,
When the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.
5 Thou shalt bring down the noise of strangers,
As the heat in a dry place;
Even the heat with the shadow of a cloud:
The branch of the terrible ones shall be brought low.
6 And in this mountain shall [i]the LORD of hosts make unto [j]all people
A feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees,
Of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined.
7 And he will [‡]destroy in this mountain
The face of the covering [*]cast over all people,
And [k]the veil that is spread over all nations.
8 He will [l]swallow up death in victory;
And the Lord GOD will [m]wipe away tears from off all faces;
And the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth:
For the LORD hath spoken it.
9 And it shall be said in that day,—
Lo, this is our God!
We [n]have waited for him—and he will save us:
This is the LORD!
We have waited for him—we [o]will be glad and rejoice in his salvation.
10 For in this mountain shall the hand of the LORD rest,
And Moab shall be [†]trodden down under him,
Even as straw is [‡]trodden down for the dunghill.
11 And he shall spread forth his hands in the midst of them,
As he that swimmeth spreadeth forth his hands to swim:
And he shall bring down their pride
Together with the spoils of their hands.
12 And the fortress of the high fort of thy walls shall he bring down,
Lay low, and bring to the ground—even to the dust.

[6] The foot shall tread it down,
Even the feet of the poor, and the steps of the needy.
[7] The way of the just is uprightness:
Thou, Most Upright! dost weigh the path of the just.
[8] Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O LORD, have we waited for thee;
The desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee.
[9] With my soul have I desired thee in the night;
Yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early:
For when thy judgments are in the earth,
The inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness.
[10] Let [q]favor be showed to the wicked,
Yet will he not learn righteousness:
In the land of uprightness will he deal unjustly,
And will not behold the majesty of the LORD.
[11] LORD, when thy hand is lifted up, [r]they will not see:
But they shall see, and be ashamed for their envy †at the people;
Yea, the fire of thine enemies shall devour them.
[12] LORD, thou wilt ordain peace for us;
For thou also hast wrought all our works ‡in us.
[13] O LORD our God, [s]other lords besides thee have had dominion over us;
But by thee only will we make mention of thy name.
[14] They are dead—they shall not live;
They are deceased—they shall not rise:
Therefore hast thou visited and destroyed them,
And made all their memory to perish.
[15] Thou hast increased the nation, O LORD,
Thou hast increased the nation: thou art glorified:
Thou hadst removed it far unto all the ends of the earth.
[16] LORD, [t]in trouble have they visited thee,
They poured out a *prayer when thy chastening was upon them.

Is in pain, and crieth out in her pangs;
So have we been in thy sight, O LORD!
[18] We have been with child, we have been in pain,
We have as it were brought forth wind;
We have not wrought any deliverance in the earth;
Neither have the inhabitants of the world fallen.

Together with my dead body shall they arise.

The women come, and set them on fire:
For [e]it is a people of no understanding:
Therefore He that made them will not have mercy on them,
And [f]He that formed them will show them no favor.
12 And it shall come to pass in that day,
That the Lord shall beat off
From the channel of the river unto the stream of Egypt,
And ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel!
13 And it shall come to pass in that day,
That [g]the great trumpet shall be blown,
And they shall come which were ready to perish in the land of Assyria,
And the outcasts in the land of Egypt,
And shall worship the Lord in the Holy Mount at Jerusalem.

SECTION IX.—Isaiah's Prophecy of the Invasion of Judæa, and the Destruction of Babylon.

ISAIAH xxii. 1–14,(47) and xxi.

Isaiah lamenteth the invasion of Jewry by the Persians. He reproveth their human wisdom and worldly joy. He bewails the captivity of his people, and seeth in a vision the fall of Babylon by the Medes and Persians. 11 Edom, scorning the prophet, is moved to repentance. 15 The set time of Arabia's calamity.

That thou art wholly gone up to the house tops?

(47) In this animated and beautiful chapter, the prophet represents the people of Jerusalem as running to the house tops, to gaze on an approaching army. At the time of the delivery of this prophecy, it is most probable that the host of Assyria was daily expected to appear before Jerusalem. On comparing Isaiah xxii. 9, with 2 Chron. xxxii. 5, it will be evident that the prophet alludes in the plainest terms to the warlike preparations of Hezekiah for the defence of the city. Bishop Horsley's conjecture, however, is very probable, that these first fourteen verses refer to the siege and capture of Jerusalem in the reign of Zedekiah. In his opinion, the impenitence alluded to in ver. 11 and 13, and the utter ruin denounced in ver. 14, suit not the time of Hezekiah, nor the event of Sennacherib's expedition. This prophecy may indeed be considered as referring to both these events; one may be regarded as it were the type of the other. —Horsley's Bib. Crit. vol. ii.

Surely this iniquity shall not be purged from you till ye die,
Saith the Lord God of hosts.

(48) Part of this prophecy was to be fulfilled within a year of its delivery, see ver. 16; and it was probably given about the same time with the others contained in this part of the Book of Isaiah; that is, immediately before, or after, the fourteenth of Hezekiah, the year of Sennacherib's invasion. It is supposed the king of Assyria overran these several clans of Arabians on his first march into Judæa, or perhaps on his return from the Egyptian expedition.

The operation of the Spirit of God upon the minds of his prophets may be supposed to bear some analogy to the ordinary operations of the human intellect. In the latter instance the process of recollection is effected, by one idea suggesting another; which being usual and common is denominated natural: in the former, future events are anticipated by what may be considered prophetic association; that is, on the occurrence of any great event, God, by his Spirit, enables the prophet to foresee a succession of future events, which will succeed the one which is immediately present before him; and this being unusual, and uncommon, can be attributed only to divine and miraculous influence. The grand subject of the prophecy in chap. xxi. is the overthrow of the Babylonian empire; the destruction of which appears to have been associated in Isaiah's mind, with the ruin which hung over and menaced Jerusalem.

For a very curious, and, not improbably, correct interpretation of ver. 11, 12, vide Fragments of Calmet.

After the Burden of Jerusalem he recurs to the Burden of Babylon, "the Desert of the Sea," which he foresees would bring ruin on his native land, a more fatal ruin than that with which she was then threatened; and that Babylon, in her turn, would be destroyed by the increasing greatness of that power, which now, comparatively small, and obscure, was enrolled in the service of the enemies of Judah. He sees the men of Kir and Elam, chap. xxii. 6 (the Medes and Persians), among the soldiers of Assyria, he sees their future greatness, and the final overthrow of Babylon. He foresees these circumstances in prophetic vision, and relates them, as orderly as an uninspired writer would have done from association or recollection. At the very moment when these united forces were in array against Jerusalem, he predicts the time, when the Medes and Persians, arrived at their height of power, should in like manner be leagued against Babylon. He enters into the midst of things; and describes, in bold and animated language, the very banquet at which the princes and nobles should be seated when "all the images of her gods should be broken to the ground."

"Prepare the table, watch in the tower," are terms literally expressive of the actual security and revelling of the sovereign: Belshazzar was eating and drinking with his wives and concubines, till the Persians entered his palace, forced the goblet from his lips, and compelled his princes to "arise, and anoint the shield," ver. 5. Compare this prophecy with its wonderful accomplishment, Daniel v.

That which I have heard of the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel,

[4] So there was gathered much people together, who stopped all the fountains, and the brook that ‡ran through the midst of the land, saying, "Why should the kings of Assyria come, and find much water?" [5] Also he strengthened himself, and built up all the wall that was broken, and raised it up to the towers, and another wall without, and repaired Millo in the city of David, and made *darts and shields in abundance. [6] And he set captains of war over the people, and gathered them together to him in the street of the gate of the city, and spake †comfortably to them, saying, [7] "Be [a]strong and courageous, be not afraid nor dismayed for the king of Assyria, nor for all the multitude that is with him, for there be more with us than with him. (49) Ashdod was long in the possession of the Philistines, and formed one of the five governments of that people. It was originally assigned by Joshua to the tribe of Judah. This town was so strongly fortified, that Psammetichus lay before it nine and twenty years, before he effected its reduction. It was afterwards retaken, and added to Judah by Uzziah (2 Chron. xxvi. 6.), and its conquest was secured by Hezekiah's defeat of the Philistines, (2 Kings xviii. 8.) On this king's consenting to pay tribute to Sennacherib (2 Kings xviii. 14.), the latter marched against Egypt, to punish it for its alliance with Judah; and, the better to open his way into that country, he sent Tartan, one of his generals (2 Kings xviii. 17.) before him, to take Ashdod or Azotus. From the capture of this place, the prophet Isaiah dates the beginning of the war, which Sennacherib carried on against the Egyptians, and foretells their captivity and ruin; which was accomplished, according to the prediction, within the space of three years, (ver. 3.)—Prideaux's Connection, p. 31.

(50) In the beginning of chap. xxix. the prophet is supposed to describe the distress and anxiety that would exist during the siege of Jerusalem by Sennacherib, and the miraculous destruction of the Assyrian army. He then proceeds to upbraid the Jews for their hypocrisy, disobedience, and stupidity, in not discerning the signs of the times; and in the two next chapters condemns the people and their king for relying on Egypt, and again predicts the calamities of that country. Bishop Horsley, however, asserts, in opposition to the most able commentators, Lowth, father and son, Lightfoot, Wells, Wogan, and Bishop Wilson, that the Jews did not at this time solicit the assistance of the Egyptians, and that there is nothing in the thirtieth chapter corresponding with the times of Hezekiah; he therefore applies it to the ruinous consequences that followed the alliance of the Jews with the Egyptians, in the reign of Nebuchadnezzar. He further remarks, that this chapter ends with denunciations of judgment against the Jews, accompanied, as they always were, with promises of their conversion, and restoration to prosperity; and that it predicts the final vengeance that would be executed on the enemies of the true religion. Although many circumstances detailed in this chapter cannot be ascribed to Sennacherib's invasion, it must be remembered that the prophets often grounded their predictions on the passing events of the day; and that they were enabled by the Spirit of God to avail themselves of important occurrences to predict the fate of nations, and by looking, as it were, through the present, to foresee the future, and so to pass on from "things temporal to things spiritual." Bishop Horsley's opinion, therefore, that these chapters allude to a great contest between the Church of God and the enemies of God, may be undoubtedly correct; yet it does not follow, that, because the prophet wished to direct the attention of the people to these sublimer subjects, he would not first endeavour to make an impression on them, by placing before them the circumstances of the time in which they lived; and, by so doing, gradually prepare their minds for the reception of more important and eternal truths. In conformity to the general opinion, I have supposed that this prophecy had its first and proximate completion in the judgments executed on Sennacherib; and I have assumed, that Hezekiah applied to Egypt for help, when Sennacherib came up with a great army against the fenced cities of Judah, and took several of them, (2 Kings xviii. 13.); and have placed these chapters here, as they upbraid the Jews for their contempt of God's command, in placing their dependence upon Egypt. I have supposed that the twenty-ninth was uttered, with the other two, on Sennacherib's first attempt to attack Jerusalem, when the prophet foresaw and predicted his treachery and destruction, with the great overthrow of his army. The Assyrian, being at this time the most powerful foe and the terror of God's people, stands as the type of the irreligious faction leagued against the Church of Christ.—Lowth; Horsley, *Bib. [1] In those days was Hezekiah sick unto death. And the prophet Isaiah the son of Amoz came to him, and said unto him, "Thus saith the Lord, *Set thy house in order; for thou shalt die, and not live." [2] Then he turned his face to the wall, and prayed unto the Lord, saying, [3] "I beseech thee, O Lord! [a]remember now how I have [b]walked before thee in truth and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is good in thy sight." And Hezekiah wept †sore. [4] And it came to pass afore Isaiah was gone out into the middle ‡court, that the word of the Lord came to him, saying, [5] "Turn again, and tell Hezekiah the captain of my people, Thus saith the Lord, the God of David thy father, I have heard thy prayer, I have seen thy tears; behold, I will heal thee: on the third day thou shalt go up unto the house of the Lord. [6] And I will add unto thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of Assyria; and I will defend this city for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake." [7] And Isaiah said, "Take a lump of figs." And they took and laid it on the bile, and he recovered.

(51) In the first verse of this chapter, there seems to be an evident allusion to the recent recovery of Hezekiah. "This thing was not done in a corner:" and while the minds of the people were filled with the remembrance of this astonishing miracle, while they beheld their king healed, and on the third day going up into the house of the Lord (2 Kings xx. 5.), at this moment of exultation and gratitude, it is not improbable that Isaiah would call upon them to anticipate a period when Israel should have much greater cause for praise and rejoicing. "Behold a King shall reign in righteousness," rise again from the dead on the third day, and enter into the Holy of Holies, conquering death and sin. On this supposition I have deviated from the plan of Bishop Lowth, in his arrangement of this chapter; and, following Lightfoot, have put together, as one section, this and the three chapters ensuing. The first eight verses of this chapter describe the happy state of mankind when the Assyrian, or false religion, shall be destroyed; the seven following predict a period of wrath and tribulation preceding that happy event, in which the careless daughters of pleasure are threatened; and the five last verses repeat the assurance of the general effusion of the Holy Spirit, and the conversion of the world to the true religion. In the 33d chapter, the prophet predicts the miraculous destruction of Sennacherib's army, and still dwells upon the general subject of the final overthrow of the irreligious faction, and the prosperity of the Church. He threatens the enemies of God with division and treachery among themselves; and describes the consternation of the sinners of Zion (ver. 14.), or hypocritical professors of the true religion, when they shall see the judgments inflicted on the avowed enemies of the Church; during which time the following verses declare the security and happiness enjoyed by the servants of God; who see the Messiah glorified in the prosperity of his Church, and behold from afar the promised land of immortality, (ver. 17.)—Bishop Horsley in loc.

The 34th and 35th chapters make one distinct prophecy, consisting of two parts: the first containing a denunciation of divine vengeance against the enemies of the people or Church of God; the second describing the flourishing state of the Church of God, consequent upon the execution of those judgments. All nations and people are called upon to hear this prophecy. All nations are interested in it. It denounces the wrath of God against the enemies of Zion; among them Edom and Bozrah are particularly specified, (ver. 5, 6.) In the preceding predictions of Isaiah, the Assyrian has been the type of the powerful head of the irreligious faction, but in this prophecy Idumea and Bozrah represent a promiscuous mass of people in the interests of infidelity and irreligion, which will remain to be extirpated after the overthrow of the Assyrian. The general devastation spread through Idumea and Bozrah by Nebuchadnezzar appears to be the event Isaiah predicted, and had primarily in view, when he uttered this prophecy. But this destruction and calamity by no means corresponds, or justifies the high-wrought and terrible description contained in this chapter. It is reasonable, therefore, to suppose that this prophecy has a further view, to events still future, and to some great revolutions to be effected in later times, antecedent to that more perfect state of the kingdom of God upon earth, and serving to introduce it, which the Holy Scriptures warrant us to expect. The 35th chapter declares, with most explicit clearness, the wonderful miracles wrought by our blessed Saviour,—

"Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened,
And the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped,
Then shall the lame man leap as a hart,
And the tongue of the dumb sing."

To this passage our Lord plainly refers, when he bids his disciples report to John the things they had heard and seen, (Matt. xi. 4, 5.) To his miracles the strictly literal interpretations of the prophet's words direct us; their allegorical meaning may relate to the future advent of Christ, when all nations shall be healed, when the blind shall receive their sight, and the lepers be cleansed; when there shall be a highway called the way of holiness, and "God shall be all in all."

From the manner in which the whole of these four chapters are connected together, by the allusions contained in them to that Glorious King, who shall "reign in righteousness,"—and to the future events of the latter days, they are inserted together in this place.—Vide Lightfoot; Bishop Lowth; Horsley in loc.

To make empty the soul of the hungry,
And he will cause the drink of the thirsty to fail.
[7] The instruments also of the churl are evil:
He deviseth wicked devices
To destroy the poor with lying words,
Even †when the needy speaketh right.
[8] But the liberal deviseth liberal things;
And by liberal things shall he ‡stand.
[9] Rise up, ye women that are at ease!
Hear my voice, ye careless daughters!

[10] *Many days and years shall ye be troubled, ye careless women!

Be troubled, ye careless ones!

For †the pleasant fields, for the fruitful vine.
[13] Upon [f]the land of my people shall come up thorns and briers;
‡Yea, upon all the houses of joy in the joyous city:
[14] Because the palaces shall be forsaken;
The multitude of the city shall be left;
The *forts and towers shall be for dens for ever,
A joy of wild asses, a pasture of flocks;
[15] Until [g]the spirit be poured upon us from on high,
And the wilderness be a fruitful field,
And the fruitful field be counted for a forest.
[16] Then judgment shall dwell in the wilderness,
And righteousness remain in the fruitful field.
[17] And [h]the work of righteousness shall be peace;
And the effect of righteousness quietness and assurance for ever.
[18] And my people shall dwell in a peaceable habitation,
And in sure dwellings, and in quiet resting places;
[19] When it shall hail, coming down on the forest;
And the city shall be †low in a low place.
[20] Blessed are ye that sow beside all waters,
That send forth thither the feet of the ox and the ass!
[1] Woe to thee [i]that spoilest—and thou wast not spoiled; Isaiah xxxiii.
And dealest treacherously—and they dealt not treacherously with thee!
When [j]thou shalt cease to spoil—thou shalt be spoiled;
And when thou shalt make an end to deal treacherously—
They shall deal treacherously with thee.
[2] O Lord, be gracious unto us;
We have waited for thee:
Be thou their arm every morning,
Our salvation also in the time of trouble.
[3] At the noise of the tumult the people fled;
At the lifting up of thyself the nations were scattered.
[4] And your spoil shall be gathered like the gathering of the caterpillar:
As the running to and fro of locusts shall he run upon them.
[5] The Lord is exalted,
For he dwelleth on high:
He hath filled Zion with judgment and righteousness.
[6] And wisdom and knowledge shall be the stability of thy times,
And strength of ‡salvation:
The fear of the Lord is his treasure.

In the habitation of dragons, where each lay,
Shall be †grass with reeds and rushes.
8 And a highway shall be there, and a way,
And it shall be called The Way of Holiness;

The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein.
9 No [k]lion shall be there,
Nor any ravenous beast shall go up thereon,
It shall not be found there;
But the redeemed shall walk there:
10 And the ransomed of the Lord shall return,
And come to Zion with songs
And everlasting joy upon their heads:
They shall obtain joy and gladness,
And [l]sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

† Or, But counsel and strength are for the war.

Now it came to pass in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, that Sennacherib king of Assyria came up against all the defenced cities of Judah and took them. [17] And the king of Assyria sent Tartan and Rabsaris and Rab-shakeh from Lachish to king Hezekiah with a *great host against Jerusalem. And they went up and came to Jerusalem. And when they were come up, they came and stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is in the highway of the fuller's field. [18] And when they had called to the king there came out to them Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, which was over the household, and Shebna the †scribe, and Joah (the son of Asaph) the recorder. [19] And Rab-shakeh said unto them, "Speak ye now to Hezekiah, Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What confidence is this wherein thou trustest? [20] Thou ‡sayest, (but they are but *vain words), '†I have counsel and strength for the war.' Now on whom dost thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? [21] Now, [a]behold, thou ‡trustest upon the staff of this bruised reed, even upon Egypt, on which if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh king of Egypt unto all that trust on him. [22] But if ye say unto me, We trust in the LORD our God: is not that he, whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and hath said to Judah and Jerusalem, 'Ye shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem?' [23] Now therefore, I pray thee, give *pledges to my lord the king of Assyria, and I will deliver thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them. [24] How then wilt thou turn away the face of one captain of the least of my master's servants, and put thy trust on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? [25] Am I now come up without the LORD against this place to destroy it? The LORD said to me, 'Go up against this land, and destroy it.'" [26] Then said Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, and Shebna, and Joah, unto Rab-shakeh, "Speak, I pray thee, to thy servants in the Syrian language, for we understand it; and talk not with us in the Jews' language in the ears of the people that are on the wall." [27] But Rab-shakeh said unto them, "Hath my master sent me to thy master, and to thee, to speak these words? hath he not sent me to the men that sit on the wall, that they may eat their own dung, and drink †their own piss with you?"

[28] Then Rab-shakeh stood and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and spake, saying, "Hear the word of the great king, the king of Assyria! [29] Thus saith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you; for he shall not be able to deliver you out of his hand. [30] Neither let Hezekiah make you trust in the LORD, saying, The LORD will surely deliver us, and this city shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria. [31] Hearken not unto Hezekiah; for thus saith the king of Assyria, ‡Make an agreement with me by a present, and come out to me, and then eat ye every man of his own vine, and every one of his fig tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his *cistern. [32] Until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, [b]a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of oil olive and of honey, that ye may live, and not die: and hearken not unto Hezekiah, when he †persuadeth you, saying, 'The LORD will deliver us.' [33] Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered at all his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? [34] Where are the gods of Hamath, and of Arpad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim, Henah, and [c]Ivah? have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? [35] Who are they among all the gods of the countries, that have delivered their country out of my hand, [d]that the LORD should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?"

[36] But the people held their peace, and answered him not a word; for the king's commandment was, saying, "Answer him not." [37] Then came Eliakim the son of Hilkiah, which was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah (the son of Asaph) the recorder, to Hezekiah, [e]with their clothes rent, and told him the words of Rab-shakeh.

2 KINGS xix. 1–7.

[1] And it came to pass, when king Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the LORD. [2] And he sent Eliakim, which was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to [f]Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz. [3] And they said unto him, Thus saith Hezekiah, "This day is a day of trouble, and of rebuke, and ‡blasphemy; for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. 2 Kings xix. 20–35.

[20] Then Isaiah the son of Amoz sent to Hezekiah, saying, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, That which thou hast prayed to me against Sennacherib king of Assyria I have heard. [21] This is the word that the Lord hath spoken concerning him:—

"The virgin [a]the daughter of Zion hath despised thee,
And laughed thee to scorn;
The daughter of Jerusalem hath shaken her head at thee.
[22] Whom hast thou reproached and blasphemed?
And against whom hast thou exalted thy voice,
And lifted up thine eyes on high?
Even against the Holy One of Israel.
[23] *By thy messengers thou hast reproached the Lord, and hast said,
'With the multitude of my chariots
I am come up to the height of the mountains,
To the sides of Lebanon,
And will cut down †the tall cedar trees thereof,
And the choice fir trees thereof;
And I will enter into the lodgings of his borders,
And into ‡the forest of his Carmel.
[24] I have digged and drunk strange waters,
And with the sole of my feet
Have I dried up all the rivers of *besieged places.'
[25] †Hast thou not heard long ago—how I have done it,
And of ancient times—that I have formed it?
Now have I brought it to pass,
That thou shouldest be to lay waste fenced cities into ruinous heaps.
[26] Therefore their inhabitants were ‡of small power,
They were dismayed and confounded;
They were as the grass of the field, and as the green herb,
As the grass on the house tops,
And as corn blasted before it be grown up.
[27] But [b]I know thy *abode,
And thy going out, and thy coming in,
And thy rage against me.
[28] Because thy rage against me
And thy tumult is come up into mine ears,
Therefore [c]I will put my hook in thy nose,
And my bridle in thy lips,
And I will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest.
[29] And this shall be [d]a sign unto thee,
Ye shall eat this year such things as grow of themselves,
And in the second year that which springeth of the same;
And in the third year sow ye, and reap, and plant vineyards,
And eat the fruits thereof.
[30] And †the remnant that is escaped of the house of Judah
Shall yet again take root downward,
And bear fruit upward.
[31] For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant,
And ‡they that escape out of Mount Zion:
The zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.

[32] "Therefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of Assyria, He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow there, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a bank against it. [33] By the way that he came, by the same shall he return, and shall not come into this city, saith the Lord. [34] For I will defend this city, to save it, for mine own sake, and for my servant David's sake."

[35] And it came to pass that night, that the Angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and five thousand: and when [a]they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses!

So he returned with shame of face to his own land. And when he was come into the house of his god, they that came forth of his own bowels ‡slew him there with the sword.

Isaiah xxxvi. 2, to the end, and xxxvii.—2 And the king of Assyria sent Rabshakeh from Lachish to Jerusalem unto king Hezekiah with a great army. And he stood by the conduit of the upper pool in the highway of the fuller's field. 3 Then came forth unto him Eliakim, Hilkiah's son, which was over the house, and Shebna the *scribe, and Joah, Asaph's son, the recorder. 4 And Rabshakeh said unto them, "Say ye now to Hezekiah, Thus saith the great king, the king of Assyria, What confidence is this wherein thou trustest? 5 I say, sayest thou, (but they are but †vain words) ‡I have counsel and strength for war; now on whom dost thou trust, that thou rebellest against me? 6 Lo, thou trustest in the staff of this broken reed, on Egypt; whereon if a man lean, it will go into his hand, and pierce it: so is Pharaoh king of Egypt to all that trust in him. 7 But if thou say to me, We trust in the Lord our God: is it not he, whose high places and whose altars Hezekiah hath taken away, and said to Judah and to Jerusalem, 'Ye shall worship before this altar?' 8 Now therefore give *pledges, I pray thee, to my master the king of Assyria, and I will give thee two thousand horses, if thou be able on thy part to set riders upon them. 9 How then wilt thou turn away the face of one captain of the least of my master's servants, and put thy trust on Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? 10 And am I now come up without the Lord against this land to destroy it? The Lord said unto me, 'Go up against this land, and destroy it.'"

11 Then said Eliakim and Shebna and Joah unto Rabshakeh, "Speak, I pray thee, unto thy servants in the Syrian language; for we understand it: and speak not to us in the Jews' language, in the ears of the people that are on the wall."

12 But Rabshakeh said, "Hath my master sent me to thy master and to thee to speak these words? hath he not sent me to the men that sit upon the wall, that they may eat their own dung, and drink their own piss with you?" [13] Then Rabshakeh stood, and cried with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said, "Hear ye the words of the great king, the king of Assyria. [14] Thus saith the king, Let not Hezekiah deceive you; for he shall not be able to deliver you. [15] Neither let Hezekiah make you trust in the Lord, saying,

The Lord will surely deliver us: this city shall not be delivered into the hand of the king of Assyria. [16] Hearken not to Hezekiah: for thus saith the king of Assyria, †Make an agreement with me by a present, and come out to me: and eat ye every one of his vine, and every one of his fig tree, and drink ye every one the waters of his own cistern; [17] until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards. [18] Beware lest Hezekiah persuade you, saying, The Lord will deliver us. Hath any of the gods of the nations delivered his land out of the hand of the king of Assyria? [19] Where are the gods of Hamath and Arphad? where are the gods of Sepharvaim? and have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? [20] Who are they among all the gods of these lands, that have delivered their land out of my hand, that the Lord should deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?" [21] But they held their peace, and answered him not a word: for the king's commandment was, saying, "Answer him not."

[22] Then came Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah, that was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and Joah, the son of Asaph, the recorder, to Hezekiah with their clothes rent, and told him the words of Rabshakeh. [1] And it came to pass, when king Hezekiah heard it, that he rent his clothes, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the Lord. [2] And he sent Eliakim, who was over the household, and Shebna the scribe, and the elders of the priests covered with sackcloth, unto Isaiah the prophet the son of Amoz. [3] And they said unto him, "Thus saith Hezekiah, This day is a day of trouble, and of rebuke, and of ‡blasphemy: for the children are come to the birth, and there is not strength to bring forth. [4] It may be the Lord thy God will hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of Assyria his master hath sent to reproach the living God, and will reprove the words which the Lord thy God hath heard; wherefore

[8] So Rabshakeh returned, and found the king of Assyria warring against Libnah: for he had heard that he was departed from Lachish. [9] And he heard say concerning Tirhakah king of Ethiopia, "He is come forth to make war with thee." And when he heard it, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying, [10] "Thus shall ye speak to Hezekiah king of Judah, saying, Let not thy God, in whom thou trustest, deceive thee, saying, Jerusalem shall not be given into the hand of the king of Assyria. [11] Behold, thou hast heard what the kings of Assyria have done to all lands by destroying them utterly; and shalt thou be delivered? [12] Have the gods of the nations delivered them which my fathers have destroyed, as Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the children of Eden which were in Telassar? [13] Where is the king of Hamath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, Hena, and Ivah?"

[14] And Hezekiah received the letter from the hand of the messengers, and read it:
and Hezekiah went up unto the house of the Lord, and spread it before the Lord.
[15] And Hezekiah prayed unto the Lord, saying, [16] "O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, that dwellest between the cherubim, thou art the God, even thou alone, of all the kingdoms of the earth: thou hast made heaven and earth. [17] Incline thine ear, O Lord! and hear; open thine eyes, O Lord! and see: and hear all the words of Sennacherib, which hath sent to reproach the living God. [18] Of a truth, Lord, the kings of Assyria have laid waste all the ‡nations, and their countries, [19] and have *cast their gods into the fire: for they were no gods, but the work of men's hands, wood and stone: therefore they have

(54) The prophecies of Isaiah, that follow this chapter, were, in all probability, delivered in the latter years of Hezekiah's reign.

The miraculous cure of this king, and the destruction of the host of Sennacherib, must naturally have rivetted the attention of the Jews to the prophet. Those people who had witnessed the wonderful accomplishment of his prediction against the Assyrian army, as well as those against the surrounding nations, must have had (if any thing earthly could have given it to them) implicit faith in the eventual completion of that grand series of prophecies which was now delivered to them by Isaiah, and which constitute the most elegant, and perhaps the most sublime part of the Old Testament. They may be divided, according to the plan of Vitringa and Bishop Tomline, into sections. The chief subject is the restoration of the Church. This is pursued with the greatest regularity; containing the deliverance of the Jews from captivity—the vanity and destruction of idols—the vindication of the divine power and truth—consolations and invitations to the Jews—denunciations against them for their infidelity and impiety—their rejection, and the calling of the Gentiles—the happiness of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked. But, as the subject of this very beautiful series of prophecies is chiefly of the consolatory kind, they are introduced with a promise of the restoration of the kingdom, and the return from the Babylonian captivity, through the merciful interposition of God. At the same time, this redemption from Babylon is used as an image to shadow out a redemption of an infinitely higher and more important nature. The prophet connects these two events together, scarcely ever treating of the former without throwing in some intimations of the latter; and sometimes he is so fully possessed with the glories of the future more glorious kingdom of the Messiah, that he seems to leave the immediate subject of his commission almost out of the question. This series of prophecies consists of twelve prophetic poems or discourses:—

Discourse 1. (ch. xl. xli.) contains a promise of comfort to the people of God, interspersed with declarations of the omnipotence and omniscience of Jehovah, and a prediction of the restoration of the Jews from the Babylonian captivity by Cyrus.

Discourse 2. The advent of the Messiah, and the character and blessings of his kingdom, are foretold (xlii. 1–17.); for rejecting which the infidelity and blindness of the Jews are reproved (18–25.) A remnant of them, however, it is promised, shall be preserved, and ultimately restored to their own land (xliii. 1–13.) The taking of Babylon by Cyrus, and the restoration of the Jews, are also foretold, as also, perhaps, their return after the Roman dispersion (14–20.); and they are admonished to repent of those sins which would otherwise bring the severest judgments of God upon them, (22–28.)

Discourse 3. contains promises of redemption, and of the effusion of the Holy Spirit, intermingled with a beautiful and forcible exposure of the folly of idolatry (xliv. 1–20.) Thence, the prophet announces by name their future deliverer, Cyrus (21–28. xlv. 1–5.); and, according to his usual manner, he makes a transition to the greater work of God in the conversion of the Gentiles to the Gospel, and the ultimate triumph of the latter over antichrist, (6–25.)

Discourse 4. foretells the carrying away of the idols of Babylon (xlvi. 1–5.); the folly of worshipping them is then strikingly contrasted with the attributes and perfections of Jehovah (6–13); and the destruction of Babylon is further denounced (xlvii.)

Discourse 5. contains an earnest reproof of the Jews for their obstinate attachment to idolatry, which would infallibly involve them in the severest calamities (xlviii. 1–19, 21, 22.); and foretells their deliverance from the Babylonian captivity (20.)

Discourse 6. introduces the Messiah in person, declaring the full extent of his commission, foretelling the unbelief and rejection of the Jews, the triumphant state of the Church, and particularly of the Jews on their conversion to the Gospel, (xlix.)

Discourse 7. predicts the rejection of the Jews for their not acknowledging Jesus Christ, (l. 1–3.) whose sufferings and exaltation are foretold, (4–11.) Still keeping the Great Deliverer in view, the prophet exhorts the faithful Jews to trust in him, and foretells their future restoration after the Babylonian captivity and the Roman dispersion, as also their conversion to Christianity, (li. lii. 1–12.)

Discourse 8. predicts the person, offices, humiliation, sufferings, and exaltation of Christ, the end of his death, and the blessings resulting to mankind from that event, (lii. 13–15. liii.)

Discourse 9. foretells the increase of the Church by the conversion of the Jews and Gentiles, and its triumphant state in general, (liv.)

Discourse 10. describes the fulness, freeness, excellence, and everlasting nature of the blessings of the Gospel, and the conditions on which they are to be attained, without respect to persons or nations, (lv. lvi. 1–8.)

Discourse 11. contains a prophecy of the calamities that would befall the inhabitants of Judæa, in consequence of the sins which they would commit after the death of Hezekiah, particularly their idolatry and hypocrisy; by the captivity of Manasseh and some others, and afterwards of the whole nation, first by the Babylonians, and subsequently by the Romans, (lvi. 9–12. lvii.—lix. 14.)

Discourse 12. chiefly predicts the general conversion of the Jews to the Gospel, the coming in of the fulness of the Gentiles, and the destruction of antichrist; also the restoration of the Jews, and the happy state of the Christian Church, (lix. 15–22. lx.—lxvi.) In ch. lxi. 1–9. the Messiah is introduced describing his character and office, and confirming the ample promises made in the preceding chapter. The deliverance of the Church from all her enemies by the Great Redeemer, and the destruction of antichrist, and his followers, are delineated in ch. lxiii. 1–6. with unequalled pathos, energy, and sublimity. And the two last chapters in the prophecy set forth, in the clearest terms, the calling of the Gentiles, the establishment of the Christian dispensation, and the reprobation of the apostate Jews.

Vide Horne's Crit. Introd. vol. i. p. 285, from which this division of the prophecies is extracted; and Lowth's Notes on Isaiah, p. 183.

And all flesh shall see it together;
For the mouth of the LORD hath spoken it.
6 The voice said, "Cry." And he said, "What shall I cry?"
All [d]flesh is grass,
And all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field:
7 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth:
Because the Spirit of the LORD bloweth upon it:
Surely the people is grass.
8 The grass withereth, the flower fadeth;
But [e]the word of our God shall stand for ever.
9 *O Zion, that bringest good tidings! get thee up into the high mountain;
†O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings!
Lift up thy voice with strength;
Lift it up, be not afraid;
Say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God!
10 Behold, the Lord GOD will come ‡with strong hand,
And his arm shall rule for him:
Behold, [f]his reward is with him,
And *his work before him.
11 He shall [g]feed his flock like a shepherd:
He shall gather the lambs with his arm,
And carry them in his bosom,
And shall gently lead those †that are with young.
12 Who [h]hath measured the waters in the hollow of his hand,
And meted out heaven with the span,
And comprehended the dust of the earth in ‡a measure,
And weighed the mountains in scales,
And the hills in a balance?
13 Who [i]hath directed the Spirit of the LORD,
Or being *his counsellor hath taught him?
14 With whom took he counsel, and who †instructed him,
And taught him in the path of judgment,
And taught him knowledge,
And showed to him the way of ‡understanding?
15 Behold, the nations are as a drop of a bucket,
And are counted as the small dust of the balance!
Behold, he taketh up the isles as a very little thing!
16 And Lebanon is not sufficient to burn,
Nor the beasts thereof sufficient for a burnt offering.
17 All nations before him are as [j]nothing;
And [k]they are counted to him less than nothing, and vanity.
18 To whom then will ye [l]liken God?
Or what likeness will ye compare unto him?
19 The workman melteth a graven image,
And the goldsmith spreadeth it over with gold,
And casteth silver chains.
20 He that *is so impoverished that he hath no oblation
Chooseth a tree that will not rot;
He seeketh unto him a cunning workman to prepare a graven image, that shall not be moved.
21 Have [m]ye not known? have ye not heard?
Hath it not been told you from the beginning?
Have ye not understood from the foundations of the earth?
22 †It is He that sitteth upon the circle of the earth,
And the inhabitants thereof are as grasshoppers;
That [n]stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain,
And spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in:

Both worketh in the coals, and fashioneth it with hammers,
And worketh it with the strength of his arms:
Yea, he is hungry, and his strength faileth:
He drinketh no water, and is faint.
13 The carpenter stretcheth out his rule; he marketh it out with a line;
He fitteth it with planes,
And he marketh it out with the compass,
And maketh it after the figure of a man,

That it may remain in the house.

Which he *strengtheneth for himself among the trees of the forest:
He planteth an ash, and the rain doth nourish it.

For he will take thereof, and warm himself;
Yea, he kindleth it, and baketh bread;
Yea, he maketh a god, and worshippeth it;
He maketh it a graven image, and falleth down thereto.
16 He burneth part thereof in the fire;
With part thereof he eateth flesh;
He roasteth roast, and is satisfied:
Yea, he warmeth himself, and saith,
"Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire:"
17 And the residue thereof he maketh a god, even his graven image:
He falleth down unto it, and worshippeth it,
And prayeth unto it, and saith,

Isaiah xlvii.

1 Come down, and sit in the dust, O virgin daughter of Babylon!
Sit on the ground!
There is no throne, O daughter of the Chaldeans!
For thou shalt no more be called tender and delicate.
2 Take [q]the millstones, and grind meal:
Uncover thy locks, make bare the leg,
Uncover the thigh, pass over the rivers.
3 Thy [r]nakedness shall be uncovered,
Yea, thy shame shall be seen:
I [s]will take vengeance,
And I will not meet thee as a man.
4 As for [t]our Redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name,

5 Sit thou silent, and get thee into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans!
For [u]thou shalt no more be called, The Lady of Kingdoms.
6 I [v]was wroth with my people,
I have polluted mine inheritance,
And given them into thy hand:
Thou didst show them no mercy;
Upon [w]the ancient hast thou very heavily laid thy yoke.
7 And thou saidst, "I shall be [x]a lady for ever:"
So that thou didst not lay these things to thy heart,
Neither [y]didst remember the latter end of it.
8 Therefore hear now this, thou that art given to pleasures,
That dwellest carelessly,
That sayest in thy heart,
I [z]am, and none else besides me;
I [a]shall not sit as a widow,
Neither shall I know the loss of children.

SECTION XIX.—The Messiah, through Isaiah, addresses his People.

ISAIAH xlix.

Christ, being sent to the Jews, complaineth of them. 5 He is sent to the Gentiles with gracious promises. 13 God's love is perpetual to his Church. 18 The ample restoration of the Church. 24 The powerful deliverance out of captivity.

[1] LISTEN, O isles, unto me!
And hearken, ye people, from far!
The [a]LORD hath called me from the womb;
From the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name.
[2] And he hath made [b]my mouth like a sharp sword;
In the shadow of his hand hath he hid me,
And made me a polished shaft;
In his quiver hath he hid me;
[3] And said unto me, "Thou art my servant,
O Israel, [c]in whom I will be glorified."
[4] Then I said, "I have labored in vain,
I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain:
Yet surely my judgment is with the LORD,
And my *work with my God."
[5] And now, saith the LORD
That formed me from the womb to be his servant,
To bring Jacob again to him,
†Though Israel [d]be not gathered,
Yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the LORD,
And my God shall be my strength.
[6] And he said, "‡It is a light thing that thou shouldest be my servant,
To raise up the tribes of Jacob,
And to restore the *preserved of Israel:
I will also give thee for [e]a light to the Gentiles,
That thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth."
[7] Thus saith the LORD,
The Redeemer of Israel, and his Holy One,
To him †whom man despiseth, to him whom the nation abhorreth,
To a servant of rulers,
"Kings [f]shall see and arise,
Princes also shall worship,
Because of the LORD that is faithful,
And the Holy One of Israel, and he shall choose thee."
[8] Thus saith the LORD,
"In [g]an acceptable time have I heard thee,
And in a day of salvation have I helped thee:
And I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people,
To ‡establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages;

Break forth into singing, and cry aloud, thou that didst not travail with child!
For [b]more are the children of the desolate
Than the children of the married wife, saith the Lord.
2 Enlarge the place of thy tent,
And let them stretch forth the curtains of thy habitations:
Spare not—lengthen thy cords, and strengthen thy stakes;
3 For thou shalt break forth on the right hand and on the left;
And [c]thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles,
And make the desolate cities to be inhabited.
4 Fear not—for thou shalt not be ashamed:
Neither be thou confounded—for thou shalt not be put to shame:
For thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth,
And shalt not remember the reproach of thy widowhood any more.
5 For thy Maker is thy husband;

1 Ho, [a]every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters!
And he that hath no money, [b]come ye, buy, and eat!
Yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price!
2 Wherefore do ye *spend money for that which is not bread?
And your labor for that which satisfieth not?
Hearken diligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good,
And let your soul delight itself in fatness.

c Mat. 11. 28.

3 Incline your ear, and [c]come unto me!
Hear, and your soul shall live!
And I will make an everlasting covenant with you,
Even the [d]sure mercies of David.

4 Behold! I have given him for [e]a witness to the people,
A [f]leader and commander to the people.
5 Behold! [g]thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not,
And [h]nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee
Because of the Lord thy God,
And for the Holy One of Israel; [i]for he hath glorified thee.

[6] Seek [j]ye the Lord while he may be found,
Call ye upon him while he is near:
[7] Let the wicked forsake his way,
And †the unrighteous man his thoughts:
And let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him;
And to our God, for he will ‡abundantly pardon.
[8] For [k]my thoughts are not your thoughts,
Neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord.
[9] For as the heavens are higher than the earth,
So are my ways higher than your ways,
And my thoughts than your thoughts.
[10] For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven,
And returneth not thither,
But watereth the earth,
And maketh it bring forth and bud,
That it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater;
[11] So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth:
It shall not return unto me void,
But it shall accomplish that which I please,
And it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it.
[12] For ye shall go out with joy,
And be led forth with peace:
The mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing,
And all the trees of the field shall clap their hands.
[13] Instead of the thorn—shall come up the fir tree,
And instead of the brier—shall come up the myrtle tree:
And it shall be to the Lord for a name,
For an everlasting sign, that shall not be cut off.

Isaiah lvi. 1–8.

[1] Thus saith the Lord,
Keep ye *judgment, and do justice:
For [l]my salvation is near to come,
And my righteousness to be revealed.
[2] Blessed is the man that doeth this,
And the son of man that layeth hold on it;
That keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it,
And keepeth his hand from doing any evil.
[3] Neither let [m]the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the Lord, speak, saying,—
The Lord hath utterly separated me from his people:
Neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree.
[4] For thus saith the Lord unto the eunuchs that keep my Sabbaths,
And choose the things that please me,
And take hold of my covenant;
[5] Even unto them will I give in [n]my house
And within my walls a place and [o]a name
Better than of sons and of daughters:
I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off.
[6] Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the Lord,
To serve him, and to love the name of the Lord,
To be his servants,
Every one that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it,
And taketh hold of my covenant;
[7] Even them will I [p]bring to my holy mountain,
And make them joyful in my house of prayer:
Their [q]burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar;
For [r]my house shall be called a house of prayer [s]for all people.

ISAIAH lvii.

1 The righteous perisheth, and no man layeth it to heart:
And *merciful men are taken away, [d]none considering
That the righteous is taken away from †the evil to come.
2 He shall ‡enter into peace:
They shall rest in their beds,
Each one walking *in his uprightness
3 But draw near hither, [e]ye sons of the sorceress,
The seed of the adulterer and the whore.
4 Against whom do ye sport yourselves?
Against whom make ye a wide mouth, and draw out the tongue?
Are ye not children of transgression, a seed of falsehood,
5 Enflaming yourselves †with idols under every green tree,
Slaying [f]the children in the valleys under the clifts of the rocks?
6 Among the smooth stones of the stream is thy portion;
They, they are thy lot:
Even to them hast thou poured a drink offering,
Thou hast offered a meat offering.
Should I receive comfort in these?
7 Upon a lofty and high mountain hast thou set thy bed:
Even thither wentest thou up to offer sacrifice.
8 Behind the doors also and the posts hast thou set up thy remembrance:
For thou hast discovered thyself to another than me,
And art gone up; thou hast enlarged thy bed,
And ‡made thee a covenant with them;
Thou lovedst their bed *where thou sawest it.
9 And †thou wentest to the king with ointment,
And didst increase thy perfumes,
And didst send thy messengers far off,
And didst debase thyself—even unto hell.
10 Thou art wearied in the greatness of thy way;
Yet saidst thou not, There is no hope:
Thou hast found the ‡life of thy hand:
Therefore thou wast not grieved.

[11] And of whom hast thou been afraid or feared,
That thou hast lied,
And hast not remembered me, nor laid it to thy heart?
Have not I held my peace even of old,
And thou fearest me not?
[12] I will declare thy righteousness,
And thy works; for they shall not profit thee.
[13] When thou criest—let thy companies deliver thee;
But the wind shall carry them all away;
Vanity shall take them:
But he that putteth his trust in me shall possess the land,
And shall inherit my holy mountain;
[14] And shall say, Cast ye up, cast ye up, prepare the way,
Take up the stumbling-block out of the way of my people!
[15] For thus saith the High and Lofty One
That inhabiteth eternity, [g]whose name is Holy;
I dwell in the high and holy place,
With him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit,
To revive the spirit of the humble,
And to revive the heart of the contrite ones.
[16] For I will not contend for ever,
Neither will I be always wroth;
For the spirit should fail before me,
And the souls which I have made.
[17] For the iniquity of his covetousness was I wroth,
And smote him: I hid me, and was wroth,
And he went on *frowardly in the way of his heart.
[18] I have seen his ways, and will heal him:
I will lead him also, and restore comforts unto him and to his mourners.
[19] I create [h]the fruit of the lips;
Peace, peace [i]to him that is far off, and to him that is near,
Saith the Lord; and I will heal him.
[20] But [j]the wicked are like the troubled sea,
When it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt.
[21] There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.
[1] Cry †aloud, spare not, Isaiah lviii
Lift up thy voice like a trumpet,
And show my people their transgression,
And the house of Jacob their sins!
[2] Yet they seek me daily,
And [a]delight to know my ways,
As a nation that did righteousness,
And forsook not the ordinance of their God:
They ask of me the ordinances of justice;
They take delight in approaching to God.
[3] "Wherefore [k]have we fasted," say they, "and thou seest not?
Wherefore have we [l]afflicted our soul, and thou takest no knowledge?"
Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure,
And exact all your ‡labors.
[4] Behold, [m]ye fast for strife and debate,
And to smite with the fist of wickedness:
*Ye shall not fast as ye do this day,
To make your voice to be heard on high.

[n]To undo ‡the heavy burdens,
And [o]to let the *oppressed go free,
And that ye break every yoke?
7 Is it not [p]to deal thy bread to the hungry,
And that thou bring the poor that are †cast out to thy house?
When thou seest the naked, that thou cover him;
And that thou hide not thyself from [q]thine own flesh?
8 Then [r]shall thy light break forth as the morning,

And thy righteousness shall go before thee;

9 Then shalt thou call—and the Lord shall answer;
Thou shalt cry—and he shall say, Here I am!
If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke,

10 And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry,
And satisfy the afflicted soul;
Then shall thy light rise in obscurity,
And thy darkness be as the noon day.
11 And the Lord shall guide thee continually,
And satisfy thy soul in *drought,
And make fat thy bones;
And thou shalt be like a watered garden,
And like a spring of water, whose waters †fail not.
12 And they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places:
Thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations;
And thou shalt be called, The Repairer of the breach,
The restorer of paths to dwell in.'
13 If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath,
From doing thy pleasure on my holy day;
And call the Sabbath a delight,
The holy of the Lord, honorable;
And shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways,
Nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words:
14 Then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord;
And I will cause thee to [t]ride upon the high places of the earth,
And feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father:
For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.

1 Behold, the Lord's hand is not [u]shortened, that it cannot save;
Neither his ear heavy, that it cannot hear:
2 But your iniquities have separated between you and your God,
And your sins ‡have hid his face from you, that he will not hear.
3 For your hands are defiled with blood,
And your fingers with iniquity;

[16] AND He saw that there was no man,

And [a]wondered that there was no intercessor:
Therefore his arm brought salvation unto him;
And his righteousness, it sustained him.
17 For [b]he put on righteousness as a breastplate,
And a helmet of salvation upon his head;
And he put on the garments of vengeance for clothing,
And was clad with zeal as a cloak.
18 According to their *deeds, accordingly he will repay,
Fury to his adversaries, recompence to his enemies;
To the islands he will repay recompence.
19 So shall they fear the name of the Lord from the west,
And his glory from the rising of the sun.
When the enemy shall come in [c]like a flood,
The Spirit of the Lord shall †lift up a standard against him.
20 And [d]the Redeemer shall come to Zion,
And unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord.
21 As [e]for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord;
My spirit that is upon thee,
And my words which I have put in thy mouth,
Shall not depart out of thy mouth,
Nor out of the mouth of thy seed,
Nor out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord,
From henceforth and for ever.

I the LORD will hasten it in his time.
z Lu. 4. 18. Jo. 1. 32. & 3. 34.
1 The [z]Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me; ISAIAH lxi.
Because the LORD hath anointed me
To preach good tidings unto the meek;
He hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted,
a Is. 42. 7. See Je. 34. 8.
To proclaim [a]liberty to the captives,
And the opening of the prison to them that are bound;

[2] To [b]proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord,
And [c]the day of vengeance of our God;
To [d]comfort all that mourn;
[3] To appoint unto them that mourn in Zion,
To give unto them beauty for ashes,
The oil of joy for mourning,
The garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness;
That they might be called Trees of Righteousness,
The Planting of the Lord, [e]that he might be glorified.
[4] And they shall build the old wastes,
They shall raise up the former desolations,
And they shall repair the waste cities,
The desolations of many generations.
[5] And [f]strangers shall stand and feed your flocks,
And the sons of the alien shall be your ploughmen and your vinedressers.
[6] But [g]ye shall be named The Priests of the Lord:
Men shall call you The Ministers of our God;
Ye shall eat the riches of the Gentiles,
And in their glory shall ye boast yourselves.
[7] For [h]your shame—ye shall have double;
And for confusion—they shall rejoice in their portion:
Therefore in their land they shall possess the double:
Everlasting joy shall be unto them.
[8] For I the Lord love judgment,
I hate robbery for burnt offering;
And I will direct their work in truth,
And I will make an everlasting covenant with them.
[9] And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles,
And their offspring among the people:
All that see them shall acknowledge them,
That they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed.
[10] I will greatly rejoice in the Lord,
My soul shall be joyful in my God;
For he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation,
He hath covered me with the robe of righteousness,
As [i]a bridegroom *decketh himself with ornaments,
And as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels.
[11] For as the earth bringeth forth her bud,
And as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth;
So the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations.

Isaiah lxii.

[1] For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace,
And for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest,
Until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness,
And the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth.
[2] And the Gentiles shall see thy righteousness,
And all kings thy glory:
And thou shalt be called by a new name,
Which the mouth of the Lord shall name.
[3] Thou shalt also be [j]a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord,
And a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.
[4] Thou [k]shalt no more be termed Forsaken;
Neither shall thy land any more be termed Desolate:
But thou shalt be called †Hephzi-bah,
And thy land ‡Beulah;
For the Lord delighteth in thee, and thy land shall be married.
[5] For as a young man marrieth a virgin,

ISAIAH lxiii.

1 Who is this that cometh from Edom,
With dyed garments from Bozrah?
This that is ‡glorious in his apparel,
Travelling in the greatness of his strength?
I that speak in righteousness,
Mighty to save.
2 Wherefore [q]art thou red in thine apparel,
And thy garments like him that treadeth in the winefat?
3 I have [r]trodden the winepress alone;
And of the people there was none with me:
For I will tread them in mine anger,
And trample them in my fury;
And their blood shall be sprinkled upon my garments,
And I will stain all my raiment.
4 For the day of vengeance is in my heart,
And the year of my redeemed is come.
5 And I looked—and [s]there was none to help!
And I wondered that there was none to uphold;
Therefore mine own arm brought salvation unto me;
And my fury, it upheld me.
6 And I will tread down the people in mine anger,
And [t]make them drunk in my fury,
And I will bring down their strength to the earth.
7 I will mention the lovingkindness of the LORD,
And the praises of the LORD,
According to all that the LORD hath bestowed on us,
And the great goodness toward the house of Israel,
Which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies,
And according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses.
8 For he said, Surely they are my people,
Children that will not lie:
So he was their Saviour.

9 In [t]all their affliction he was afflicted,
And [u]the Angel of his presence saved them:
In [v]his love and in his pity he redeemed them;
And [w]he bare them, and carried them all the days of old.
10 But they [x]rebelled, and [y]vexed his Holy Spirit:
Therefore [z]he was turned to be their enemy,
And he fought against them.
11 Then he remembered the days of old, Moses, and his people, [saying,
Where is He that [a]brought them up out of the sea
With the *shepherd of his flock?
Where [b]is he that put his Holy Spirit within him?
12 That led them by the right hand of Moses [c]with his glorious arm,
Dividing [d]the water before them,
To make himself an everlasting name?
13 That led them through the deep,
As a horse in the wilderness, that they should not stumble?
14 As a beast goeth down into the valley,
The Spirit of the LORD caused him to rest:
So didst thou lead thy people,
To [e]make thyself a glorious name.
15 Look [f]down from heaven,
And behold from the habitation of thy holiness and of thy glory:
Where is thy zeal and thy strength,
The †sounding of thy bowels and of thy mercies toward me?

And [g]hardened our heart from thy fear?

[1] I [r]am sought of them that asked not for me;
I am found of them that sought me not:
I said, Behold me, behold me! unto a nation that was not called by my name.

Which walketh in a way that was not good,

(55) These chapters must have been delivered before the ten tribes were taken captive, as the prophet not only denounces vengeance against them, but constantly addresses them as a nation still in existence—they must likewise have been spoken after Hoshea, king of Israel, had revolted from Assyria, and entered into treaty with So, king of Egypt (2 Kings xvii. 4), because the prophet alludes to this circumstance in chap. vii. 11, and xii. 1. The alliance with Egypt was formed in 725, Shalmaneser immediately afterwards led his army against Samaria, which place, after a siege of three years, was taken; and Ephraim, as a nation, destroyed in 721 B. C.

Hosea, in one continued strain of invective, declaims in these chapters against the sins of Israel, exposes the spiritual whoredoms of those who worshipped the vain idols erected at Beth-el and Beth-aven, chap. viii. 5. chap x. 5. calling on Judah to shun pollutions so offensive to Jehovah. He denounces vengeance on Ephraim, for their application to Egypt, against which they had been so often warned. He foretells the punishment of Judah, and the demolition of its cities, chap. viii. 14,—and their future restoration, chap. xiv. 4. 8; the calling of our Saviour out of Egypt, chap. xi. 1; the terrors of the last judgment figuratively represented in the impending destruction of Samaria, chap. x. 8. He animates the people, amidst these denunciations of wrath, to cultivate righteousness and mercy, in the expectation of the blessings of the Lord, chap. x. 12; and in the assurances of a final ransom from the powers of the grave, and of a redemption from death, to be vanquished and destroyed, chap. xiii. 14. His work may be considered as a noble exordium against those general offences which the prophets who succeeded him more particularly detailed; as well as a diffuse revelation of those judgments which were afterwards more minutely described.—Gray's Key, p. 427.—Lightfoot's Chronicle in loc.

[3] They make the king glad with their wickedness, c Ro. 1. 32.
And the princes [c]with their lies.
[4] They are all adulterers, as an oven heated by the baker,
* Or, The raiser will cease.
† Or, from waking.
*Who ceaseth †from raising after he hath kneaded the dough, until it be leavened.
‡ Or, with heat through wine.
[5] In the day of our king the princes have made him sick ‡with bottles
He stretched out his hand with scorners. [of wine;
* Or, applied.
[6] For they have *made ready their heart like an oven,
While they lie in wait:
Their baker sleepeth all the night;
In the morning it burneth as a flaming fire.
[7] They are all hot as an oven,
And have devoured their judges;
All their kings are fallen:
There is none among them that calleth unto me.
[8] Ephraim, he hath mixed himself among the people;
Ephraim is a cake not turned.
[9] Strangers have devoured his strength—and he knoweth it not:
† Heb. sprinkled.
Yea, gray hairs are †here and there upon him—yet he knoweth not.
[10] And the pride of Israel testifieth to his face:
And they do not return to the Lord their God,
Nor seek him for all this.
[11] Ephraim also is like a silly dove without heart:
d See 2 Ki. 15. 19. & 17. 4.
They [d]call to Egypt, they go to Assyria.
[12] When they shall go, I will spread my net upon them;
I will bring them down as the fowls of the heaven;
e Le. 26. 14, &c. 2 Ki. 17. 13, 18.
I will chastise them, [e]as their congregation hath heard.
[13] Woe unto them! for they have fled from me:
‡ Heb. Spoil.
‡Destruction unto them! because they have transgressed against me:
Though I have redeemed them—yet they have spoken lies against me.
[14] And they have not cried unto me with their heart,
When they howled upon their beds:
They assemble themselves for corn and wine,
And they rebel against me.
* Or, chastened.
[15] Though I *have bound and strengthened their arms,
Yet do they imagine mischief against me.
[16] They return—but not to the Most High:
They are like a deceitful bow:
Their princes shall fall by the sword for the rage of their tongue:
This shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

The enemy shall pursue him.
h 2 Ki. 15. 13, 17, 25, Shallum, Menahem, Pekahiah.
[4] They [h]have set up kings—but not by me:
They have made princes—and I knew it not:
Of their silver and their gold have they made them idols,
That they may be cut off.
[5] Thy calf, O Samaria! hath cast thee off;
Mine anger is kindled against them:
How long will it be ere they attain to innocency?
[6] For from Israel was it also:
The workman made it; therefore it is not God;
But the calf of Samaria shall be broken in pieces.

7 For [i]they have sown the wind—and they shall reap the whirlwind:
It hath no ‡stalk—the bud shall yield no meal:
If so be it yield—the strangers shall swallow it up.
8 Israel [j]is swallowed up:
Now shall they be among the Gentiles as a vessel wherein is no pleasure.
9 For [k]they are gone up to Assyria, a wild ass alone by himself:
Ephraim hath hired *lovers.
10 Yea, though they have hired among the nations, now will I gather them,
And they shall †sorrow ‡a little for the burden of [l]the king of princes.
11 Because Ephraim hath made many altars to sin,
Altars shall be unto him to sin.
12 I have written to him [m]the great things of my law,
But they were counted as a strange thing.
13 *They sacrifice flesh for the sacrifices of mine offerings, and eat it;
But the Lord accepteth them not;
Now will he remember their iniquity, and visit their sins:
They [n]shall return to Egypt.
14 For [o]Israel hath forgotten [p]his Maker, and [q]buildeth temples;
And Judah hath multiplied fenced cities:
But I will send a fire upon his cities,
And it shall devour the palaces thereof.
1 Rejoice not, O Israel! for joy, as other people: Hosea ix.
For thou hast gone a whoring from thy God,
Thou hast loved a reward †upon every corn-floor.
2 The floor and the ‡winepress shall not feed them,
And the new wine shall fail in her.
3 They shall not dwell in [r]the Lord's land;
But [s]Ephraim shall return to Egypt,
And [t]they shall eat unclean things [u]in Assyria.
4 They shall not offer wine offerings to the Lord,
Neither shall they be pleasing unto him:
Their [v]sacrifices shall be unto them as the bread of mourners;
All that eat thereof shall be polluted;
For their bread [w]for their soul shall not come into the house of the Lord.
5 What will ye do in the solemn day,
And in the day of the feast of the Lord?
6 For, lo! they are gone because of *destruction:
Egypt shall gather them up, Memphis shall bury them:
†The pleasant places for their silver, nettles shall possess them:
Thorns shall be in their tabernacles.
7 The days of visitation are come,
The days of recompence are come;
Israel shall know it:
The prophet is a fool, ‡the spiritual man is mad,
For the multitude of thine iniquity, and the great hatred.
8 The [x]watchman of Ephraim was with my God:
But the prophet is a snare of a fowler in all his ways,
And hatred *in the house of his God.
9 They have deeply corrupted themselves, as in the days of [y]Gibeah:
Therefore He will remember their iniquity,
He will visit their sins.

2 ‡Their heart is [g]divided—now shall they be found faulty:
He shall *break down their altars,

3 For now they shall say,
We have no king, because we feared not the LORD;
What then should a king do to us?
4 They have spoken words,
Swearing falsely in making a covenant:
Thus judgment springeth up [h]as hemlock in the furrows of the field.
5 The inhabitants of Samaria shall fear because of [i]the calves of Beth-[aven;
For the people thereof shall mourn over it,

[1] Ephraim feedeth on wind, and followeth after the east wind:
He daily increaseth lies and desolation;
And [y]they do make a covenant with the Assyrians,

2 Kings xviii. 9–12, and xvii. 7–23, and 5, 6.

[9] And it came to pass in the fourth year of king Hezekiah, which was the seventh year of Hoshea son of Elah king of Israel, that Shalmaneser king of Assyria came up against Samaria, and besieged it. [10] And at the end of three years they took it: even in the sixth year of Hezekiah, that is the ninth year of Hoshea king of Israel, Samaria was taken. [11] And the king of Assyria did [a]carry away Israel unto Assyria, and put them in Halah and in Habor by the river of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes; [12] because [b]they obeyed not the voice of the Lord their God, but transgressed his covenant, and all that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded, and would not hear them, nor do them. [7] For so it was, that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, which had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and had feared other gods, [8] and [c]walked in the statutes of the heathen, whom the Lord cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made. [9] And the children of Israel did secretly those things that were not right against the Lord their God, and they built them high places in all their cities, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city. [10] And they set them up *images and [d]groves in every high hill, and under every green tree. [11] And there they burnt incense in all the high places, as did the heathen whom the Lord carried away before them; and wrought wicked things to provoke the Lord to anger; [12] for they served idols, [e]whereof the Lord had said unto them, "Ye [f]shall not do this thing."

2 Kings xvii. 7–23.

[13] Yet the Lord testified against Israel, and against Judah, †by all the prophets, and by all the seers, saying, "Turn [g]ye from your evil ways, and keep my commandments and my statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by my servants the prophets." [14] Notwithstanding they would not hear, but [h]hardened their necks, like to the neck of their fathers, that did not believe in the Lord their God. [15] And they rejected his statutes, and [i]his covenant that he made with their fathers, and his testimonies which he testified against them; and they followed [j]vanity, and [k]became vain, and went after the heathen that were round about them, concerning whom the Lord had charged them, that they should [l]not do like them. [16] And they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, and [m]made them molten images, even two calves, [n]and made a grove, and worshipped all the host of heaven, [o]and served Baal. [17] And [p]they caused their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire, and [q]used divination and enchantments, and [r]sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke him to anger.

[18] Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them out of his sight: there was none left [s]but the tribe of Judah only. [19] Also [t]Judah kept not the commandments of the Lord their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel which they made. [20] And the LORD rejected all the seed of Israel, and afflicted them, and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, until he had cast them out of his sight. [21] For [u]he rent Israel from the house of David; and [v]they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king; and Jeroboam drave Israel from following the LORD, and made them sin a great sin. [22] For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they departed not from them; [23] until the LORD removed Israel out of his sight, [w]as he had said by all his servants the prophets. So was Israel carried away out of their own land to Assyria unto this day.

[1] MANASSEH was twelve years old when he began to reign, and reigned fifty and five years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Hephzi-bah. [2] And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, after the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD cast out before the children of Israel. [3] For he built up again the high places [a]which Hezekiah his father had destroyed; and he reared up altars for Baal, and made a grove, [b]as did Ahab king of Israel; and [c]worshipped all the host of heaven, and served them. [4] And [d]he built altars in the house of the LORD, of which the LORD said, "In [e]Jerusalem will I put my name." [5] And he built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD. [6] And [f]he made his son pass through the fire, and observed [g]times, and used enchantments, and dealt with familiar spirits and wizards: he wrought much wickedness in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger. [7] And he set a graven image of the grove that he had made in the house, of which the LORD said to David, and to Solomon his son, "In [h]this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever. [8] Neither [i]will I make the feet of Israel move any more out of the land which I gave their fathers; only if they will observe to do according to all that I have commanded them, and according to all the law that my servant Moses commanded them." [9] But they hearkened not; and Manasseh [j]seduced them to do more evil than did the nations whom the LORD destroyed before the children of Israel.

(56) On the death of Hezekiah, idolatry was re-established in Judah, (2 Kings xxi.) His son Manasseh, who succeeded him, being now only twelve years of age, its revival must be imputed rather to those who held the offices of government, than to the king himself. The first part of this chapter of Isaiah foretells the invasion of Jerusalem by the Assyrians under Sennacherib, or by the Chaldeans under Nebuchadnezzar. The latter part of it predicts the destruction of Shebna, and seems to have so little reference to the former, that, from its internal evidence, I have been induced to separate it, and to give it this place. Vitringa and Bishop Lowth are of opinion, that the Shebna here mentioned is not the same as Shebna the scribe, spoken of in the history of Hezekiah's reign. As we only read of one person of eminence of the name of Shebna in the account of the events of this king's life, there does not appear sufficient grounds for the adoption of this supposition. In ver. 15, we find that Shebna the scribe was now over the house; it is most probable, therefore, from the sequel, that he was the cause of Eliakim's having been dismissed from that station. Eliakim was actually treasurer at the time of Sennacherib's invasion, and, from the prophet's description (ver. 21,) he must have been a servant of the true God, and as such employed by Hezekiah: we have therefore reason to conjecture he lost his situation as treasurer since the accession of Manasseh. Shebna, in succeeding to this office, in all probability was the chief promoter of the re-establishment of idolatry: his great pride and vanity are displayed in his anxiety to have his sepulchre on high, in a lofty vault, that it might be more conspicuous; a custom prevalent in the East among persons of exalted rank. While he was rioting in all the excess of luxury, devoting himself to false gods, and making "a habitation in a rock," I have supposed that Isaiah predicts his downfall. It is not possible to imagine that this prophet could have been a silent spectator of the present revival of idolatry; and it is by many conjectured that the severe and forcible language in which he denounces the ruin of Shebna, was the principal cause of the cruel death soon after inflicted on him. Shebna was taken captive with Manasseh to Babylon, and when the Lord brought that king again to Jerusalem, and "he took away the strange gods, and commanded Judah to serve the Lord God of Israel," (2 Chron. xxxiii. 15, 16,) he recalled Eliakim, and literally fulfilled the prediction of the prophet, by making him again the treasurer of his household;

"I will clothe him with thy robe,
And strengthen him with thy girdle,"—(ver. 21.)

Eliakim is supposed to have been of the pontifical family, and to have been high priest at the time of Manasseh; and the same who is mentioned by the name of Joakim or Eliakim, as high priest in the history of Judith. Eliakim and Joakim have both the same signification in the Hebrew tongue, and are used promiscuously. It is likewise conjectured, that Eliakim was the Hilkiah mentioned as high priest in the reign of Josiah. I have inserted this as the last of Isaiah's prophecies, considering it as the probable cause of his death. There was a very ancient and general tradition among the Jews, that this prophet was sawn asunder during the reign of Manasseh, (2 Kings xxi. 16,) and that his death is alluded to in Hebrews xi. 37. In Uvramoth, fol. 49. 2. it is thus written: "Manasseh slew Isaiah; for he commanded that he should be slain with a wooden saw. They then brought the saw, and cut him in two; and when the sword reached his mouth, his soul fled forth." St. Jerome and others mention the same thing, and among the Jews the tradition is indubitable.—Prideaux's Connection, vol. i. p. 40.—Whitby and Dr. Adam Clarke on Hebrews xi. 37.—Fragments of Calmet, 10.

[15] And he took away the strange gods, and the idol out of the house of the LORD, and all the altars that he had built in the mount of the house of the LORD, and in Jerusalem, and cast them out of the city. [16] And he repaired the altar of the LORD, and sacrificed thereon peace offerings and [u]thank offerings, and commanded Judah to serve the LORD God of Israel. [17] Nevertheless the people did sacrifice still in the high places, yet unto the LORD their God only.

2 KINGS xxi. 17, 18.

[17] Now the rest of the acts of Manasseh, and all that he did, and his sin that he sinned, are they not written in The Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [18] And Manasseh slept with his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of Uzza: and Amon his son reigned in his stead.

‡ Heb. he returned and built.

2 CHRON. xxxiii. 1–10, 20.—[1] Manasseh was twelve years old when he began to reign and he reigned fifty and five years in Jerusalem; [2] but did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD, like unto the abominations of the heathen, whom the LORD had cast out before the children of Israel. [3] For ‡he built again the high places which Hezekiah his father had broken down, and he reared up altars for Baalim, and made groves, and worshipped all the host of heaven, and served them. [4] Also he built altars in the house of the LORD, whereof the LORD had said, "In Jerusalem shall my name be for ever." [5] And he built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the house of the LORD. [6] And he caused his children to pass through the fire in the valley of the son of Hinnom: also he observed times, and used enchantments, and used witchcraft, and dealt with a familiar spirit, and with wizards: he wrought much evil in the sight of the LORD, to provoke him to anger. [7] And he set a carved image, the idol which he had made, in the house of God, of which God had said to David and to Solomon his son, "In this house, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen before all the tribes of Israel, will I put my name for ever. [8] Neither will I any more remove the foot of Israel from out of the land which I have appointed for your fathers; so that they will take heed to do all that I have commanded them, according to the whole law and the statutes and the ordinances by the hand of Moses." [9] So Manasseh made Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem to err, and to do worse than the heathen, whom the Lord had destroyed before the children of Israel. [10] And the Lord spake to Manasseh, and to his people; but they would not hearken.

[20] So Manasseh slept with his fathers, and they buried him in his own house: and Amon his son reigned in his stead.

THE REIGN OF AMON, KING OF JUDAH.

2 Kings xxi. 19, to the end.—2 Chron. xxxiii. 21, to the end.

[19] AMON was twenty and two years old when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Meshullemeth, the daughter of Haruz of Jotbah. [20] And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, as his father Manasseh did. [21] And he walked in all the way that his father walked in, and served the idols that his father served, and worshipped them; [22] and he forsook the Lord God of his fathers, and walked not in the way of the Lord.

[23] And the servants of Amon conspired against him, and slew the king in his own house. [24] And the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king Amon; and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead. [25] Now the rest of the acts of Amon which he did, are they not written in The Book of the Chronicles of the Kings of Judah? [26] And he was buried in his sepulchre in the garden of Uzza: and [a]Josiah his son reigned in his stead.

[a] Mat. 1. 10, called Josias.

2 Chron. xxxiii. 21, to the end.—[21] Amon was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and reigned two years in Jerusalem. [22] But he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, as did Manasseh his father; for Amon sacrificed unto all the carved images which Manasseh his father had made, and served them; [23] and humbled not himself before the Lord, as Manasseh his father had humbled himself; but Amon *trespassed more and more. [24] And his servants conspired against him, and slew him in his own house. [25] But the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king Amon; and the people of the land made Josiah his son king in his stead.

THE REIGN OF JOSIAH, KING OF JUDAH.

Section I.—Josiah removes Idolatry.

2 Kings xxii. 1, 2.—2 Chron. xxxiv. 3–7, and 1, 2.

[1] JOSIAH was eight years old when he began to reign, and he reigned thirty and one years in Jerusalem. And his mother's name was Jedidah, the daughter of Adaiah of Boscath. [2] And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the way of David his father, and [a]turned not aside to the right hand or to the left. [3] For in the eighth year of his reign, while he was yet young, he began to seek after the God of David his father; and in the twelfth year he began to purge Judah and Jerusalem from the high places, and the groves, and the carved images, and the molten images. [4] And [b]they brake down the altars of Baalim in his presence; and the *images, that were on high above them, he cut down; and the groves, and the carved images, and the molten images, he brake in pieces, and made dust of them, and strowed it upon the †graves of them that had sacrificed unto them. [5] And he [c]burnt the bones of the priests upon their altars, and cleansed Judah and Jerusalem. [6] And so did he in the cities of Manasseh, and Ephraim, and Simeon, even unto Naphtali, with their ‡mattocks round about. [7] And when he had broken down the altars and the groves, and had [d]beaten the graven images *into powder, and cut down all the idols throughout all the land of Israel, he returned to Jerusalem.

(57) The place and date of the first chapter of Jeremiah is assigned in verse 2. The efforts of Josiah to reform the nation of the Jews were promoted to the utmost by this prophet; who was mercifully commanded to exhort, and to make a final appeal, both to the people and to their princes, before they were carried into captivity. Chapters ii. and iii. to ver. 6, are supposed, by Dr. Blayney, to be one continued prophecy, delivered soon after the prophet commenced the duties of his office. It is a powerful address, full of eloquence; endeavouring to convince the Jews of God's continued regard, and expostulating with them for their idolatry and sin, and exhorting them to return to God.

The prophet Jeremiah was of the sacerdotal race, being (as he himself records) one of the priests that dwelt at Anathoth (i. 1.) in the land of Benjamin, a city appropriated out of that tribe to the use of the priests, the sons of Aaron (Josh. xxi. 18.), and situate about three Roman miles north of Jerusalem. Jeremiah appears to have been very young when he was called to the exercise of the prophetical office, from which he modestly endeavoured to excuse himself, by pleading his youth and incapacity; but being overruled by the divine authority, he set himself to discharge the duties of his function with unremitting diligence and fidelity, during a course of at least forty-two years, reckoned from the thirteenth year of Josiah's reign. In the course of his ministry he met with great difficulties and opposition from his countrymen, of all degrees, whose persecution and ill usage sometimes wrought so far upon his mind, as to draw from him expressions, in the bitterness of his soul, which many have thought difficult to reconcile with his religious principles; but which, when duly weighed, may be found to demand our pity rather than censure. He was, in truth, a man of unblemished piety and conscientious integrity; a warm lover of his country, whose miseries he pathetically deplores; and so affectionately attached to his countrymen, notwithstanding their injurious treatment of him, that he chose rather to abide with them, and undergo all hardships in their company, than separately to enjoy a state of ease and plenty, which the favor of the king of Babylon would have secured to him. At length, after the destruction of Jerusalem, having followed the remnant of the Jews into Egypt, whither they had resolved to retire, though contrary to his advice, upon the murder of Gedaliah, whom the Chaldeans had left governor in Judæa, he there continued warmly to remonstrate against their idolatrous practices, foretelling the consequences that would inevitably follow. But his freedom and zeal are said to have cost him his life; for there is a tradition, that the Jews at Tahpanhes were so offended at his faithful remonstrances, that they stoned him to death; which account of the manner of his decease, though not absolutely certain, is at least very likely to be true, considering the temper and disposition of the parties concerned. Their wickedness, however, did not long pass without its punishment; for, in a few years after, they were miserably destroyed by the Babylonian armies which invaded Egypt, according to the prophet's prediction, (xliv. 27, 28.)* Some Jewish writers, however, affirm that he returned to Judæa, while others say that he went to Babylon, and died there; and a third class are of opinion that he died in Egypt, far advanced in years, and broken by the calamities which had happened both to himself and his country. This prophet's writings are all in Hebrew, except the eleventh verse of the tenth chapter, which is in Chaldee.

The idolatrous apostacy and other criminal enormities of the people of Judah, and the severe judgments which God was preparing to inflict upon them, though not without a distant prospect of future restoration and deliverance, form the principal subjects of the prophecies of Jeremiah; except the forty-fifth chapter, which relates personally to Baruch, and the six following chapters which respect the fortunes of some particular heathen nations.

The arrangement of the prophecies of Jeremiah has been attended with more difficulties than those of any other prophet. Their order differs in the Septuagint and in the Hebrew. It is evident, from various passages of the book itself, that there were four distinct collections of the prophecies. The first was that mentioned in chap. xxxvi. 2., and made by divine command in the fourth year of the reign of Jehoiakim. In this collection were contained all the predictions which he had delivered and published to that time, as well against other nations as against the Jews: the prophecies against the Gentiles are, in our Bibles, placed by themselves at the end of the book, as being in some measure unconnected with those denounced against the Jews; but, in the present copies of the Septuagint, they follow immediately after the thirteenth verse of the twenty-fifth chapter.† This first collection comprised chapters i.–xx. xxv. xxvi. xxxv. xxxvi. and xlv.–li. inclusive.

The second collection is that mentioned in chap. xxx. 2. and contained chapters xxvii.–xxxi. inclusive: it was made in the reign of Zedekiah, and, as may be inferred from xxviii. 1, after the fourth year of the reign of Zedekiah.

The third collection was made soon after the destruction of Jerusalem, as is plainly indicated by the prophet himself, in the general preface to his book, where he says that the word of Jehovah came to him "in the days of Josiah the son of Amon king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign; and came in the days of Jehoiakim the son of

* Dr. Blayney's Translation of Jeremiah, p. 221, 222, 2d edit.

† Carpzov has written an elaborate disquisition of the variations between the Hebrew and the Septuagint, in the order of Jeremiah's prophecies, and has given a table illustrating those variations. See his Introduct. ad Libros Biblicos Vet. Test. pars iii. c. iii. § 4. p. 144–152.

LORD came in the days of Josiah the son of Amon king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign. [3] It came also in the days of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, unto the end of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah king of Judah, [a]unto Josiah king of Judah, until the completion of the eleventh year of Zedekiah the son of Josiah king of Judah, until the carrying away of Jerusalem into captivity in the fifth month," (i. 1–3.) Consequently, this third collection included chapters xxi.–xxiv. xxxii.–xxxiv. and xxxvii.–xxxix.

The fourth collection, containing chapters xl.–xliv. inclusive, presents us with an account of Jeremiah himself, and of the other Jews who were left in Judæa by the command of Nebuchadnezzar. The fifty-second chapter was probably added by Ezra,* as a preface to the Book of Lamentations. It is chiefly taken out of the latter part of the Second Book of Kings, with additions, which Ezra might supply out of the inspired records, and forms a very useful appendage to the prophecies of Jeremiah, as it illustrates their fulfilment in the destruction of the kingdom, city, and temple, which are the subject of the Lamentations.—Horne's Crit. Introduct. vol. ii. p. 273, &c.

On examining the internal evidence for the respective dates and occasions, when these prophecies were probably delivered; and taking into consideration the several arguments of Lightfoot and Taylor, together with those of Prideaux, who has assigned a place to many of these predictions; it has been thought advisable to depart, in several instances, from Dr. Blayney's system, which has been generally adhered to in the arrangement of this book. That the reader who is interested in these inquiries may understand at one view the various arrangements given by these divines of the prophecies of Jeremiah, I have drawn up, in the following table, a summary of the order in which the chapters of Jeremiah should be read, according to their respective opinions.

And brazen walls against the whole land,
Against the kings of Judah, against the princes thereof,
Against the priests thereof, and against the people of the land.
[19] And they shall fight against thee;
But they shall not prevail against thee;
For I am with thee," saith the Lord, "to deliver thee.'

[5] Thus saith the Lord,—
"What iniquity have your fathers found in me,

And have walked after vanity, and are become vain?

To drink the waters of Sihor?
Or what hast thou to do in the way of Assyria,
To drink the waters of the river?
19 Thine own wickedness shall correct thee,
And thy backslidings shall reprove thee:
Know therefore and see
That it is an evil thing and bitter,
That thou hast forsaken the LORD thy God, z De. 32. 16.

"†There is no hope:
No; for I have loved [z]strangers,
And after them will I go."
[26] As the thief is ashamed when he is found,
So is the house of Israel ashamed;
They, their kings, their princes,
And their priests, and their prophets,
[27] Saying to a stock, "Thou art my father;"
And to a stone, "Thou hast ‡brought me forth;"
For they have turned *their back unto me, and not their face:
But in the time of their [a]trouble they will say, Arise, and save us!
[28] But [b]where are thy gods that thou hast made thee?
Let them arise, if they can save thee in the time of thy †trouble:
For according to the number of thy cities
Are thy gods, O Judah!
[29] Wherefore will ye plead with me?
Ye all have transgressed against me, saith the LORD.
[30] In vain have I [c]smitten your children;
They received no correction:
Your own sword hath [d]devoured your prophets,
Like a destroying lion.
[31] O generation, see ye the word of the LORD!
Have I been a wilderness unto Israel?
A land of darkness?
Wherefore say my people,
"‡We are lords;
We will come no more unto thee?"
[32] Can a maid forget her ornaments, or a bride her attire?
Yet my people have forgotten me days without number.
[33] Why trimmest thou thy way to seek love?
Therefore hast thou also taught the wicked ones thy ways.
[34] Also in thy skirts is found the blood of the souls of the poor innocents:
I have not found it by *secret search, but upon all these.
[35] Yet thou sayest,
"Because I am innocent,
Surely his anger shall turn from me."
Behold, I will plead with thee,
Because [e]thou sayest, "I have not sinned."
[36] Why gaddest thou about so much to change thy way?
Thou also shalt be ashamed of Egypt,
As [f]thou wast ashamed of Assyria.
[37] Yea, thou shalt go forth from him,
And thy hands upon thy head;
For the LORD hath rejected thy confidences,
And thou shalt not prosper in them.

JEREMIAH iii. 1–5.

[1] †They say, "If a man put away his wife,
And she go from him, and become another man's,
Shall [g]he return unto her again?
Shall not that land be greatly polluted?"
But thou hast played the harlot with many lovers;
Yet return again to me, saith the LORD.
[2] Lift up thine eyes unto the high places,
And see where thou hast not been lain with.
In [h]the ways hast thou set for them,
As the Arabian in the wilderness;
And thou hast polluted the land
With thy whoredoms and with thy wickedness.

SECTION III.—Josiah repairs the Temple;—The Book of the Law is founa by Hilkiah.

2 CHRON. xxxiv. 8–32.—2 KINGS xxii. 3, to the end, and xxiii. 1–3.

Josiah taketh order for the repair of the temple. 14 Hilkiah having found a book of the Law, Josiah sendeth to Huldah to inquire of the Lord. 23 Huldah prophesieth the destruction of Jerusalem, but respite thereof in Josiah's time. 29 Josiah, causing it to be read in a solemn assembly, reneweth the covenant with God.

[8] Now in the eighteenth year of his reign, when [a]he had purged the land, and the house, he sent Shaphan the son of Azaliah, and Maaseiah the governor of the city, and Joah the son of Joahaz the recorder, to repair the house of the LORD his God. [9] And when they came to Hilkiah the high priest, they delivered [a]the money that was brought into the house of God, which the Levites that kept the doors had gathered of the hand of Manasseh and Ephraim, and of all the remnant of Israel, and of all Judah and Benjamin; and they returned to Jerusalem. [10] And they put it in the hand of the workmen that had the oversight of the house of the LORD, and they gave it to the workmen that wrought in the house of the LORD, to repair and mend the house: [11] even to the artificers and builders gave they it, to buy hewn stone, and timber for couplings, and *to floor the houses which the kings of Judah had destroyed. [12] And the men did the work faithfully: and the overseers of them were Jahath and Obadiah, the Levites, of the sons of Merari; and Zechariah and Meshullam, of the sons of the Kohathites, to set it forward; and other of the Levites, all that could skill of instruments of music. [13] Also they were over the bearers of burdens, and were overseers of all that wrought the work in any manner of service; [b]and of the Levites there were scribes, and officers, and porters.

[14] And when they brought out the money that was brought into the house of the LORD, Hilkiah the priest found a Book of the Law of the LORD given †by Moses. [15] And Hilkiah answered and said to Shaphan the scribe, "I have found the Book of the Law in the house of the LORD." And Hilkiah delivered the book to Shaphan. [16] And Shaphan carried the book to the king, and brought the king word back again, saying, "All that was committed ‡to thy servants, they do it. [17] And they have *gathered together the money that was found in the house of the LORD, and have delivered it into the hand of the overseers, and to the hand of the workmen." [18] Then Shaphan the scribe told the king, saying, "Hilkiah the priest hath given me a book." And Shaphan read †it before the king. [19] And it came to pass, when the king had heard the words of the Law, that he rent his clothes. [20] And the king commanded Hilkiah, and Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and ‡Abdon the son of Micah, and Shaphan the scribe, and Asaiah a servant of the king's, saying, [21] "Go, inquire of the LORD for me, and for them that are left in Israel and in Judah, concerning the words of the book that is found; for great is the wrath of the LORD that is poured out upon us, because our fathers have not kept the word of the LORD, to do after all that is written in this book." [23] And she answered them, "Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Tell ye the man that sent you to me, [24] Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, even all the curses that are written in the book which they have read before the king of Judah; [25] because they have forsaken me, and have burned incense unto other gods, that they might provoke me to anger with all the works of their hands; therefore my wrath shall be poured out upon this place, and shall not be quenched. [26] And as for the king of Judah, who sent you to inquire of the Lord, so shall ye say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel concerning the words which thou hast heard; [27] Because thy heart was tender, and thou didst humble thyself before God, when thou heardest his words against this place, and against the inhabitants thereof, and humbledst thyself before me, and didst rend thy clothes, and weep before me; I have even heard thee also, saith the Lord. [28] Behold, I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy grave in peace, neither shall thine eyes see all the evil that I will bring upon this place, and upon the inhabitants of the same." (58) We learn from Zephaniah i. 1, that he began to prophesy in the reign of Josiah. As he begins his predictions against the "remnant of Baal, and the name of the Chemarims;" against them that worshipped the host of heaven, and swore by Malcham, or Baal; he probably addressed those idolatrous priests who were not yet extirpated by the religious zeal of Josiah; compare Zeph. i. 4, 5-9, with 2 Kings xxiii. 5, 6-12. He foretold also the destruction of Nineveh; and from these considerations he may be supposed to have prophesied before the last reformation made by Josiah: and, as he preceded Jeremiah, that he entered on his office towards the commencement of the reign of that monarch. These two prophets resemble each other so much in the parts where they treat of the idolatries and wickedness of the Jews, that it has been supposed that Zephaniah was the abbreviator of Jeremiah, or that Jeremiah was the pupil of the former: Zephaniah apparently prophesied before Jeremiah, and the latter seems to speak of those abuses as partially removed, which the former describes as existing in the most flagitious extent. (Compare Zeph. i. 4, 5, 9, with Jer. ii. 5, 20, 32.) The word Chemarim is translated "idolatrous priests," (2 Kings xxiii. 5.) They were called Chemarim because clothed in black garments, which was the customary dress of these priests. Zephaniah in these books appears to have aided Josiah in his attempt to bring the people back to the worship of the true God. The first chapter denounces vengeance against Judah, and those who observed the rites of idolators, or violently invaded the property of others (ver. 9.), and declares that the great day of trouble, distress, and desolation was at hand, (ver. 15.) In the second chapter the prophet predicts woe to the Cherethites, the Moabites, Ammonites, and Ethiopians; and describes the desolation of Nineveh in terms singularly expressive. The Cherethites were the Philistines who bordered on the Mediterranean, called Cherethims. These prophecies were chiefly accomplished by the conquests of Nebuchadnezzar. In the third chapter the prophet returns to Jerusalem, and inveighs against her pollutions and oppressions, which should be punished in God's general vengeance; and concludes, as usual, with predictions of a remnant, who shall trust in the Lord; and with promises of the general restoration of the Jews.—Lightfoot; Gray's Key, in loc.

And [b]I will cut off the remnant of Baal from this place,
And the name of the Chemarims with the priests;
[5] And them that worship the host of heaven upon the housetops;
And them that worship and that swear *by the Lord,
And that swear by Malcham;
[6] And them that are turned back from the Lord;
And those that have not sought the Lord, nor inquired for him.
[7] Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord God;
For [c]the day of the Lord is at hand;
For [d]the Lord hath prepared a sacrifice—he hath †bid his guests.
[8] And it shall come to pass in the day of the Lord's sacrifice,
That I will ‡punish the princes, and the king's children,
And all such as are clothed with strange apparel.
[9] In the same day also will I punish all those that leap on the threshold,
Which fill their masters' houses with violence and deceit.
[10] And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the Lord,
That there shall be the noise of a cry from the fish-gate,
And a howling from the second,
And a great crashing from the hills.
[11] Howl, [e]ye inhabitants of Maktesh!
For all the merchant people are cut down;
All they that bear silver are cut off.
[12] And it shall come to pass at that time,
That I will search Jerusalem with candles,
And punish the men that are *settled on their lees:
That say in their heart,
The Lord will not do good—neither will he do evil.
[13] Therefore their goods shall become a booty,
And their houses a desolation:
They shall also build houses—but [f]not inhabit them;
And they shall plant vineyards—but [g]not drink the wine thereof.
[14] The [h]great day of the Lord is near,
It is near, and hasteth greatly,
Even the voice of the day of the Lord:
The mighty man shall cry there bitterly.
[15] That [i]day is a day of wrath,
A day of trouble and distress,
A day of wasteness and desolation,
A day of darkness and gloominess,
A day of clouds and thick darkness,
[16] A day [j]of the trumpet and alarm
Against the fenced cities, and against the high towers.
[17] And I will bring distress upon men,
That they shall [k]walk like blind men,
Because they have sinned against the Lord:
And their blood shall be poured out as dust,
And their flesh as the dung.
[18] Neither [l]their silver nor their gold shall be able to deliver them
In the day of the Lord's wrath;
But the whole land shall be devoured by the fire of his jealousy:
For he shall make even a speedy riddance
Of all them that dwell in the land.

Section V.—Reformation of Religion by Josiah, and Celebration of the Passover.

2 Kings xxiii. 4–20.—2 Chron. xxxiv. 33, xxxv. 1–19.—2 Kings xxiii. 21–24.

Josiah destroyeth idolatry. He burneth dead men's bones upon the altar at Beth-el, as was prophesied. He keepeth a most solemn Passover.

[4] And the [a]king commanded Hilkiah the high priest, and the priests of the second order, and the keepers of the door, to bring forth out of the temple of the Lord all the vessels that were made for Baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven; and he burned them without Jerusalem in the fields of Kidron, and carried the ashes of them unto Beth-el. [5] And he *put down †the idolatrous priests, whom the kings of Judah had ordained to burn incense in the high places in the cities of Judah, and in the places round about Jerusalem; them also that burned incense unto Baal, to the sun, and to the moon, and to the ‡planets, and to all the host of heaven. [6] And he brought out the grove from the house of the Lord, without Jerusalem, unto the brook Kidron, and burned it at the brook Kidron, and stamped it small to powder, and cast the powder thereof upon the graves of the children of the people. [7] And he brake down the houses [a]of the sodomites, that were by the house of the Lord, [b]where the women wove *hangings for the grove. [8] And he brought all the priests out of the cities of Judah, and defiled the high places where the priests had burned incense, from Geba to Beer-sheba, and brake down the high places of the gates that were in the entering-in of the gate of Joshua the governor of the city, which were on a man's left hand at the gate of the city. [9] Nevertheless [c]the priests of the high places came not up to the altar of the Lord in Jerusalem, [d]but they did eat of the unleavened bread among their brethren. [10] And he defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of the children of Hinnom, [e]that no man might make his son or his daughter to pass through the fire to Molech. [11] And he took away the horses that the kings of Judah had given to the sun, at the entering-in of the house of the Lord, by the chamber of Nathan-melech the †chamberlain, which was in the suburbs, and burned the chariots of the sun with fire. [12] And the altars that were [f]on the top of the upper chamber of Ahaz, which the kings of Judah had made, and the altars which [g]Manasseh had made in the two courts of the house of the Lord, did the king beat down, and ‡brake them down from thence, and cast the dust of them into the brook Kidron. [13] And the high places that were before Jerusalem, which were on the right hand of *the Mount of Corruption, which [h]Solomon the king of Israel had builded for Ashtoreth the abomination of the Zidonians, and for Chemosh the abomination of the Moabites, and for Milcom the abomination of the children of Ammon, did the king defile. [15] Moreover the altar that was at Beth-el, and the high place [j]which Jeroboam the son of Nebat, who made Israel to sin, had made, both that altar and the high place he brake down, and burned the high place, and stamped it small to powder, and burned the grove. [16] And as Josiah turned himself, he spied the sepulchres that were there in the mount, and sent, and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and burned them upon the altar, and polluted it, according to [k]the word of the Lord which the man of God proclaimed, who proclaimed these words. [17] Then he said, "What title is that that I see?" And the men of the city told him, "It is [l]the sepulchre of the man of God, which came from Judah, and proclaimed these things that thou hast done against the altar of Beth-el." [18] And he said, "Let him alone; let no man move his bones." So they let his bones ‡alone, with the bones of [m]the prophet that came out of Samaria. [19] And all the houses also of the high places that were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke the Lord to anger, Josiah took away, and did to them according to all the acts that he had done in Beth-el. [20] And he *slew all the priests of the high places that were there upon the altars, and burned men's bones upon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

[1] Moreover Josiah kept a Passover unto the Lord in Jerusalem; and they killed the Passover on the [p]fourteenth day of the first month. [2] And he set the priests in their [q]charges, and encouraged them to the service of the house of the Lord, [3] and said unto the Levites [r]that taught all Israel, which were holy unto the Lord, "Put [s]the holy ark in the house which Solomon the son of David king of Israel did build; [t]it shall not be a burden upon your shoulders: serve now the Lord your God, and his people Israel. [4] And prepare yourselves by [u]the houses of your fathers, after your courses, according to the [v]writing of David king of Israel, and according to the [w]writing of Solomon his son. [5] And stand in the holy place according to the divisions of ‡the families of the fathers of your brethren *the people, and after the division of the families of the Levites. [6] So kill the Passover, and sanctify yourselves, and prepare your brethren, that they may do according to the word of the Lord by the hand of Moses."

[8] And his princes ‡gave willingly unto the people, to the priests, and to the Levites: Hilkiah and Zechariah and Jehiel, rulers of the house of God, gave unto the priests for the passover offerings two thousand and six hundred small cattle, and three hundred oxen. [13] And they [y]roasted the Passover with fire according to the ordinance; but the other holy offerings [z]sod they in pots, and in caldrons, and in pans, and †divided them speedily among all the people. [14] And afterward they made ready for themselves, and for the priests: because the priests the sons of Aaron were busied in offering of burnt offerings and the fat until night; therefore the Levites prepared for themselves, and for the priests the sons of Aaron. [15] And the singers the sons of Asaph were in their ‡place, according to the [a]commandment of David, and Asaph, and Heman, and Jeduthun the king's seer; and the porters waited at every gate; they might not depart from their service; for their brethren the Levites prepared for them.

[16] So all the service of the LORD was prepared the same day, to keep the Passover, and to offer burnt offerings upon the altar of the LORD, according to the commandment of king Josiah. [17] And the children of Israel that were *present kept the Passover at that time, and the feast of [b]Unleavened Bread seven days. [18] And there was no Passover like to that kept in Israel from the days of Samuel the prophet; neither did all the kings of Israel keep such a Passover as Josiah kept, and the priests, and the Levites, and all Judah and Israel that were present, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [19] In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah was this Passover kept.

[22] Surely there was not holden such a Passover from the days of the judges that judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel, nor of the kings of Judah; [23] but in the eighteenth year of king Josiah, wherein this Passover was holden to the LORD in Jerusalem. [24] Moreover, the workers with familiar spirits, and the wizards, and the †images, and the idols, and all the abominations that were spied in the land of Judah and in Jerusalem, did Josiah put away, that he might perform the words of the Law which were written in the book that Hilkiah the priest found in the house of the LORD

(59) Here begins an entire and distinct prophecy, which is continued to the end of the sixth chapter. The first part contains a complaint against Judah, for having exceeded the guilt of her sister Israel, whom God had already cast off for her idolatrous apostacy. The second is an exhortation to the people of Judah and Jerusalem to prevent, by repentance, the divine judgments. The Babylonian invasion is clearly and fully foretold, with all its attendant miseries; and the shameless adulteries of the people are represented as the cause of this national ruin.—Dr. Blayney.

For I am merciful, saith the LORD,
And I will not keep anger for ever.
13 Only [d]acknowledge thine iniquity,
That thou hast transgressed against the LORD thy God,
And hast scattered thy ways to the strangers
[e]Under every green tree,
And ye have not obeyed my voice, saith the LORD.
14 Turn, O backsliding children! saith the LORD;
For I am married unto you;
And I will take you [f]one of a city, and two of a family,
And I will bring you to Zion;
15 And I will give you [g]pastors according to my heart,
Which shall [h]feed you with knowledge and understanding.
16 And it shall come to pass,
When ye be multiplied and increased in the land,
In those days, saith the LORD,
They shall say no more, "The ark of the covenant of the LORD;"
Neither shall it ‡come to mind;
Neither shall they remember it; neither shall they visit it;
Neither shall *that be done any more.
17 At that time they shall call Jerusalem the throne of the LORD;
And all the nations shall be gathered unto it,
To [i]the name of the LORD, to Jerusalem:
Neither shall they walk any more
After the †imagination of their evil heart.
18 In those days the house of Judah shall walk ‡with the house of Israel,
And they shall come together out of the land of the north
To the land that I have *given for an inheritance unto your fathers.
19 But I said, How shall I put thee among the children,
And give thee [j]a †pleasant land,
A ‡goodly heritage of the hosts of nations?
And I said, Thou shalt call me, My father;
And shalt not turn away *from me.
20 Surely as a wife treacherously departeth from her †husband,
So have ye dealt treacherously with me,
O house of Israel! saith the LORD!
21 A voice was heard upon the high places,
Weeping and supplications of the children of Israel;
For they have perverted their way,
And they have forgotten the LORD their God.
22 Return, ye backsliding children,
And I will heal your backslidings.
Behold, we come unto thee;
For thou art the LORD our God.
23 Truly in vain is salvation hoped for from the hills,
And from the multitude of mountains:
Truly [k]in the LORD our God is the salvation of Israel.
24 For shame hath devoured the labor of our fathers from our youth;
Their flocks and their herds, their sons and their daughters.
25 We lie down in our shame,

We and our fathers, from our youth even unto this day,

1 IF thou wilt return, O Israel,
Saith the LORD, return unto me:
And if thou wilt put away thine abominations out of my sight,
Then shalt thou not remove.
2 And [a]thou shalt swear, The LORD liveth,
In truth, in judgment, and in righteousness;
And [b]the nations shall bless themselves in him,
And in him shall they [c]glory.
3 For thus saith the LORD
To the men of Judah and Jerusalem,
Break up your fallow ground,
And [d]sow not among thorns.
4 Circumcise [e]yourselves to the LORD,
And take away the foreskins of your heart,
Ye men of Judah and inhabitants of Jerusalem;
Lest my fury come forth like fire,
And burn that none can quench it,
Because of the evil of your doings.
5 Declare ye in Judah,
And publish in Jerusalem; and say,
Blow ye the trumpet in the land:
Cry, [a]gather together, and say,
Assemble yourselves, and let us go into the defenced cities.
6 Set up the standard toward Zion:
*Retire—stay not:
For I will bring evil from the north,
And a great †destruction.
7 The [f]Lion is come up from his thicket,
And the Destroyer of the Gentiles is on his way;
He is gone forth from his place to make thy land desolate;
And thy cities shall be laid waste, without an inhabitant.
8 For this gird you with sackcloth—lament and howl:
For the fierce anger of the LORD is not turned back from us.
9 And it shall come to pass at that day, saith the LORD,
That the heart of the king shall perish, and the heart of the princes;
And the priests shall be astonished, and the prophets shall wonder.
10 Then said I, Ah, Lord GOD!
Surely [g]thou hast greatly deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying,
Ye shall have peace;
Whereas the sword reacheth unto the soul.
11 At that time shall it be said to this people and to Jerusalem,

12 Even ‡a full wind from those places shall come unto me:

And all the birds of the heavens were fled.
26 I beheld—and, lo, the fruitful place was a wilderness!
And all the cities thereof were broken down
At the presence of the LORD,
And by his fierce anger.
27 For thus hath the LORD said,
The whole land shall be desolate;
Yet will I not make a full end.
28 For this shall the earth mourn,
And the heavens above be black:
Because I have spoken it, I have purposed it,
And [l]will not repent, neither will I turn back from it.
29 The whole city shall flee
For the noise of the horsemen and bowmen;
They shall go into thickets,
And climb up upon the rocks:
Every city shall be forsaken,
And not a man dwell therein.

Behold, I will make my words in thy mouth fire,
And this people wood, and it shall devour them.
15 Lo! I will bring [s]a nation upon you from far,
O house of Israel! saith the Lord:
It is a mighty nation, it is an ancient nation,
A nation whose language thou knowest not,
Neither understandest what they say.
16 Their quiver is as an open sepulchre,
They are all mighty men.
17 And they shall eat up [t]thy harvest, and thy bread,
Which thy sons and thy daughters should eat:
They shall eat up thy flocks and thy herds:
They shall eat up thy vines and thy fig trees:
They shall impoverish thy fenced cities,
Wherein thou trustedst, with the sword.
18 Nevertheless in those days, saith the Lord,
I will not make a full end with you.
19 And it shall come to pass, when ye shall say,
Wherefore [u]doeth the Lord our God all these things unto us?
Then shalt thou answer them,
Like as ye have forsaken me,
And served strange gods in your land,
So [v]shall ye serve strangers in a land that is not yours.
20 Declare this in the house of Jacob,
And publish it in Judah, saying,—
21 Hear now this, [w]O foolish people, and without ‡understanding!
Which have eyes—and see not!
Which have ears—and hear not!
22 Fear [x]ye not me? saith the Lord:
Will ye not tremble at my presence,
Which have placed the sand for the [y]bound of the sea
By a perpetual decree, that it cannot pass it:
And though the waves thereof toss themselves, yet can they not [prevail;
Though they roar, yet can they not pass over it?
23 But this people hath a revolting and a rebellious heart;
They are revolted and gone.
24 Neither say they in their heart,
Let us now fear the Lord our God,
[z]That giveth rain, both the [a]former and the latter, in his season:
He [b]reserveth unto us the appointed weeks of the harvest.
25 Your iniquities have turned away these things,
And your sins have withholden good things from you.
26 For among my people are found wicked men;
*They lay wait, as he that setteth snares;
They set a trap, they catch men.
27 As a †cage is full of birds,
So are their houses full of deceit;
Therefore they are become great, and waxen rich.
28 They are waxen [c]fat, they shine;
Yea, they overpass the deeds of the wicked:
They judge not [d]the cause,
The cause of the fatherless, [e]yet they prosper;
And the right of the needy do they not judge.
29 Shall I not visit for these things? saith the Lord:
Shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this?

JEREMIAH vi.

[1] O ye children of Benjamin, gather yourselves
To flee out of the midst of Jerusalem,
And blow the trumpet in Tekoa,
And set up a sign of fire in Beth-haccerem:
For evil appeareth out of the north,
And great destruction.

† Or, dwelling at home.

[2] I have likened the daughter of Zion
To a †comely and delicate woman.
[3] The shepherds with their flocks shall come unto her;
They shall pitch their tents against her round about;
They shall feed every one in his place.
[4] Prepare ye war against her;
Arise—and let us go up at noon.
Woe unto us! for the day goeth away,
For the shadows of the evening are stretched out.
[5] Arise, and let us go by night,
And let us destroy her palaces.
[6] For thus hath the LORD of hosts said,
Hew ye down trees,

‡ Or, pour out the engine of shot.

And ‡cast a mount against Jerusalem:
This is the city to be visited;
She is wholly oppression in the midst of her.
[7] As a fountain casteth out her waters,
So she casteth out her wickedness:
Violence and spoil is heard in her;
Before me continually is grief and wounds.
[8] Be thou instructed, O Jerusalem!

* Heb. be loosed, or, disjointed.

Lest my soul *depart from thee;
Lest I make thee desolate—a land not inhabited.
[9] Thus saith the LORD of hosts,
They shall thoroughly glean the remnant of Israel as a vine:
Turn back thy hand as a grapegatherer into the baskets.
[10] To whom shall I speak,
And give warning, that they may hear?

f Ac. 7. 61. See Ex. 6. 12.

Behold, their [f]ear is uncircumcised,
And they cannot hearken:
Behold, the word of the LORD is unto them a reproach;
They have no delight in it.
[11] Therefore I am full of the fury of the LORD;
I am weary with holding in.
I will pour it out upon the children abroad,
And upon the assembly of young men together;
For even the husband with the wife shall be taken,
The aged with him that is full of days.

g De. 28. 30.

[12] And [g]their houses shall be turned unto others,
With their fields and wives together;
For I will stretch out my hand
Upon the inhabitants of the land, saith the LORD.
[13] For from the least of them even unto the greatest of them
Every one is given to covetousness;
And from the prophet even unto the priest
Every one dealeth falsely.

[14] They have healed also the †hurt of the daughter of my people slightly,
Saying, "Peace, peace,"
When there is no peace.
[15] Were they ashamed when they had committed abomination?
Nay, they were not at all ashamed,
Neither could they blush:
Therefore they shall fall among them that fall:
At the time that I visit them they shall be cast down, saith the Lord.
[16] Thus saith the Lord,
Stand ye in the ways, and see,
And ask for the [h]old paths,
Where is the good way, and walk therein,
And ye shall find [i]rest for your souls.
But they said, "We will not walk therein."
[17] Also I set [j]watchmen over you, saying,
"Hearken to the sound of the trumpet."
But they said, "We will not hearken."
[18] Therefore hear, ye nations! and know, O congregation!
What is among them.
[19] Hear, O earth!
Behold, I will bring evil upon this people,
Even [k]the fruit of their thoughts,
Because they have not hearkened unto my words,
Nor to my law, but rejected it.
[20] To [l]what purpose cometh there to me incense from Sheba,
And the sweet cane from a far country?
Your burnt offerings are not acceptable,
Nor your sacrifices sweet unto me.
[21] Therefore thus saith the Lord,
Behold, I will lay stumbling-blocks before this people,
And the fathers and the sons together shall fall upon them;
The neighbour and his friend shall perish.
[22] Thus saith the Lord,
Behold, a people cometh from the north country,
And a great nation shall be raised from the sides of the earth.
[23] They shall lay hold on bow and spear;
They are cruel, and have no mercy;
Their voice roareth like the sea;
And they ride upon horses,
Set in array as men for war
Against thee, O daughter of Zion!
[24] [a]We have heard the fame thereof:
Our hands wax feeble:
Anguish hath taken hold of us,
And pain, as of a woman in travail.
[25] Go not forth into the field, nor walk by the way;
For the sword of the enemy and fear is on every side.
[26] O daughter of my people, gird thee with sackcloth,
And wallow thyself in ashes:
Make thee mourning—as for an only son,
Most bitter lamentation:
For the spoiler shall suddenly come upon us.
[27] I have set thee for a tower and a fortress among my people,
That thou mayest know and try their way.
[28] They are all grievous revolters, walking with slanders:
They are brass and iron; they are all corrupters.

THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET HABAKKUK.(60)

Unto Habakkuk, complaining of the iniquity of the land, 5 is showed the fearful vengeance by the Chaldeans. 12 He complaineth that vengeance should be executed by them who are far worse.—Chap. ii. 1 Unto Habakkuk, waiting for an answer, is showed that he must wait by faith. 5 The judgment upon the Chaldean for unsatiableness, 9 for covetousness, 12 for cruelty, 15 for drunkenness, 18 and for idolatry.—Chap. iii. 1 Habakkuk in his prayer trembleth at God's majesty. 17 The confidence of his faith.

1 THE BURDEN WHICH HABAKKUK THE PROPHET DID SEE.

2 O LORD, how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear!
Even cry out unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not save!
3 Why dost thou show me iniquity, and cause me to behold grievance?
For spoiling and violence are before me;
And there are that raise up strife and contention.
4 Therefore the law is slacked,
And judgment doth never go forth:
[a] See Job 12. 6. Ps. 94. 3, &c.
For the [a]wicked doth compass about the righteous;
* Or, wrested.
Therefore *wrong judgment proceedeth.

† Fulfilled, 2 Ch. 36. 6.
6 For, lo! †I raise up the Chaldeans, (that bitter and hasty nation,) ‡ Heb. breadths.
Which shall march through the ‡breadth of the land,
To possess the dwelling-places that are not theirs.
7 They are terrible and dreadful:
* Or, From them shall proceed the judgment of these, and the captivity of these.
*Their judgment and their dignity shall proceed of themselves.
8 Their horses also are swifter than the leopards, † Heb. sharp.
And are more †fierce than the evening wolves:
And their horsemen shall spread themselves,
And their horsemen shall come from far;
They shall fly as the eagle that hasteth to eat.

(60) As the prophet Habakkuk makes no mention of the Assyrians, and speaks of the Chaldean invasion as near at hand, (chap. i. 5, ii. 3, iii. 2, xvi. 19,) he probably lived after the destruction of the Assyrian army in the fall of Nineveh. Habakkuk, therefore, was nearly contemporary with, and predicted the same events as, Jeremiah. Many suppose that Jeremiah and Habakkuk remained amidst the sad scenes of their desolate and deserted land, rather than follow their countrymen into captivity. In the first chapter the prophet expostulates with God on account of the wickedness and violence of the Jews—and the Almighty is then represented as declaring he would work an incredible work in their days, ver. 5; and that he would raise up the Chaldeans, who should march through the breadth of the land, and possess their dwelling places, ver. 6; and describes their victories, fierceness, and rapidity; foreshowing the punishment and pride of the victors, their false confidence in their gods, and in ver. 11, the change and insanity of Nebuchadnezzar—he ends by pleading the cause of his countrymen, as more righteous than those God had established for their correction, ver. 13. In chap. ii. is revealed to him in the vision, that the general expectation of those who lived by faith should surely come; though it must tarry the "appointed time." He then foretells the destruction of Babylon, which had "spoiled many nations;" and of those evil kings who gathered unto themselves all people, who should then find that their gods of wood, and of stone, had "no breath at all in the midst of them," ver. 19, and that "the Lord only is to be feared in his holy temple." The Talmudists apply this prophecy, ver. 3, 4, to the advent of the Messiah. The temporal deliverance of the Jews from their captivity, predicted in this chapter, may be considered as a type of their spiritual deliverance and restoration. Habakkuk concludes his prophecies with a beautiful prayer, or hymn; which the ancient fathers considered as allusive to the Messiah: it finishes with a declaration of the prophet's entire confidence in God, which no change of circumstances could affect. It is supposed from the last verse, and from the word Selah being mentioned three times, that this prayer was set to music, and performed in the service of the temple. Habakkuk is cited as an inspired person by the evangelical writers. Compare Habak. ii. 4, with Heb. x. 37, 38 Rom. i. 17. Gal. iii. 11, and Acts xiii. 41, with Hab. i. 5.—Gray's Key, in loc.; Wells; Patrick.

[9] They shall come all for violence:
‡Their faces shall sup up as the east wind,
And they shall gather the captivity as the sand.
[10] And they shall scoff at the kings,
And the princes shall be a scorn unto them:
They shall deride every stronghold;
For they shall heap dust, and take it.
[11] Then shall his mind change,
And he shall pass over, and offend,
Imputing [c]this his power unto his god.
[12] [b]Art thou not from everlasting, O LORD my God, my Holy One?
We shall not die.
O LORD, [d]thou hast ordained them for judgment;
And, O *mighty God! thou hast †established them for correction.
[13] Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil,
And canst not look on ‡iniquity:
Wherefore lookest thou upon them that deal treacherously,
And holdest thy tongue
When the wicked devoureth the man that is more righteous than he?
[14] And makest men as the fishes of the sea,
As the *creeping things that have no ruler over them?
[15] They take up all of them with the angle,
They catch them in their net,
And gather them in their †drag:
Therefore they rejoice and are glad.
[16] Therefore they sacrifice unto their net,
And burn incense unto their drag;
Because by them their portion is fat,
And their meat ‡plenteous.
[17] Shall they therefore empty their net,
And not spare continually to slay the nations?

HABAKKUK ii.

[1] I will stand upon my watch,
And set me upon the *tower,
And will watch to see what he will say †unto me,
And what I shall answer ‡when I am reproved.
[2] And the LORD answered me, and said,
Write the vision, and make it plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth it.
[3] For [e]the vision is yet for an appointed time,
But at the end it shall speak, and not lie:
Though it tarry—wait for it;
Because it will [f]surely come, it will not tarry.
[4] Behold, his soul which is lifted up is not upright in him;
But [g]the just shall live by his faith.
[5] *Yea also, because he transgresseth by wine,
He is a proud man, neither keepeth at home,
Who enlargeth his desire [h]as hell,
And is as death—and cannot be satisfied,
But gathereth unto him all nations,
And heapeth unto him all people:
[6] Shall not all these take up a parable against him,
And a taunting proverb against him, and say,
†Woe to him that increaseth that which is not his!

[1] THE word that came to Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,—
[2] Stand in the gate of the LORD's house, and proclaim there this word,
Hear the word of the LORD, all ye of Judah, [and say,
That enter in at these gates to worship the LORD.
[3] Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel,
Amend your ways and your doings,
And I will cause you to dwell in this place.
[4] Trust ye not in lying words, saying,
"The temple of the LORD, The temple of the LORD,
The temple of the LORD, are these."
[5] For if ye throughly amend your ways and your doings;
If ye throughly execute judgment between a man and his neighbour;

(61) These four chapters are inserted in this place on the authority of Dr. Blayney, who supposes them to have been delivered soon after the predictions in the previous chapters. Besides the prophets who were commissioned to announce the approaching calamities of the Jews, there were others who flattered the people by opposite predictions. They taught them to look upon such threats as groundless. God, they said, would have too much regard for his own honor to permit the temple to be defiled, and the seat of his holiness given to strangers. Jeremiah is commanded to show the fallacy of these assertions; which he does by pointing to the fate of Israel.

From ver. 1 to 16, God justifies the severity of his proceedings by a representation of the people's impiety and idolatry; and he assures the Jews that he would do unto Jerusalem what he had done unto Shiloh; and that he would cast the people of Judah out of his sight, as he had already done those of Israel, for their wickedness; and ends with a declaration that their sacrifices were unacceptable while they continued deaf to the calls of his messengers. From ver. 29, to chap. viii. 3, contains a heavy sentence both on the dead and the living. From ver. 4 to 13, the incorrigibility of the people is reproved, and they are threatened with grievous calamities. In the three following verses the prophet addresses his countrymen in his own person; as one of the people that dwelt in open towns, and advises those in the like situation to retire with him into some fortified cities during this time of danger and distress. In ver. 17, God declares he will bring foes against them that should be irresistible. The prophet then bewails that no remedy can be found to close up the wounds of his country, and pathetically weeps over the number of her slain. In chap ix. Jeremiah continues to give vent to his lamentations at the foresight of the calamities which the Chaldeans would inflict upon the Jews. Ver. 23, 24, forbids setting value on any personal endowment; for God delights in those only who understand and know him. The 10th chapter begins with an earnest appeal to the people to dissuade them from the practice of heathen idolatry; Jerusalem, at ver. 16, is introduced lamenting the completion of her ruin, and supplicating God's mercy. —Dr. Blayney.

Where I set my name at the first,
And see [f]what I did to it for the wickedness of my people Israel.
[13] And now, because ye have done all these words, saith the LORD,
And I spake unto you,
Rising up early and speaking—but ye heard not;
And [g]I called you—but ye answered not;
[14] Therefore will I do unto this house, which is called by my name,
Wherein ye trust,
And unto the place which I gave to you and to your fathers,
As I have done to Shiloh.
[15] And I will cast you out of my sight,
As [h]I have cast out all your brethren,
Even the whole seed of Ephraim.
[16] Therefore [i]pray not thou for this people,
Neither lift up cry nor prayer for them,
Neither make intercession to me;
For I will not hear thee.
[17] Seest thou not what they do in the cities of Judah,
And in the streets of Jerusalem?
[18] The children gather wood,
And the fathers kindle the fire,
And the women knead their dough,
To make cakes to the †queen of heaven,
And to pour out drink offerings unto other gods,
That they may provoke me to anger.
[19] Do [j]they provoke me to anger? saith the LORD:
Do they not provoke themselves to the confusion of their own faces?
[20] Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD;
Behold, mine anger and my fury shall be poured out upon this place,
Upon man, and upon beast,
And upon the trees of the field,
And upon the fruit of the ground;
And it shall burn, and shall not be quenched.
[21] Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel;
Put your burnt offerings unto your sacrifices,
And eat flesh.
[22] For I spake not unto your fathers, nor commanded them,
In the day that I brought them out of the land of Egypt,
Concerning ‡burnt offerings or sacrifices;
[23] But this thing commanded I them, saying,
"Obey [k]my voice,
And [l]I will be your God,
And ye shall be my people:
And walk ye in all the ways that I have commanded you,
That it may be well unto you."
[24] But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear,
But [m]walked in the counsels and in the *imagination of their evil heart,
And †went backward, and not forward.
[25] Since the day that your fathers came forth out of the land of Egypt
Unto this day,
I have even [n]sent unto you all my servants the prophets,
Daily rising up early and sending them:
[26] Yet they hearkened not unto me, nor inclined their ear,
But hardened their neck:
They did worse than their fathers.
[27] Therefore thou shalt speak all these words unto them;
But they will not hearken to thee:

4 Moreover thou shalt say unto them,
Thus saith the LORD;
Shall they fall, and not arise?
Shall he turn away, and not return?

By a perpetual backsliding?
They hold fast deceit,
They refuse to return.
y 2 Pe. 3. 9. 6 I [y]hearkened and heard—but they spake not aright:

And their fields to them that shall inherit them;
For every one from the least even unto the greatest
Is given to covetousness,
From the prophet even unto the priest
Every one dealeth falsely.
11 For they have healed the hurt of the daughter of my people slightly,
Saying, "Peace, peace," when there is no peace.
12 Were they ashamed when they had committed abomination?
Nay, they were not at all ashamed—neither could they blush:
Therefore shall they fall among them that fall:
In the time of their visitation they shall be cast down, saith the Lord.
13 †I will surely consume them, saith the Lord:

And the leaf shall fade;
And the things that I have given them shall pass away from them.
14 Why do we sit still?

And let us be silent there;

And given us water of ‡gall to drink,
Because we have sinned against the Lord.

1 †Oh that my head were waters,
And mine eyes a fountain of tears,
That I might weep day and night

2 Oh that I had in the wilderness a lodging place of wayfaring men;
That I might leave my people, and go from them!
For they be all adulterers,
An assembly of treacherous men.
3 And they bend their tongues like their bow for lies:
But they are not valiant for the truth upon the earth;
For they proceed from evil to evil,

Section X.—Jeremiah reminds the People of the Covenant of Josiah.(62)

Jeremiah xi. and xii.

Jeremiah proclaimeth God's covenant, 8 rebuketh the Jews' disobeying thereof, 11 prophesieth evils to come upon them, 18 and upon the men of Anathoth, for conspiring to kill him.—Chap. xii. 1 Jeremiah, complaining of the wicked's prosperity, by faith seeth their ruin. 5 God admonisheth him of his brethren's treachery against him, 7 and lamenteth his heritage. 14 He promiseth to the penitent return from captivity.

[1] The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying, [2] Hear ye the words of this covenant, and speak unto the men of Judah, and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem; [3] and say thou unto them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel; [a]Cursed be the man that obeyeth not the words of this covenant, [4] which I commanded your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, [b]from the iron furnace, saying, "Obey my voice, and do them, according to all which I command you; [c]so shall ye be my people, and I will be your God; [5] that I may perform [d]the oath which I have sworn unto your fathers, to give them [e]a land flowing with milk and honey, as it is this day." [7] For I earnestly protested unto your fathers in the day that I brought them up out of the land of Egypt, even unto this day, rising early and protesting, saying, "Obey my voice." [10] They are turned back to the iniquities of their forefathers, which refused to hear my words; and they went after other gods to serve them: the house of Israel and the house of Judah have broken my covenant which I made with their fathers.

[11] Therefore thus saith the Lord,
Behold, I will bring evil upon them,

---

(62) The prophecy in these two chapters may be assigned to the end of the reign of Josiah; on occasion of the people neglecting the obligations of the divine covenant, which, in the eighteenth year of that prince, they had solemnly engaged to perform. The prophet is therefore sent to recall them to their duty. From 1 to 17, he rebukes them severely for their disobedience, and denounces evil against Judah and Jerusalem for their apostacy: and, being informed by divine revelation of the conspiracy against his life by the men of Anathoth, he prays against them, and is authorized to foretell their utter destruction, 18. to the end. Emboldened at the success of his prayers, he expostulates with God (ch. xii. 1–6.) on the success of the wicked, and receives for answer, that God had discarded his heritage, and given it into the hands of her enemies. From 14 to 17, God promises the future restoration and conversion of his people, with threats against their heathen oppressors, assuring those that would believe in Him, the true God, that they should be received into his Church, while the unbelieving would utterly perish.—Dr. Blayney.

Have ye set up altars to that †shameful thing,
Even altars to burn incense unto Baal.
[14] Therefore [i]pray not thou for this people,
Neither lift up a cry or prayer for them;
For I will not hear them in the time that they cry unto me
For their ‡trouble.
[15] *What hath my beloved to do in my house,
Seeing she hath wrought lewdness with many,
And [j]the holy flesh is passed from thee!
†When thou doest evil, then thou [k]rejoicest.
[16] The Lord called thy name,
"A [l]green olive tree, fair, and of goodly fruit:"
With the noise of a great tumult he hath kindled fire upon it,
And the branches of it are broken.
[17] For the Lord of hosts, that planted thee,
Hath pronounced evil against thee,
For the evil of the house of Israel and of the house of Judah,
Which they have done against themselves
To provoke me to anger in offering incense unto Baal.
[18] And the Lord hath given me knowledge of it, and I know it:
Then thou showedst me their doings.
[19] But I was like a lamb or an ox that is brought to the slaughter;
And I knew not that they had devised devices against me, saying,
"Let us destroy ‡the tree with the fruit thereof,
And let us cut him off from the land of the living,
That his name may be no more remembered."
[20] But, O Lord of hosts, that judgest righteously,
That [m]triest the reins and the heart,
Let me see thy vengeance on them, for unto thee have I revealed [my cause.
[21] Therefore thus saith the Lord
Of the men of Anathoth, that seek thy life, saying,
"Prophesy not in the name of the Lord,
That thou die not by our hand:"
[22] Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts,
Behold, I will *punish them:
The young men shall die by the sword;
Their sons and their daughters shall die by famine:
[23] And there shall be no remnant of them;
For I will bring evil upon the men of Anathoth,
Even [n]the year of their visitation.
[1] Righteous art thou, O Lord, when I plead with thee: JEREMIAH xii.
Yet let me †talk with thee of thy judgments:
Wherefore [o]doth the way of the wicked prosper?
Wherefore are all they happy that deal very treacherously?
[2] Thou hast planted them—yea, they have taken root:
They ‡grow—yea, they bring forth fruit:

(63) These chapters are all referred to the commencement of the reign of Jehoiakim by Dr. Blayney and Lightfoot. Chapter xiii. foretells the utter destruction that was to fall on the whole Jewish nation, under two symbols, a linen girdle left to rot, and the breaking of bottles filled with wine, xiii. 1–14. An exhortation to humiliation and repentance is subjoined, ver. 15–21; and their incorrigible wickedness and profligacy are assigned as the cause of all the evils that awaited them, 22–27. The particular mention of the downfall of the king and queen in the 18th verse, Dr. Blayney thinks, will justify the opinion which ascribes this prophecy to the commencement of the reign of Jehoiakim, whose fate, with that of his queen, is, in like manner, noticed together in chap. xxii. 18.

Chap. xiv. predicts a severe famine, to punish the Jews for their sins, but which does not bring them to repentance, xiv. 1–22; and announces God's peremptory decree to destroy Judah, unless they should speedily repent, xv. ,1–9. The prophet, complaining that he is become an object of hatred by reason of his office, receives a promise of divine protection. 10–21.

In the xvith chapter (1–13) is predicted the utter ruin of the Jews, in the type of the prophet being forbidden to marry and to feast; and, immediately afterwards, he announces their future restoration, 14, 15, as well as the conversion of the Gentiles, 16–21; accompanied with a severe reproof of the Jews for their too great reliance on human aid, xvii. 1–18. From 19–27, contains a prophecy concerning the strict observance of the Sabbath day, which Jeremiah was commanded to proclaim aloud in all the gates of Jerusalem, as a matter that concerned the conduct of each individual, and the general happiness of the whole nation.

Chap. xviii. 1–10, shows, under the type of a potter, God's absolute authority over nations and kingdoms, to alter and regulate their condition at his own pleasure. The prophet is then directed to exhort the Jews to avert their impending dangers by repentance and reformation, and, on their refusal, to predict their destruction, 11–17. The Jews conspiring against him, Jeremiah implores judgment against them, 18–23. Under the type of breaking a potter's vessel, is foretold the desolation of the Jews for their sins, xix.—Vide Horne's Critical Introduction.

according to the word of the LORD, and put it on my loins. [3] And the word of the LORD came unto me the second time, saying, [4] Take the girdle that thou hast got, which is upon thy loins, and arise, go to Euphrates, and hide it there in a hole of the rock. [5] So I went, and hid it by Euphrates, as the LORD commanded me. [6] And it came to pass after many days, that the LORD said unto me, Arise, go to Euphrates, and take the girdle from thence, which I commanded thee to hide there. [7] Then I went to Euphrates, and digged, and took the girdle from the place where I had hid it: and, behold, the girdle was marred, it was profitable for nothing. [8] Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,—

The grievous famine 7 causeth Jeremiah to pray. 10 The Lord will not be entreated for the people. 13 Lying prophets are no excuse for them. 17 Jeremiah is moved to complain for them. — Chap. [1] THE WORD OF THE LORD THAT CAME TO JEREMIAH CONCERNING *THE DEARTH.

* Heb. the words of the dearths, or, restraints.

[2] Judah mourneth, and the gates thereof languish;
They are black unto the ground;
a See 1 Sa. 5. 12. And [a]the cry of Jerusalem is gone up.
[3] And their nobles have sent their little ones to the waters:
They came to the pits, and found no water;
They returned with their vessels empty;
They were ashamed and confounded,
b 2 Sa. 15. 30. And [b]covered their heads.
[4] Because the ground is chapt,
For there was no rain in the earth,
The ploughmen were ashamed,
They covered their heads.
[5] Yea, the hind also calved in the field,
And forsook it, because there was no grass.
[6] And the wild-asses did stand in the high places,
They snuffed up the wind like dragons;
Their eyes did fail, because there was no grass.
[7] O LORD, though our iniquities testify against us,
Do thou it for thy name's sake:
For our backslidings are many;
We have sinned against thee.
[8] O the Hope of Israel! the Saviour thereof in time of trouble!
Why shouldest thou be as a stranger in the land,
And as a wayfaring man that turneth aside to tarry for a night?
[9] Why shouldest thou be as a man astonished,
As a mighty man that cannot save?

Yet thou, O Lord, [c]art in the midst of us,
And †we are called by thy name—leave us not.
10 Thus saith the Lord unto this people,
Thus [d]have they loved to wander,
They have not refrained their feet,
Therefore the Lord doth not accept them;
He [e]will now remember their iniquity,
And visit their sins.
11 Then said the Lord unto me,
Pray [f]not for this people for their good.
12 When [g]they fast, I will not hear their cry;
And when they offer burnt offering and an oblation, I will not accept them:
But I will consume them by the sword,
And by the famine, and by the pestilence.
13 Then said I, Ah, Lord God!
Behold, the prophets say unto them,
"Ye shall not see the sword, neither shall ye have famine;
But I will give you ‡assured peace in this place."
14 Then the Lord said unto me,
The prophets prophesy lies in my name:
I sent them not, neither have I commanded them,
Neither spake unto them:
They prophesy unto you a false vision and divination,
And a thing of nought, and the deceit of their heart.
15 Therefore thus saith the Lord
Concerning the prophets that prophesy in my name, and I sent them not,
Yet they say, "Sword and famine shall not be in this land;"
By sword and famine shall those prophets be consumed.
16 And the people to whom they prophesy
Shall be cast out in the streets of Jerusalem
Because of the famine and the sword;
And they shall have none to bury them,
Them, their wives, nor their sons, nor their daughters:
For I will pour their wickedness upon them.
17 Therefore thou shalt say this word unto them;
Let [h]mine eyes run down with tears night and day,
And let them not cease;
For the virgin daughter of my people is broken
With a great breach, with a very grievous blow.
18 If I go forth into the field—
Then behold the slain with the sword!
And if I enter into the city—
Then behold them that are sick with famine!
Yea, both the prophet and the priest
*Go about into a land that they know not.
19 Hast thou utterly rejected Judah?
Hath thy soul loathed Zion?
Why hast thou smitten us, and there is no healing for us?
We looked for peace—and there is no good!
And for the time of healing—and behold trouble!
20 We acknowledge, O Lord, our wickedness,
And the iniquity of our fathers:
For [i]we have sinned against thee.
21 Do not abhor us, for thy name's sake,
Do not disgrace the throne of thy glory:
[j]Remember—break not thy covenant with us.

She hath been ashamed and confounded:
And the residue of them will I deliver to the sword
Before their enemies, saith the Lord.
[10] Woe is me, my mother,
That thou hast borne me a man of strife
And a man of contention to the whole earth!
I have neither lent on usury, nor men have lent to me on usury;
Yet every one of them doth curse me.
[11] The Lord said, Verily it shall be well with thy remnant;
Verily *I will cause [r]the enemy to entreat thee well
In the time of evil and in the time of affliction.
[12] Shall iron break the northern iron and the steel?
[13] Thy substance and thy treasures will I give to the spoil
Without price, and that for all thy sins, even in all thy borders.

Into a land which thou knowest not:
For [s]a fire is kindled in mine anger, which shall burn upon you.

§ 3.

§ 3.—JEREMIAH xvi. and xvii.

Jeremiah, under the types of abstaining from marriage, from houses of mourning and feasting, foreshoweth the utter ruin of the Jews, 10 because they were worse than their fathers. 14 Their return from captivity shall be stranger than their deliverance out of Egypt. 16 God will doubly recompense their idolatry.—Chap. xvii. 1 The captivity of Judah for her sin. 5 Trust in man is cursed, 7 in God is blessed. 9 The deceitful heart cannot deceive God. 12 The salvation of God. 15 The prophet complaineth of the mockers of his prophecy. 19 He is sent to renew the covenant in hallowing the Sabbath.

1 The word of the LORD came also unto me, saying,—
2 Thou shalt not take thee a wife,
Neither shalt thou have sons nor daughters in this place.
3 For thus saith the LORD
Concerning the sons and concerning the daughters that are born in [this place,
And concerning their mothers that bare them,
And concerning their fathers that begat them in this land;
4 They shall die of grievous deaths;
They shall not be lamented; neither shall they be buried;
But they shall be as dung upon the face of the earth:
And they shall be consumed by the sword, and by famine;
And their carcasses shall be meat
For the fowls of heaven, and for the beasts of the earth.
5 For thus saith the LORD,
Enter not into the house of *mourning,
Neither go to lament nor bemoan them;
For I have taken away my peace from this people, saith the LORD,
Even loving-kindness and mercies.
6 Both the great and the small shall die in this land:
They shall not be buried, neither shall men lament for them,
Nor [a]cut themselves, nor [b]make themselves bald for them:
7 Neither shall men †tear themselves for them in mourning,
To comfort them for the dead;
Neither shall men give them the cup of consolation to [c]drink
For their father or for their mother.

* Or, mourning feast.

[8] Thou shalt not also go into the house of feasting,
To sit with them to eat and to drink.
[9] For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel;
d Is. 24. 7, 8. Ez. 26. 13. Ho. 2. 11. Re. 18. 23.
Behold, [d]I will cause to cease out of this place
In your eyes, and in your days,
The voice of mirth, and the voice of gladness,
The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride.

e De. 29. 24, 25.

[10] And it shall come to pass, when thou shalt show this people all these words, and they shall say unto thee, Wherefore [e]hath the LORD pronounced all this great evil against us? or what is our iniquity? or what is our sin that we have committed against the LORD our God?

[11] Then shalt thou say unto them,
Because your fathers have forsaken me, saith the LORD,
And have walked after other gods,
And have served them, and have worshipped them,
And have forsaken me, and have not kept my law;
[12] And ye have done worse than your fathers;
‡ Or, stubbornness.
For, behold, ye walk every one after the ‡imagination of his evil heart,
That they may not hearken unto me:
f De. 4. 26–28. & 28. 36, 63–65.
[13] Therefore [f]will I cast you out of this land
Into a land that ye know not, neither ye nor your fathers;
And there shall ye serve other gods day and night;
Where I will not show you favor.
[14] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD,
That it shall no more be said, "The LORD liveth,
That brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;"
[15] But, The LORD liveth,
That brought up the children of Israel from the land of the north,
And from all the lands whither he had driven them:

That I gave unto their fathers.

They are not hid from my face,
Neither is their iniquity hid from mine eyes.

[18] And first I will recompense their iniquity and their sin [j]double;
Because they have defiled my land,
They have filled mine inheritance with the carcasses
Of their detestable and abominable things.
[19] O LORD, my strength, and my fortress,
And my refuge in the day of affliction,

And things wherein there is no profit.

[1] The sin of Judah is written with a pen of iron, † Heb. nail.
And with the †point of a diamond:
m Pr. 3. 3. 2 Co. 3. 3.
It is [m]graven upon the table of their heart,
And upon the horns of your altars;

[2] Whilst their children remember their altars and their groves
By the green trees upon the high hills.
[3] O my mountain in the field,
I will give thy substance and all thy treasures to the spoil,
And thy high places for sin, throughout all thy borders.
[4] And thou, even ‡thyself, shalt discontinue
From thy heritage that I gave thee;
And I will cause thee to serve thine enemies
In the land which thou knowest not:
For ye have kindled a fire in mine anger,
Which shall burn for ever.
[5] Thus saith the LORD;
Cursed [n]be the man that trusteth in man,
And maketh [o]flesh his arm,
And whose heart departeth from the LORD!
[6] For he shall be like the heath in the desert,
And [p]shall not see when good cometh;
But shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness,
In [q]a salt land and not inhabited.
[7] Blessed [r]is the man that trusteth in the LORD,
And whose hope the LORD is!
[8] For he shall be [s]as a tree planted by the waters,
And that spreadeth out her roots by the river,
And shall not see when heat cometh,
But her leaf shall be green;
And shall not be careful in the year of *drought,
Neither shall cease from yielding fruit.
[9] The heart is deceitful above all things,
And desperately wicked—who can know it?
[10] I the LORD [t]search the heart,
I try the reins,
[u]To give every man according to his ways,
And according to the fruit of his doings.
[11] As the partridge †sitteth on eggs, and hatcheth them not;

[13] O LORD, the Hope of Israel,
All [w]that forsake thee shall be ashamed,
And they that depart from me shall be [x]written in the earth,
Because they have forsaken the LORD, the fountain of living waters.
[14] Heal me, O LORD, and I shall be healed;
Save me, and I shall be saved:
For thou art my praise.
[15] Behold, they say unto me,
"Where [y]is the word of the LORD? let it come now."
[16] As for me, I have not hastened from being a pastor ‡to follow thee:

[21] Thus saith the Lord; Take [z]heed to yourselves, and bear no burden on the Sabbath day, nor bring it in by the gates of Jerusalem; [22] neither carry forth a burden out of your houses on the Sabbath day, neither do ye any work, but hallow ye the Sabbath day as [a]I commanded your fathers: [23] but they obeyed not, neither inclined their ear, but made their neck stiff, that they might not hear, nor receive instruction.

[24] And it shall come to pass,
If ye diligently hearken unto me, saith the Lord,
To bring in no burden through the gates of this city on the Sabbath day,
But hallow the Sabbath day, to do no work therein;
[25] Then shall there enter into the gates of this city
Kings and princes sitting upon the throne of David,
Riding in chariots and on horses,
They, and their princes,
The men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem:
And this city shall remain for ever.
[26] And they shall come from the cities of Judah,
And from the places about Jerusalem,
And from the land of Benjamin, and from the plain,
And from the mountains, and from the south,
Bringing burnt offerings, and sacrifices,
And meat offerings, and incense,
And bringing [b]sacrifices of praise, unto the house of the Lord.
[27] But if ye will not hearken unto me
To hallow the Sabbath day, and not to bear a burden,
Even entering in at the gates of Jerusalem on the Sabbath day;
Then [c]will I kindle a fire in the gates thereof,
And [d]it shall devour the palaces of Jerusalem,

§ 5.—JEREMIAH xix. and xx.

Under the type of breaking a potter's vessel is foreshowed the desolation of the Jews for their sins. — Chap. xx. 1 Pashur, smiting Jeremiah, receiveth a new name, and a fearful doom. 7 Jeremiah complaineth of contempt, 10 of treachery, 14 and of his birth.

[1] Thus saith the LORD, Go and get a potter's earthen bottle, and take of the ancients of the people, and of the ancients of the priests; [2] and go forth unto [a]the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, which is by the entry of *the east gate, and proclaim there the words that I shall tell thee, [3] and say,—

Hear ye the word of the LORD, O kings of Judah, and inhabitants of Jerusalem; Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring evil upon this place, the which whosoever heareth, his ears shall [b]tingle. [4] Because they [c]have forsaken me, and have estranged this place, and have burned incense in it unto other gods, whom neither they nor their fathers have known, nor the kings of Judah, and have filled this place with [d]the blood of innocents; [5] they have built also the high places of Baal, to burn their sons with fire for burnt offerings unto Baal, [e]which I commanded not, nor spake it, neither came it into my mind: [6] therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that this place shall no more be called "Tophet," nor "The Valley of the Son of Hinnom," but "The Valley of Slaughter." [7] And I will make void the counsel of Judah and Jerusalem in this place; [f]and I will cause them to fall by the sword before their enemies, and by the hands of them that seek their lives: and their [g]carcasses will I give to be meat for the fowls of the heaven, and for the beasts of the earth. [8] And I will make this city desolate, and a hissing; every one that passeth thereby shall be astonished and hiss because of all the plagues thereof. [9] And I will cause them to eat the [h]flesh of their sons and the flesh of their daughters, and they shall eat every one the flesh of his friend in the siege and straitness, wherewith their enemies, and they that seek their lives, shall straiten them. [10] Then [i]shalt thou break the bottle in the sight of the men that go with thee, [11] and shalt say unto them,—

Thus saith the LORD of hosts; Even [j]so will I break this people and this city, as one breaketh a potter's vessel, that cannot be †made whole again: and they shall bury them in Tophet, till there be no place to bury. [12] Thus will I do unto this place, saith the LORD, and to the inhabitants thereof, and even make this city as Tophet: [13] and the houses of Jerusalem, and the houses of the kings of Judah, shall be defiled [k]as the place of Tophet, because of all the houses upon whose [l]roofs they have burned incense unto all the host of heaven, and have poured out drink offerings unto other gods.

[14] Then came Jeremiah from Tophet, whither the LORD had sent him to prophesy; and he stood in [m]the court of the LORD's house; and said to all the people, [15] Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring upon this city and upon all her towns all the evil that I have pronounced against it, because they have hardened their necks, that they might not hear my words.

SECTION III.—Jeremiah's Prediction of the Fate of Shallum and Jehoiakim.

JEREMIAH xxii. 1–23.(64)

[1] THUS saith the LORD; Go down to the house of the king of Judah, and speak there this word, [2] and say,—
Hear the word of the LORD, O king of Judah,
That sittest upon the throne of David, thou, and thy servants,
And thy people that enter in by these gates!
[3] Thus saith the LORD;
Execute ye judgment and righteousness,
And deliver the spoiled out of the hand of the oppressor;
And do no wrong, do no violence
To the stranger, the fatherless, nor the widow,
Neither shed innocent blood in this place.
[4] For if ye do this thing indeed,
Then shall there enter in by the gates of this house
Kings sitting *upon the throne of David,
Riding in chariots and on horses,
He, and his servants, and his people.
[5] But if ye will not hear these words,
I [a]swear by myself, saith the LORD,
That this house shall become a desolation.
[6] For thus saith the LORD unto the king's house of Judah;
Thou art Gilead unto me, and the head of Lebanon:
Yet surely I will make thee a wilderness,
And cities which are not inhabited.
[7] And I will prepare destroyers against thee,
Every one with his weapons:
And they shall cut down thy choice cedars,
And cast them into the fire.
[8] And many nations shall pass by this city,
And they shall say every man to his neighbour,
Wherefore [b]hath the LORD done thus unto this great city?
[9] Then they shall answer,
Because [c]they have forsaken the covenant of the LORD their God,
And worshipped other gods, and served them.
[10] Weep ye not for [d]the dead,
Neither bemoan him:
But weep sore for him that goeth away;
For he shall return no more,
Nor see his native country.
[11] For thus saith the LORD
Touching [e]Shallum the son of Josiah king of Judah,
Which reigned instead of Josiah his father,
Which [f]went forth out of this place;
He shall not return thither any more:
[12] But he shall die in the place whither they have led him captive,
And shall see this land no more.

(64) The first part of this chapter contains a prophecy which was evidently delivered in the reign of Jehoiakim, as it refers to the captivity of his immediate predecessor, and foretells this king's death, (ver. 18.) The latter part of the chapter is inserted, for a similar reason, in the reign of Jehoiachin; as it predicts the decease of that monarch. This chapter commences with an address to the king, his servants, and people, recommending an inviolable adherence to right and justice, as the only means of establishing the throne of David, and of preventing the ruin both of prince and people. The captivity of Shallum is declared irreversible, (ver. 10–12) and from 13 to 19 Jehoiakim is severely reproved for his tyranny and oppression, and his miserable death foretold. "Weep not for the dead" (ver. 10), refers to Josiah, who was mortally wounded at Megiddo, fighting against Necho, (2 Chron. xxxv. 22, 24.) The king, after having made Shallum, or Jehoahaz, his prisoner, takes him to Egypt, establishes Jehoiakim his brother on the throne of Judah, and exacts tribute from him.—Hales; Horne.

JEREMIAH XXVI.(65)

1 IN the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah came this word from the LORD, saying,—2 Thus saith the LORD; Stand in the court of the LORD's house, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, which come to worship in the LORD's house, [a]all the words that I command thee to speak unto them; [b]diminish not a word: 3 if so be they will hearken, and turn every man from his evil way, that I may repent me of the evil, which I purpose to do unto them because of the evil of their doings. 4 And thou shalt say unto them, Thus saith the LORD; If [c]ye will not hearken to me, to walk in my law, which I have set before you, 5 to hearken to the words of my servants the prophets, (whom I sent unto you, both rising up early,

(65) As this chapter is dated (ver. 1.) in the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, it has been therefore supposed by commentators to precede the 25th, which contains the prophecy of the captivity given in the fourth year of that king. In it (ver. 1–6.) Jeremiah is directed to foretell the destruction of the temple and city of Jerusalem, without a speedy repentance and reformation; on which account he is apprehended and accused before the council.

and sending them, but ye have not hearkened;) [6] then will I make this house like Shiloh, and will make this city [d]a curse to all the nations of the earth.

[d] Is. 65. 15.

[7] So the priests and the prophets and all the people heard Jeremiah speaking these words in the house of the LORD. [8] Now it came to pass, when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking all that the LORD had commanded him to speak unto all the people, that the priests and the prophets and all the people took him, saying, "Thou shalt surely die. [9] Why hast thou prophesied in the name of the LORD, saying, 'This house shall be like Shiloh, and this city shall be desolate without an inhabitant?'"

And all the people were gathered against Jeremiah in the house of the LORD. [10] When the princes of Judah heard these things, then they came up from the king's house unto the house of the LORD, and sat down *in the entry of the new gate of the LORD's house. [11] Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes and to all the people, saying, "†This man is worthy to die; for he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your ears."

[12] Then spake Jeremiah unto all the princes and to all the people, saying, "The LORD sent me to prophesy against this house and against this city all the words that ye have heard. [13] Therefore now amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the LORD your God; and the LORD will repent him of the evil that he hath pronounced against you. [14] As for me, behold, I am in your hand: do with me ‡as seemeth good and meet unto you. [15] But know ye for certain, that if ye put me to death, ye shall surely bring innocent blood upon yourselves, and upon this city, and upon the inhabitants thereof; for of a truth the LORD hath sent me unto you to speak all these words in your ears."

[21] And when Jehoiakim the king, with all his mighty men, and all the princes heard his words, the king sought to put him to death; but when Urijah heard it, he was afraid, and fled, and went into Egypt; [22] and Jehoiakim the king sent men into Egypt, namely, Elnathan the son of Achbor, and certain men with him into Egypt. JEREMIAH XXXV.

By the obedience of the Rechabites, 12 Jeremiah condemneth the disobedience of the Jews. 18 God blesseth the Rechabites for their obedience.

After the fulfilment of this prophecy, Nebuchadnezzar immediately advanced towards Syria and Judæa.

3 Then I took Jaazaniah the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habaziniah, and his brethren, and all his sons, and the whole house of the Rechabites; 4 and I brought them into the house of the Lord, into the chamber of the sons of Hanan, the son of Igdaliah, a man of God, which was by the chamber of the princes, which was above the chamber of Maaseiah the son of Shallum, [c]the keeper of the *door. 5 And I set before the sons of the house of the Rechabites pots full of wine, and cups, and I said unto them, "Drink ye wine." 6 But they said, "We will drink no wine; for [d]Jonadab the son of Rechab our father commanded us, saying, 'Ye shall drink no wine, neither ye, nor your sons for ever; 7 neither shall ye build house, nor sow seed, nor plant vineyard, nor have any: but all your days ye shall dwell in tents; [e]that ye may live many days in the land where ye be strangers.' 8 Thus have we obeyed the voice of Jonadab the son of Rechab our father in all that he hath charged us, to drink no wine all our days, we, our wives, our sons, nor our daughters; 9 nor to build houses for us to dwell in: neither have we vineyard, nor field, nor seed; 10 but we have dwelt in tents, and have obeyed, and done according to all that Jonadab our father commanded us. 11 But it came to pass, when Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came up into the land, that we said, 'Come, and let us go to Jerusalem for fear of the army of the Chaldeans, and for fear of the army of the Syrians;' so we dwell at Jerusalem."

12 Then came the word of the Lord unto Jeremiah, saying, 13 Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Go and tell the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, Will ye not receive instruction to hearken to my words? saith the Lord. 14 The words of Jonadab the son of Rechab, that he commanded his sons not to drink wine, are performed; for unto this day they drink none, but obey their father's commandment: notwithstanding I have spoken unto you, rising early and speaking; but ye hearkened not unto me. 15 I have sent also unto you all my servants the prophets, (rising up early and sending them,) saying, "Return ye now every man from his evil way, and amend your doings, and go not after other gods to serve them, and ye shall dwell in the land which I have given to you and to your fathers;" but ye have not inclined your ear, nor hearkened unto me. 16 Because the sons of Jonadab the son of Rechab have performed the commandment of their father, which he commanded them; but this people hath not hearkened unto me: 17 therefore thus saith the Lord God of hosts, the God of Israel; Behold, I will bring upon Judah and upon all the inhabitants of Jerusalem all the evil that I have pronounced against them; [f]because I have spoken unto them, but they have not heard; and I have called unto them, but they have not answered. 18 And Jeremiah said unto the house of the Rechabites, "Thus saith the

of their safety, retired into Jerusalem on Nebuchadnezzar's approach to Palestine, after his defeat of the Egyptians at Carchemish. On their coming to Jerusalem, Jeremiah is sent to them; and, for a trial of their obedience, offers them wine to drink, (ver. 1–11.) In the following verses the Jews, by comparison, are upbraided with their disobedience, and menaced with vengeance. The 18th and 19th verses promise a blessing on the Rechabites. This chapter is inserted here from the evidence of ver. 11. as Nebuchadnezzar does not appear to have come in person to Jerusalem again till after the death of Jehoiakim, and in all probability he was joined by the Syrians at this time whom he subdued after his conquest of Carchemish. The Rechabites, as may be collected from ver. 7, were not of the children of Israel. From 1 Chron. ii. 55, they appear to have been Kenites, a people originally settled in the land of Midian, and most probably the descendants of Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses, Jud. i. 16. Jonadab, the son of Rechab, is supposed to have been the same as mentioned in 2 Kings x. 15, a man of eminence, and a righteous man, otherwise Jehu would not have shown him so much attention, and taken him with him to witness his zeal for the honor of the true God.—Dr. Blayney.

(68) This prophecy was delivered (ver. 1.) in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, about the time that Nebuchadnezzar, having conquered the army of Necho king of Egypt, at the Euphrates, and having retaken Carchemish, was marching towards Syria and Palestine, to recover those provinces, and to reunite them to the Babylonish empire. It was delivered in the same year in which the captivity it predicts actually took place. Jeremiah, in this chapter, reproves the Jews for their disregard of the divine calls to repentance, (ver. 1–7.) He most distinctly foretells their subjugation, together with that of the neighbouring nations, to the king of Babylon, for seventy years, and the fall of the Babylonish empire at that period, (ver. 8–14.) The same is foreshown under the symbol of the cup of God's wrath, with which the prophet is represented in vision as being sent to all the nations to make them drink of it, to their utter subversion, (ver. 15–29.) The like prophecy is the third time repeated from ver. 30 to the end.—Dr. Blayney in loc.

JEREMIAH xxxvi. 1–8.(69) and xlv.(70)

Jeremiah causeth Baruch to write his prophecy, and publicly to read it. Baruch being dismayed, Jeremiah instructeth and comforteth him.

[1] AND it came to pass in the fourth year of Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah, that this word came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,—

[a] Is. 8. 1. Ez. 2. 9. Zec. 5. 1.

[2] Take thee [a]a roll of a book, and write therein all the words that I have spoken unto thee against Israel, and against Judah, and against all the nations, from the day I spake unto thee, from the days of Josiah, even unto this day. [3] It may be that the house of Judah will hear all the evil which I purpose to do unto them; that they may return every man from his evil way; that I may forgive their iniquity and their sin.

[4] Then Jeremiah called Baruch the son of Neriah; and Baruch wrote from the mouth of Jeremiah all the words of the LORD, which he had spoken unto him, upon a roll of a book. [5] And Jeremiah commanded Baruch, saying, "I am shut up; I cannot go into the house of the LORD. [6] Therefore go thou, and read in the roll, which thou hast written from my mouth, the words of the LORD in the ears of the people in the LORD's house upon [b]the fasting day: and also thou shalt read them in the ears of all Judah that come out of their cities. [7] It may be *they will present their supplication before the LORD, and will return every one from his evil way; for great is the anger and the fury that the LORD hath pronounced against this people."

[8] And Baruch the son of Neriah did according to all that Jeremiah the prophet commanded him, reading in the book the words of the LORD in the LORD's house.

(69) By divine appointment, Jeremiah causes Baruch to write all his former prophecies in a roll, and to read them to the people, to give them an opportunity, before they were taken into Babylon, of "presenting their supplications before the Lord," as his anger was greatly kindled against them. The expression, "shut up," (ver. 5.) Dr. Blayney supposes to signify, from the context following, that Jeremiah was under some confinement or restraint, which precluded him from going to the house of Jehovah: he might have been obliged, after the charge brought against him (chap. xxvi.), to have given some security that he would not enter the temple, or prophesy in it for a certain time, without being absolutely in prison; as we read ver. 19, (the year following) he was then at liberty. Archbishop Usher, and Dean Prideaux, both think the roll was read twice, once in the 4th, and again in the 5th year of Jehoiakim, ver. 8–10, and on their authority this chapter is divided. The great fast of the expiation, on which it is supposed Baruch read the roll, in the 4th year, was annually kept by the Jews on the 10th day of the month Tisri, which answers to our September; immediately before Nebuchadnezzar laid siege to Jerusalem.

Dr. Blayney is of a contrary opinion, and supposes the roll to have been read only once; for his arguments on this subject, see Blayney's Notes on Jeremiah in loc. Josephus mentions the roll as being read once in the 9th month of the 5th year of Jehoiakim.

(70) This chapter is merely an appendage to chap. xxxvi. its date, and therefore its place, are assigned by ver. 1. Jeremiah, by God's command, encourages Baruch with the assurance that his life should be preserved by a special providence, amidst all the calamities denounced against Judah.

[2] "Thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, unto thee, O Baruch!
[3] Thou didst say, 'Woe is me now!
For the Lord hath added grief to my sorrow;
I fainted in my sighing—and I find no rest.'
[4] Thus shalt thou say unto him, The Lord saith thus;
'Behold, that which I have built—will I break down,
And that which I have planted—I will pluck up,
Even this whole land.
[5] And seekest thou great things for thyself?—seek them not.
For, behold, I will bring evil upon all flesh,' saith the Lord:
'But thy life will I give unto thee for a prey
In all places whither thou goest.'"

(71) The year of the captivity must be dated from B. C. 606, the fourth year of Jehoiakim; for the decree of Cyrus was issued at the end of the seventy years, in the year 536. Some difficulty has arisen from an apparent difference between Daniel and Jeremiah. The latter (chap. xxv. 1.) dates the commencement of the captivity in the fourth of Jehoiakim; the former is supposed to date it in the third. On examining, however, the passage in Daniel, (Dan. i. 1.) it will be remarked, that it only relates that Nebuchadnezzar came up to Jerusalem and besieged it. No date being assigned (ver. 2.) to the captivity of the king, and the removal of his treasures, we may infer, according to Jeremiah, that the captivity actually took place in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, and that Daniel begins his computation from the time that Nebuchadnezzar was sent by his father from Babylon on this expedition; which was in the latter end of the third year of Jehoiakim. After that, two months, at least, must have been spent in his march to the borders of Syria. There, in about the beginning of the fourth year of Jehoiakim, he fought the Egyptians, and, having overthrown them, besieged Carchemish, and took it. After this, he reduced all the provinces of Syria, and Phœnicia, in which having employed the greatest part of the year, in the beginning of October he laid siege to Jerusalem, and took it about a month after. This event is supposed to have taken place on the 18th of the month called Cisleu, which answers to our November; and this day has ever since been set apart by the Jews as an annual fast, in commemoration of this great calamity. On Jehoiakim humbling himself, and submitting to become tributary, he is restored to his kingdom; and Nebuchadnezzar, hearing of his father's death, hurries across the desert to take possession of his empire; leaving his captives in the care of his generals, to follow after. Before he removed from Jerusalem, he gave particular orders to Ashpenaz, the master of his eunuchs, to choose children of the royal family and nobility of the land, (ver. 4.) to take with him to Babylon, "to stand in the king's palace, and to whom they might teach the learning and the tongue of the Chaldeans;" thereby exactly fulfilling the word of the Lord, spoken by Isaiah to Hezekiah king of Judah, above an hundred years before this event. ---

(1) The great object of that revelation which God, at various times, and in divers manners, imparted to man, was to establish among them the knowledge of himself, and gradually to direct their attention to his Son.

The revelation first given to Adam was preserved during the deluge by Noah, the only individual, except his own family, that remained uncorrupt in the old world, and it was by him committed to the new. Idolatry, however, again sprung up soon after the deluge; and, to prevent another total corruption, the language of mankind was confounded, and the world was divided into several distinct societies; yet so general was the idolatry that had contaminated the several colonies which had emigrated from Shinar, that, within four hundred years after the flood, the knowledge and worship of the one true God was once more in danger of being entirely lost. To prevent this fearful evil, instead of destroying again all flesh, the divine Wisdom revealed himself to Abraham; beginning with him to form a peculiar people, by whom the knowledge of the true God should be preserved and transmitted to all future nations. In pursuance of this gracious design, God commanded him to separate from his idolatrous kindred, and to go into a distant land: and, after this trial of his faith and obedience, the Almighty took him under his especial care; appeared to him, conversed with him, encouraged him by promises and blessings; and imparted to him new laws, and religious ceremonies. Isaac and Jacob were made heirs of the same blessings; and when this family were grown numerous enough to be a people, the Almighty himself became their King. "With a mighty hand, and a stretched-out arm," he delivered them from Egyptian bondage; and, after a series of most wonderful miracles, to confirm their faith, and to destroy their idolatrous enemies—a passage is opened for them through the Red Sea—pillars of cloud and fire alternately direct their march; and the Almighty establishes his covenant with them on Mount Sinai, promising them every blessing, on condition that they observed his laws and statutes, and refrained from idolatry. At length they were put in possession of the land promised to their forefathers, Gen. xv. 18; and, to furnish them with a most convincing proof of the imbecility of idol-gods, and of the great sin of idolatry, they were commissioned to destroy all the nations of Canaan who trusted in them. Still the Israelites, on every opportunity, showed that they were not entirely alienated from the false worship of the neighbouring nations; and, for a long course of years, they were exercised with a variety of dispensations: when they were obedient to the laws and service of God, they were triumphant and prosperous; when they forsook him, they were in distress and bondage. Often as the people apostatized, idolatry never received support from the head of the nation till the time of Solomon, who was the first ruler that erected an idolatrous altar, and who bowed down before a graven image. With this act, idolatry may be considered as usurping the established dominion of the true religion, and to reign in her stead. The nation soon after divided: the ten tribes wholly revolted from the God of their fathers, and formed themselves into a distinct people. They resisted all the appeals of their prophets, the miracles of Elijah and Elisha, the judgments of God, the continued fulfilment of various predictions, and every other evidence of the truth of their Scriptures, and were at last taken captive at three several invasions by the kings of Assyria—by Tiglath-Pileser, in the reign of Ahaz; by Shalmaneser, in that of Hezekiah; and by Esarhaddon, in the reign of Manasseh.

The people of Judah, through frequently relapsing into idolatry, had never so entirely devoted themselves to it, as totally to renounce the worship of God; and they were still permitted to continue in the promised land more than one hundred years after the great captivity of the ten tribes by Sennacherib. During the whole of this period, they were constantly appealed to by judgments, prophecies, and promises, to repent of their idolatries, and to become wholly devoted to the God of their fathers There seems to have been in the kingdom of Judah, an uninterrupted contest between the worshippers before the LORD to all the people in Jerusalem, and to all the people that came from the cities of Judah unto Jerusalem. [10] Then read Baruch(2) in the book the words of Jeremiah in the house of the LORD, in the chamber of Gemariah the son of Shaphan the scribe, in the higher court, at the *entry of the new gate of the LORD's house, in the ears of all the people.

* Or, door.

[11] When Michaiah the son of Gemariah, the son of Shaphan, had heard out of the book all the words of the LORD, [12] then he went down into the king's house, into the scribe's chamber: and, lo! all the princes sat there, even Elishama the scribe, and Delaiah the son of Shemaiah, and Elnathan the son of Achbor, and Gemariah the son of Shaphan, and Zedekiah the son of Hananiah, and all the princes. [13] Then Michaiah declared unto them all the words that he had heard, when Baruch read the book in the ears of the people. [14] Therefore all the princes sent Jehudi the son of Nethaniah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Cushi, unto Baruch, saying, "Take in thy hand the roll wherein thou hast read in the ears of the people, and come." So Baruch the son of Neriah took the roll in his hand, and came unto them. [15] And they said unto him, "Sit down now, and read it in our ears." So Baruch read it in their ears. [16] Now it came to pass, when they had heard all the words, they were afraid both one and other, and said unto Baruch, "We will surely tell the king of all these words." [17] And they asked Baruch, saying, "Tell us now, How didst thou write all these words at his mouth?" [18] Then Baruch answered them, "He pronounced all of Jehovah and those of idols; but the party of the latter so much predominated, that all the exertions of good kings, and the constant exhortations and denunciations of the prophets, were ineffectual to produce a reformation; the attachment of the Jews to the worship of the God of their fathers visibly and gradually declined, till an open and general apostacy threatened to ensue. The prophets of the Lord were insulted, imprisoned, and slain. Idolatry was openly advocated—its grossest superstitions resorted to—and the worship of Jehovah abandoned. Prosperity and adversity, prophecy and miracle, the desolations of war, the loss of power, wealth, preëminence, and liberty, were alike in vain inflicted, to reclaim this rebellious race. "The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint"—a universal degeneracy prevailed, and threatened in a short time to annihilate God's visible Church upon earth. To wean the Jews from this universal idolatry, and to continue the knowledge of the true God in the world; not only to this single nation, but to all the future nations of the earth; God in his mercy inflicted a new judgment on his people, to the gracious effects of which we may perhaps, even to this day, consider ourselves indebted for the Hebrew Scriptures and the very existence of the Christian Church.

After a succession of punishments, and every possible appeal to their feelings and understandings had been constantly and vainly made, the seventy years' captivity began. This dreadful calamity came upon them gradually; it was brought upon them for their sins, as Moses had foretold, Lev. xxvi. 30–36, and was the means decreed by Divine Wisdom to effect their reformation. While their sad and desolate state naturally tended to excite in them serious reflections on their past conduct—while the recollection of their iniquities and idolatry would be still fresh in their memory, and the denunciations and predictions of their prophets were too faithfully accomplished, and too severely felt—they learned to detest the cause of all these sufferings, to honor God, and to keep his laws. This dispensation was also calculated to spread the knowledge of God in those eastern countries where the Jewish people were stationed. Through the merciful interposition of divine Providence, some of the distinguished captives were raised to the highest posts of dignity and power in the courts both of Assyria and Persia, and the greatest monarchs, from their constancy and fidelity, openly confessed the living and true God, Dan. ii. 47, &c. iv. 34, &c.; and made decrees in favor of his worship, Esther viii. 7, and following verses, Dan. iii. 29. vi. 26. The great Cyrus was so well acquainted with the true God, that one of his first acts, after he obtained the empire of Persia, was to make a decree for the return of the Jews into their own country, and for the rebuilding of the temple, Ezra i. From all this it is evident, that the Jews in their captivity must have repented of their transgressions, and "must have known and seen that it was an evil thing and bitter, that they had forsaken the Lord their God;" for, during their appointed sojourning in strange lands, they were a burning shining light to all the eastern countries. And thus, in this dispensation, the Almighty, in punishing his peculiar people, and in bringing about their reformation, made them the messengers of his glory and power, and the instruments of his mercy, in conveying to nations that were in "darkness and the shadow of death," the knowledge of the one true God, the Creator and Preserver of the world.

(2) It has been already stated, that the roll of Jeremiah's prophecies is supposed to have been read twice. From ver. 9 and 10, of Jeremiah xxxvi. it appears that the second time it was read was on the fast day in the ninth month of the fifth year of Jehoiakim. This day of humiliation, in all probability, was appointed by the king or the Sanhedrin, in remembrance of some great calamity, as the great day of fasting and expiation annually observed by the Jews, was always held on the tenth day of the month Tisri. This fast, therefore, is generally supposed to have been instituted in commemoration of the calamity which had befallen Jerusalem on the same day of the preceding year, when Nebuchadnezzar took Jerusalem; and it is still observed by the Jews in reference to this event. This part of chapter xxxvi. is inserted here on the united authorities of Calmet, Prideaux, Lightfoot, Taylor, and Archbishop Usher.

[20] And they went in to the king into the court, but they laid up the roll in the chamber of Elishama the scribe, and told all the words in the ears of the king. [21] So the king sent Jehudi to fetch the roll; and he took it out of Elishama the scribe's chamber. And Jehudi read it in the ears of the king, and in the ears of all the princes which stood month; and there was a fire on the hearth burning before him. [23] And it came to pass, that when Jehudi had read three or four leaves, he cut it with the penknife, and cast it into the fire that was on the hearth, until all the roll was consumed in the fire that was on the hearth.

[24] Yet they were not afraid, nor rent their garments, neither the king, nor any of his servants that heard all these words. [25] Nevertheless Elnathan and Delaiah and Gemariah had made intercession to the king that he would not burn the roll; but he would not hear them.

Seraiah the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah the son of Abdeel, to take

[27] Then the word of the LORD came to Jeremiah, after that the king had burned the roll, and the words which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremiah, saying, [28] Take thee again another roll, and write in it all the former words that were in the first roll, which Jehoiakim the king of Judah hath burned. [29] And thou shalt say to Jehoiakim king of Judah, Thus saith the LORD; Thou hast burned this roll, saying, Why hast thou written therein, saying, The king of Babylon shall certainly

(3) Jehoiakim rebelled against Nebuchadnezzar three years after that monarch had released him from fetters, and restored him to his kingdom. This division of the verse, though apparently very abrupt and singular, is unavoidable, from the necessity of attending to the history. Nebuchadnezzar, on this revolt, being probably prevented from going himself to Jerusalem, by being engaged in observing the motions of the Medes and Lydians, between whom, in the tenth year of Jehoiakim, he was called upon to mediate a peace, sent orders to all his lieutenants, and governors of provinces, to make war upon the weakened kingdom of Judah, and to ravage the land on every side. This brought upon Jehoiakim all the neighbouring nations, which were subject to the Babylonian power. Jehoiakim, it is generally supposed, was taken prisoner in a sally which he made upon them; and being slain with a sword, according to the prediction of Jeremiah, his dead body was ignominiously cast out into the highway, without one of the gates of Jerusalem.—Prideaux's Connection, vol. i. p. 95.

(4) On comparing 2 Kings xxiv. 8, with the parallel passage 2 Chron. xxxvi. 9, we observe, that in the first of these Jehoiachin is said to have been eighteen when he began to reign; and, in the other, that he was only eight years old. The difference may be reconciled, either by supposing that the custom of uniting the successor to the throne with its actual possessor, which seems to have uniformly existed in the kingdom of Judah, had been here adopted; or, as Lightfoot conjectures, that the commencement of the captivity is referred to in 2 Chron. xxxvi. 9; and that this passage signifies that Jehoiachin began to reign in the eighth year of the first captivity by Nebuchadnezzar. Unmoved either by the warning of Jeremiah, the calamities of his country, or the fate of his father, Jehoiachin continued to "do evil in the sight of the Lord." His conduct provoked a bitter declaration of God's wrath against him, by the mouth of the prophet Jeremiah, and it was as bitterly executed upon him. After Jehoiakim's death, Jerusalem was still besieged by the governors of the provinces, and the other officers of Nebuchadnezzar; and, at the end of three months, this king himself, having settled the affairs of Asia Minor, advanced with the royal army, and laid siege in person to that city. Jehoiachin, finding it was not possible to defend Jerusalem, surrendered it, with himself, his mother, his princes, and his servants, to Nebuchadnezzar. He was immediately put into chains, and carried prisoner to Babylon, where he continued till Nebuchadnezzar's death, shut up in prison, for at least thirty-seven years.

The latter part of this prophecy (Jer. xxii. 29.), is thus translated by Dr. Hales:—

"Oh earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord!
Thus saith the Lord, Write this man childless
A man who shall not prosper in his days:
For none of his seed shall prosper,
Sitting upon the throne of David,
And reigning any more over Judah."

When Jehoiachin was deposed by Nebuchadnezzar, Zedekiah was made king; and none of Jehoiachin's family ever came to the throne. For allowing that Sheshbazzar (who was appointed governor of Judæa under the title of Zerubbabel, at the return from the captivity in the first year of Cyrus, Ezra i. 8.), was the lineal descendant of Jeconiah, 1 Chron. iii. 17–19. Matt. i. 12; yet he was merely a provincial governor, Haggai i. 1; a mere vassal of the king of Persia, in whom the sovereignty rested, and therefore he could not be considered as sitting on the throne of David, and ruling in Judah. Not any of the kings that reigned afterwards in Judah were even of the family of David, till Christ himself came; not of the seed of Jehoiachin, but descended from the same ancestor by a collateral line. The prophet emphatically and solemnly calls upon the earth, to witness the dissolution of the temporal kingdom of the house of David, and predicts, in a beautiful metaphor before used by Isaiah, the spiritual kingdom that should succeed it (compare Jer. xxiii. 5. with Isaiah xi. 1.); and thus, at the very moment when the failure of Solomon's house is denounced, God in his mercy declares he will raise from the root of Jesse an everlasting kingdom, a righteous branch, to live and to flourish for ever. The twenty-third chapter begins with denunciations of woe against all those evil shepherds who scattered, instead of attending to the flock. Zedekiah is generally supposed to be alluded to as one of the evil pastors, ver. 1, 2. From ver. 3–9, the people are consoled with gracious promises of future blessings, of their return from captivity, and of the glorious establishment of Messiah's kingdom. Jeremiah then, with a broken heart, seems to revert again to the ruin that awaited the house of David, and, in proclaiming its decay, denounces the just judgments of God on those false prophets who had predicted its duration, who had deceived the nation to its ruin; and whose bad examples and evil doctrines had he reigned in Jerusalem three months. And his mother's name was Nehushta, the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. 9 And he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord, according to all that his father had done.

Jeremiah xxii. 24, to the end.

24 As I live, saith the Lord,
Though Coniah the son of Jehoiakim king of Judah
Were the signet upon my right hand,
Yet would I pluck thee thence;
25 And I will give thee into the hand of them that seek thy life,
And into the hand of them whose face thou fearest,
Even into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon,
And into the hand of the Chaldeans.
26 And I will cast thee out,
And thy mother that bare thee,
Into another country, where ye were not born;
And there shall ye die.

1 Woe [c]be unto the pastors
That destroy and scatter the sheep of my pasture! saith the Lord.
2 Therefore thus saith the Lord God of Israel
Against the pastors that feed my people;
Ye have scattered my flock, and driven them away,
And have not visited them:
Behold, [d]I will visit upon you the evil of your doings, saith the Lord.
3 And [e]I will gather the remnant of my flock
Out of all countries whither I have driven them,
And will bring them again to their folds;
And they shall be fruitful and increase.
4 And I will set up [f]shepherds over them which shall feed them:
And they shall fear no more, nor be dismayed,
Neither shall they be lacking, saith the Lord.
5 Behold, [g]the days come, saith the Lord,
That I will raise unto David a righteous Branch,
And a King shall reign and prosper, so largely contributed to the corruption of the visible Church. He exhorts the people not to trust in them, and threatens with severe punishment all those who, in defiance of this command, still continue to give ear to their deceitful dreams, and calls the word of the Lord spoken by his true prophets "a burden," which signifies a calamitous prophecy, always portending evil. See 1 Kings xxii. 8, where Ahaz makes the same objection to Micaiah. The judgment threatened in the two last verses of this chapter is still fulfilling, and the Jews will remain "an everlasting reproach," and a "perpetual shame," till they shall be finally restored to the city of their fathers.—Lightfoot; Blayney; Hales.

[7] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord,
That they shall no more say, "The Lord liveth,
Which brought up the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt;"
[8] But, The Lord liveth,
Which brought up and which led the seed of the house of Israel
Out of the north country, and from all countries whither I had driven [them;
And they shall dwell in their own land.
[9] My heart within me is broken because of the prophets;
All my bones shake;
I am like a drunken man,
And like a man whom wine hath overcome,
Because of the Lord,
And because of the words of his holiness.
[10] For the land is full of adulterers;
For because of *swearing the land mourneth;
The pleasant places of the wilderness are dried up,
And their †course is evil,
And their force is not right.
[11] For [l]both prophet and priest are profane;
Yea, in my house have I found their wickedness, saith the Lord.
[12] Wherefore [m]their way shall be unto them as slippery ways in the [darkness:
They shall be driven on, and fall therein;
For I will bring evil upon them,
Even the year of their visitation, saith the Lord.
[13] And I have seen ‡folly in the prophets of Samaria;
They prophesied in Baal, and caused my people Israel to err.
[14] I have seen also in the prophets of Jerusalem *a horrible thing:
They commit adultery, and walk in lies:
They strengthen also the hands of evil-doers,
That none doth return from his wickedness:
They are all of them unto me as [n]Sodom,
And the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah.
[15] Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts concerning the prophets;
Behold, I will feed them with wormwood,
And make them drink the water of gall:
For from the prophets of Jerusalem is †profaneness gone forth into [all the land.
[16] Thus saith the Lord of hosts,
Hearken not unto the words of the prophets that prophesy unto you:
They make you vain:
They speak a vision of their own heart,
And not out of the mouth of the Lord.
[17] They say still unto them that despise me,
"The Lord hath said, Ye shall have peace;"
And they say unto every one that walketh after the ‡imagination of [his own heart,
"No evil shall come upon you."
[18] For [o]who hath stood in the *counsel of the Lord,
And hath perceived and heard his word?
Who hath marked his word, and heard it?
[19] Behold, a whirlwind of the Lord is gone forth in fury,
Even a grievous whirlwind:
It shall fall grievously upon the head of the wicked.
[20] The anger of the Lord shall not return,
Until he have executed, and till he have performed
The thoughts of his heart:
In [p]the latter days ye shall consider it perfectly.

I have not spoken to them—yet they prophesied.

And not a God afar off?
[24] Can any [q]hide himself in secret places
That I shall not see him? saith the LORD.
Do [r]not I fill heaven and earth? saith the LORD.
[25] I have heard what the prophets said,
That prophesy lies in my name, saying,
"I have dreamed, I have dreamed."
[26] How long shall this be in the heart of the prophets that prophesy lies?
Yea, they are prophets of the deceit of their own heart;
[27] Which think to cause my people
To forget my name by their dreams
Which they tell every man to his neighbour,
As [s]their fathers have forgotten my name for Baal.
[28] The prophet †that hath a dream—let him tell a dream;
And he that hath my word—let him speak my word faithfully.
What is the chaff to the wheat? saith the LORD.
[29] Is not my word like as a fire? saith the LORD;
And like a hammer that breaketh the rock in pieces?
[30] Therefore, behold, [t]I am against the prophets, saith the LORD,
That steal my words every one from his neighbour.
[31] Behold, I am against the prophets, saith the LORD,
That ‡use their tongues, and say, "He saith."
[32] Behold, I am against them that prophesy false dreams, saith the LORD,
And do tell them, and cause my people to err
By their lies, and by their lightness:
Yet I sent them not, nor commanded them:
Therefore they shall not profit this people at all, saith the LORD.
[33] And when this people,
Or the prophet, or a priest, shall ask thee, saying,
What is the burden of the LORD?
Thou shalt then say unto them, What burden?
I will even forsake you, saith the LORD.
[34] And as for the prophet, and the priest, and the people,
That shall say, The burden of the LORD,
I will even *punish that man and his house.
[35] Thus shall ye say every one to his neighbour,
And every one to his brother,
What hath the LORD answered?
And, What hath the LORD spoken?
[36] And the burden of the LORD shall ye mention no more:
For every man's word shall be his burden;
For ye have perverted the words of the living God,
Of the LORD of hosts our God.
[37] Thus shalt thou say to the prophet,
What hath the LORD answered thee?
And, What hath the LORD spoken?
[38] But since ye say, The burden of the LORD;
Therefore thus saith the LORD;
Because ye say this word, "The burden of the LORD,"
And I have sent unto you, saying,
Ye shall not say, "The burden of the LORD;"

(5) The prophet Ezekiel and Mordecai were among the captives carried to Babylon after the surrender of Jehoiachin, and this second conquest of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar.—Ezekiel i. 2. Esther ii. 6.

(6) The date and place of this chapter are assigned in ver. 1. The prophecy it contains must have been delivered at the very beginning of Zedekiah's reign, as Jehoiachin's captivity is mentioned as having lately taken place. Under the type of good and bad figs, God represents to Jeremiah the different manner in which he would deal with his people. To those Jews that were taken into Babylon he promises restoration and peace; while Zedekiah and his subjects are threatened with an utter dispersion, and the total desolation of their land. The captivity of the former would be "for their good," and the means of their preservation, the liberty and security of the latter, "by filling up the measure of their iniquities," would tend to their final destruction.—Blayney; Prideaux; Lightfoot.

(7) Dr. Blayney observes, (Notes on Jeremiah, in loc. p. 179.) "There is no person that can read this chapter with attention without being sensible of an embarrassment and incoherence in particular parts of it, which leaves a suspicion of some capital defect either in the text, or its arrangement. Happily the LXX are found to step in here to our relief, by evidencing a transposition of ver. 15, which they have placed, where undoubtedly it ought to stand, immediatedly before ver. 21. This emendation I have adopted, as by it a due order and connection is restored, both in the place from whence the verse is removed, and in that to which it is transferred: a sufficient proof of its authenticity." In addition to which it may be observed, that the false prophets alluded to in ver. 15, are mentioned by name in ver. 21.

The letter of Jeremiah, sent to Babylon by the messengers of king Zedekiah, was written to exhort the captive Jews to accommodate themselves to their present circumstances; to provide for themselves in the country whither they were carried, as settled inhabitants of the same; and to conduct themselves in every respect as such; praying for the peace of the city. He assures them their captivity would last seventy years, and it was in vain to expect any deliverance till the time that God had appointed. He informs them of what would happen to their brethren left behind at Jerusalem, who, so far from being able to effect their deliverance, would be visited by "the sword, the famine, and pestilence." He denounces God's curse on those false prophets who had deceived the people with hopes and promises of a speedy restoration. Nebuchadnezzar, on finding that the Jews were prevented from settling in the place assigned to them, by the vain predictions of their false teachers, ordered Zedekiah and Ahab (who are supposed to have been the two elders that conspired against Susannah) to be seized, and roasted to death. This letter being read to the Jewish captives, many of those who believed in the promises of their pretended prophets, and who were unwilling to submit to their appointed chastisement, requested Shemaiah the Nehelamite. to write by the same messengers to Zephaniah, the second priest of the temple, complaining of the conduct of Jeremiah, and requesting that he might be reproved for the same. A severe judgment is, in consequence, pronounced upon Shemaiah.

(8) These two chapters of Jeremiah are made to follow the 29th, on the united authority of Blayney, Lightfoot, and other commentators. As there is no particular date annexed to this prophecy, it is not unreasonable to suppose it was delivered immediately after the preceding one; in which the restoration of the people from their captivity was clearly foretold. The temporal deliverance of the Jews from Babylon is always regarded as a type of their spiritual and glorious redemption; and both these events are frequently connected together in the prophetic writings; the accomplishment of the former affording the Jews the strongest possible evidence, that the latter, how remote soever its period, would in like manner be effected at the appointed time, by the interposition of Divine Providence. These chapters predict not only the restoration of the captivity of Babylon, but the restoration of the captivity of Israel also, those ten tribes that were carried away by Shalmaneser, king of Assyria: and the whole tenor of the prophecy gives us reason to expect a complete and universal deliverance, when God will manifest himself, as formerly, the God and Patron of all the families of Israel, and not of a few only. This great redemption remains to be accomplished in the reign of the Messiah, when there can be no doubt, that this prophecy of the final spiritual establishment of the Jews, will be as faithfully fulfilled, as that which predicted their temporal return to the holy city.

The 30th chapter opens with a description of the distress and consternation that should fall upon all nations preparatory to the deliverance of Jacob. Israel (from ver. 10 to 18) is promised restoration, after a severe chastisement for the multitude of its offences. This is followed by an enumeration of the blessings and privileges the Jews would enjoy on their admission to God's favor; and ver. 23 and 24 declare, that the anger of Jehovah should not subside, till all his enemies are destroyed; and then, and not till then, an entire reconciliation should take place between the Lord and all the families of Israel, (see xxxi. 1.) The second part of this prophecy, beginning at ver. 2, is marked by a sudden transition to a more distant period of time, and represented in a vision, (ver. 26.) God announces therein the renewal of his ancient love for Israel, and promises them speedy restoration and happiness. He promises to conduct them to Zion, and to "turn their mourning into joy," that "they shall not sorrow any more at all."

Ramah was a city of Benjamin, near which Rachel, the mother of Joseph and Benjamin, was buried. Rachel is represented (ver. 15 to 18.) as just risen from her grave, refusing to be comforted for her children, who are all either slain or gone into exile. The Evangelist applies this prophecy to Herod's massacre of the infants at Bethlehem, (Matt. ii. 17, 18.); but this cruel destruction could not have been the primary signification of the prophecy, as the sequel consoles Rachel with the promise, that her children were not lost for ever, that they should still reward her care, and "come again from the land of the enemy." Ephraim is afterwards described as "bemoaning himself" for his past disobedience; and, on his penitence, God receives him once more as his darling child, and promises to "have mercy upon him." The "virgin of Israel" is exhorted (ver. 21, 22.) to hasten her return; and, for her encouragement, she is told, that God would work a miracle in her favor, and would enable her, though apparently so weak, to overcome and prevail against all her powerful enemies. The vision closes with an allusion to the circumstances that attended the first introduction of the Jews to the land of Canaan, when each family had a separate portion assigned them for their own cultivation and subsistence; and each individual, in consequence, became a husbandman and feeder of flocks. God promises his people, they shall again dwell in the "mountain of holiness," and cultivate it according to their ancient institutions, redeemed from every want and infirmity. After Jeremiah awakes from his vision, or dream, God assures him, that he would be more anxious to restore Israel and Judah, than he had ever been to destroy them. The meaning of the proverbial expression, "The fathers have eaten a sour grape, and the children's teeth are set on edge," seems to have been founded on what is often declared in Scripture, that "God visiteth the sins of the fathers upon the children." It is here promised, that no man hereafter should suffer for the sins of another but that "every one shall die for his own iniquity," only. God declares he will make with Israel and Judah a better covenant than he did with their forefathers; that they shall continue his people as long as the sun and moon endure; and that Jerusalem shall be again built with enlarged boundaries, not to be "plucked up nor thrown down any more for ever."—Blayney in loc.

Thy sorrow is incurable for the multitude of thine iniquity:
Because thy sins were increased, I have done these things unto thee.

And shout among the chief of the nations!
Publish ye, praise ye, and say,
O LORD, save thy people, the remnant of Israel!
[8] Behold, I will bring them [q]from the north country,
And [r]gather them from the coasts of the earth,
And with them the blind and the lame,

And with [†]supplications will I lead them:
I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters

And declare it in the isles afar off, and say,
He that scattered Israel [t]will gather him,
And keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock.

And ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger that he.
[12] Therefore they shall come and sing in the height of Zion,
And shall flow together to the goodness of the LORD,
For wheat, and for wine, and for oil,
And for the young of the flock and of the herd:
And their soul shall be as a watered garden;
And [u]they shall not sorrow any more at all.
[13] Then shall the virgin rejoice in the dance,
Both young men and old together:
For I will turn their mourning into joy,
And will comfort them, and make them rejoice from their sorrow.
[14] And I will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness,
And my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith the LORD.
[15] Thus saith the LORD;
A [v]voice was heard in [w]Ramah,
Lamentation, and bitter weeping;
Rachel weeping for her children
Refused to be comforted for her children, because [x]they were not.
[16] Thus saith the LORD;
Refrain thy voice from weeping,
And thine eyes from tears:
For thy work shall be rewarded, saith the LORD;
And [y]they shall come again from the land of the enemy.
[17] And there is hope in thine end, saith the LORD,
That thy children shall come again to their own border.

SECTION VII.—Jeremiah prefigures the Fate of the surrounding Nations;—Hananiah the false Prophet is punished with Death.

JEREMIAH xxvii.(9) and xxviii.

Under the type of bonds and yokes Jeremiah prophesieth the subduing of the neighbour kings unto Nebuchadnezzar. 8 He exhorteth them to yield, and not to believe the false prophets. 12 The like he doeth to Zedekiah. 19 He foretelleth, the remnant of the vessels shall be carried to Babylon, and there continue until the day of visitation. — Chap. xxviii. 1 Hananiah prophesieth falsely the return of the vessels, and of Jeconiah. 5 Jeremiah, wishing it to be true, showeth that the event will declare who are true prophets. 10 Hananiah breaketh Jeremiah's yoke. 12 Jeremiah telleth of an iron yoke, 15 and foresheweth Hananiah's death.

[1] IN the beginning of the reign of [a]Jehoiakim the son of Josiah king of Judah came this word unto Jeremiah from the LORD, saying,— [2] Thus [*]saith the LORD to me; 'Make thee bonds and yokes, and

* Or, hath the LORD said.

(9) By some error of the transcribers the word Jehoiakim has been inserted in the first verse of chapter xxvii., which is placed here on the authority of Dr. Blayney. Lightfoot would insert it in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, on the supposition that Jeremiah spoke prophetically both of Zedekiah's reign, and of the surrounding kings who sent messengers to him to make a league against Egypt. It is so difficult to reconcile the common reading with what follows, that Mr. Lowth acknowledges that the least forced way of solving the difficulty, is, to say that Jehoiakim crept into the text instead of Zedekiah, by the negligence of the scribes. We accordingly find צדקיהו (Zedekiah) in one MS. of good repute and antiquity; in the margin of another, and most probably it was so in the text of a third, where the י was evidently צ at first, and the remainder of the word is upon an erasure. The Syriac and the

[6] And now have I given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, my servant; and [b]the beasts of the field have I given him also to serve him. [7] And [c]all nations shall serve him, and his son, and his son's son, [d]until the very time of his land come: [e]and then many nations and great kings shall serve themselves of him. [8] And it shall come to pass, that the nation and kingdom which will not serve the same Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and that will not put their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, that nation will I punish, saith the LORD, with the sword, and with the famine, and with the pestilence, until I have consumed them by his hand.

[11] But the nations that bring their neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him, those will I let remain still in their own land, saith the LORD; and they shall till it, and dwell therein.

[12] I spake also to Zedekiah king of Judah according to all these words, saying, "Bring your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and live. [14] Therefore hearken not unto the words of the prophets that speak unto you, saying, 'Ye shall not serve the king of Babylon;' for they prophesy a lie unto you. [15] For I have not sent them, saith the LORD, yet they prophesy *a lie in my name; that I might drive you out, and that ye might perish, ye, and the prophets that prophesy unto you."

* Heb. in a lie, or, lyingly.

Oxford MS. of the Arabic version also read Zedekiah.

It is evident, Dr. Blayney further observes, (Notes on Jeremiah in loc. p. 201,) that the prophecies contained both in this chapter and that which follows, belong to the fourth year of Zedekiah's reign. About this time ambassadors came to Zedekiah from the kings of Edom, Moab, and other neighbouring nations, to solicit him, as it should seem, to join with them in a confederacy against the king of Babylon. On this occasion Jeremiah is ordered to put bands and yokes about his neck, and to send them afterwards to the before mentioned kings, declaring the sovereignty of Nebuchadnezzar, and his successors, to be of divine appointment, and promising peace and protection to such as submitted quietly, but menacing evil in case of resistance, (ver. 1–11.) A like admonition is given to Zedekiah, advising him not to expose himself and his people to certain ruin, by listening to the suggestions of false prophets, and revolting from the service of the king of Babylon, (ver. 12–15.) The priests and all the people are also warned not to give credit to the false prophets, who taught them to expect a speedy restoration of the vessels which had been carried to Babylon, together with Jeconiah. Instead of which it is foretold that the remaining vessels in the house of God, and in the king's house at Jerusalem, should be carried after the other, and should not return till the appointed period of Judah's captivity was at an end, (ver. 16, to the end.) In chap. xxviii. ver. 1, the precise date of the preceding prophecy, which gave rise to the transaction now related, is determined. Hananiah was one of those false prophets who deceived the Jews with the hope that the yoke of the king of Babylon would be broken "within two full years," and the captives restored. Jeremiah consents (ver. 5–9.) to acknowledge Hananiah to be a prophet of the Lord, should his prediction be accomplished: in confirmation of which the latter takes the yoke from Jeremiah's neck, and breaks it, (ver. 10.) Jeremiah is then commanded to declare that the yokes of wood, that Hananiah had broken, should be made, unto these nations, yokes of iron; and further, to convince the people that he was not a true prophet, but that he "taught rebellion against the Lord," his death, within the year, is predicted, and takes place two months afterwards.

[16] Also I spake to the priests and to all this people, saying, "Thus saith the Lord; Hearken not to the words of your prophets that prophesy unto you, saying, 'Behold, [f]the vessels of the Lord's house shall now shortly be brought again from Babylon;' for they prophesy a lie unto you. [17] Hearken not unto them; serve the king of Babylon, and live: wherefore should this city be laid waste? [18] But if they be prophets, and if the word of the Lord be with them, let them now make intercession to the Lord of hosts, that the vessels which are left in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the king of Judah, and at Jerusalem, go not to Babylon.

Jeremiah xxviii.

[1] And it came to pass the same year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah king of Judah, in the fourth year, and in the fifth month, that Hananiah the son of Azur the prophet, which was of Gibeon, spake unto me in the house of the Lord, in the presence of the priests and of all the people, saying, [2] "Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. [3] Within †two full years will I bring again into this place all the vessels of the Lord's house, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon took away from this place, and carried them to Babylon: [4] and I will bring again to this place Jeconiah the son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, with all the ‡captives of Judah, that went into Babylon, saith the Lord; for I will break the yoke of the king of Babylon."

‡ Heb. captivity.

[5] Then the prophet Jeremiah said unto the prophet Hananiah in the presence of the priests, and in the presence of all the people that stood in the house of the Lord, [6] even the prophet Jeremiah said, "Amen! the Lord do so! the Lord perform thy words which thou hast prophesied, to bring again the vessels of the Lord's house, and all that is carried away captive, from Babylon into this place. [7] Nevertheless hear thou now this word that I speak in thine ears, and in the ears of all the people; [8] the prophets that have been before me and before thee of old prophesied both against many countries, and against great kingdoms, of war, and of evil, and of pestilence. [9] The [k]prophet which prophesieth of peace, when the word of the prophet shall come to pass, then shall the prophet be known, that the Lord hath truly sent him."

[k] De. 18. 22.

[10] Then Hananiah the prophet took the yoke from off the prophet Jeremiah's neck, and brake it. [11] And Hananiah spake in the presence of all the people, saying, "Thus saith the Lord; Even so will I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon from the neck of all nations within the space of two full years." And the prophet Jeremiah went his way.

[12] Then the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah the prophet, after that Hananiah the prophet had broken the yoke from off the neck of the prophet Jeremiah, saying, [13] "Go and tell Hananiah, saying, Thus saith the Lord; Thou hast broken the yokes of wood; but thou shalt make for them yokes of iron. [14] For thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; [l]I have put a yoke of iron upon the neck of all these nations, that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon; and they shall serve him: and I have given him the beasts of the field also."

15 Then said the prophet Jeremiah unto Hananiah the prophet, "Hear now, Hananiah! The LORD hath not sent thee; but thou makest this people to trust in a lie. 16 Therefore thus saith the LORD; Behold, I will cast thee from off the face of the earth: this year thou shalt die, because thou hast taught *rebellion against the LORD." 17 So Hananiah the prophet died the same year in the seventh month.

(10) Chapters xlviii. and xlix. are placed in this section on account of their apparent connection with the two preceding chapters. It is not improbable, that, (immediately after the death of Hananiah, whose warmest adherents must now be convinced of the deception he had practised on them, and the fallacy of his predictions,) Jeremiah directed the king and the people to his own prophecies, in the hope they would now be persuaded by them to yield to the yoke of the king of Babylon. He wished them to save themselves from the fatal desolations, which would attend those nations that were leagued against that monarch, in direct opposition to the commands of God, who had "given all these lands into the hands of Nebuchadnezzar." Many passages and expressions will be found in this chapter, similar to those of Isaiah xv. and xvi. in a prophecy against Moab. (Compare also Isaiah xxiv. 17, 18, with ver. 43, 44, of this chapter.) These prophecies concerning the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, and other neighbouring nations, are supposed to have been fulfilled about the time of the siege of Tyre. Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Amos, and Zephaniah, prophesied in succession against these people. The only date that the chapters bear is contained in ver. 34, and it seems probable, therefore, that the prediction against Elam was uttered soon after those in the former part of the chapter, but not added to them till the time of Ezra.

[10] Cursed [e]be he that doeth the work of the LORD ‡deceitfully!
And cursed be he that keepeth back his sword from blood!
[11] Moab hath been at ease from his youth,
And he hath settled on his lees,
And hath not been emptied from vessel to vessel,
Neither hath he gone into captivity:
Therefore his taste *remained in him,
And his scent is not changed.
[12] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the LORD,
That I will send unto him wanderers, that shall cause him to wander,
And shall empty his vessels, and break their bottles.
[13] And Moab shall be ashamed of Chemosh,
As the house of Israel was ashamed of [f]Beth-el their confidence.
[14] How say ye, "We are mighty
And strong men for the war?"
[15] Moab is spoiled, and gone up out of her cities,
And †his chosen young men are gone down to the slaughter,
Saith the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts.
[16] The calamity of Moab is near to come,
And his affliction hasteth fast.
[17] All ye that are about him, bemoan him;
And all ye that know his name, say,
How [g]is the strong staff broken,
And the beautiful rod!
[18] Thou daughter that dost inhabit Dibon,
Come down from thy glory, and sit in thirst;
For the spoiler of Moab shall come upon thee,
And he shall destroy thy strong-holds.
[19] O ‡inhabitant of Aroer!
Stand by the way, and espy;
Ask him that fleeth, and her that escapeth,
And say, What is done?
[20] Moab is confounded; for it is broken down:
Howl and cry!
Tell ye it in Arnon, that Moab is spoiled!
[21] And judgment is come upon the plain country;
Upon Holon, and upon Jahazah, and upon Mephaath,
[22] And upon Dibon, and upon Nebo, and upon Beth-diblathaim,
[23] And upon Kiriathaim, and upon Beth-gamul, and upon Beth-meon,
[24] And upon Kerioth, and upon Bozrah,
And upon all the cities of the land of Moab, far or near.
[25] The horn of Moab is cut off,
And his [h]arm is broken, saith the LORD.
[26] Make ye him drunken;
For he magnified himself against the LORD.
Moab also shall wallow in his vomit,
And he also shall be in derision.
[27] For [i]was not Israel a derision unto thee?
Was [j]he found among thieves?
For since thou spakest of him, thou *skippedst for joy.
[28] O ye that dwell in Moab,
Leave the cities, and dwell in the rock,
And be like the dove
That maketh her nest in the sides of the hole's mouth.
[29] We have heard [k]the pride of Moab,

And I have caused wine to fail from the winepresses:

For thy sons are taken ‡captives,
And thy daughters captives.
[47] Yet will I bring again the captivity of Moab
In the latter days, saith the Lord.
Thus far is the judgment of Moab.

[1] *Concerning the Ammonites, thus saith the Lord;
Hath Israel no sons?
Hath he no heir?
Why then doth †their king inherit Gad,
And his people dwell in his cities?
[2] Therefore, behold, the days come, saith the Lord,

And her daughters shall be burned with fire:
Then shall Israel be heir unto them that were his heirs, saith the Lord.
[3] Howl, O Heshbon, for Ai is spoiled!

(11) We learn from chapter li. 59, that Zedekiah went to Babylon attended by Seraiah, and probably for the purpose of paying the tribute which Nebuchadnezzar had imposed on him. The prophet embraced the opportunity of sending various predictions to his brethren of the captivity. Ezekiel had not yet received his commission to execute the prophetic office, and it belonged therefore to Jeremiah to watch over their spiritual welfare.

These chapters contain a most animated and distinct prophecy of the fall of Babylon, intermixed and contrasted with predictions concerning the return of Israel and Judah to Zion; who were not, like their predecessors, to be destroyed, but on their repentance and conversion to be pardoned and restored. This prophecy was delivered in the fourth year of the reign of Zedekiah, (ch. li. 59.) and Jeremiah desired after it had been read at Babylon, it should be sunk to rise no more, in the river Euphrates; thereby intimating the perpetual destruction of that proud city. More than two thousand years have passed since Cyrus took possession of Babylon, from which time it began to decay, and has now, for a long period, been

"A land wherein no man dwelleth, Neither doth any son of man pass thereby."

(ch. li. 43.) So literally has this prediction been accomplished.

Their arrows shall be as of a mighty [*]expert man;
None [g]shall return in vain.
[10] And Chaldea shall be a spoil:
All [h]that spoil her shall be satisfied, saith the Lord.
[11] Because ye were glad, because ye rejoiced,
O ye destroyers of my heritage,
Because ye are grown †fat as the heifer at grass,
And ‡bellow as bulls;
[12] Your mother shall be sore confounded;
She that bare you shall be ashamed:
Behold, the hindermost of the nations shall be
A wilderness, a dry land, and a desert!
[13] Because of the wrath of the Lord it shall not be inhabited,
But it shall be wholly desolate:
Every one that goeth by Babylon shall be astonished,
And hiss at all her plagues.
[14] Put yourselves in array against Babylon round about:
All ye that bend the bow,
Shoot at her, spare no arrows:
For she hath sinned against the Lord.
[15] Shout against her round about!
She hath [i]given her hand:
Her foundations are fallen,
Her walls are thrown down:
For it is the vengeance of the Lord:
Take vengeance upon her;
As [j]she hath done, do unto her.
[16] Cut off the sower from Babylon,
And him that handleth the [*]sickle in the time of harvest:
For fear of the oppressing sword
They shall turn every one to his people,
And they shall flee every one to his own land.
[17] Israel is a scattered sheep;
The lions have driven him away;
First [k]the king of Assyria hath devoured him;
And last this [l]Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon hath broken his bones.
[18] Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel;
Behold, I will punish the king of Babylon and his land,
As I have punished the king of Assyria.
[19] And [m]I will bring Israel again to his habitation,
And he shall feed on Carmel and Bashan,
And his soul shall be satisfied
Upon Mount Ephraim and Gilead.
[20] In those days, and in that time, saith the Lord,
The iniquity of Israel shall be sought for—and there shall be none;
And the sins of Judah—and they shall not be found:
For I will pardon them whom I reserve.
[21] Go up against the land †of Merathaim,
Even against it, and against the inhabitants of ‡Pekod:
Waste and utterly destroy after them, saith the Lord,
And do [n]according to all that I have commanded thee.
[22] A sound of battle is in the land,
And of great destruction.
[23] How is the hammer of the whole earth cut asunder and broken!
How is Babylon become a desolation among the nations!
[24] I have laid a snare for thee, and thou art also taken,
O Babylon! [o]and thou wast not aware!

Thou art found, and also caught,
Because thou hast striven against the LORD.
[25] The LORD hath opened his armory,
And hath brought forth the weapons of his indignation;
For this is the work of the Lord GOD of hosts
In the land of the Chaldeans.
[26] Come against her *from the utmost border,
Open her storehouses:
†Cast her up as heaps, and destroy her utterly:
Let nothing of her be left.
[27] Slay all her bullocks;
Let them go down to the slaughter:
Woe unto them! for their day is come,
The time of their visitation.
[28] The voice of them that flee and escape out of the land of Babylon,
To declare in Zion the vengeance of the LORD our God,
The vengeance of his temple.
[29] Call together the archers against Babylon:
All ye that bend the bow,
Camp against it round about;
Let none thereof escape:
Recompense [p]her according to her work;
According to all that she hath done, do unto her:
For she hath been proud against the LORD,
Against the Holy One of Israel.
[30] Therefore shall her young men fall in the streets,
And all her men of war shall be cut off in that day, saith the LORD.
[31] Behold, I am against thee, O thou ‡most proud,
Saith the Lord GOD of hosts,
For thy day is come—the time that I will visit thee.
[32] And *the most proud shall stumble and fall,
And none shall raise him up:
And I will kindle a fire in his cities,
And it shall devour all round about him.
[33] Thus saith the LORD of hosts;
The children of Israel and the children of Judah were oppressed [together:
And all that took them captives held them fast;
They refused to let them go.
[34] Their [q]Redeemer is strong;
The LORD of hosts is his name:
He shall thoroughly plead their cause,
That he may give rest to the land,
And disquiet the inhabitants of Babylon.
[35] A sword is upon the Chaldeans, saith the LORD,
And upon the inhabitants of Babylon,
And [r]upon her princes, and upon [s]her wise men.
[36] A sword is [t]upon the †liars—and they shall dote:
A sword is upon her mighty men—and they shall be dismayed.
[37] A sword is upon their horses, and upon their chariots,
And upon all the mingled people that are in the midst of her;
And they shall become as women:
A sword is upon her treasures—and they shall be robbed.
[38] A [u]drought is upon her waters—and they shall be dried up:
For it is the land of graven images,
And they are mad upon their idols.

With the wild beasts of the islands shall dwell there,

And to all the inhabitants of Chaldea
All their evil that they have done in Zion

Which destroyest all the earth;
And I will stretch out my hand upon thee,
And roll thee down from the rocks,

[28] Prepare against her the nations with the kings of the Medes,
The captains thereof, and all the rulers thereof,
And all the land of his dominion.
[29] And the land shall tremble and sorrow;
For every purpose of the LORD shall be performed against Babylon,
To make the land of Babylon a desolation
Without an inhabitant.
[30] The mighty men of Babylon have forborne to fight,
They have remained in their holds:
Their might hath failed;
They became as women:
They have burned her dwelling-places;

[11] ZEDEKIAH [a]was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. [12] And he did that which was evil in the sight of the LORD his God, and humbled not himself before Jeremiah the prophet speaking from the mouth of the LORD. [14] Moreover all the chief of the priests, and the people, transgressed very much after all the abominations of the heathen; and polluted the house of the LORD which he had hallowed in Jerusalem. [15] And [d]the LORD God of their fathers sent to them *by his messengers, (rising up †betimes, and sending;) because he had compassion on his people, and on his dwelling-place. [16] But [e]they mocked the messengers of God, and [f]despised his words, and [g]misused his prophets, until the wrath of the LORD arose against his people, till there was no ‡remedy. [17] Therefore [h]he brought upon them the king of the Chaldees, who slew their young men with the sword in the house of their sanctuary, and had no compassion upon young man or maiden, old man, or him that stooped for age: he gave them all into his hand. [18] And [i]all the vessels of the house of God, great and small, and the treasures of the house of the LORD, and the treasures of the king, and of his princes; all these he brought to Babylon. (12) In the arrangement of the circumstances which took place at Jerusalem between the approach of the Chaldean army, and the eventual capture of the city, I have been principally guided by the accurate and learned Prideaux. The contents of Jer. xxxix. ver. 1, sufficiently show that this verse may be rightly placed first, as introductory to the whole amount. As Jeremiah was put into prison the first time, chap. xxxvii. 4, while the Chaldeans were besieging the city, that is, at the beginning of the tenth year, and before the army of Pharaoh Hophra came from Egypt, it is evident that this part of the chapter precedes in historical order both the account of his imprisonment, and the delivery of the prophecy, (Jer. xxxiv. 1-6.) which is supposed to have occasioned his confinement. Blayney, and other commentators, differ from Prideaux, and think the prediction contained in the twenty-first chapter was the cause of the prophet's punishment. Both these chapters announce the burning of the city, and the captivity of Zedekiah: but, in Jer. xxxiv. 1, we read the prediction was delivered on the commencement of the siege, by immediate inspiration, without any application from the king, while Nebuchadnezzar was still engaged in fighting against the cities of Judah, and had perhaps just reached Jerusalem. The latter prediction, (chap. xxi.) on the contrary, was spoken in reply to the message from the king, sent by Pashur and Zephaniah, after his imprisonment: and in it Jeremiah recapitulates his first prediction, with some additional denunciations; upon which he is more strictly confined in the dungeon of Malchiah.

g 2 Ki. 18. 13. & 19. 8. 2 Ch. 11. 5, 9.

[6] Then Jeremiah the prophet spake all these words unto Zedekiah king of Judah in Jerusalem, [7] when the king of Babylon's army fought against Jerusalem, and against all the cities of Judah that were left, against Lachish, and against Azekah; for [g]these defenced cities remained of the cities of(13) Judah.

h Ex. 21. 2. Le. 25. 10.
i Neh. 5. 11.

[8] This is the word that came unto Jeremiah from the Lord, after that the king Zedekiah had made a covenant with all the people which were at Jerusalem, to proclaim [h]liberty unto them; [9] that [i]every man should let his manservant, and every man his maidservant, being a Hebrew or a Hebrewess, go free; [j]that none should serve himself of them, to wit, of a Jew his brother. [10] Now when all the princes, and all the people, which had entered into the covenant, heard that every one should let his manservant, and every one his maidservant, go free, that none should serve themselves of them any more, then they obeyed, and let them go.

2 Kings xxv. beginning of ver. 1.—And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he, and all his host, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it;—

[1] The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord [a]in the tenth year of Zedekiah king of Judah, which was the eighteenth year of Nebuchadrezzar. [2] For then the king of Babylon's army besieged Jerusalem; and Jeremiah the prophet was shut up in the court of the prison, which was in the king of Judah's house. [3] For Zedekiah king of Judah had shut him up, saying, "Wherefore dost thou prophesy, and say, Thus saith the Lord, 'Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he shall take it; [4] and Zedekiah king of Judah shall not escape out of the hand of the Chaldeans, but shall

(13) After the Jews discovered that all their cities were taken but Lachish and Azekah, terrified at these losses, and apprehensive of the siege then ready to be laid to Jerusalem, they made a show of returning to God, and of observing his laws, (see ver. 9.) They enter into a solemn covenant with God, and immediately issue a proclamation "that every man should let his manservant and every man his maidservant, being a Hebrew, or a Hebrewess, go free," Deut. xv. 12. This covenant, however, was broken as soon as the Jews considered themselves relieved from danger by the Chaldean army retiring from Jerusalem.

(14) The place and date of these chapters are assigned in chap. xxxii. ver 2. By purchasing the field at Anathoth, on the prospect of not being able, under the present circumstances of the city, to take possession of the land, Jeremiah confirmed to the people his own firm belief in the truth of all the predictions which he had been commanded of God to utter to his brethren. This purchase prefigured, that although Judah and Jerusalem should be laid waste, and the inhabitants led into captivity, yet a day would come when there should be a general restoration, the land flourish again. possessions bought and sold, as in former times, and the lands enjoyed by their rightful owners, ver. 36, to the end. In chap. xxxiii. God reveals his gracious purpose of healing the wounds of Jerusalem. He foretells the land, whose desolation they now deplore, shall be filled again with the voice of them "that shall bring the sacrifice of praise," and "shall be a habitation of shepherds causing their flocks to lie down." He promises them a kingdom in which a branch of the house of David shall rule in righteousness; and declares his covenant with David, and the priesthood of the sons of Levi, to be as lasting as the covenant of day and night; and, to remove the reproach cast on Israel and Judah, God renews his protestations of infallibly restoring the seed of Jacob, and of appointing the seed of David to rule over them for ever.

From the Babylonish captivity to the coming of Christ, David was without a successor of his family sitting upon the throne of Judah or Israel. And from the destruction of Jerusalem to the present time. the Jews have had neither a king nor a regular priesthood. It is evident. therefore, the time is not yet arrived for the actual accomplishment of this prophecy; it remains to be fulfilled in those days when Israel and Judah shall be restored under Christ. their Righteousness. Admitting this, and that all the families of Israel shall again be re-established in their own possessions, what improbability is there, that the two families of David and Levi, may actually revert also to the ancient privileges. subject only to the supreme authority of the Messiah. and continue to enjoy them, as is here expressly declared. in interrupted succession, to the end of the world.—Blayney, notes on Jeremiah, p. 222.—Prideaux's Connection.

surely be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, and shall speak with him mouth to mouth, and his eyes shall behold his eyes; [5] and he shall lead Zedekiah to Babylon, and there shall he be until I visit him, saith the LORD: though ye fight with the Chaldeans, ye shall not prosper.' "

[6] And Jeremiah said, "The word of the LORD came unto me, saying, [7] Behold, Hanameel the son of Shallum thine uncle shall come unto thee, saying, Buy thee my field that is in Anathoth: for [b]the right of redemption is thine to buy it. [8] So Hanameel mine uncle's son came to me in the court of the prison according to the word of the LORD, and said unto me, 'Buy my field, I pray thee, that is in Anathoth, which is in the country of Benjamin; for the right of inheritance is thine, and the redemption is thine; buy it for thyself.' Then I knew that this was the word of the LORD. [9] And I bought the field of Hanameel mine uncle's son, that was in Anathoth, and [c]weighed him the money, even *seventeen shekels of silver. [10] And I †subscribed the evidence, and sealed it, and took witnesses, and weighed him the money in the balances. [11] So I took the evidence of the purchase, both that which was sealed according to the law and custom, and that which was open. [12] And I gave the evidence of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriah, the son of Maaseiah, in the sight of Hanameel mine uncle's son, and in the presence of the witnesses that subscribed the book of the purchase, before all the Jews that sat in the court of the prison. [13] And I charged Baruch before them, saying, [14] 'Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Take these evidences, this evidence of the purchase, both which is sealed, and this evidence which is open; and put them in an earthen vessel, that they may continue many days. [15] For thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel; Houses and fields and vineyards shall be possessed again in this land.' [16] Now when I had delivered the evidence of the purchase unto Baruch the son of Neriah, I prayed unto the LORD, saying, [17] 'Ah Lord GOD! behold, [d]thou hast made the heaven and the earth by thy great power and stretched-out arm, and [e]there is nothing ‡too hard for thee. [18] Thou showest [f]loving-kindness unto thousands, and recompensest the iniquity of the fathers into the bosom of their children after them: the Great, the Mighty God, the LORD of hosts, is his name, [19] (great in counsel, and mighty in work; for thine [g]eyes are open upon all the ways of the sons of men, [h]to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings;) [20] which hast set signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, even unto this day, and in Israel, and among other men; and hast made thee [i]a name, as at this day; [21] and [j]hast brought forth thy people Israel out of the land of Egypt with signs, and with wonders, and with a strong hand, and with a stretched-out arm, and with great terror; [22] and hast given them this land, which thou didst swear to their fathers to give them, [k]a land flowing with milk and honey; [23] and they came in, and possessed it; but [l]they obeyed not thy voice, neither walked in thy law; they have done nothing of all that thou commandedst them to do: therefore thou hast caused all this evil to come upon them. [24] Behold the †mounts! they are come unto the city to take it; and the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans, that fight against it, because of the sword, and of the famine, and of the pestilence. And what thou hast spoken is come to pass; and, behold, thou seest it! [25] And thou hast said unto me, O Lord GOD, 'Buy thee the field for money, and take witnesses; ‡for the city is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.' [26] Then came the word of the LORD unto Jeremiah, saying, [27] Behold, I am the Lord, the God of all flesh—is there any thing too hard for me? [28] Therefore thus saith the Lord; Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the Chaldeans, and into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and he shall take it. [29] And the Chaldeans, that fight against this city, shall come and [m]set fire on this city, and burn it with the houses, [n]upon whose roofs they have offered incense unto Baal, and poured out drink offerings unto other gods, to provoke me to anger. [30] For the children of Israel and the children of Judah have only done evil before me from their youth; for the children of Israel have only provoked me to anger with the work of their hands, saith the Lord. [31] For this city hath been to me as []a provocation of mine anger and of my fury from the day that they built it even unto this day; that I should remove it from before my face, [32] because of all the evil of the children of Israel and of the children of Judah, which they have done to provoke me to anger, [o]they, their kings, their princes, their priests, and their prophets, and the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. [33] And they have turned unto me the [†]back, and not the face: though I taught them, (rising up early and teaching them,) yet they have not hearkened to receive instruction. [34] But they set their abominations in the house, which is called by my name, to defile it. [35] And they built the high places of Baal, which are in the Valley of the Son of Hinnom, to cause their sons and their daughters to pass through the fire unto [p]Molech; which I commanded them not, neither came it into my mind, that they should do this abomination, to cause Judah to sin. [36] And now therefore thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel, concerning this city, whereof ye say, 'It shall be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon, by the sword, and by the famine, and by the pestilence;' [37] Behold, [q]I will gather them out of all countries, whither I have driven them in mine anger, and in my fury, and in great wrath; and I will bring them again unto this place, and I will cause them to dwell safely. [38] And they shall be my people, and I will be their God. [39] And I will [r]give them one heart, and one way, that they may fear me [‡]for ever, for the good of them, and of their children after them. [40] And [s]I will make an everlasting covenant with them, that I will not turn away [*]from them, to do them good; but [t]I will put my fear in their hearts, that they shall not depart from me. [41] Yea, [u]I will rejoice over them to do them good, and [v]I will plant them in this land [†]assuredly with my whole heart and with my whole soul. [42] For thus saith the Lord; Like as I have brought all this great evil upon this people, so will I bring upon them all the good that I have promised them. [43] And fields shall be bought in this land, whereof ye say, 'It is desolate without man or beast; it is given into the hand of the Chaldeans.' [44] Men shall buy fields for money, and subscribe evidences, and seal them, and take witnesses in the land of Benjamin, and in the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, and in the cities of the mountains, and in the cities of the Valley, and in the cities of the South: for I will cause their captivity to return," saith the Lord.

[4] For thus saith the Lord, the God of Israel,
Concerning the houses of this city,
And concerning the houses of the kings of Judah,
Which are thrown down by the mounts, and by the sword;
[5] They come to fight with the Chaldeans,
But it is to fill them with the dead bodies of men,
Whom I have slain in mine anger and in my fury,
And for all whose wickedness
I have hid my face from this city.
[6] Behold, I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them,
And will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth.
[7] And I will cause the captivity of Judah
And the captivity of Israel to return,
And will build them, [x]as at the first.
[8] And I will [y]cleanse them from all their iniquity,
Whereby they have sinned against me;
And I will [z]pardon all their iniquities,
Whereby they have sinned,
And whereby they have transgressed against me.
[9] And it shall be to me a name of joy,
A praise and an honor before all the nations of the earth,
Which shall hear all the good that I do unto them:
And they shall fear and tremble for all the goodness
And for all the prosperity that I procure unto it.
[10] Thus saith the Lord;
Again there shall be heard in this place,
Which ye say shall be desolate without man and without beast,
Even in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem,
That are desolate, without man,
And without inhabitant, and without beast,

The voice of the bridegroom, and the voice of the bride,
The voice of them that shall say, [b]Praise the Lord of hosts!

For his mercy endureth for ever;
And of them that shall bring [c]the sacrifice of praise into the house of the Lord.
For I will cause to return the captivity of the land,
As at the first, saith the Lord.
[12] Thus saith the Lord of hosts;
Again [d]in this place, which is desolate
Without man and without beast,
And in all the cities thereof,
Shall be a habitation of shepherds
Causing their flocks to lie down.

And in the cities of the South, and in the land of Benjamin,
And in the places about Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah,
Shall the flocks [e]pass again
Under the hands of him that telleth them, saith the Lord.
[14] Behold, the days come, saith the Lord,
That I will perform that good thing which I have promised
Unto the house of Israel and to the house of Judah.
[15] In those days, and at that time,
Will I cause the [f]Branch of Righteousness to grow up unto David;
And he shall execute judgment and righteousness in the land.

"The two families which the Lord hath chosen,
He hath even cast them off?"
Thus they have despised my people,
That they should be no more a nation before them.

If [j]my covenant be not with day and night,
And if I have not appointed the ordinances of heaven and earth;
[26] Then will I cast away the seed of Jacob, and David my servant,
So that I will not take any of his seed to be rulers

(15) As no history, either sacred or profane, has mentioned the capture of Gaza by the king of Egypt, there is no means of ascertaining the precise date of the delivery of this prophecy. Lightfoot has placed it in this ninth year of Zedekiah, on the supposition that Gaza was taken by Pharaoh's army soon after this time. In the fourth verse the Philistines are called the remnant of the country of Caphtor. This expression perhaps will serve as a clue to the right understanding of the history. On consulting the map of Palestine, we find that Gaza was a city of the tribe of Judah, and that it was near the seacoast. The circumstances related concerning it in the Old Testament prove the great importance attached to it, both by the Israelites and the surrounding nations. It was given to Judah, in the division of the country by Joshua; and it was one of the five principalities of the Philistines towards the southern extremity of Canaan. It was frequently taken and retaken by the Philistines and Hebrews; and, after having been lost by Ahaz, it was finally conquered by Hezekiah, (2 Kings xviii. 8.)

These contests for the possession of Gaza are supposed, by Calmet, to have been occasioned by its favorable situation for commerce. The revolutions of preceding ages, however, furnish us with more powerful reasons for these contentions.

In Gen. x. 13, 14, we read, "Misraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naphtuhim, and Pathrusim, and Casluhim (out of whom came Philistim), and Caphtorim." And in Deut. ii. 23, Moses, in commanding the Israelites not to interfere with the possessions of the Ammonites, leaves his immediate subject, and gives a short history of the conquest of the Zamzummins by the Ammonites, in a prior age. This conquest leads us to allude to the defeat of the Horim by the Edomites, and in ver. 23, to the overthrow of the Avims by the Caphtorim; his words are, "the Avims which dwelt in Hazerim, even unto Azzah, the Caphtorims, which came forth out of Caphtor, destroyed them, and dwelt in their stead." Azza is the same as Gaza: the ע, which commences the Hebrew name, being by the Septuagint pronounced as a G.

From comparing these expressions, it evidently appears that the Philistim, who may be considered the same as the Egyptians, invaded Palestine (to which they gave their name) by the south-west; and leaving the country of the Caphtorim, took possession of the seacoast as far as Gaza, before the Israelites entered the Holy Land on the eastern side over the river Jordan. Bishop Cumberland, in his Dissertation on Deut. ii. 23, has plainly shown that Caphtor was the same as Pelusium; and, on referring to the map, it will be seen that the Pelusiac mouth of the Nile is the nearest branch of that river to the country thus invaded By keeping possession of Gaza, or of Ashkelon, on one side, and Pelusium on the other, the Egyptians and Philistines maintained under their dominion the whole of this part of the seacoast; a territory eminently valuable to them. Besides which, it was the conquest of their ancestors, and a sure protection to their own territory; it was a certain source of revenue, and afforded an easy admission into the country of the Israelites, whenever the distresses of the Jews or their own ambition prompted them to make an invasion. The Egyptians and the Philistines therefore, who were the remnant of the country of Caphtor, seeing at this juncture the distress of Judæa, most probably attempted to regain possession from the Jews, or Assyrians, of the seacoast, from Pelusium to Ashkelon. Egypt and Assyria were the two powerful nations who were contending for empire: the impoverished and crumbling dominion of Judæa was divided between them at their pleasure. The king of Assyria invaded it from the east and north, had taken all its fortified towns, except Jerusalem, Lachish, and Azekah, which two last places were not far distant from Gaza. I have supposed, therefore, that on Nebuchadnezzar's rapid success in Palestine, the king of Egypt, in union with the Philistines, was making an attempt to recover possession of the much desired territory from Pelusium to Ashkelon. In his progress through the country "he smote Gaza," and this conquest, with the proximity of the Egyptian army, to those divisions of Nebuchadnezzar's army which were besieging Lachish and Azekah, occasioned the raising of the siege of Jerusalem by the larger part of the Chaldean army; on seeing which, the Egyptians retreated to their own country, and left Zedekiah and the Jews to their fate.

Dr. Blayney suggests the idea, that Gaza might have been taken by the Egyptians on their retiring before the army of Nebuchadnezzar; but it is not probable that an army, which was hastily retreating to its own territory for safety, would stop before a strongly fortified town, besiege, and capture it. Others have supposed that it was taken by Pharaoh Necho, on his return from the battle of Megiddo, where Josiah was killed, and when all the country submitted to his victorious arms. But we have no authority, either for supposing that the whole country submitted to Pharaoh, or that Jeremiah should predict the destruction of the Philistines, on the capture of that town, more than on the capture of any other. On considering the various authorities, it seems most probable, that the capture of Gaza must either have been the cause of Nebuchadnezzar's raising the siege of Jerusalem; or, that it was taken about the time when Lachish and Azekah were besieged by the Chaldean army. —Vide Bishop Cumberland's Origines Gentium, Tract 2d; Faber's *Pag. [13] Thus saith the LORD, the God of Israel; I made a covenant with your fathers in the day that I brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondmen, saying, [14] "At [a]the end of seven years let ye go every man his brother a Hebrew, which *hath been sold unto thee; and when he hath served thee six years, thou shalt let him go free from thee:" but your fathers hearkened not unto me, neither inclined their ear. [15] And ye were †now turned, and had done right in my sight, in proclaiming liberty every man to his neighbour; and ye had [b]made a covenant before me in the house ‡which is called by my name. [16] But ye turned and [c]polluted my name, and caused every man his servant, and every man his handmaid, whom he had set at liberty at their pleasure, to return, and brought them into subjection, to be unto you for servants and for handmaids. [17] Therefore thus saith the LORD; Ye have not hearkened unto me, in proclaiming liberty, every one to his brother, and every man to his neighbour: [d]behold, I proclaim a liberty for you, saith the LORD, to the sword, to the pestilence, and to the famine; and I will make you *to be removed into all the kingdoms of the earth. [18] And I will give the men that have transgressed my covenant, which have not performed the words of the covenant which they had made before me, when [e]they cut the calf in twain, and passed between the parts thereof, [19] (the princes of Judah, and the princes of Jerusalem, the eunuchs, and the priests, and all the people of the land, which passed between the parts of the calf;) [20] I will even give them into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life: and their dead bodies shall be for meat unto the fowls of the heaven, and to the beasts of the earth. [21] And Zedekiah king of Judah and his princes will I give into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of them that seek their life, and into

(16) The prophet, in this part of chap. xxxiv., reproaches the people of Judah for the utter hollowness of their pretended reformation, and for their perfidious conduct to their Hebrew slaves; whom they again reduced, in despite of their covenant, to their former unlawful bondage, as soon as the danger that threatened them from the Chaldeans appeared to be past. God threatens to punish them by giving liberty to the sword, to the pestilence, and the famine. He assures them he will deliver them into the hands of those enemies "who are gone up from you," that he will cause them to return, and make Judah "a desolation without an inhabitant."—See note on the first part of chapter xxxiv. sect. xi. p. 928.

SECTION XVI.—Jeremiah, attempting to make his Escape from Jerusalem, is again imprisoned.

JEREMIAH xxxvii. 11, to the end.(17)

Jeremiah is taken for a fugitive, beaten, and put in prison. He assureth Zedekiah of the captivity. Entreating for his liberty, he obtaineth some favor.

* Heb. made to ascend.
† Or, to slip away from thence in the midst of the people.

[11] AND it came to pass, that when the army of the Chaldeans was *broken up from Jerusalem for fear of Pharaoh's army, [12] then Jeremiah went forth out of Jerusalem to go into the land of Benjamin, †to separate himself thence in the midst of the people. [13] And when he was in the gate of Benjamin, a captain of the ward was there, whose name was Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah; and he took Jeremiah the prophet, saying, "Thou fallest away to the Chaldeans." [14] Then said Jeremiah, "It is ‡false—I fall not away to the Chaldeans." But he hearkened not to him: so Irijah took Jeremiah, and brought him to the princes. [15] Wherefore the princes were wroth with Jeremiah, and smote him, and put him in prison in the house of Jonathan the scribe; for they had made that the prison.

* Or, cells.
† Heb. let my supplication fall.

[16] When Jeremiah was entered into the dungeon, and into the *cabins, and Jeremiah had remained there many days; [17] then Zedekiah the king sent, and took him out: and the king asked him secretly in his house, and said, "Is there any word from the LORD?" And Jeremiah said, "There is: for," said he, "thou shalt be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon." [18] Moreover Jeremiah said unto king Zedekiah, "What have I offended against thee, or against thy servants, or against this people, that ye have put me in prison? [19] Where are now your prophets which prophesied unto you, saying, 'The king of Babylon shall not come against you, nor against this land?' [20] Therefore hear now, I pray thee, O my lord the king! †let my supplication, I pray thee, be accepted before thee; that thou cause me not to return to the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there." [21] Then Zedekiah the king commanded that they should commit Jeremiah into the court of the prison, and that they should give him daily a piece of bread out of the bakers' street, until all the bread in the city were spent. Thus Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

SECTION XVII.—Jeremiah, applied to by the King, repeats his former Predictions.

JEREMIAH xxi.(18)

Zedekiah sendeth to Jeremiah to inquire the event of Nebuchadrezzar's war. 3 Jeremiah foretelleth a hard siege and miserable captivity. 8 He counselleth the people to fall to the Chaldeans, 11 and upbraideth the king's house.

[1] THE word which came unto Jeremiah from the LORD, when king Zedekiah sent unto him Pashur the son of Malchiah, and Zephaniah the son of Maaseiah the priest, saying, [2] "Inquire, I pray thee, of the LORD for us; for Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon maketh war against us; if so be that the LORD will deal with us according to all his wondrous works, that he may go up from us."

(17) The place and date of this part of Jeremiah xxxvii. are assigned in ver. 11.

(18) For the reasons why the twenty-first chapter is inserted here, see a preceding note on chap. xxxiv. 1–8. In a loathsome dungeon, the prophet still retains his unshaken fidelity and constancy, and repeats his former predictions with unwavering firmness; he exhorts the royal house to execute judgment and justice. The king and people, even to the last, are offered terms of mercy and acceptance, on obedience and submission to the divine will; "Behold, I set before you the way of life, and the way of death," ver. 8, 9. Jeremiah xxxviii. 17.

[3] Then said Jeremiah unto them, "Thus shall ye say to Zedekiah, [4] Thus saith the LORD God of Israel; Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, wherewith ye fight against the king of Babylon, and against the Chaldeans, which besiege you without the walls, and [a]I will assemble them into the midst of this city. [5] And I myself will fight against you with [b]an out-stretched hand and with a strong arm, even in anger, and in fury, and in great wrath. [6] And I will smite the inhabitants of this city, both man and beast; they shall die of a great pestilence. [7] And afterward, saith the LORD, [c]I will deliver Zedekiah king of Judah, and his servants, and the people, and such as are left in this city, from the pestilence, from the sword, and from the famine, into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those that seek their life: and he shall smite them with the edge of the sword; [d]he shall not spare them, neither have pity, nor have mercy.

SECTION XVIII.—Jeremiah is committed to the Dungeon of Malchiah.

JEREMIAH xxxviii.,(19) and xxxix. 15, to the end.

Jeremiah, by a false suggestion, is put into the dungeon of Malchiah. 7 Ebed-melech, by suit, getteth him some enlargement. 14 Upon secret conference he counselleth the king by yielding to save his life. 24 By the king's instructions he concealeth the conference from the princes. — Chap. xxxix. 15 God's promise to Ebed-melech.

[1] THEN Shephatiah the son of Mattan, and Gedaliah the son of Pashur, and Jucal the son of Shelemiah, and Pashur the son of Malchiah, heard the words that Jeremiah had spoken unto all the people, saying, [2] "Thus saith the LORD, [a]He that remaineth in this city shall die by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence: but he that goeth forth to the Chaldeans shall live; for he shall have his life for a prey, and shall live. [3] Thus saith the LORD, [b]This city shall surely be given into the hand of the king of Babylon's army, which shall take it." [4] Therefore the princes said unto the king, "We beseech thee, [c]let this man be put to death; for thus he weakeneth the hands of the men of war that remain in this city, and the hands of all the people, in speaking such words unto them; for this man seeketh not the *welfare of this people, but the hurt." (19) That this chapter ought to be inserted here, is evident from ver. 28; "Jeremiah abode in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken: and he was there when Jerusalem was taken." † Or, of the king.

[7] Now when Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, one of the eunuchs which was in the king's house, heard that they had put Jeremiah in the dungeon; (the king then sitting in the gate of Benjamin;) [8] Ebed-melech went forth out of the king's house, and spake to the king, saying, [9] "My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have done to Jeremiah the prophet, whom they have cast into the dungeon; and ‡he is like to die for hunger in the place where he is, for there is no more bread in the city." [10] Then the king commanded Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying, "Take from hence thirty men *with thee, and take up Jeremiah the prophet out of the dungeon, before he die." [11] So Ebed-melech took the men with him, and went into the house of the king under the treasury, and took thence old cast clouts and old rotten rags, and let them down by cords into the dungeon to Jeremiah. [12] And Ebed-melech the Ethiopian said unto Jeremiah, "Put now these old cast clouts and rotten rags under thine armholes under the cords." And Jeremiah did so. [13] So they drew up Jeremiah with cords, and took him up out of the dungeon; and Jeremiah remained in the court of the prison.

[14] Then Zedekiah the king sent, and took Jeremiah the prophet unto him into the †third entry that is in the house of the LORD; and the king said unto Jeremiah, "I will ask thee a thing; hide nothing from me."

† Or, principal.

[15] Then Jeremiah said unto Zedekiah, "If I declare it unto thee, wilt thou not surely put me to death? and if I give thee counsel, wilt thou not hearken unto me?" [16] So Zedekiah the king sware secretly unto Jeremiah, saying, "As the LORD liveth, [d]that made us this soul, I will not put thee to death, neither will I give thee into the hand of these men that seek thy life!"

d Is. 57. 16.

[17] Then said Jeremiah unto Zedekiah, "Thus saith the LORD, the God of hosts, the God of Israel; If thou wilt assuredly go forth unto the king of Babylon's princes, then thy soul shall live, and this city shall not be burned with fire; and thou shalt live, and thy house. [18] But if thou wilt not go forth to the king of Babylon's princes, then shall this city be given into the hand of the Chaldeans, and they shall burn it with fire, and [e]thou shalt not escape out of their hand."

e Je. 32. 4. & 34. 3.

[19] And Zedekiah the king said unto Jeremiah, "I am afraid of the Jews that are fallen to the Chaldeans, lest they deliver me into their hand, and they mock me."

[20] But Jeremiah said, "They shall not deliver thee. Obey, I beseech thee, the voice of the LORD, which I speak unto thee: so it shall be well unto thee, and thy soul shall live. [21] But if thou refuse to go forth, this is the word that the LORD hath showed me. [22] And, behold, all the women that are left in the king of Judah's house shall be brought forth to the king of Babylon's princes, and those women shall say, ‡Thy friends have set thee on, and have prevailed against thee: thy feet are sunk in the mire, and they are turned away back. [23] So they shall bring out all thy wives and thy children to the Chaldeans; and thou shalt not escape out of their hand, but shalt be taken by the hand of the king of Babylon; and *thou shalt cause this city to be burned with fire."

‡ Heb. Men of thy peace.

* Heb. thou shalt burn, &c.

[24] Then said Zedekiah unto Jeremiah, "Let no man know of these words, and thou shalt not die. [25] But if the princes hear that I have talked with thee, and they come unto thee, and say unto thee, Declare unto us now what thou hast said unto the king, hide it not from us, and we will not put thee to death; also what the king said unto thee: [26] then thou shalt say unto them, I presented my supplication before the king, that he would not cause me to return to Jonathan's house, to die there." [27] Then came all the princes unto Jeremiah, and asked him; and he told them according to all these words that the king had commanded. So †they left off speaking with him; for the matter was not perceived. [28] So Jeremiah abode in the court of the prison until the day that Jerusalem was taken; and he was there when Jerusalem was taken.

Jeremiah xxxix. 15, to the end.

[15] Now the word of the Lord came unto Jeremiah, while he was shut up in the court of the prison, saying,
[16] Go and speak to Ebed-melech the Ethiopian, saying,—
Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel;
Behold, I will bring my words upon this city
For evil, and not for good:
And they shall be accomplished in that day before thee.
[17] But I will deliver thee in that day, saith the Lord;
And thou shalt not be given into the hand
Of the men of whom thou art afraid.
[18] For I will surely deliver thee,
And thou shalt not fall by the sword,
But [f]thy life shall be for a prey unto thee;
Because [g]thou hast put thy trust in me, saith the Lord.

Section XIX.—The Capture of Jerusalem and of Zedekiah;—The Deliverance of Jeremiah;—The Burning of the Temple;—The People are carried captive to Babylon.

Jer. lii. 5, 6, xxxix. 3, lii. 7–11, xxxix. 11–14, lii. 24–27, 12–14, 17–23, and 15, 16, and xxxix. 10.—2 Kings xxiv. 17, to the end, xxv. 3–21.—Jeremiah xxxix. 2, and 4–9, lii. 4.

Jerusalem is besieged and taken. Zedekiah is taken prisoner, his sons killed, and his own eyes put out. Nebuchadrezzar's charge for the good usage of Jeremiah. The chief priest slain. Nebuzar-adan burneth and spoileth the city, and carrieth the people captive to Jerusalem.

[5] So the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah. [6] And in the fourth month, in the ninth day of the month, the famine was sore in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land. [7] Then the city was broken up, and all the men of war fled, and went forth out of the city by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the king's garden; (now the Chaldeans were by the city round about;) and they went by the way of the plain.

JEREMIAH xxxix. 2, and 4–9.—[2] And in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, the ninth day of the month, the city was broken up.

[4] And it came to pass, that when Zedekiah the king of Judah saw them, and all the men of war, then they fled, and went forth out of the city by night, by the way of the king's garden, by the gate betwixt the two walls: and he went out the way of the plain. [5] But the Chaldeans' army pursued after them, and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho: and when they had taken him, they brought him up to Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon to Riblah in the land of Hamath, where he *gave judgment upon him. [6] Then the king of Babylon slew the sons of Zedekiah in Riblah before his eyes: also the king of Babylon slew all the nobles of Judah. [7] Moreover he put out Zedekiah's eyes, and bound him †with chains, to carry him to Babylon.

* Heb. spake with him judgments, Je. 4. 12.

[8] And the Chaldeans burned the king's house, and the houses of the people, with fire, and brake down the walls of Jerusalem. [9] Then Nebuzar-adan the ‡captain of the guard carried away captive into Babylon the remnant of the people that remained in the city, and those that fell away, that fell to him, with the rest of the people that remained.

JEREMIAH lii. 4.—And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, that Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it, and built forts against it round about.

1 O God, [a]the heathen are come into thine inheritance;
Thy holy temple have they defiled;
They [b]have laid Jerusalem on heaps.
2 The [c]dead bodies of thy servants have they given
To be meat unto the fowls of the heaven,
The flesh of thy saints
Unto the beasts of the earth.
3 Their blood have they shed like water round about Jerusalem;
And [d]there was none to bury them.
4 We are become a reproach to our neighbours,
A scorn and derision to them that are round about us.

Shall thy jealousy burn like fire?
6 Pour [e]out thy wrath upon the heathen that have [f]not known thee,
And upon the kingdoms that have not called upon thy name.
7 For they have devoured Jacob,
And laid waste his dwelling-place.

Let thy tender mercies speedily prevent us;
For we are brought very low.
9 Help us, O God of our salvation!
For the glory of thy name:
And deliver us, and purge away our sins,

By the ‡revenging of the blood of thy servants which is shed.

(20) Psalm lxxix.—In this Psalm Asaph complains that the Babylonians had destroyed the city and temple at Jerusalem, and beseeches God to be reconciled to his people, and to punish the blasphemies and cruelties of their idolatrous enemies.—Green; Dr. Wells.

Psalm lxxiv.—This Psalm was occasioned by the desolation of Jerusalem and the temple, and the rest of the country of Judæa, made by Nebuchadnezzar, or the Babylonish forces.—Vide ver. 5–7; Dr. Wells; Pole's Synopsis; and others.

Psalm lxxxiii.—In this Psalm are enumerated the various nations who were leagued against Jerusalem, at the time it was written. In the eighth verse, Assur or Assyria is mentioned among them. This fixes the date of the composition of the Psalm to the latter period of the Jewish monarchy, and as all the surrounding tribes were, about the time of Zedekiah and his immediate predecessor, united against Jerusalem, it was most probably written about this time.—Dr. Wall.

Psalm xciv.—This Psalm is enumerated by Dr. Gray, from Calmet, among those which were written during some of the captivities and distresses of the Church. Its precise date is not known. It is not improbable that it was written on the destruction of the city and temple. On comparing the fifth verse with the fourteenth, it appears that it was written to console the Church of God in its distress; and that distress was apparently a total ruin of the Church, which God however would not cast off, neither would he forsake his inheritance.

THE LAMENTATIONS OF JEREMIAH.

LAMENT. I.

LAMENTATION I.

The miserable estate of Jerusalem by reason of her sin. 12 She complaineth of her grief, 18 and confesseth God's judgment to be righteous.

א 1 How doth the city sit solitary, that was full of people!
How is she become as a widow! she that was great among the nations!
And princess among the provinces, how is she become tributary!

(21) That Jeremiah was the author of the Elegies or Lamentations which bear his name is evident, not only from a very ancient and almost uninterrupted tradition, but also from the argument and style of the book, which correspond exactly with those of his prophecies.

Josephus, Jerome, Junius, Archbishop Usher, and other eminent writers, are of opinion that the Lamentations of Jeremiah were the same which are mentioned in 2 Chron. xxxv. 25, as being composed by the prophet on the death of the pious King Josiah, and which are there said to have been perpetuated by "an ordinance in Israel." But, whatever may have become of those Lamentations, it is evident that these cannot possibly be the same; for their whole tenor plainly shows that they were not composed till after the subversion of the kingdom of Judah. The calamities, which Jeremiah had foretold in his prophecies, are here deplored as having actually taken place, viz. the impositions of the false prophets who had seduced the people by their lying declarations, the destruction of the holy city and temple, the overthrow of the state, and the extermination of the people. But though it be allowed that the Lamentations were primarily intended as a pathetic description of present calamities, yet it has with great probability been conjectured, that, while Jeremiah mourns the desolation of Judah and Jerusalem, he may be considered as prophetically painting the still greater miseries they were to suffer at some future time; and this seems plainly indicated by his referring to the time when the punishment of their iniquity shall be accomplished, and they shall no more be carried into captivity, (iv. 22.)*

This book, which in our Bibles is divided into five chapters, consists of five distinct elegies, viz.

Elegy I. The prophet begins with lamenting the sad reverse of fortune which his country had experienced, confessing at the same time that all her miseries were the just consequences of the national wickedness and rebellion against God. In the midst of his discourse, Jerusalem herself is personified, and introduced to continue the complaint, and humbly to solicit the divine compassion. Jahn is of opinion, that, in this elegy, Jeremiah deplores the deportation of King Jehoiachin, and ten thousand of the principal Jews to Babylon. Compare 2 Kings xxiv. 8–17, and 2 Chron. xxxvi. 9, 10.

Elegy II. Jeremiah portrays the dire effects of the divine anger in the subversion of the civil and religious constitution of the Jews, and in that extreme misery in which every class of individuals was involved. He represents the wretchedness of his country as unparalleled; and charges the false prophets with having betrayed her into ruin by their false and flattering suggestions. In this forlorn and desolate condition—the astonishment and byword of all who see her—Jerusalem is directed earnestly to implore the removal of those heavy judgments, which God, in the height of his displeasure, had inflicted upon her. Jahn thinks, that this elegy was composed on the storming of Jerusalem by the Babylonian army.

Elegy III. The prophet, by describing his own severe afflictions, and showing his trust in the inexhaustible mercies of God, encourages his people to be patient and resigned under the divine chastisements, and to trust in the never-failing mercy of Jehovah. He asserts the divine supremacy in the dispensations of good and evil, and shows the unreasonableness of murmuring under them. He recommends self-examination and repentance; and, from their past experience of former deliverances from God, he encourages them to look for pardon for their sins, and retribution to their enemies.

ELEGY IV. exhibits a striking contrast, in various affecting instances, between the present deplorable and wretched condition of his country, and her former state of prosperity; and ascribes the unhappy change chiefly to the profligacy of its priests and prophets. The national calamities are deeply and tenderly lamented, especially the captivity of their sovereign Zedekiah. This elegy concludes with predicting the judgments that were impending over the Edomites, who had insulted the Jews in their distress.

ELEGY V. is an epilogue or conclusion to the preceding chapters or elegies. In the Syriac, Arabic, and Vulgate versions, this chapter is entitled THE PRAYER OF JEREMIAH; but no such title appears in the Hebrew copies, or in the Septuagint version. It is rather, as Dr. Blayney has remarked, a memorial, representing, in the name of the whole body of Jewish exiles, the numerous calamities under which they groaned; and humbly supplicating God to commiserate their wretchedness, and to restore them to his favor and to their ancient prosperity.

The Lamentations are evidently written in metre, and contain a number of plaintive effusions composed after the manner of funeral dirges. Bishop Lowth is of opinion, that they were originally written by the prophet, as they arose in his mind, as a long course of separate stanzas, and that they were subsequently collected into one poem. Each elegy consists of twenty-two periods, according to the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet; although it is in the first four Lamentations only that the several periods begin (after the manner of an acrostic) with the different letters following each other in alphabetical order. By this contrivance, the metre is more precisely marked and ascertained, particularly in the third Lamentation, where each period contains three verses, all having the same initial letter. The First and Second Lamentations in like manner, consist of triplets, excepting only the seventh period of the first and the nineteenth of the second, each of which has a supernumerary line. The fourth Lamentation resembles the three former in metre, but the periods are only couplets; and in the fifth the periods are couplets, though of a considerably shorter measure, and are not acrostic.

Although there is no artificial or methodical arrangement of the subject in these incomparable elegies, yet they are totally free from wild incoherency or abrupt transition. Never, perhaps, was there a greater variety of beautiful, tender, and pathetic images, all expressive of the deepest distress and sorrow, more happily chosen and applied than in the Lamentations of this prophet; nor can we too much admire the full and graceful flow of that pathetic eloquence, in which the author pours forth the effusions of a patriot heart, and piously weeps over the ruin of his venerable country.*—Vide Horne's Critical Introduction, from which this note is extracted.

[8] BUT Daniel purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself [a]with the portion of the king's meat, nor with the wine which he drank; therefore he requested of the prince of the eunuchs that he might not defile himself. [9] Now [b]God had brought Daniel into favor and tender love with the prince of the eunuchs. [10] And the prince of the eunuchs said unto Daniel, "I fear my lord the king, who hath appointed your meat and your drink: for why should he see your faces *worse liking than the children which are of your †sort? then shall ye make me endanger my head to the king." [11] Then said Daniel to ‡Melzar, whom the prince of the eunuchs had set over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, [12] "Prove thy servants, I beseech thee, ten days; and let them give us *pulse †to eat, and water to drink. [13] Then let our countenances be looked upon before thee, and the countenance of the children that eat of the portion of the king's meat: and as thou seest, deal with thy servants." [14] So he consented to them in this matter, and proved them ten days. [15] And at the end of ten days their countenances appeared fairer and fatter in flesh than all the children which did eat the portion of the king's meat. [16] Thus Melzar took away the portion of their meat, and the wine that they should drink; and gave them pulse.

(22) We have now come to the prophecies of Ezekiel, which were addressed to the captives at Babylon, before and after the captivity of Zedekiah and the destruction of the temple. They must therefore have been delivered at the same time, and against the same crimes, against which Jeremiah was denouncing the judgments of God at Jerusalem. Both prophets predicted the same events—promised to the faithful the same consolations, and threatened the disobedient and idolatrous among their countrymen with the same punishments. Both prophets united in denunciations against the false prophets, and in anticipations of the ultimate restoration of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity. account of their great distance, and the inconveniences of travelling, remained still open; and must have afforded the Jews occasional opportunities of learning the fate of their captive brethren. It must have informed them of the predictions of Ezekiel in Chaldea, and of the striking similarity and connection which existed between them and those they had received from their own inspired teacher. The distance that separated these two prophets must have precluded all idea of connivance, and rendered it impossible for any communication to have taken place between them. The believing part of the Jews therefore, both at Jerusalem and Babylon, must in the course of some months have been made acquainted with the separate prophecies of these two inspired persons; and within a few years they actually witnessed the fulfilment of them, in the desolation of Judah and the captivity of their brethren. Such were the irresistible appeals that God made to the Jews to convince them that his Providence still watched over them, and directed all things for the welfare of his visible Church.

Thus in the fourth year of Zedekiah, Jeremiah (xxvii. 19, to the end) declared to the people at Jerusalem, at a time when there was no war between the king of Judæa and the king of Babylon, that Nebuchadnezzar should carry to Babylon the brazen pillars, and the residue of the vessels of the temple, which he had previously spared in the capture of the city, when Jehoiachin had been taken: and he further adds, that they should not be melted down nor destroyed, but preserved at Babylon till their captivity terminated. At the time this prediction was delivered there appeared no probability of its accomplishment; and the prophecy must have been well known to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

In this year Seraiah went to Babylon, (Jer. li. 59.) and Jeremiah commissioned him to take the prophecy he had lately written against Babylon, to read it there, and then to cast it into the Euphrates. Of the precise time of the year in which Seraiah went, we are not informed in the very brief narrative of Scripture; but as the distance was great, it is not probable they could be less than some months in their journey. If they arrived at Babylon about the end of the fourth, or the beginning of the fifth year of Zedekiah, which was the same as the fifth of Jehoiachin's captivity, they would receive in that city a confirmation and explanation of the predictions of Jeremiah, by a prophecy of Ezekiel delivered to the captives before their arrival; when it was evidently impossible that any communication could have taken place between the two prophets. Jeremiah predicted that the vessels of the temple should be taken; Ezekiel (chap. iv.) predicted the manner in which this prophecy should be accomplished, by the siege and capture of Jerusalem.

In additional confirmation of the supposition that Ezekiel could not have known of this prophecy of Jeremiah when he delivered his own prediction of the last capture of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, it must be remembered that Ezekiel was among the captives by the river Chebar, and not at Babylon; whither we may naturally suppose the embassy would have immediately proceeded.

In Jeremiah xxxvii. 17, we read that Jeremiah prophesied to Zedekiah himself that he should be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon. Prior to the date of this prediction, Ezekiel had foretold to the captives in Chaldea the same thing, (chap. xii. 13.) Yet we have no proof that the former had ever heard of the prediction of the latter.

The most undeniable and conclusive proof, however, of this singular and simultaneous coincidence between the two prophets, is to be found in their predictions against Egypt for its treachery and iniquities. Ezekiel, immediately before Zedekiah was made prisoner, uttered in Chaldea that celebrated prediction contained in chap. xxx. ver. 30, to the end; in which he assures the people that the king of Egypt should be subdued by the king of Babylon. In chap. xxxi. the same prediction is repeated, and it was delivered only one month before Jerusalem was taken. Compare with these two chapters of Ezekiel, Jer. xliii. ver. 8, to the end, and chap. xlvi. 13, to the end. On the captivity of Zedekiah, Jeremiah was taken by Nebuzar-adan, who treated him with much respect, and permitted him to return to his own home, under the government of Gedaliah. Soon after, however, Gedaliah having been murdered by Ishmael, and the chief of the remaining Jews escaping into Egypt for fear of the Chaldeans, Jeremiah was compelled to go with them, and it was on his arrival in this country that he uttered the prophecies against Egypt.

Ezekiel, whose name imports the strength of God, was the son of Buzi, of the sacerdotal race, and one of the captives carried by Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon, with Jehoiachin king of Judah: it does not appear that he had prophesied before he came into Mesopotamia. The principal scene of his predictions was some place on the river Chebar, which flows into the Euphrates, about two hundred miles, to the north of Babylon, where the prophet resided; though he was, occasionally, conveyed in vision to Jerusalem. He commenced his prophetic ministry in the thirtieth year of his age, according to general accounts; or rather, as Calmet thinks, in the thirtieth year after the covenant was renewed with God in the reign of Josiah, which answers to the fifth year of Ezekiel's and Jehoiachin's captivity, (Ezek. i. 1, and xl. 1.) the era whence he dates his predictions; and he continued to prophesy about twenty or twenty-one years. The events of his life, after his call to the prophetic office, are interwoven with the detail which he has himself given of his predictions; but the manner of its termination is no where ascertained.

In the following arrangement of Ezekiel, Archbishop Newcome's disposition of the several prophecies, and divisions of the chapters are observed. The prophet being extremely careful throughout, in dating each prophecy, the place is usually assigned by internal evidence; and there is little or no difficulty in arranging each prophetical discourse in its historical and chronological order. For the sake of clearness in apprehending the history of this period, I have inserted the events which took place in Babylon, in a separate chapter from those which occurred at the same time in Judæa.—Vide Gray's Key; Horne; Calmet; the Commentators; Introduction to Ezekiel; Archbishop Newcome.

(23) Chronologers and commentators have been much divided as to the thirtieth year, mentioned in ver. 1, of this chapter. Usher, Prideaux, Lowth, and Lightfoot, reckon the thirty years here spoken of, as well as the forty days or years (chap. iv. ver. 6) from the covenant made by Josiah in the eighteenth year of his reign; according to which computation, this thirtieth year will be 595 B. C. Others suppose it to be the thirtieth year of Ezekiel's age. The divine instructions were first revealed to him in a glorious vision, "the appearance of the likeness of the glory of the Lord," attended by his cherubim symbolically portrayed. "The word of the Lord came expressly" unto him, and he received his communication by a voice, which was followed by a forcible influence of the Spirit, and by awful directions for his conduct, (chap. i. ii. iii. to ver. 22.)

Many of these directions were figurative and communicated in vision, and were given by way of metaphorical instruction; for when Ezekiel is commanded to "eat the roll of prophecy," we understand that he is enjoined only to receive, and thoroughly to digest its contents; and when he professes to have complied with the command, we perceive that he speaks only of a transaction in vision. With respect to some other relations of this nature contained in Ezekiel's book, whether we suppose them to be descriptive of real or imaginary events, they are very reconcilable with the divine intention in the employment of the prophet. On a supposition that they were real, we may reasonably suppose a miraculous assistance to have been afforded them when necessary; and if we consider them as imaginary, they might be represented equally as emblematical forewarnings revealed to the prophet.—Gray's Key, p 396.

(24) Few subjects have occasioned so much discussion as the cherubim, which are so repeatedly spoken of in the Old Testament. The first time we read of the cherubim is in Genesis—"God placed at the east of the garden of Eden cherubim and a flaming sword." It is generally supposed that the words translated a flaming sword, signify more properly a bright flame of waving fire; that this appearance was permanent at the gate of Paradise, and that it was the same glory of the Lord, or the Shechinah which afterward appeared to Moses. Under the Levitical economy the cherubic symbols and the burning flame were united, both in the tabernacle, and in the temple. The cherubim appear to have been considered as emblems of the visible church, and the burning flame as the symbol of the Divine Presence. The time had now arrived when the visible Church was to be removed from the holy land, and established among the faithful worshippers of Jehovah, who were taken captives to Babylon. This removal is denoted in the vision by the appearance of the cherubim, of the glory of the Lord, and of the Angel Jehovah, or the form of the man, the head and protector of the visible Church, to the prophet Ezekiel. He receives his commission as prophet from the Angel Jehovah, speaking out of the midst of a burning flame. Ezekiel recognised in the appearance of a man, speaking from between the cherubim, and from the midst of the flame, the same mysterious and Divine Being who was well known to have formerly appeared to the patriarchs, to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, and Moses. He fell upon his face, as St. Paul and St. John afterwards did, when the same Almighty Being manifested himself, on the road to Damascus, and in the Island of Patmos. Ezekiel fell down before him, as all mankind will fall, when the same Angel Jehovah, of the Patriarchal and Levitical Church, the Messiah of the Christian Church, shall descend to judgment; when he shall again appear, not as a friendless, insulted, and crucified man, but in the glory of his Godhead, which he had with the Father before the world was, (John xvii. 5.)

[22] And the likeness of the firmament upon the heads of the living

(25) Bishop Warburton has some curious observations on the emblematical mode of teaching by the use of types, an instance of which we read in this chapter. Language, he observes, as appears from the nature of the thing, from the records of history, and from the remains of the most ancient languages yet remaining, was at first extremely rude, narrow, and equivocal; so that men would be perpetually at a loss, on any new conception, or uncommon accident, to explain themselves intelligibly to one another. The art of enlarging language by a scientific analogy being a late invention, this would necessarily set them upon supplying the deficiencies of speech by apt and significant signs. Accordingly, in the first ages of the world, mutual converse was upheld by a mixed discourse of words and ACTIONS. Hence came the Eastern phrase of the voice of the sign (Exod. iv. 8.); and use and custom, as in most other affairs of life, improving what had arisen out of necessity, into ornament, this practice subsisted long after the necessity was over; especially among the Eastern people, whose natural temperament inclined them to a mode of conversation, which so well exercised their vivacity, by motion; and so much gratified it, by a perpetual representation of material images. Of this we have innumerable instances in Holy Scripture, as, where the false prophet pushed with horns of iron, to denote the entire overthrow of the Syrians—where Jeremiah, by God's direction, hides the linen girdle in a hole of the rock near Euphrates—where he breaks a potter's vessel in sight of the people—puts on bonds, and yokes, and casts a book into the Euphrates—where Ezekiel, by the same appointment, delineates the siege of Jerusalem on a tile—weighs the hair of his beard in balances—carries out his household stuff—and joins together the two sticks for Judah and Israel. By these actions the prophets instructed the people in the will of God, and conversed with them in signs: but where God teaches the prophet, and, in compliance with the custom of that time, condescends to the same mode of instruction, then the significative action is generally changed into a vision, either natural, or extraordinary: as where the prophet is bid to regard the rod of the almond tree—the seething pot—the work on the potter's wheel—the basket of good and bad figs—and the prophet Ezekiel the ideal scene of the resurrection of dry bones. The significative action was, though generally, not always changed into a vision. For as sometimes, where the instruction was for the people, the significative action was, perhaps, in vision: so sometimes again, though the information was only for the prophet, God would set him upon a real expressive action, whose obvious meaning conveyed the intelligence proposed, or sought. See the whole extract.—Divine Legation, vol. iii. b. iv. p. 105, &c. 4th edit.

shalt lie upon thy side, three hundred and ninety days shalt thou eat thereof. [10] And thy meat which thou shalt eat shall be by weight, twenty shekels a day: from time to time shalt thou eat it. [11] Thou shalt drink also water by measure, the sixth part of a hin: from time to time shalt thou drink. [12] And thou shalt eat it as barley cakes, and thou shalt bake it with dung that cometh out of man, in their sight." [13] And the LORD said, "Even thus [c]shall the children of Israel eat their defiled bread among the Gentiles, whither I will drive them."

c Ho. 9. 3.

[14] Then said I, "Ah [d]Lord GOD! behold, my soul hath not been polluted: for from my youth up even till now have I not eaten of [e]that which dieth of itself, or is torn in pieces; neither came there [f]abominable flesh into my mouth." [15] Then he said unto me, "Lo! I have given thee cow's dung for man's dung, and thou shalt prepare thy bread therewith." [16] Moreover he said unto me, "Son of man! behold, I will break the [g]staff of bread in Jerusalem. And they shall eat bread by weight, and with care; and they shall drink water by measure, and with astonishment: [17] that they may want bread and water, and be astonished one with another, and [h]consume away for their iniquity."

---

(26) It has been already observed, (Note 1, in Period vii.) that there were always two parties among the Jews, the party of the idolators, and that of the worshippers of Jehovah; which two parties were in perpetual opposition to each other, and obtained the ascendency as either was protected or depressed by the sovereign of the nation. The eighth chapter of Ezekiel contains a representation, in a vision with which the prophet was favored, of the total apostacy of the heads of the Jewish nation from the religion of their forefathers. They had gradually become more and more corrupted, after the establishment of idolatry by Solomon; and the period of their long-threatened punishment was rapidly approaching. By the time the sins of this wretched people were ripe for the punishment of their approaching captivity, they had polluted themselves with all kinds of Egyptian abominations. In this vision of Ezekiel, their three chief idolatries are graphically described. The image of Jealousy is supposed to have been either an image of Baal, which had been erected by Manasseh, and though destroyed by his successor, Josiah, had been again restored, or an image of Adonis. The first of their principal idolatries, Bishop Warburton supposes to have been the Egyptian superstitions. The tenth verse, "I went in, and saw, and behold every form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the idols of Israel portrayed upon the wall round about" He interprets, as descriptive of that peculiar imagery, some of which is still seen in the Isiac or Bembine table. Mr. Faber supposes them to have been the monstrous forms of those idols, which the Israelites had borrowed from the astronomical mythology of the surrounding nations. Possibly they were images of the same nature as those which our enterprising countrymen have recently discovered in the Egyptian temples. Bishop Warburton further conjectures, that the passage (in chap. viii ver. 6–13.) contains a very lively and circumstantial account of the celebrated mysteries of Isis and Osiris. The most solemn celebration of these mysteries was attended by none but princes, rulers, and the wisest of the people. The "seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel," (ver. 11.) were the Sanhedrin; the appointed and consecrated preservers of the Law, and the teachers of the people. Even these had all apostatized; and were devoting themselves to those corrupt superstitions, in which only the most distinguished adherents to this prevailing idolatry were initiated, and to which it was considered an honor to be admitted.

The second principal idolatry seen by Ezekiel, as practised among the Jews, was the Phœnician. He looks toward the gate of the Lord's house, which was towards the north (ver. 14.); that is, in his vision he looks towards Phœnicia, and sees, even at the gate of the temple, "women weeping for Tammuz," or Adonis This idolatry, according to the Phœnician custom, was practised in the open day: and the apostacy among the Jews was represented as so general, that the women indulged in the superstition of Phœnicia, even in the presence of the temple of Jehovah.

The third principal idolatry by which the people had now debased themselves, was the Persian, (ver. 16.) "Behold, at the door of the temple of the Lord, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, with their backs towards the temple of the Lord, and their faces toward the east; and they worshipped the sun toward the east." In this representation, the very interior of the temple of Jehovah is polluted. The space between the temple and the altar, where the Jewish priests invoked the mercy of Jehovah for the people, was profaned, (Joel ii. 17.) The five and twenty men, mentioned ver. 16, were probably the twelve priests, and the twelve Levites of the weekly service, with the high priest at their head. It was the custom of the Jews to turn their faces towards the temple, when they worshipped, (Dan. vi. 10.) But, in this vision, Ezekiel sees that even the priests turn their backs upon the temple of Jehovah; thereby contemptuously expressing their disregard of the God of their fathers, and their preference for the ancient idolatries of Chaldea. He sees the legislature, the women, and the priesthood, alike corrupt and given sat before me, that the hand of the Lord God fell there upon me. [2] Then I beheld, and, lo, a likeness as the appearance of fire! from the appearance of his loins even downward, fire; and from his loins even upward, as the appearance of brightness, as the color of amber. [3] And [a]he put forth the form of a hand, and took me by a lock of my head; and the Spirit lifted me up between the earth and the heaven, and brought me in the visions of God to Jerusalem, to the door of the inner gate that looketh toward the north; where was the seat of the image of Jealousy, which [b]provoketh to jealousy. [4] And, behold, the glory of the God of Israel was there, according to the vision that I saw in the plain.

[5] Then said he unto me, "Son of man! lift up thine eyes now the way toward the north." So I lifted up mine eyes the way toward the north, and behold northward at the gate of the altar this image of Jealousy in the entry. [6] He said furthermore unto me, "Son of man! seest thou what they do? even the great abominations that the house of Israel committeth here, that I should go far off from my sanctuary? but turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations."

[7] And he brought me to the door of the court; and when I looked, behold a hole in the wall. [8] Then said he unto me, "Son of man! dig now in the wall;" and when I had digged in the wall, behold a door. [9] And he said unto me, "Go in, and behold the wicked abominations that they do here." [10] So I went in and saw; and behold every form of creeping things, and abominable beasts, and all the idols of the house of Israel, portrayed upon the wall round about. [11] And there stood before them seventy men of the ancients of the house of Israel, and in the midst of them stood Jaazaniah the son of Shaphan, with every man his censer in his hand; and a thick cloud of incense went up. [12] Then said he unto me, "Son of man! hast thou seen what the ancients of the house of Israel do in the dark, every man in the chambers of his imagery? for they say, 'The Lord seeth us not; the Lord hath forsaken the earth.'"

[13] He said also unto me, "Turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations that they do." [14] Then he brought me to the door of the gate of the Lord's house which was toward the north; and, behold, there sat women weeping for Tammuz.

[15] Then said he unto me, "Hast thou seen this, O son of man? turn thee yet again, and thou shalt see greater abominations than these." [16] And he brought me into the inner court of the Lord's house, and, behold, at the door of the temple of the Lord, between the porch and the altar, were about five and twenty men, with their backs toward the temple of the Lord, and their faces toward the east; and they worshipped [c]the sun toward the east.

[17] Then he said unto me, "Hast thou seen this, O son of man? *Is it a light thing to the house of Judah that they commit the abominations which they commit here? for they have [d]filled the land with violence, and have returned to provoke me to anger; and, lo! they put the [a]branch to their nose. [18] Therefore will I also deal in fury: mine eye shall not spare, neither will I have pity; and though they [e]cry in mine ears with a loud voice, yet will I not hear them."

[1] He cried also in mine ears with a loud voice, saying, Ezekiel ix.(27) "Cause them that have charge over the city to draw near, the temple. The vision of the coals of fire to be scattered over Jerusalem, and that of the Shechinah departing from the temple, prefigure the destruction of that city, and Jehovah forsaking the sanctuary. Ezekiel (ch. x. ver. 5.) describing the glory of the Lord leaving the temple of Jerusalem; "The sound of the cherubim's wings was heard even to the outer court, as the voice of the Almighty God when he speaketh." Josephus, in his account of the prodigies which preceded the second capture of the temple, relates, "On the feast of Pentecost, the priests having come by night into the inner temple to perform their required services, according to their custom, affirmed they first heard a motion, and a noise, and after that a voice as of a great multitude, which said, 'Let us depart hence.'" There appears a striking similarity of expressions and circumstances in these two passages: and, on comparing the sublime and terrible account of the final destruction of the temple by Titus, given by the Jewish historian, with the brief narrative of the first siege and capture of the city related by Jeremiah, and in the books of Chronicles and Kings, the parallel will be found so exact in a great number of instances, that the one evidently appears a type of the other. In the first siege, Moses predicts a most fearful famine. Levit. xxvi. 29. and in Deut. xxviii. 53. "Thou shalt eat the fruit of thine own body, the flesh of thy sons, and of thy daughters, which the Lord thy God hath given thee, in the siege and in the straitness wherewith thine enemies shall distress thee." Jeremiah (ch. xix. ver. 9.) foretells the same calamity; and we find, in Lam. iv. 10. that "the hands of the pitiful women have sodden their own children;" and in ver. 4, "They that were brought up in scarlet embrace dunghills." In both sieges the courts of the temple were defiled with the blood of the slain, (Ezek. ix. 7.) Josephus, in relating the dreadful famine that prevailed at the final destruction of the temple, says, "The city was well nigh depopulated Their hunger was so intolerable, that they gathered and eat such things as the most filthy animals would not touch; nor did they abstain from their girdles, shoes, nor the very leather that belonged to their shields. A handful of old hay was sold for four atticks. A woman of the name of Mary, daughter of Eleazer, opulent, and nobly descended, who had fled to Jerusalem for protection, after trying every means to provoke the faction to put her to death, formed the most horrid and unnatural resolution of destroying her own infant, then at the breast. She slew her child, dressed it, and having eaten one part herself, presented the remainder of this inhuman repast to those robbers, who, for their own subsistence, were in the constant practice of depriving her of her daily support." Compare Josephus, book vii. with Lamentations, particularly chapters ii. and iv.

[i]Then they began at the ancient men which were before the house. [7] And he said unto them, "Defile the house, and fill the courts with the slain: go ye forth." And they went forth, and slew in the city.

The eleventh chapter of Ezekiel contains a prediction of the destruction of those wicked princes and people who remained in Jerusalem, deriding the types and denunciations of the prophets, and whose counsel "filled the streets thereof with the slain." The return of the Jews from their captivity is foretold, ver. 14 to 22.

[22] And the likeness of their faces was the same faces which I saw by the river of Chebar, their appearances and themselves: they went every one straight forward.

EZEKIEL xi. 1–21.

[1] Moreover the Spirit lifted me up, and brought me unto the east gate of the LORD's house, which looketh eastward: and behold at the door of the gate five and twenty men; among whom I saw Jaazaniah the son of Azur, and Pelatiah the son of Benaiah, princes of the people. [2] Then said he unto me, "Son of man! these are the men that devise mischief, and give wicked counsel in this city; [3] which say, '†It is not [p]near; let us build houses: [a]this city is the caldron, and we be the flesh.' [4] Therefore prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man!" [5] And the Spirit of the Lord fell upon me, and said unto me,—

Speak, thus saith the Lord;
Thus have ye said, O house of Israel!
For I know the things that come into your mind, every one of them.
[6] Ye have multiplied your slain in this city,
And ye have filled the streets thereof with the slain.
[7] Therefore thus saith the Lord God;
Your slain whom ye have laid in the midst of it,
They are the flesh, and this city is the caldron;
But I will bring you forth out of the midst of it.
[8] Ye have feared the sword;
And I will bring a sword upon you, saith the Lord God.
[9] And I will bring you out of the midst thereof,
And deliver you into the hands of strangers,
And will execute judgments among you.
[10] Ye [q]shall fall by the sword;
I will judge you in [r]the border of Israel;
And ye shall know that I am the Lord.
[11] This city shall not be your caldron,
Neither shall ye be the flesh in the midst thereof;
But I will judge you in the border of Israel.
[12] And ye shall know that I am the Lord;
‡For ye have not walked in my statutes,
Neither executed my judgments,
But [s]have done after the manners of the heathen that are round about you.

[13] And it came to pass, when I prophesied, that [t]Pelatiah the son of Benaiah died. Then fell I down upon my face, and cried with a loud voice, and said, "Ah Lord God! wilt thou make a full end of the remnant of Israel?" [14] Again the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, [15] Son of man, thy brethren, even thy brethren, the men of thy kindred, and all the house of Israel wholly, are they unto whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said, "Get you far from the Lord: unto us is this land given in possession." [16] Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God;—

Although I have cast them far off among the heathen,
And although I have scattered them among the countries,
Yet [u]will I be to them as a little sanctuary
In the countries where they shall come.
[17] Therefore say, Thus saith the Lord God;
I [v]will even gather you from the people,
And assemble you out of the countries where ye have been scattered,
And I will give you the land of Israel.
[18] And they shall come thither,
And they shall take away all the detestable things thereof
And all the abominations thereof from thence.
[19] And I will give them one heart,
And I will put a new spirit within you;
And I will take the stony heart out of their flesh,
And will give them a heart of flesh;

[22] THEN did the cherubim lift up their wings, and the wheels beside them; and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above. [23] And (28)the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city, and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city.

(28) In this verse we read of the total departure of the glory of the Lord from the city of Jerusalem. In chap. x. ver. 4, we find, that "the glory of the Lord went up from the cherub, and stood over the threshold of the house; and the house was filled with the cloud, and the court was full of the brightness of the Lord's glory." In ver. 18 of the same chapter, we read, "then the glory of the Lord departed from off the threshold of the house, and stood over the cherubim; and the cherubim lifted up their wings, and mounted up from the earth in my sight;"—"and every one stood at the door of the east gate of the Lord's house." In ver. 23 of chap. xi. we are informed, "the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city, and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city." These various expressions denote, that God removed by degrees only from Israel: and the prophecies contained in this section are those delivered by Ezekiel, after the Second Person of the Trinity had manifested to this prophet the removal of the visible Church to Chaldea, in consequence of the total apostacy of the priests, the princes, the king, and the nation, who had been left in Jerusalem. After Ezekiel is brought back again by the Spirit of God, into Chaldea, he predicts to them of the captivity, the fate of Zedekiah and the Jews. It is probable that Ezekiel was enabled to see the wretched state of the Jews at Jerusalem, and to predict their ruin, that he might counteract more forcibly the impression produced by the false prophets, whom he soon after reproves; and who endeavoured to deceive the people into an expectation of a speedy return to their own country. See ver. 25, compared with chap. xiii.

In the 12th chapter, ver. 1–8, under the type of Ezekiel's removing himself and his household goods, is foretold the captivity of Zedekiah, and the Jews at Jerusalem. Ver. 17–20, under the figure of eating and drinking, "with trembling and with carefulness," predicts the desolation and misery that would exist during the siege; and, from ver. 21 to the end, declares the speedy judgment that would fall upon the Jews, for their abuse of the divine forbearance.

Chapter xiii. contains a severe reproof and denunciation against the false prophets; and from ver. 17 to the end, against false prophetesses.

Chapter xiv. is a denunciation of the divine judgments against the idolatrous elders and their false prophets, (1–11.) and against the Jews for their obstinate impenitency, (12–21.) a remnant of whom, it is promised, shall be saved, (22, 23.)

Chapter xv. Under the parable of an unfruitful and unprofitable vine is set forth the utter rejection of Jerusalem.

Chapter xvi. from 1–15, describes the mercy of God towards the Church and nation of the Jews (here represented by Jerusalem) under the emblem of a person that should take an exposed infant, bring her up with great tenderness, and afterwards marry her. The Jews are then upbraided (under the figure of a woman who proves false to a tender and indulgent husband) with their monstrous ingratitude in departing from God's worship, and polluting themselves with heathen idolatries, (15–34.) But, notwithstanding all these provocations, God promises in the end to show them mercy under his new and everlasting covenant, (44–63.) The figurative mode of describing adultery, which is of frequent occurrence in the prophets, is pursued with great force, and at considerable length, both in this and the 23d chapter.

In the 17th chapter, under the allegory of two eagles and a vine, the prophet figuratively expresses the carrying away of Jehoiakim into captivity by the king of Babylon, (the first eagle,) who made Zedekiah king in his stead. Zedekiah afterwards revolting from the Babylonian monarch, whose vassal he was, and making an alliance with the king of Egypt, (the other eagle,) God threatens him with captivity to the king from whom he had re-

[24] Afterwards the Spirit took me up, and brought me in a vision by the Spirit of God into Chaldea, to them of the captivity. So the vision that I had seen went up from me. [25] Then I spake unto them of the captivity all the things that the LORD had showed me.

[1] The word of the LORD also came unto me, saying,— EZEKIEL xii.

[7] And I did so as I was commanded. I brought forth my stuff by day, as stuff for captivity, and in the even I *digged through the wall with my hand; I brought it forth in the twilight, and I bare it upon my shoulder in their sight.

b Mal. 1. 1.

[8] And in the morning came the word of the LORD unto me, saying, [9] Son of man, hath not the house of Israel, the rebellious house, said unto thee, What doest thou? In the twilight, and shall go forth:
They shall dig through the wall to carry out thereby:
He shall cover his face, that he see not the ground with his eyes.
[13] My net also will I spread upon him, and he shall be taken in my snare:
And [d]I will bring him to Babylon to the land of the Chaldeans;
Yet shall he not see it, though he shall die there.(29)
[14] And [e]I will scatter toward every wind
All that are about him to help him, and all his bands;
And I will draw out the sword after them.
[15] And they shall know that I am the LORD,
When I shall scatter them among the nations,
And disperse them in the countries.

volted, (1–21.) The preaching of the Gospel, and the universal kingdom of the Messiah, are foretold. (22–24).

The Jews, in Ezekiel's time, having complained (xviii. 1, 2) that God dealt hardly with them in punishing them for the sins of their forefathers, this chapter of Ezekiel vindicates the divine equity, and shows that God punishes no one eternally for the sins of any other person, (4–32.)

Under the parable of a lion's whelps are foretold the cruelty and captivity of Jehoahaz, who was deposed by the king of Egypt (2 Kings xxiii. 33. and 2 Chron. xxxvi. 4.) and of Jehoiakim, who was deposed by the king of Babylon, (xix. 1–9.) And under the parable of a wasted vine, are set forth the desolation and captivity of the whole Jewish people, (10–14.)—Horne's Crit. Introd.

(29) We are informed by Josephus, that this prophecy, that Zedekiah should be brought to Babylon, "yet he shall not see it, though he die there," (which was delivered about six years before the event, and was probably told to the king by some messenger from Babylon.) was considered by that monarch as inconsistent with subsequent prophecies of Jeremiah (Jer. xxxii. 4. and xxxiv. 3.) "Thine eyes shall behold the king of Babylon, and he shall speak with thee mouth to mouth, and thou shalt go to Babylon." Zedekiah, on discovering this apparent inconsistency, refused to believe either. Both prophecies, however, were fulfilled. Zedekiah did see the king of Babylon, not indeed at Babylon, but at Riblah. His eyes were there put out, and he was carried to Babylon, yet he did not behold the city —2 Kings xxv. 4–8.; Jer lii. 8–11.; Josephus, Ant. Jud. lib. x. c. 8. § 2.

[16] But I will leave ‡a few men of them
From the sword, from the famine, and from the pestilence;
That they may declare all their abominations
Among the heathen whither they come;
And they shall know that I am the LORD.
[17] Moreover the word of the LORD came to me, saying,—
[18] Son of man! eat thy bread with quaking,
And drink thy water with trembling and with carefulness;
[19] And say unto the people of the land, thus saith the Lord GOD
Of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and of the land of Israel;
They shall eat their bread with carefulness,
And drink their water with astonishment,

* Heb. the fulness thereof.

That her land may be desolate from *all that is therein,
Because of the violence of all them that dwell therein.
[20] And the cities that are inhabited shall be laid waste,
And the land shall be desolate;
And ye shall know that I am the LORD.
[21] And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, [22] Son of man! what is that proverb that ye have in the land of Israel, saying, f Am. 6. 3. 2 Pe. 3. 4.

"The [f]days are prolonged, and every vision faileth?"
[23] Tell them therefore, thus saith the Lord GOD;—
I will make this proverb to cease,
And they shall no more use it as a proverb in Israel;

g Joel 2. 1. Zep. 1. 14.

But say unto them, [g]The days are at hand,
And the effect of every vision.

h La. 2. 14.

[24] For there shall be no more any [h]vain vision
Nor flattering divination within the house of Israel.
[25] For I am the LORD: I will speak,

i Is. 55. 11. Da. 9. 12. Lu. 21. 33.

And [i]the word that I shall speak shall come to pass;
It shall be no more prolonged:
For in your days, O rebellious house!
Will I say the word,
And will perform it, saith the Lord GOD.
[26] Again the word of the LORD came to me, saying,— [27] Son of man! behold, they of the house of Israel say, j 2 Pe. 3. 4.

"The vision that he seeth is [j]for many days to come,
And he prophesieth of the times that are far off."
[28] Therefore say unto them, thus saith the Lord GOD;
There shall none of my words be prolonged any more,
But the word which I have spoken shall be done, saith the Lord
GOD.
[1] And the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, EZEKIEL xiii.
[2] Son of man! prophesy against the prophets of Israel

† Heb. them that are prophets out of their own hearts.

that prophesy, and say thou unto †them that prophesy out of their own hearts,—
Hear ye the word of the LORD;
[3] Thus saith the Lord GOD;
Woe unto the foolish prophets,

‡ Heb. walk after.

* Or, and things which they have not seen.

† Or, breaches.

‡ Heb. hedged the hedge.

That ‡follow their own spirit, *and have seen nothing!
[4] O Israel, thy prophets are like the foxes in the deserts.
[5] Ye have not gone up into the †gaps,
Neither ‡made up the hedge for the house of Israel
To stand in the battle in the day of the LORD.
[6] They have seen vanity and lying divination, saying,
"The LORD saith;" and the LORD hath not sent them:
And they have made others to hope
That they would confirm the word.

[7] Have ye not seen a vain vision,
And have ye not spoken a lying divination,
Whereas ye say, "The LORD saith it;"
Albeit I have not spoken?
[8] Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD;
Because ye have spoken vanity, and seen lies,
Therefore, behold, I am against you, saith the Lord GOD.
[9] And my hand shall be upon the prophets
That see vanity, and that divine lies:
They shall not be in the *assembly of my people,
Neither [k]shall they be written in the writing of the house of Israel,
Neither shall they enter into the land of Israel;
And ye shall know that I am the Lord GOD.
[10] Because, even because they have seduced my people, saying, "Peace," and there was no peace;
And one built up †a wall,
And, lo, others daubed it with untempered mortar!
[11] Say unto them which daub it with untempered mortar, that it shall fall:
There shall be an overflowing shower;
And ye, O great hailstones, shall fall;
And a stormy wind shall rend it.
[12] Lo! when the wall is fallen, shall it not be said unto you,
Where is the daubing wherewith ye have daubed it?
[13] Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD;
I will even rend it with a stormy wind in my fury;
And there shall be an overflowing shower in mine anger,
And great hailstones in my fury to consume it.
[14] So will I break down the wall
That ye have daubed with untempered mortar,
And bring it down to the ground,
So that the foundation thereof shall be discovered,
And it shall fall, and ye shall be consumed in the midst thereof:
And ye shall know that I am the LORD.
[15] Thus will I accomplish my wrath upon the wall,
And upon them that have daubed it with untempered mortar,
And will say unto you, The wall is no more,
Neither they that daubed it;
[16] To wit, the prophets of Israel which prophesy concerning Jerusalem,
And which see visions of peace for her,
And there is no peace, saith the Lord GOD.
[17] Likewise, thou son of man,
Set thy face against the daughters of thy people,
Which prophesy out of their own heart;
And prophesy thou against them,
[18] And say, thus saith the Lord GOD;
Woe to the women that sew pillows to all ‡armholes,
And make kerchiefs upon the head of every stature to [l]hunt souls!
Will ye hunt the souls of my people,
And will ye save the souls alive that come unto you?
[19] And will ye pollute me among my people
For [m]handfuls of barley and for pieces of bread,
To slay the souls that should not die,
And to save the souls alive that should not live,
By your lying to my people that hear your lies?
[20] Wherefore thus saith the Lord GOD;
Behold, I am against your pillows,
Wherewith ye there hunt the souls *to make them fly,

* Or, secret, or, council.
k Ezra 2. 59, 62. Neh. 7. 5. Ps. 69. 28.
† Or, a slight wall.
‡ Or, elbows.

And I will tear them from your arms,
And will let the souls go,
Even the souls that ye hunt to make them fly.
[21] Your kerchiefs also will I tear,
And deliver my people out of your hand,
And they shall be no more in your hand to be hunted;
And ye shall know that I am the Lord.
[22] Because with lies ye have made the heart of the righteous sad,
Whom I have not made sad;
And strengthened the hands of the wicked,
That he should not return from his wicked way,
†By promising him life.
[23] Therefore ye shall see no more vanity, nor divine divinations:
For I will deliver my people out of your hand;
And ye shall know that I am the Lord.

Ezekiel xiv.

[1] Then came certain of the elders of Israel unto me, and sat before me. [2] And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,—

[n] 2 Ki. 3. 13.

[3] Son of man! these men have set up their idols in their heart, and put the stumbling-block of their iniquity before their face: [n]should I be inquired of at all by them? [4] Therefore speak unto them, and say unto them, thus saith the Lord God; Every man of the house of Israel that setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to the prophet; I the Lord will answer him that cometh according to the multitude of his idols; [5] that I may take the house of Israel in their own heart, because they are all estranged from me through their idols.

‡ Or, others.

[6] Therefore say unto the house of Israel, thus saith the Lord God; Repent, and turn ‡yourselves from your idols; and turn away your faces from all your abominations. [7] For every one of the house of Israel, or of the stranger that sojourneth in Israel, which separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumbling-block of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to inquire of him concerning me; I the Lord will answer him by myself. [8] And [o]I will set my face against that man, and will make him [p]a sign and a proverb, and I will cut him off from the midst of my people; and ye shall know that I am the Lord. [9] And if the prophet be deceived when he hath spoken a thing, I the Lord [q]have deceived that prophet, and I will stretch out my hand upon him, and will destroy him from the midst of my people Israel. [10] And they shall bear the punishment of their iniquity, (the punishment of the prophet shall be even as the punishment of him that seeketh unto him;) [11] that the house of Israel may [r]go no more astray from me, neither be polluted any more with all their transgressions; but that they may be my people, and I may be their God, saith the Lord God.

[21] For thus saith the Lord God; ‡How much more when I send my four sore judgments upon Jerusalem, (the sword, and the famine, and the noisome beast, and the pestilence,) to cut off from it man and beast!

y Je. 22. 8, 9.

[22] Yet, behold, therein shall be left a remnant that shall be brought forth, both sons and daughters: behold, they shall come forth unto you, and ye shall see their way and their doings: and ye shall be comforted concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, even concerning all that I have brought upon it. [23] And they shall comfort you, when ye see their ways and their doings; and ye shall know that I have not done [y] without cause all that I have done in it, saith the Lord God.

Ezekiel xv.

[1] And the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,—

Thy *birth and thy nativity is of the land of Canaan;
Thy father was an Amorite, and thy mother a Hittite.
[4] And as for thy nativity,
In the day thou wast born thy navel was not cut,
Neither wast thou washed in water ‡to supple thee;
Thou wast not salted at all, nor swaddled at all.

6 And when I passed by thee, and saw thee ‡polluted in thine own blood,
I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live!
Yea, I said unto thee when thou wast in thy blood, Live!
7 I have *caused thee to multiply as the bud of the field,
And thou hast increased and waxen great,
And thou art come to †excellent ornaments:
Thy breasts are fashioned, and thy hair is grown—
Whereas thou wast naked and bare.
8 Now when I passed by thee, and looked upon thee,
Behold, thy time was the time of love;
And [c]I spread my skirt over thee, and covered thy nakedness:
Yea, I sware unto thee, and entered into a covenant with thee,
Saith the Lord God, and [d]thou becamest mine.
9 Then washed I thee with water;
Yea, I thoroughly washed away thy ‡blood from thee,
And I anointed thee with oil.
10 I clothed thee also with broidered work,
And shod thee with badger's skin,
And I girded thee about with fine linen,
And I covered thee with silk.
11 I decked thee also with ornaments,
And [e]I put bracelets upon thy hands,
And [f]a chain on thy neck.
12 And I put a jewel on thy *forehead,
And earrings in thine ears,
And a beautiful crown upon thy head.
13 Thus wast thou decked with gold and silver;
And thy raiment was of fine linen, and silk, and broidered work;
Thou [g]didst eat fine flour, and honey, and oil;
And thou wast exceeding beautiful,
And thou didst prosper into a kingdom.
14 And thy renown went forth among the heathen for thy beauty;
For it was perfect through my comeliness,
Which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord God.
15 But [h]thou didst trust in thine own beauty,
And [i]playedst the harlot because of thy renown,
And pouredst out thy fornications on every one that passed by: his it was.
16 And [j]of thy garments thou didst take,
And deckedst thy high places with divers colors,
And playedst the harlot thereupon:
The like things shall not come, neither shall it be so.
17 Thou hast also taken thy fair jewels
Of my gold and of my silver, which I had given thee,
And madest to thyself images †of men,
And didst commit whoredom with them.
18 And tookest thy broidered garments, and coveredst them;
And thou hast set mine oil and mine incense before them.
19 My meat also which I gave thee,
(Fine flour, and oil, and honey, wherewith I fed thee,)
Thou hast even set it before them for ‡a sweet savour:
And thus it was, saith the Lord God.
20 Moreover [k]thou hast taken thy sons and thy daughters,
Whom thou hast born unto me,
And these hast thou sacrificed unto them *to be devoured.
Is this of thy whoredoms a small matter,
21 That thou hast slain my children, and delivered them
To cause them to pass through the fire for them?

Thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth,
When thou was naked and bare, and wast polluted in thy blood.
[23] And it came to pass after all thy wickedness,
(Woe, woe unto thee! saith the Lord GOD;)
[24] That thou hast also built unto thee †an eminent place,
And hast made thee a high place in every street.
[25] Thou hast built thy high place at every head of the way,
And hast made thy beauty to be abhorred,
And hast opened thy feet to every one that passed by,
And multiplied thy whoredoms.
[26] Thou hast also committed fornication
With the Egyptians thy neighbours, great of flesh;
And hast increased thy whoredoms, to provoke me to anger.
[27] Behold, therefore I have stretched out my hand over thee,
And have diminished thine ordinary food,
And delivered thee unto the will of them that hate thee,
The ‡daughters of the Philistines, which are ashamed of thy lewd way.
[28] Thou [l]hast played the whore also with the Assyrians,
Because thou wast unsatiable;
Yea, thou hast played the harlot with them,
And yet couldest not be satisfied.
[29] Thou hast moreover multiplied thy fornication
In the land of Canaan unto Chaldea;
And yet thou wast not satisfied herewith.
[30] How weak is thy heart, saith the Lord GOD,
Seeing thou doest all these things,
The work of an imperious whorish woman;
[31] *In that thou buildest thine eminent place in the head of every way,
And makest thy high place in every street;
And hast not been as a harlot, in that thou scornest hire;
[32] But as a wife that committeth adultery,
Which taketh strangers instead of her husband!
[33] They give gifts to all whores;
But thou givest thy gifts to all thy lovers,
And †hirest them, that they may come unto thee on every side
For thy whoredom.
[34] And the contrary is in thee from other women in thy whoredoms,
Whereas none followeth thee to commit whoredoms:
And in that thou givest a reward, and no reward is given unto thee,
Therefore thou art contrary.
[35] Wherefore, O harlot, hear the word of the LORD!
[36] Thus saith the Lord GOD;
Because thy filthiness was poured out,
And thy nakedness discovered through thy whoredoms with thy lovers,
And with all the idols of thy abominations,
And by the blood of thy children, which thou didst give unto them;
[37] Behold, therefore I will gather all thy lovers,
With whom thou hast taken pleasure,
And all them that thou hast loved,
With all them that thou hast hated;
I will even gather them round about against thee,
And will discover thy nakedness unto them,
That they may see all thy nakedness.
[38] And I will judge thee,
‡As women that break wedlock and [m]shed blood are judged;
And I will give thee blood in fury and jealousy.

39 And I will also give thee into their hand,
And they shall throw down thine eminent place,
And shall break down thy high places:
They shall strip thee also of thy clothes, and shall take *thy fair jewels,
And leave thee naked and bare.
40 They shall also bring up a company against thee,
And [n]they shall stone thee with stones,
And thrust thee through with their swords.
41 And they shall [o]burn thy houses with fire,
And execute judgments upon thee in the sight of many women;
And I will cause thee to cease from playing the harlot,
And thou also shalt give no hire any more.
42 So will I make my fury toward thee to rest,
And my jealousy shall depart from thee,
And I will be quiet, and will be no more angry.
43 Because thou hast not remembered the days of thy youth,
But hast fretted me in all these things;
Behold, therefore I also will recompense thy way upon thy head,
Saith the Lord God,
And thou shalt not commit this lewdness above all thine abominations.
44 Behold, every one that useth proverbs shall use this proverb against thee, saying,
"As is the mother, so is her daughter."
45 Thou art thy mother's daughter,
That loatheth her husband and her children;
And thou art the sister of thy sisters,
Which loathed their husbands and their children:
Your mother was a Hittite, and your father an Amorite.
46 And thine elder sister is Samaria,
She and her daughters that dwell at thy left hand,
And †thy younger sister, that dwelleth at thy right hand,
Is Sodom and her daughters.
47 Yet hast thou not walked after their ways,
Nor done after their abominations;
But, ‡as if that were a very little thing,
Thou [p]wast corrupted more than they in all thy ways.
48 As I live, saith the Lord God,
Sodom [q]thy sister hath not done, she nor her daughters,
As thou hast done, thou and thy daughters.
49 Behold, this was the iniquity of thy sister Sodom,
Pride, [r]fulness of bread, and abundance of idleness was in her
And in her daughters,
Neither did she strengthen the hand of the poor and needy.
50 And they were haughty, and [s]committed abomination before me;
Therefore [t]I took them away as I saw good.
51 Neither hath Samaria committed half of thy sins;
But thou hast multiplied thine abominations more than they,
And [u]hast justified thy sisters in all thine abominations which thou hast done.
52 Thou also, which hast judged thy sisters, bear thine own shame for thy sins
That thou hast committed more abominable than they:
They are more righteous than thou:
Yea, be thou confounded also, and bear thy shame,
In that thou hast justified thy sisters.

He placed it by great waters, and set it [g]as a willow tree.
[6] And it grew, and became a spreading vine of low stature,
Whose branches turned toward him, and the roots thereof were under him:
So it became a vine,
And brought forth branches, and shot forth sprigs.
[7] There was also another great eagle with great wings and many feathers;
And, behold, this vine did bend her roots toward him,
And shot forth her branches toward him,
That he might water it by the furrows of her plantation.

† Heb. field.

[8] It was planted in a good †soil by great waters, h 2 Ki. 25. 7.

Shall [h]he not pull up the roots thereof,
And cut off the fruit thereof, that it wither?
It shall wither in all the leaves of her spring,
Even without great power or many people to pluck it up by the roots thereof.
10 Yea, behold, being planted, shall it prosper?
i Ho. 13. 15.
Shall [i]it not utterly wither, when the east wind toucheth it?
It shall wither in the furrows where it grew.
11 Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,—
12 Say now to the rebellious house,
Know ye not what these things mean?
j 2 Ki. 24. 11–17.
Tell them, Behold! [j]the king of Babylon is come to Jerusalem,
And hath taken the king thereof, and the princes thereof,

Or shall he break the covenant, and be delivered?

[1] Moreover take thou up a lamentation for the princes of Israel, [2] and say,— Ezekiel xix.

What is thy mother? a lioness:
She lay down among lions,
She nourished her whelps among young lions.
[3] And she brought up one of her whelps:
It became a young lion,
And it learned to catch the prey; it devoured men.
[4] The nations also heard of him;
He was taken in their pit,
And they brought him with chains unto the land of [p]Egypt.
[5] Now when she saw that she had waited,
And her hope was lost,
Then she [q]took another of her whelps,
And made him a young lion.
[6] And [r]he went up and down among the lions,
He became a young lion,
And learned to catch the prey, and devoured men.
[7] And he knew their ‡desolate palaces,
And he laid waste their cities;
And the land was desolate, and the fulness thereof,
By the noise of his roaring.
[8] Then [s]the nations set against him on every side from the provinces,
And spread their net over him:
He was taken in their pit.
[9] And [t]they put him in ward in *chains,
And brought him to the king of Babylon:
They brought him into holds,
That his voice should no more be heard upon the mountains of Israel.
[10] Thy mother is like a vine †in thy blood, planted by the waters:
She was [u]fruitful and full of branches by reason of many waters.
[11] And she had strong rods for the sceptres of them that bare rule,
And her stature was exalted among the thick branches,
And she appeared in her height with the multitude of her branches.
[12] But she was plucked up in fury,
She was cast down to the ground,
And the east wind dried up her fruit:
Her strong rods were broken and withered;
The fire consumed them.
[13] And now she is planted in the wilderness,
In a dry and thirsty ground.
[14] And [v]fire is gone out of a rod of her branches,
Which hath devoured her fruit,
So that she hath no strong rod to be a sceptre to rule.
This is a lamentation, and shall be for a lamentation.

(30) The place and date of this part of Ezekiel's prophecies are assigned in chap. xx. ver. 1. A deputation of the elders come to the prophet, in the seventh year of his captivity, to request him to ask counsel of God. Ezekiel, by divine command, reminds them of God's mercies, and their continued idolatry and rebellions against him, from their departure out of Egypt, to that very day, (chap. xx. ver. 1–40.) The expression, (ver. 25,) "I gave them statutes which were not good, and judgments whereby they should not live," is obscure, and has been variously interpreted. The generality of commentators have supposed that it referred to the idolatrous statutes and judgments, and the corrupt principles and practices of the heathen nations, which were so prevalent among the Jews. Bishop Warburton is of opinion that by "the statutes which were not good," was meant the ritual law, which, though burdensome and grievous, was the only means of preserving the Israelites an independent people, and of preparing them for a more perfect and lasting covenant. Towards the end of the chapter, (ver. 40–45.) promises of mercy are held out, and their return from captivity is foretold. The destruction of Jerusalem (ver. 45, to the end,) is signified under the emblem of a forest consumed by fire. It is called the forest of the south, because it lay to the south of Chaldea; where the prophet then uttered his predictions.

In chap. xxi. ver. 1–18, under the emblem of a sharp sword, is predicted the destruction of the Jews and (ver. 18–25) of Jerusalem. The destruction is foretold in a forcible and splendid manner. God foreshows to his prophet, that the king of Babylon, coming with his army into Syria, and finding that the Ammonites had entered into a confederacy with Egypt, as well as Zedekiah, was in doubt against which of the two people he should first wage war; he decided therefore by adopting the usual custom of divining by arrows. This ceremony consisted in writing on several arrows the names of the cities they intended to assault, and then putting them all together promiscuously in a quiver; they were drawn out, as lots are drawn; and the city, whose name was written on the arrow first taken from the quiver, was the city upon which they first made war. That Nebuchadnezzar had recourse to this plan of divination, seems probable from the expression in ver. 21. In our translation we read, "he made his arrows bright;" but the more proper rendering, according to Archbishop Newcome, should be, "he mingled his arrows." There is, however, another mode of divining, which is said to be still in use, to which this expression in ver. 21, will apply with equal justice. In divination the idolatrous Arabs made use of three arrows only, on one was written, "My Lord hath commanded me;" and another, "My Lord hath forbidden me;" and the third was blank. If the first was drawn, they looked upon it as an approbation of the enterprise in question; if the second, they made a contrary conclusion; but if the third chanced to be drawn, they mixed them, and drew over again, till a decisive answer was obtained by one of the others. Ezekiel describes this proceeding of Nebuchadnezzar by prophetic anticipation.

The subversion of the temporal kingdom of Judah leads the prophet to refer to Zedekiah, (ver. 25–28.) and to predict the total overthrow of the earthly dominion of the house of David, till the day come, when the Messiah shall visit his people. He then predicts the overthrow of the Ammonites by Nebuchadnezzar, (ver. 28, to the end;) which prophecy was fulfilled five years after Jerusalem was destroyed. Chap. xxii. contains a recital of the sins committed in Jerusalem, by all ranks of people, for which severe judgments are denounced: and chap. xxiii. represents the idolatries of Samaria and Jerusalem under the emblem of two harlots; and for their crimes, (ver. 22, to the end.) the severest judgments are threatened to both.—Warburton's Divine Legat. b. iv. c. 6; Hales' Analysis, vol. ii. p. 485; Archbp. 7 Then said I unto them,
Cast ye away every man the abominations of his eyes,
And defile not yourselves with [e]the idols of Egypt:
I am the LORD your God.
8 But they rebelled against me,
And would not hearken unto me;
They did not every man cast away the abominations of their eyes,
Neither did they forsake the idols of Egypt:
Then I said, I will pour out my fury upon them,)
To accomplish mine anger against them in the midst of the land of Egypt:
9 But [f]I wrought for my name's sake,
(That it should not be polluted before the heathen,
Among whom they were,
In whose sight I made myself known unto them,)
In bringing them forth out of the land of Egypt.
10 Wherefore I [g]caused them to go forth out of the land of Egypt,
And brought them into the wilderness.
11 And [h]I gave them my statutes,
And ‡showed them my judgments,
Which [i]if a man do, he shall even live in them.
12 Moreover also I gave them my [j]Sabbaths,
To be a sign between me and them,
That they might know that I am the LORD that sanctify them.
13 But the house of Israel [k]rebelled against me in the wilderness:
They walked not in my statutes,
And they [l]despised my judgments,
(Which if a man do, he shall even live in them;)
And my Sabbaths they greatly [m]polluted:
Then I said, I would pour out my fury upon them [n]in the wilderness,
To consume them.
14 But I wrought for my name's sake,
That it should not be polluted before the heathen,
In whose sight I brought them out.
15 Yet also [o]I lifted up my hand unto them in the wilderness,
That I would not bring them into the land which I had given them,
Flowing with milk and honey, (which is the glory of all lands;)
16 Because they despised my judgments,
And walked not in my statutes, but polluted my Sabbaths:
For [p]their heart went after their idols.
17 Nevertheless [q]mine eye spared them from destroying them,
Neither did I make an end of them in the wilderness.
18 But I said unto their children in the wilderness,
Walk ye not in the statutes of your fathers,
Neither observe their judgments,
Nor defile yourselves with their idols.
19 I am the LORD your God;
Walk [r]in my statutes, and keep my judgments,
And do them;
20 And [s]hallow my Sabbaths;
And they shall be a sign betwen me and you,
That ye may know that I am the LORD your God.
21 Notwithstanding [t]the children rebelled against me:
They walked not in my statutes,
Neither kept my judgments to do them,
(Which if a man do, he shall even live in them;)
They polluted my Sabbaths:

Then I said, I would pour out my fury upon them,
To accomplish mine anger against them in the wilderness.
[22] Nevertheless I withdrew my hand,
And wrought for my name's sake,
That it should not be polluted in the sight of the heathen,
In whose sight I brought them forth.
[23] I lifted up my hand unto them also in the wilderness,
That [u]I would scatter them among the heathen,
And disperse them through the countries;
[24] Because they had not executed my judgments,
But had despised my statutes,
And had polluted my Sabbaths,
And their eyes were after their fathers' idols.
[25] Wherefore [v]I gave them also statutes, that were not [a]good,
And judgments, whereby they should not live;
[26] And I polluted them in their own gifts,
In that they caused to pass [w]through the fire all that openeth the womb,
That I might make them desolate, to the end that they might know that I am the LORD.

[27] Therefore, son of man, speak unto the house of Israel, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD;—

Yet in this your fathers have [x]blasphemed me,
In that they have *committed a trespass against me.
[28] For when I had brought them into the land,
For the which I lifted up my hand to give it to them,
Then they saw every high hill, and all the thick trees,
And they offered there their sacrifices,
And there they presented the provocation of their offering:
There also they made their sweet savour,
And poured out there their drink offerings.
[29] Then †I said unto them,
What is the high place whereunto ye go?
And the name thereof is called Bamah unto this day.
[30] Wherefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD,
Are ye polluted after the manner of your fathers?
And commit ye whoredom after their abominations?
[31] For when ye offer your gifts,
When ye make your sons to pass through the fire,
Ye pollute yourselves with all your idols, even unto this day:
And shall I be inquired of by you, O house of Israel?
As I live, saith the Lord GOD, I will not be inquired of by you.
[32] And that which cometh into your mind shall not be at all,
That ye say, "We will be as the heathen,
As the families of the countries, to serve wood and stone."
[33] As I live, saith the Lord GOD,
Surely with a mighty hand, and with a stretched-out arm,
And with fury poured out, will I rule over you;
[34] And I will bring you out from the people,
And will gather you out of the countries, wherein ye are scattered,
With a mighty hand, and with a stretched-out arm,
And with fury poured out.
[35] And I will bring you into the wilderness of the people,
And there will I plead with you face to face.
[36] Like [y]as I pleaded with your fathers in the wilderness of the land of Egypt,
So will I plead with you, saith the Lord GOD.

[39] As for you, O house of Israel, thus saith the Lord God;
Go [b]ye, serve ye every one his idols,
And hereafter also, if ye will not hearken unto me;
But [c]pollute ye my holy name no more
With your gifts, and with your idols.
[40] For in my holy mountain,
In the mountain of the height of Israel, saith the Lord God,
There shall all the house of Israel (all of them in the land) serve me:
There [d]will I accept them,
And there will I require your offerings,
And the [*]firstfruits of your oblations, with all your holy things.
[41] I will accept you with your [†]sweet savour,

And I will be sanctified in you before the heathen.
[42] And ye shall know that I am the Lord,
When I shall bring you into the land of Israel,
Into the country for the which I lifted up my hand
To give it to your fathers.
[43] And there shall ye remember your ways,
And all your doings, wherein ye have been defiled;
And [e]ye shall loathe yourselves in your own sight
For all your evils that ye have committed.
[44] And ye shall know that I am the Lord,
When I have wrought with you for my name's sake,
Not according to your wicked ways, nor according to your corrupt doings,
O ye house of Israel! saith the Lord God.
[45] Moreover the word of the Lord came unto me, saying,—
[46] Son of man! set thy face toward the south,
And drop thy word toward the south,
And prophesy against the forest of the south field;
[47] And say to the forest of the south,
Hear the word of the Lord!
Thus saith the Lord God;
Behold, [f]I will kindle a fire in thee,
And it shall devour [g]every green tree in thee,
And every dry tree:
The flaming flame shall not be quenched,
And all faces from the south to the north shall be burned therein.
[48] And all flesh shall see that I the Lord have kindled it:
It shall not be quenched.

[49] Then said I, Ah Lord God! they say of me, Doth he not speak parables? [1] And the word of the Lord came unto me, Ezekiel xxi saying,—

[2] Son of man! set thy face toward Jerusalem,
And [h]drop thy word toward the holy places,
And prophesy against the land of Israel,

5 That all flesh may know
That I the Lord have drawn forth my sword out of his sheath:

A [j]sword, a sword is sharpened, and also furbished!
10 It is sharpened to make a sore slaughter:
It is furbished that it may glitter:
Should we then make mirth?

11 And he hath given it to be furbished, that it may be handled:

To give it into the hand of the slayer.

And [l]smite thy *hands together,
And let the sword be doubled the third time, the sword of the slain:

Either on the right hand, *or on the left,
Whithersoever thy face is set.
17 I will also smite my hands together,
And I will cause my fury to rest:
I the Lord have said it.
18 The word of the Lord came unto me again, saying,—
19 Also, thou son of man! appoint thee two ways,
That the sword of the king of Babylon may come:
Both twain shall come forth out of one land:
And choose thou a place,
Choose it at the head of the way to the city.
20 Appoint a way, that the sword may come to [n]Rabbath of the [Ammonites,

[2] Son of man! there were [s]two women,

And they bruised the breasts of her virginity,
And poured their whoredom upon her.
9 Wherefore I have delivered her into the hand of her lovers,
Into the hand of the [v]Assyrians, upon whom she doted.
10 These discovered her nakedness:
They took her sons and her daughters, and slew her with the sword:
And she became ‡famous among women;
For they had executed judgment upon her.
11 And [w]when her sister Aholibah saw this,
*She was more corrupt in her inordinate love than she,
And in her whoredoms †more than her sister in her whoredoms.
12 She doted upon [x]the Assyrians her neighbours,
Captains and rulers clothed most gorgeously,
Horsemen riding upon horses,
All of them desirable young men.
13 Then I saw that she was defiled,
That they took both one way,
14 And that she increased her whoredoms:
For when she saw men portrayed upon the wall,
The images of the Chaldeans portrayed with vermilion,
15 Girded with girdles upon their loins,
Exceeding in dyed attire upon their heads,
All of them princes to look to,
(After the manner of the Babylonians of Chaldea, the land of their nativity;)
16 And ‡as soon as she saw them with her eyes, she doted upon them,
And sent messengers unto them in Chaldea.
17 And the *Babylonians came to her into the bed of love,
And they defiled her with their whoredom,
And she was polluted with them—and her mind was †alienated from them.
18 So she discovered her whoredoms, and discovered her nakedness:
Then [y]my mind was alienated from her,
Like as my mind was alienated from her sister.
19 Yet she multiplied her whoredoms,
In calling to remembrance the days of her youth,
Wherein she had played the harlot in the land of Egypt.
20 For she doted upon their paramours,
Whose flesh is as the flesh of asses,
And whose issue is like the issue of horses.
21 Thus thou calledst to remembrance the lewdness of thy youth,
In bruising thy teats by the Egyptians
For the paps of thy youth.
22 Therefore, O Aholibah, thus saith the Lord GOD;
Behold, I will raise up thy lovers against thee,
From whom thy mind is alienated,
And I will bring them against thee on every side;
23 (The Babylonians, and all the Chaldeans,
Pekod, and Shoa, and Koa, and all the Assyrians with them—
All of them desirable young men,
Captains and rulers, great lords and renowned,
All of them riding upon horses,)
24 And they shall come against thee with chariots, wagons, and wheels,
And with an assembly of people,
Which shall set against thee buckler and shield and helmet round about:
And I will set judgment before them,
And they shall judge thee according to their judgments.

And thy residue shall be devoured by the fire.
[26] They shall also strip thee out of thy clothes,
And take away thy ‡fair jewels.
[27] Thus will I make thy lewdness to cease from thee,
And thy whoredom brought from the land of Egypt:
So that thou shalt not lift up thine eyes unto them,
Nor remember Egypt any more.
[28] For thus saith the Lord God;
Behold, I will deliver thee into the hand of them whom thou hatest,
Into the hand of them from whom thy mind is alienated:
[29] And they shall deal with thee hatefully,
And shall take away all thy labor,
And shall leave thee naked and bare;
And the nakedness of thy whoredoms shall be discovered,
Both thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.
[30] I will do these things unto thee,
Because thou hast gone a whoring after the heathen,
And because thou art polluted with their idols.
[31] Thou hast walked in the way of thy sister;
Therefore will I give her cup into thy hand.
[32] Thus saith the Lord God;
Thou shalt drink of thy sister's cup deep and large:
Thou shalt be laughed to scorn and had in derision—it containeth much.
[33] Thou shalt be filled with drunkenness and sorrow,
With the cup of astonishment and desolation,
With the cup of thy sister Samaria.
[34] Thou shalt even drink it and suck it out,
And thou shalt break the sherds thereof,
And pluck off thine own breasts;
For I have spoken it, saith the Lord God.
[35] Therefore thus saith the Lord God;
Because thou hast forgotten me, and [z]cast me behind thy back,
Therefore bear thou also thy lewdness and thy whoredoms.
[36] The Lord said moreover unto me;
Son of man! wilt thou *judge Aholah and Aholibah?
Yea, declare unto them their abominations;
[37] That they have committed adultery, and blood is in their hands,
And with their idols have they committed adultery,
And have also caused their sons, whom they bare unto me,
To pass for them through the fire, to devour them.
[38] Moreover this they have done unto me:
They have defiled my sanctuary in the same day,
And have profaned my Sabbaths.
[39] For when they had slain their children to their idols,
Then they came the same day into my sanctuary to profane it;
And, lo, [a]thus have they done in the midst of my house.
[40] And furthermore, that ye have sent for men †to come from far,
Unto whom a messenger was sent; and, lo! they came:
For whom thou didst wash thyself,
Paintedst thine eyes, and deckedst thyself with ornaments,
[41] And satest upon ‡a stately bed, and a table prepared before it,
Whereupon [b]thou hast set mine incense and mine oil.

Section VII.—Prophecy of the Destruction of Jerusalem, delivered by Ezekiel at the Commencement of the Siege.

Ezekiel xxiv.(31)

Under the parable of a boiling pot, 6 is showed the irrevocable destruction of Jerusalem. 15 By the sign of Ezekiel not mourning for the death of his wife, 19 is showed the calamity of the Jews to be beyond all sorrow.

[1] Again in the ninth year, in the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, [2] Son of man! write thee the name of the day, even of this same day: the king of Babylon set himself against Jerusalem [a]this same day. [3] And utter a parable unto the rebellious house, and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God;—

a 2 Ki. 25. 1. Je. 39. 1. & 52. 4.

Set on a pot, set it on, and also pour water into it:
[4] Gather the pieces thereof into it,
Even every good piece, the thigh, and the shoulder;
Fill it with the choice bones.
* Or, heap.
[5] Take the choice of the flock, and *burn also the bones under it,
And make it boil well, and let them seethe the bones of it therein.
[6] Wherefore thus saith the Lord God;
Woe to the bloody city,
To the pot whose scum is therein, and whose scum is not gone out of it!
b See 2 Sa. 8. 2. Joel 3. 3. Ob. 11. Nah. 3. 10.
Bring it out piece by piece; let no [b]lot fall upon it.
[7] For her blood is in the midst of her;
She set it upon the top of a rock;

She [c]poured it not upon the ground, to cover it with dust;

---

(31) The date of this prophecy (ver. 1.) shows that it was written on the banks of the Euphrates on the very same day in which Nebuchadnezzar laid siege to Jerusalem. On that day the prophet, by a singular yet appropriate figure of a boiling pot, shows to the Jews the total destruction of their city and brethren. To represent the greatness of their calamity, the prophet is suddenly bereaved of his wife, the desire of his eyes, and is commanded not to mourn for her. Thus Ezekiel becomes a sign unto the Jews at Babylon, ver. 24; thereby foreshowing them the destruction of Jerusalem and their temple, which was the desire of their eyes, and signifying that their afflictions and sorrows would exceed all expression.

[8] That it might cause fury to come up to take vengeance;
d Mat. 7. 2. I [d]have set her blood upon the top of a rock,
That it should not be covered.
[9] Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD;
e Nah. 3. 1. Hab. 2. 12. Woe [e]to the bloody city! I will even make the pile for fire great.
[10] Heap on wood, kindle the fire,
Consume the flesh, and spice it well, and let the bones be burned.
[11] Then set it empty upon the coals thereof,
That the brass of it may be hot, and may burn,
And that the filthiness of it may be molten in it,
That the scum of it may be consumed.
[12] She hath wearied herself with lies,
And her great scum went not forth out of her:
Her scum shall be in the fire.
[13] In thy filthiness is lewdness.
Because I have purged thee, and thou wast not purged,
Thou shalt not be purged from thy filthiness any more,
Till I have caused my fury to rest upon thee.
[14] I the LORD have spoken it:
It shall come to pass, and I will do it;
I will not go back, neither will I spare, neither will I repent;
According to thy ways, and according to thy doings, shall they judge thee, saith the Lord GOD.
[15] Also the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,
[16] Son of man! behold, I take away from thee
The desire of thine eyes with a stroke;
Yet neither shalt thou mourn nor weep,
† Heb. go. Neither shall thy tears †run down.
‡ Heb. Be silent. [17] ‡Forbear to cry, make no mourning for the dead,

[18] So I spake unto the people in the morning: and at even my wife died; and I did in the morning as I was commanded. [19] And the people said unto me, "Wilt thou not tell us what these things are to us, that thou doest so?" [20] Then I answered them, "The word of the LORD came unto me, saying,[21] Speak unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD;—

(The joy of their glory, the desire of their eyes,

[26] That he that escapeth in that day shall come unto thee,
To cause thee to hear it with thine ears?

Section VIII.—Ezekiel prophesies the Judgment of Pharaoh for his Treachery to Israel, and the Desolation of Egypt.

Ezekiel xxix. 1-16.(32)

[1] In the tenth year, in the tenth month, in the twelfth day of the month, the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, [2] Son of man!

(32) This chapter is inserted after the 24th, on the authority of the date mentioned in ver. 1. The prophecy contained in it was spoken before the capture of Jerusalem; whereas those contained in the 25th and following chapters, were delivered after that event. The probable reason of its receiving the place it now holds in our Bibles is, that the prophecies against Egypt might be all read together. There is reason to suppose, that this prophecy was delivered immediately after Pharaoh's retreat from before Nebuchadnezzar. On this very occasion, Jeremiah uttered, at Jerusalem, similar predictions to those of Ezekiel, at Babylon. Both prophets, at the same time, in two distant countries, predicted the same events. The circumstances thus prophesied by them, respecting Egypt, were of the most improbable kind. Pharaoh Hophra, the Apries of Herodotus, boasted that his kingdom was so firmly established, that nothing could overthrow it. The greatness and magnificence of Egypt have been celebrated from the most remote antiquity: the splendid monuments still remaining, and the additional discoveries which are frequently made by the enterprising travellers of our own days, are existing records of its former wealth and power. Its situation is favorable to commerce, it possesses every natural advantage; yet, wonderful to relate, after predicting the more immediate distresses which should fall upon Egypt, the prophet predicts, that it shall become an utter and complete desolation, (Ezek. xxix. 14, 15.) "Egypt shall be the basest of the kingdoms, neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations; for I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations." And in the next chapter, ver. 12, 13, "I will make the land waste, and all that is therein; and there shall no more be a prince of the land of Egypt." Such general prophecies, Bishop Newton justly observes, like general rules, are not to be understood so strictly and absolutely, as if they could not possibly admit of any kind of limitation or exception whatever. It is sufficient if they hold good for the most part, and are confirmed by the experience of many ages, though perhaps not without the exception of a few years. The Bishop then proceeds to show in what manner the prophecy was fulfilled, by the various conquests of Egypt, till it was reduced to its present degraded condition.

There are many who consider every attempt to discover the actual fulfilment of prophecy in the events of our own day, as a proof of an utter deficiency in that sobriety of judgment, which ought ever to characterize a commentator on Scripture. Certain it is, the utmost caution should be observed in every attempt to trace the mighty plan of that Providence which governs the world: yet I cannot but think that it will appear evident to all, (when the idea is suggested to them,) that we have seen in our own day a wonderful instance of the accomplishment of this prophecy of Ezekiel. Egypt has now been, for many hundred years, the meanest and basest of kingdoms: and among the kings and princes of the earth, none have been found powerful enough to raise it from its state of degradation. Within the memory of the present generation, a project has been attempted, which, if crowned with success, might again have exalted Egypt among the nations, and afforded to infidelity an argument against the prophecies of Scripture. Twenty years have now elapsed since Napoleon, who at that time knew not what it was to be defeated, led a powerful army into Egypt. The experience of history has sufficiently proved, that when a large military force has gained possession of a country, it frequently raises that nation to an equality with those surrounding it; and it was ever the policy of France, during the revolutionary war, to embody among its own armies the inhabitants of the conquered countries. Had this attack upon Egypt succeeded, its people might have been made a military body: they would have had a chief, active, powerful, and enterprising, to govern them: their ancient character, contrary to the prophecies of God, might have been raised; and their renovated energies, under such a ruler, directed against the peace and happiness of Europe, or of India. But what was the event? For a long time, every bold effort had succeeded: the whole extent of Egypt, and the territories immediately adjacent to it, might be considered as conquered till the progress of the French army, hitherto invincible, was suddenly and wonderfully checked by a small and weak fortress, protected by the sword of Britain. The triumph of the resistless army of France was ended. The ferocious legions in vain dashed themselves, as the waves of the ocean, on the small yet immovable rock. The broken remnant of the dispirited and discomfited army was abandoned by their leader; and the land of Egypt is still "the basest of kingdoms." The Scripture is fulfilled.

In all these things the man of the world discovers only the usual course of things, and smiles with derision at the discoverer of the accomplishment of prophecy, in the events of history. Yet every prophecy has been accomplished by a train of events, that appear to be the natural and unavoidable result of a connected series of consequences. The circumstances that occasioned this defeat in Egypt were so peculiar and extraordinary, that when their result is compared with this prophecy of Ezekiel, the Christian is compelled to look higher than to any human power. He cannot but see "God in the whirlwind; God directing the storm." Amidst all the changes of empires, the revolutions of states, the rise and fall of dynasties; amidst all the revolutions of this world, the Christian sees a controlling Providence guiding the violence and ambition of men to the accomplishment of his own purposes. It is possible that this country may the great maritime people, that shall be elected to further the designs of this mighty Providence; and we may justly hope, that we are destined to fulfil many of the remaining prophecies of God; so long as this splendid destiny is allotted to us, we must continue, under the protection of this God, great and powerful. Prophecy, whether we observe it or not, is set thy face against Pharaoh king of Egypt, and prophesy against him, and [a]against all Egypt. [3] Speak, and say, Thus saith the Lord God;—

Behold, [b]I am against thee, Pharaoh king of Egypt,
The great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers,
Which hath said, “My river is mine own, and I have made it for myself.”
[4] But I will put hooks in thy jaws,
And I will cause the fish of thy rivers to stick unto thy scales,
And I will bring thee up out of the midst of thy rivers,
And all the fish of thy rivers shall stick unto thy scales.
[5] And I will leave thee thrown into the wilderness,
Thee and all the fish of thy rivers:
Thou shalt fall upon the *open fields;
Thou [c]shalt not be brought together, nor gathered:
I [d]have given thee for meat to the beasts of the field
And to the fowls of the heaven.
[6] And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the Lord,
Because they have been [e]a staff of reed to the house of Israel.
[7] When [f]they took hold of thee by thy hand,
Thou didst break, and rend all their shoulder;
And when they leaned upon thee,
Thou brakest, and madest all their loins to be at a stand.
[8] Therefore thus saith the Lord God;
Behold, I will bring a sword upon thee,
And cut off man and beast out of thee.
[9] And the land of Egypt shall be desolate and waste;
And they shall know that I am the Lord:
Because he hath said, “The river is mine, and I have made it.”
[10] Behold, therefore I am against thee, and against thy rivers,
And [g]I will make the land of Egypt †utterly waste and desolate,

[11] No foot of man shall pass through it,

[12] And I will make the land of Egypt desolate
In the midst of the countries that are desolate,
And her cities among the cities that are laid waste shall be desolate forty years:
And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations,
And will disperse them through the countries.
[13] Yet thus saith the Lord God;
At the [h]end of forty years will I gather the Egyptians
From the people whither they were scattered;
[14] And I will bring again the captivity of Egypt,
And will cause them to return into the land of Pathros,
Into the land of their †habitation;
And they shall be there a ‡base kingdom.
[15] It shall be the basest of the kingdoms;
Neither shall it exalt itself any more above the nations:
For I will diminish them, that they shall no more rule over the nations.
[16] And it shall be no more [i]the confidence of the house of Israel,
Which bringeth their iniquity to remembrance,
When they shall look after them;

still accomplishing. And I will cause the sword to fall out of his hand.
[23] And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations,

And put my sword in his hand;
But I will break Pharaoh's arms,

(33) These portions of Scripture are inserted here on the authorities of the dates given by the prophet himself, chap. xxx. 20. and xxxi. 1. At the time when the first of these predictions was delivered, Nebuchadnezzar, having obliged the king of Egypt to retreat, had returned to the siege of Jerusalem; and when the prophecy contained in chapter xxxi. was uttered, the Jews had accelerated their ruin by depending upon Egypt. There is a peculiar propriety, therefore, in the delivery of these predictions at this period, as the attention both of the Jews and of the Chaldeans, among whom Ezekiel prophesied, must have been forcibly directed to Egypt.

[7] Thus was he fair in his greatness, in the length of his branches;
For his root was by great waters.

[17] They also went down into hell with him
Unto them that be slain with the sword;
And they that were his arm, that dwelt under his shadow
In the midst of the heathen.
[18] To whom art thou thus like in glory
And in greatness among the trees of Eden?
Yet shalt thou be brought down with the trees of Eden
Unto the nether parts of the earth:
Thou shalt lie in the midst of the uncircumcised
With them that be slain by the sword.
This is Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord GOD.

HISTORY OF THAT PORTION OF THE JEWISH NATION WHO WERE NOT CARRIED CAPTIVE TO BABYLON, AFTER THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TEMPLE.(34)

[1] The word which came to Jeremiah from the LORD, [a]after that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had let him go from Ramah, when he had taken him being bound in *chains among all that were carried away captive of Jerusalem and Judah, which were carried away captive unto Babylon.

* Or, manacles.

[2] And the captain of the guard took Jeremiah, and said unto him, "The LORD thy God hath pronounced this evil upon this place. [3] Now the LORD hath brought it, and done according as he hath said: [b]because ye have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed his voice, therefore this thing is come upon you. [4] And now, behold, I loose thee this day from the chains which †were upon thy hand. If it seem good unto thee to come with me into Babylon, come, and ‡I will look well unto thee; but if it seem ill unto thee to come with me into Babylon, forbear. Behold, all the land is before thee; whither it seemeth good and convenient for thee to go, thither go." [5] Now while he was not yet gone back, he said, "Go back also to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon hath made governor over the cities of Judah, and dwell with him among the people; or go wheresoever it seemeth convenient unto thee to go."

So the captain of the guard gave him victuals and a reward, and let him go. [6] Then went Jeremiah unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to Mizpah, and dwelt with him among the people that were left in the land.

[7] Now when all the captains of the forces which were in the fields, (even they and their men,) heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah the son of Ahikam governor in the land, and had committed unto him men, and women, and children, and of the poor of the land, of them that were not carried away captive to Babylon; [8] then they came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, even Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan the sons of Kareah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai the Netophathite, and Jezaniah the son of a Maachathite, they and their men.

[9] And Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan sware unto them and to their men, saying, "Fear not to serve the Chaldeans; dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you. (34) The sacred narrative, after the capture of Daniel, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, proceeds to relate in parts of the Second Books of Kings and Chronicles, of Ezekiel, and of Jeremiah, the series of events which were taking place, at the same time, in three several parts of the world,—Judæa, Babylon, and Egypt. The attempt to place all these contemporary events in the most intelligible order has been attended with much difficulty. In Part I. of this Seventh Period, the history of events at Jerusalem is brought down to the burning of the temple: in Part II. of this Period, the circumstances which occurred in Chaldea, recorded or alluded to by Ezekiel, are likewise brought down to the burning of the temple. The present Part contains the history of the Jews who, after the destruction of Jerusalem, remained for some short time with Gedaliah in Judæa; and then fled to Egypt, taking with them their great prophet Jeremiah.

summer fruits, and oil, and put them in your vessels, and dwell in your cities that ye have taken."

[11] Likewise when all the Jews that were in Moab, and among the Ammonites, and in Edom, and that were in all the countries, heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant of Judah, and that he had set over them Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan; [12] even all the Jews returned out of all places whither they were driven, and came to the land of Judah, to Gedaliah, unto Mizpah, and gathered wine and summer fruits very much.

[13] Moreover Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were in the fields, came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, [14] and said unto him, "Dost thou certainly know that Baalis the king of the Ammonites hath sent Ishmael the son of Nethaniah †to slay thee?" But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam believed them not. [15] Then Johanan the son of Kareah spake to Gedaliah in Mizpah secretly, saying, "Let me go, I pray thee, and I will slay Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and no man shall know it: wherefore should he slay thee, that all the Jews which are gathered unto thee should be scattered, and the remnant in Judah perish?" [16] But Gedaliah the son of Ahikam said unto Johanan the son of Kareah, "Thou shalt not do this thing; for thou speakest falsely of Ishmael."

Jeremiah xli. 1–10.

[1] Now it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah the son of Elishama, of the seed royal, and the princes of the king, even ten men with him, came unto Gedaliah the son of Ahikam to Mizpah; and there they did eat bread together in Mizpah. [2] Then arose Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and the ten men that were with him, and smote Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan with the sword, and slew him, whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land. [3] Ishmael also slew all the Jews that were with him, even with Gedaliah, at Mizpah, and the Chaldeans that were found there, and the men of war.

[4] And it came to pass the second day after he had slain Gedaliah, and no man knew it, [5] that there came certain from Shechem, from Shiloh, and from Samaria, even fourscore men, [c]having their beards shaven, and their clothes rent, and having cut themselves, with offerings and incense in their hand, to bring them to the house of the Lord. [6] And Ishmael the son of Nethaniah went forth from Mizpah to meet them, ‡weeping all along as he went; and it came to pass, as he met them, he said unto them, "Come to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam." [7] And it was so, when they came into the midst of the city, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah slew them, [d]and cast them into the midst of the pit, he, and the men that were with him. [8] But ten men were found among them that said unto Ishmael, "Slay us not; for we have treasures in the field, of wheat, and of barley, and of oil, and of honey." So he forbare, and slew them not among their brethren.

[10] Then Ishmael carried away captive all the residue of the people that were in Mizpah, even the king's daughters, and all the people that remained in Mizpah, whom Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had committed to Gedaliah the son of Ahikam; and Ishmael the son of Nethaniah carried them away captive, and departed to go over to the Ammonites.

2 Kings xxv. 23–26. [23] And when all the captains of the armies, they and their men, heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah governor, there came to Gedaliah to Mizpah, even Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan the son of Careah, and Seraiah the son of Tanhumeth the Netophathite, and Jaazaniah the son of a Maachathite, they and their men. [24] And Gedaliah sware to them, and to their men, and said unto them, "Fear not to be the servants of the Chaldees; dwell in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you." [25] But it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama, of the seed †royal, came, and ten men with him, and smote Gedaliah, that he died, and the Jews and the Chaldees that were with him at Mizpah. [26] And all the people, both small and great, and the captains of the armies, arose, and came to Egypt; for they were afraid of the Chaldees.

[11] But when Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, heard of all the evil that Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had done, [12] then they took all the men, and went to fight with Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, and found him by [a]the great waters that are in Gibeon. [13] Now it came to pass, that when all the people which were with Ishmael saw Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, then they were glad. [14] So all the people that Ishmael had carried away captive from Mizpah cast about and returned, and went unto Johanan the son of Kareah. [15] But Ishmael the son of Nethaniah escaped from Johanan with eight men, and went to the Ammonites.

[16] Then took Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces that were with him, all the remnant of the people whom he had recovered from Ishmael the son of Nethaniah, from Mizpah, after that he had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, even mighty men of war, and the women, and the children, and the eunuchs, whom he had brought again from Gibeon. [17] And they departed, and dwelt in the habitation of [b]Chimham, which is by Beth-lehem, to go to enter into Egypt, [18] because of the Chaldeans; for they were afraid of them, because Ishmael the son of Nethaniah had slain Gedaliah the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon made governor in the land.

[1] Then all the captains of the forces, and Johanan the son of Kareah, and Jezaniah the son of Hoshaiah, and all the people from the least even unto the greatest, came near, [2] and said unto Jeremiah the prophet, "*Let, we beseech thee, our supplication be accepted before thee, and [c]pray for us unto the Lord thy God, even for all this remnant, (for we are left but [d]a few of many, as thine eyes do behold us;) [3] that the Lord thy God may show us the way wherein we may walk, and the thing that we may do." [4] Then Jeremiah the prophet said unto them, "I have heard you, behold, I will pray unto the Lord your God according to your words; and it shall come to pass, that whatsoever thing the Lord shall answer you, I will declare it unto you; I will [e]keep nothing back from you." [5] Then they said to Jeremiah, "The Lord be a true and faithful witness between us, if we do not even according to all things for the which the Lord thy God shall send thee to us. JEREMIAH xliii. 1–7.

[1] And it came to pass, that when Jeremiah had made an end of speaking unto all the people all the words of the LORD their God, for which the LORD their God had sent him to them, even all these words, [2] then spake Azariah the son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the proud men, saying unto Jeremiah, "Thou speakest falsely. The Lord our God hath not sent thee to say, 'Go not into Egypt to sojourn there:' [3] but Baruch the son of Neriah setteth thee on against us, for to deliver us into the hand of the Chaldeans, that they might put us to death, and carry us away captives into Babylon." [4] So Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, and all the people, obeyed not the voice of the Lord, to dwell in the land of Judah. [5] But Johanan the son of Kareah, and all the captains of the forces, took all the remnant of Judah, that were returned from all nations, whither they had been driven, to dwell in the land of Judah; [6] even men, and women, and children, and the king's daughters, and every person that Nebuzar-adan the captain of the guard had left with Gedaliah the son of Ahikam the son of Shaphan, and Jeremiah the prophet, and Baruch the son of Neriah. (35) The several passages from Jeremiah which are inserted in this third Part, are placed here on the authority of their internal evidence. This passage (Jer. xlvi. 13, to the end) is added to the preceding from comparing Jer. xlvi. 14, with Jer. xliii. 7. The prophet was forcibly brought by his rebellious countrymen to Tahpanhes in Egypt.

Egypt having been the ally of Judæa, many of the Jews, long before Johanan took refuge there, had escaped to this country from the king of Babylon. Jeremiah, after predicting the conquest and captivity of the Egyptians by Nebuchadnezzar, addresses himself to the Jews, who were with him, and calls upon them to furnish themselves for a similar fate. The prophecy concludes with promises of mercy and restoration to those Jews who were already captives in Babylon.

The expressions in ver. 28, "I will make a full end of all the nations," yet "I will not make a full end of thee," seem to refer to a period when the Jews were not only captives, but so miserably reduced that there was every reason to apprehend their extinction as a nation: and as they appear to have been, at this time, at the height of their affliction and distress, it is probable this powerful consolation was offered to them. Bishop Horne beautifully remarks on ver. 28, "Even to our day, this wonderful prophecy is fulfilled before us. The oppressors of the Jews, the mighty monarchies or Assyria, Persia, Greece, and Rome, are vanished, like the shadows of the evening. Nothing remains of them but their names: while this persecuted, despised, and hated people, without a friend or a protector, amidst the wreck of nations, oppressed and harassed by edicts and executioners, by murders and massacres, hath outlived the ruins of them all; and will continue till the appointed day of their conversion and their restoration come."

[15] Why are thy valiant men swept away?
They stood not, because the LORD did drive them.
16 He ‡made many to fall,
Yea, [d]one fell upon another;
And they said, "Arise, and let us go again to our own people,
And to the land of our nativity,
From the oppressing sword."
[17] They did cry there,
"Pharaoh king of Egypt is but a noise;
He hath passed the time appointed."
[18] As I live, saith the King, whose name is the LORD of hosts,
Surely as Tabor is among the mountains,
And as Carmel by the sea, so shall he come.
[19] O thou daughter dwelling in Egypt,
*Furnish thyself [e]to go into captivity;
For Noph shall be waste and desolate without an inhabitant.
[20] Egypt is like a very fair heifer,
But destruction cometh;
It cometh out of the north.
21 Also her hired men are in the midst of her like †fatted bullocks:
For they also are turned back,
And are fled away together: they did not stand,
Because the day of their calamity was come upon them,
And the time of their visitation.
22 The [f]voice thereof shall go like a serpent;
For they shall march with an army,
And come against her with axes,
As hewers of wood.
[23] They shall [g]cut down her forest, saith the LORD,
Though it cannot be searched;
Because they are more than [h]the grasshoppers,
And are innumerable.
[24] The daughter of Egypt shall be confounded;
She shall be delivered into the hand of the people of the north.
[25] The LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saith;
Behold, I will punish the ‡multitude of No,
And Pharaoh, and Egypt,
With their gods, and their kings,
Even Pharaoh, and all them that trust in him;
[26] And I will deliver them into the hand of those that seek their lives,
And into the hand of Nebuchadrezzar king of Babylon,
And into the hand of his servants;
And [i]afterward it shall be inhabited,
As in the days of old, saith the LORD.
[27] But fear not thou, O my servant Jacob!
And be not dismayed, O Israel!
For, behold, I will save thee from afar off,
And thy seed from the land of their captivity;
And Jacob shall return, and be in rest
And at ease, and none shall make him afraid.
[28] Fear thou not, O Jacob my servant! saith the LORD,
For I am with thee;
For I will make a full end of all the nations
Whither I have driven thee:
But I will not make a full end of thee,
But correct thee in measure;

Section IV.—Final Predictions of Jeremiah against the idolatrous Jews, and against Egypt.

Jeremiah xliv.(36)

[1] The word that came to Jeremiah concerning all the Jews which dwell in the land of Egypt, which dwell at Migdol, and at Tahpanhes, and at Noph, and in the country of Pathros, saying,—

[2] "Thus saith the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel; Ye have seen all the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, and upon all the cities of Judah; and, behold, this day they are a desolation, and no man dwelleth therein, [3] because of their wickedness which they have committed to provoke me to anger, in that they went to burn incense, and to serve other gods, whom they knew not, neither they, ye, nor your fathers. [4] Howbeit [a]I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, (rising early and sending them,) saying, "Oh, do not this abominable thing that I hate!" [5] But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their wickedness, to burn no incense unto other gods. [6] Wherefore my fury and mine anger was poured forth, and was kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they are wasted and desolate as at this day. [7] Therefore now thus saith the Lord, the God of hosts, the God of Israel; Wherefore commit ye this great evil against your souls, to cut off from you man and woman, child and suckling, *out of Judah, to leave you none to remain; [8] in that ye provoke me unto wrath with the works of your hands, burning incense unto other gods in the land of Egypt, whither ye be gone to dwell, that ye might cut yourselves off, and that ye might be a curse and a reproach among all the nations of the earth? [9] Have ye forgotten the †wickedness of your fathers, and the wickedness of the kings of Judah, and the wickedness of their wives, and your own wickedness, and the wickedness of your wives, which they have committed in the land of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem? [10] They are not ‡humbled even unto this day, neither have they [b]feared, nor walked in my law, nor in my statutes, that I set before you and before your fathers.

[13] For I will punish them that dwell in the land of Egypt, as I have punished Jerusalem, by the sword, by the famine, and by the pestilence; [14] so that none of the remnant of Judah, which are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall escape or remain, that they should return into the land of Judah, to the which they *have a desire to return to dwell there; for none shall return but such as shall escape."

(36) The Jews who went into Egypt with Johanan, and had taken Jeremiah with them, gave themselves up in that country to idolatry. The prophet for the last time denounces the judgments of God against them. As we hear no more of Jeremiah, it is most likely that he died soon after the delivery of this prophecy in Egypt, being now much advanced in age, and having prophesied forty-one years from the thirteenth of Josiah. Some have asserted that he was put to death by Pharaoh Hophra. Others, among whom are Tertullian, Jerome, and Epiphanius, assert that he was stoned to death by the Jews for preaching against their idolatry: and they suppose that Heb. xi. 37, "they were stoned," refers to the death of Jeremiah.—Prideaux, vol. i p. 722; Hales, vol. ii. p. 492.

even all the people that dwelt in the land of Egypt, in Pathros, answered Jeremiah, saying,—

[16] "As for the word that thou hast spoken unto us in the name of the LORD, we will not hearken unto thee. [17] But we will certainly do [d]whatsoever thing goeth forth out of our own mouth, to burn incense unto the †Queen of Heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto her, as we have done, (we, and our fathers, our kings, and our princes,) in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem; for then had we plenty of ‡victuals, and were well, and saw no evil. [18] But since we left off to burn incense to the Queen of Heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto her, we have wanted all things, and have been consumed by the sword and by the famine. [19] And when we burned incense to the Queen of Heaven, and poured out drink offerings unto her, did we make her cakes to worship her, and pour out drink offerings unto her, without our *men?"

[20] Then Jeremiah said unto all the people, to the men, and to the women, and to all the people which had given him that answer, saying,—

[21] "The incense that ye burned in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, (ye, and your fathers, your kings, and your princes, and the people of the land,) did not the LORD remember them, and came it not into his mind? [22] So that the LORD could no longer bear, because of the evil of your doings, and because of the abominations which ye have committed; therefore is your land a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, without an inhabitant, as at this day. [23] Because ye have burned incense, and because ye have sinned against the LORD, and have not obeyed the voice of the LORD, nor walked in his law, nor in his statutes, nor in his testimonies; [e]therefore this evil is happened unto you, as at this day."

e Da. 9. 11, 12.

[24] Moreover Jeremiah said unto all the people, and to all the women, "Hear the word of the LORD, all Judah that are in the land of Egypt! [25] Thus saith the LORD of hosts, the God of Israel, saying, Ye and your wives have both spoken with your mouths, and fulfilled with your hand, saying, 'We will surely perform our vows that we have vowed, to burn incense to the Queen of Heaven, and to pour out drink offerings unto her'—[a]Ye will surely accomplish your vows, and surely perform your vows. [26] Therefore hear ye the word of the LORD, all Judah that dwell in the land of Egypt, Behold, [f]I have sworn by my great name, saith the LORD, that [g]my name shall no more be named in the mouth of any man of Judah in all the land of Egypt, saying, The Lord GOD liveth! [27] Behold, [h]I will watch over them for evil, and not for good; and all the men of Judah that are in the land of Egypt shall be consumed by the sword and by the famine, until there be an end of them. [28] Yet [i]a small number that escape the sword shall return out of the land of Egypt into the land of Judah, and all the remnant of Judah, that are gone into the land of Egypt to sojourn there, shall know whose words shall stand, †mine or theirs.

[21] AND it came to pass in the twelfth year of our captivity, in the tenth month, in the fifth day of the month, that one that had escaped out of Jerusalem came unto me, saying, "The [a]city is smitten!" [22] (Now the hand of the LORD was upon me in the evening, afore he that was escaped came; and had opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning; and my mouth was opened, and I was no more dumb.) [23] Then the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, [24] Son of man! they that inhabit those wastes of the land of Israel speak, saying, [b]Abraham was one, and he inherited the land; [c]but we are many, the land is given us for inheritance. [25] Wherefore say unto them, Thus saith the Lord GOD;—

Ye [d]eat with the blood,
And lift up your eyes toward your idols, and shed blood:
And shall ye possess the land?
[26] Ye stand upon your sword,
Ye work abomination, and ye defile every one his neighbour's wife:
And shall ye possess the land?

(37) From comparing Ezek. xxxii. 1, with Ezek. xxxiii. 21, it is evident that this part of chap. xxxiii. comes before chap. xxxii. Chapter xxv. is placed in this section, and chapters xxvi. to xxviii. in the next, on the authority of Archbp. Newcome, who observes, that "the date in the text (chap. xxvi. ver. 2,) must be posterior to whatever is the true date, chap. xxxiii. 21; because this prophecy was delivered after the taking of Jerusalem was known to Ezekiel and his people." According to Archbp. Usher and Josephus, the predictions against the Ammonites, Moabites, Edomites, and Philistines, in chap. xxv. were fulfilled by Nebuchadnezzar about five years after the destruction of Jerusalem. The prophecy against Tyre, contained in chap. xxvi. xxvii. xxviii. was accomplished nineteen years after its delivery, by Nebuchadnezzar, in the reign of Ithobal prince of Tyre, chap. xxviii. 2. after a siege of thirteen years. In chap. xxviii. from ver. 20 to 24, the destruction of Sidon, the mother city of Tyre, is denounced, and the chapter ends with promises to the house of Israel of deliverance from all their enemies, and a happy restoration to their own land. The overthrow of Tyre is likewise foretold by Isaiah, chap. xxiii. and by Jeremiah, chap. xlvii. The united testimonies of modern travellers concur in proving the literal accomplishment of this prophecy, (chap. xxvi. 14.) that Tyre should "be a place to spread nets upon," and be "built no more:" and, according to Maundrell, its present inhabitants are only a few wretches harbouring themselves in the vaults, and subsisting themselves chiefly upon fishing, who seem intended by Divine Providence to be a visible argument how God has fulfilled his word concerning Tyre. The power and opulence of Tyre, in the prosperous age of its commerce, must have attracted general attention. In these chapters Ezekiel gives a most particular account of the nature and variety of its commercial transactions, which conveys a most magnificent idea of the extensive power of that state. It is supposed that these prophecies appertain both to Old and New Tyre, some expressions being applicable only to the former, and others only to the latter. New Tyre was destroyed by Alexander the Great 260 years after the time of Ezekiel. For a further account of the fulfilment of these prophecies, vide Newton On the Prophecies, vol. i. p. 190–212; D'Oyly and Mant in loc.; Archbp. Newcome; Josephus, *Ant. [27] Say thou thus unto them, Thus saith the Lord God,—
As I live, surely they that are in the wastes shall fall by the sword,

And they that be in the forts and [e]in the caves shall die of the pestilence.
[28] For [f]I will lay the land †most desolate,
And the pomp of her strength shall cease;
And the mountains of Israel shall be desolate, that none shall pass through.
[29] Then shall they know that I am the Lord,
When I have laid the land most desolate

[30] Also, thou son of man,
The children of thy people still are talking ‡against thee
By the walls and in the doors of the houses,
And speak one to another, every one to his brother, saying,
"Come, I pray you, and hear what is the word

[31] And they come unto thee *as the people cometh,
And †they sit before thee as my people,
And they hear thy words, but they will not do them;

But [g]their heart goeth after their covetousness.

Of one that hath a pleasant voice, and can play well on an instrument;

[33] And when this cometh to pass, (lo! it will come,)
Then shall they know that a prophet hath been among them.

SECTION III.—Ezekiel's Prophecy against Egypt.

EZEKIEL xxxii. 1-16.(38)

[1] AND it came to pass in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, in the first day of the month, that the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, [2] Son of man! take up a lamentation for Pharaoh king of Egypt, and say unto him,—

* Or, dragon.

Thou art like a young lion of the nations,
And thou art as a *whale in the seas;
And thou camest forth with thy rivers,
And troubledst the waters with thy feet, and fouledst their rivers.
[3] Thus saith the Lord GOD,
I will therefore spread out my net over thee
With a company of many people;
And they shall bring thee up in my net.
[4] Then will I leave thee upon the land,
I will cast thee forth upon the open field,
And will cause all the fowls of the heaven to remain upon thee,
And I will fill the beasts of the whole earth with thee.
[5] And I will lay thy flesh upon the mountains,
And fill the valleys with thy height.

(38) The two predictions in this chapter were delivered at different times after the capture of Jerusalem; compare ver. 1, with 17. By "the waters," in ver. 2, are signified the neighbouring kingdoms, whose peace was disturbed by the Egyptian monarch; compare ver. 7, 8, with chap. xxxi. 15. God's judgments upon particular countries being earnests of a general judgment, they are described in such terms, as if the whole frame of nature were dissolved. The desolation spoken of in ver. 13, was to last forty years, see chap. xxix. 11; when their neighbours would enjoy such quietness as a river does that is never ruffled, ver. 14.

Unto the nether parts of the earth, with them that go down into the pit.
19 Whom dost thou pass in beauty?
Go down, and be thou laid with the uncircumcised.

(39) The imagery of the latter part of this chapter, from verse 17, is sublime and terrible. Bishop Lowth remarks that Ezekiel has here described the same scene, with all the same circumstances, as Isaiah in chap. xiv. "Hell," in verse 21, signifies the state of the dead; where the deceased tyrants are represented as coming to meet the king of Egypt with his auxiliaries (see chap. xxx. 8,) upon their arrival at the same place. The Assyrians, both king and people, whose destruction is represented, chap. xxxi.; the Persians, conquered by Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. xlix. 34; the Scythians, and the people called Tibareni, and Moschi, (the sons of Japhet, Gen. x. 2, situated towards Mount Caucasus, and the Euxine Sea); the Edomites, "her kings and all her princes," whose destruction is foretold by Ezekiel, chap. xxv. 12; "The princes of the north," the Tyrians and their allies, chap. xxvi. 16; joined with the Zidonians their neighbours, are all represented as assembled in this invisible state, and laid in the midst of the uncircumcised; "all of them slain, fallen by the sword, which caused terror in the land of the living."

[20] They shall fall in the midst of them that are slain by the sword;
*She is delivered to the sword; draw her and all her multitudes.
[21] The strong among the mighty shall speak to him
Out of the midst of hell with them that help him:
They are gone down, they lie uncircumcised, slain by the sword.
[22] Asshur is there and all her company;
His graves are about him;
All of them slain, fallen by the sword:
[23] Whose graves are set in the sides of the pit,
And her company is round about her grave;
All of them slain, fallen by the sword,
Which caused †terror in the land of the living.
[24] There is Elam and all her multitude round about her grave,
All of them slain, fallen by the sword,
Which are gone down uncircumcised into the nether parts of the earth,
Which caused their terror in the land of the living;
Yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit.
[25] They have set her a bed in the midst of the slain
With all her multitude;
Her graves are round about him;
All of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword:
Though their terror was caused in the land of the living,
Yet have they borne their shame with them that go down to the pit;
He is put in the midst of them that be slain.
[26] There is Meshech, Tubal, and all her multitude;
Her graves are round about him;
All of them uncircumcised, slain by the sword,
Though they caused their terror in the land of the living.
[27] And they shall not lie with the mighty
That are fallen of the uncircumcised,
Which are gone down to hell ‡with their weapons of war;
And they have laid their swords under their heads,
But their iniquities shall be upon their bones,
Though they were the terror of the mighty in the land of the living.
[28] Yea, thou shalt be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised,
And shalt lie with them that are slain with the sword.
[29] There is Edom, her kings, and all her princes,
Which with their might are *laid by them that were slain by the sword;
They shall lie with the uncircumcised,
And with them that go down to the pit.
[30] There be the princes of the North,
All of them, and all the Zidonians,
Which are gone down with the slain;
With their terror they are ashamed of their might;
And they lie uncircumcised with them that be slain by the sword,
And bear their shame with them that go down to the pit.
[31] Pharaoh shall see them,
And shall be comforted over all his multitude,
Even Pharaoh and all his army,
Slain by the sword,' saith the Lord God.
[32] For I have caused my terror in the land of the living;
And he shall be laid in the midst of the uncircumcised
With them that are slain with the sword,
Even Pharaoh and all his multitude, saith the Lord God.

SECTION V.—Ezekiel's Appeal to the Captives in Babylon.

EZEKIEL xxxiii. 1–20.(40)

According to the duty of a watchman, in warning the people, 7 Ezekiel is admonished of his duty. 10 God showeth the justice of his ways towards the penitent, and towards revolters. 17 He maintaineth his justice.

1 AGAIN the word of the LORD came unto me, saying, 2 Son of man! speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them,—

* Heb. A land when I bring a sword upon her.

*When I bring the sword upon a land,
If the people of the land take a man of their coasts,
And set him for their watchman,
3 If when he seeth the sword come upon the land,
He blow the trumpet, and warn the people;

† Heb. he that hearing heareth.

4 Then †whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet, and taketh not warning,
If the sword come, and take him away,
His blood shall be upon his own head.
5 He heard the sound of the trumpet, and took not warning;
His blood shall be upon him.
But he that taketh warning shall deliver his soul.
6 But if the watchman see the sword come,
And blow not the trumpet, and the people be not warned;
If the sword come, and take any person from among them,
He is taken away in his iniquity;
But his blood will I require at the watchman's hand.
7 So thou, O son of man!
I have set thee a watchman unto the house of Israel;
Therefore thou shalt hear the word at my mouth, and warn them from me.
8 When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die!
If thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way,
That wicked man shall die in his iniquity;
But his blood will I require at thy hand.
9 Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it;
If he do not turn from his way, he shall die in his iniquity;
But thou hast delivered thy soul.
10 Therefore, O thou son of man, speak unto the house of Israel;
Thus ye speak, saying,—
"If our transgressions and our sins be upon us, and we pine away in them, How [a]should we then live?"

[a] So Is. 49. 14. Ez. 37. 11.

11 Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord GOD,
I [b]have no pleasure in the death of the wicked;
But that the wicked turn from his way and live—
Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways;
For why will ye die, O house of Israel?

[b] 2 Sa. 14. 14. 2 Pe. 3. 9.

12 Therefore, thou son of man, say unto the children of thy people,
The [c]righteousness of the righteous shall not deliver him
In the day of his transgression:
As for the wickedness of the wicked, [d]he shall not fall thereby
In the day that he turneth from his wickedness;
Neither shall the righteous be able to live for his righteousness
In the day that he sinneth.
13 When I shall say to the righteous, that he shall surely live;

[c] Ez. 3. 20. & 18. 24, 26, 27.

[d] 2 Ch. 7. 14.

---

(40) This part of chap. xxxiii. is inserted here, as it is placed in the sacred text immediately after the thirty-second; and I see no reason to alter its arrangement. Archbishop Newcome observes, "that Ezekiel certainly uttered the prediction contained in this chapter (ver. 1–21) before Jerusalem was taken, but how long is uncertain." The learned prelate, however, has not given his reason for this opinion: and from examining the contents of the prophecy, we may conclude, that the prophet might as justly be called a watchman to the people after, as before the captivity; and the reasoning is as perfectly applicable (perhaps more applicable) to the Jewish church in Babylon, as if they had remained in their own country.

If he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity,
All his righteousness shall not be remembered;
But for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for it.
[14] Again, when I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die;
‡ Heb. judgment and justice.
If he turn from his sin, and do ‡that which is lawful and right;
[15] If the wicked restore the pledge, e Ex. 22. 1, 4. Le. 6. 2, 4, 5. Nu. 5. 6, 7. Lu. 19. 8.
Give [e]again that he had robbed,
f Le. 18. 5.
Walk in [f]the statutes of life, without committing iniquity;
He shall surely live, he shall not die.
[16] None of his sins that he hath committed shall be mentioned unto him:
He hath done that which is lawful and right; he shall surely live.
[17] Yet the children of thy people say, "The way of the LORD is not equal;"
But as for them, their way is not equal.
[18] When the righteous turneth from his righteousness,
And committeth iniquity,
He shall even die thereby.
[19] But if the wicked turn from his wickedness,
And do that which is lawful and right,
He shall live thereby.
[20] Yet ye say, "The way of the LORD is not equal."
O ye house of Israel, I will judge you every one after his ways.

(41) In chapter xxxiv. God reproves the conduct of the governors of the Jewish people, ver. 1–11; and promises, under the symbol of a shepherd, to provide for them himself. He promises to restore them to their own land under the Messiah, under whose reign their happiness is beautifully described. Chapter xxxv. repeats the prophet's former denunciations against the Edomites (see chap. xxv. 12,) as a just punishment for their insults to the Jews during their calamities. The thirty-sixth chapter announces the general restoration of the Jews, and their consequent happiness. The same subject is illustrated in chapter xxxvii. 1–15, under the vision of a resurrection of dry bones; which many commentators have considered as remotely alluding to the general resurrection: under the union of two sticks (ver. 16, to the end) is foretold the union of Israel and Judah into one state and church under the Messiah.—Horne's Crit. Introd.

Yea, my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth,
And none did search or seek after them.
7 Therefore, ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD!
8 As I live, saith the Lord GOD,
Surely because my flock became a prey,
And my flock became meat to every beast of the field,
Because there was no shepherd, neither did my shepherds search for my flock,
But the shepherds fed themselves, and fed not my flock;
9 Therefore, O ye shepherds, hear the word of the LORD!
10 Thus saith the Lord GOD,
Behold, I am against the shepherds;
And [i]I will require my flock at their hand,
And cause them to cease from feeding the flock;
Neither shall the shepherds feed themselves any more;
For I will deliver my flock from their mouth,
That they may not be meat for them.
11 For thus saith the Lord GOD,
Behold, I, even I, will both search my sheep, and seek them out.
12 †As a shepherd seeketh out his flock
In the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered;
So will I seek out my sheep,
And will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered
In the cloudy and dark day.
13 And [j]I will bring them out from the people,
And gather them from the countries,
And will bring them to their own land,
And feed them upon the mountains of Israel
By the rivers, and in all the inhabited places of the country.
14 I [k]will feed them in a good pasture,
And upon the high mountains of Israel shall their fold be;
There [l]shall they lie in a good fold,
And in a fat pasture shall they feed upon the mountains of Israel.
15 I will feed my flock, and I will cause them to lie down,
Saith the Lord GOD.
16 I [m]will seek that which was lost,
And bring again that which was driven away,
And will bind up that which was broken,
And will strengthen that which was sick;
But I will destroy [n]the fat and the strong,
I will feed them with judgment.
17 And as for you, O my flock, thus saith the Lord GOD,
Behold, [o]I judge between ‡cattle and cattle, between the rams and the *he goats.
18 Seemeth it a small thing unto you to have eaten up the good pasture,
But ye must tread down with your feet the residue of your pastures?
And to have drunk of the deep waters,
But ye must foul the residue with your feet?
19 And as for my flock, they eat that which ye have trodden with your feet;
And they drink that which ye have fouled with your feet.
20 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD unto them,
Behold, I, even I, will judge between the fat cattle and between the lean cattle.
21 Because ye have thrust with side and with shoulder,
And pushed all the diseased with your horns,
Till ye have scattered them abroad;
22 Therefore will I save my flock, and they shall no more be a prey,
And I will judge between cattle and cattle.

EZEKIEL xxxvi.

1 Also, thou son of man, prophesy unto the mountains of Israel, and say,—

Ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the LORD!
2 Thus saith the Lord GOD,
Because the enemy hath said against you,
"Aha, even the ancient high places are ours in possession;"
3 Therefore prophesy and say, thus saith the Lord GOD, ‡ Heb. Because for because.
‡Because they have made you desolate, and swallowed you up on every side,
That ye might be a possession unto the residue of the heathen,

And [f]ye are *taken up in the lips of talkers,
And are an infamy of the people;
* Or, made to come upon the lip of the tongue.
4 Therefore, ye mountains of Israel, hear the word of the Lord GOD!
Thus saith the Lord GOD to the mountains, and to the hills,
† Or, bottoms, or, dales.
To the †rivers, and to the valleys,
To the desolate wastes, and to the cities that are forsaken,
Which became a prey and derision
To the residue of the heathen that are round about;
5 Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD,
g De. 4. 24.
Surely [g]in the fire of my jealousy have I spoken
Against the residue of the heathen, and against all Idumea,
Which have appointed my land into their possession
With the joy of all their heart,
With despiteful minds, to cast it out for a prey.
6 Prophesy therefore concerning the land of Israel,
And say unto the mountains, and to the hills,
To the rivers, and to the valleys,
Thus saith the Lord GOD,
Behold, I have spoken in my jealousy and in my fury,
Because ye have borne the shame of the heathen;
7 Therefore, thus saith the Lord GOD, I have lifted up my hand,
Surely the heathen that are about you—they shall bear their shame.
8 But ye, O mountains of Israel, ye shall shoot forth your branches,
And yield your fruit to my people of Israel;
For they are at hand to come.
9 For, behold, I am for you, and I will turn unto you,
And ye shall be tilled and sown;
10 And I will multiply men upon you,
All the house of Israel, even all of it;
h Is. 58. 12. & 61. 4. Am. 9. 14.
And the cities shall be inhabited, and [h]the wastes shall be builded;
i Je. 31. 27. & 33. 12.
11 And [i]I will multiply upon you man and beast,

And they shall increase and bring fruit;
And I will settle you after your old estates,
And will do better unto you than at your beginnings;
And ye shall know that I am the LORD.
[12] Yea, I will cause men to walk upon you, even my people Israel;
And [j]they shall possess thee, and thou shalt be their inheritance,
And thou shalt no more henceforth [k]bereave them of men.
[13] Thus saith the Lord GOD; Because they say unto you,
"Thou [l]land devourest up men, and hast bereaved thy nations;"
[14] Therefore thou shalt devour men no more,
Neither ‡bereave thy nations any more, saith the Lord GOD.
[15] Neither will I cause men to hear in thee the shame of the heathen any more,
Neither shalt thou bear the reproach of the people any more,
Neither shalt thou cause thy nations to fall any more, saith the Lord GOD.
[16] Moreover the word of the LORD came unto me, saying,—
[17] Son of man! when the house of Israel dwelt in their own land,
They [m]defiled it by their own way, and by their doings:
Their way was before me as [n]the uncleanness of a removed woman.
[18] Wherefore I poured my fury upon them
For the blood that they had shed upon the land,
And for their idols wherewith they had polluted it;
[19] And I scattered them among the heathen,
And they were dispersed through the countries:
According to their way and according to their doings I judged them.
[20] And when they entered unto the heathen, whither they went,
They [o]profaned my holy name, when they said to them,
"These are the people of the LORD, and are gone forth out of his land."
[21] But I had pity for my holy name, which the house of Israel had profaned
Among the heathen, whither they went.
[22] Therefore say unto the house of Israel, Thus saith the Lord GOD,
I do not this for your sakes, O house of Israel!
But for my holy name's sake, which ye have profaned
Among the heathen, whither ye went.
[23] And I will sanctify my great name, which was profaned among the heathen,
Which ye have profaned in the midst of them;
And the heathen shall know that I am the LORD,
Saith the Lord GOD, when I shall be sanctified in you before *their eyes.
[24] For I will take you from among the heathen,
And gather you out of all countries,
And will bring you into your own land.
[25] Then [p]will I sprinkle clean water upon you, and ye shall be clean;
From all your filthiness, and from all your idols, will I cleanse you.
[26] A [q]new heart also will I give you,
And a new spirit will I put within you;
And I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh,
And I will give you a heart of flesh.
[27] And I will put my Spirit within you,
And cause you to walk in my statutes,
And ye shall keep my judgments, and do them.

(42) The numerous interpretations which have been given by various writers* in our own days, to the several prophecies of the Old Testament, which allude to the latter times, and the fanciful manner in which the events of modern wars, changes, revolutions, and treaties, have been supposed to bear on these prophecies, have tended in a great degree to prejudice the generality of readers from attending to the hierophants who propose to conduct them through the recesses of the temple. Although so many speculative theories have been given to the world, still the study of prophecy is increasing, and almost every writer adds something to our stock of knowledge on this subject. The greater part of the prophecies of God have reference to events which are yet to take place, as well as to those which are already past. If any part of the ancient prophecies allude more plainly than others to the latter days, it is this of Ezekiel concerning Gog and Magog. It has undoubtedly not yet received its completion. Bishop Newton and Joseph Mede are of opinion, that the Gog and Magog of Ezekiel are different from the Gog and Magog of the Apocalypse,—that the former signify the Turks, whose expedition against the Holy Land will take place at the beginning of the Millennium. This opinion is strenuously opposed by Mr. Faber, who supposes, with Archbishop Newcome and Mr. Lowman, that the Gog and Magog of Ezekiel are the same as those of the Apocalypse: Mr. Faber divides these chapters in the following manner: "1. The restoration of Judah, partly in a converted, and partly in an unconverted state; and the contemporary war between the two parties, supported by their several allies. the maritime nation and antichrist. 2. The destruction of antichrist and his Roman colleagues, under the general mystic name of Edom, and the Lord's vindication of himself for restoring so stubborn a race as that of the Jews. 3. The national resurrection of Judah and Israel, to which the overgrown power of antichrist was the only impediment, and their everlasting union under the mystic David their prince. 4. The commencement of the Millennium season of blessedness and tranquillity. 5. The destruction of Gog and Magog."

I cannot venture to express an opinion on this subject. The prophecy certainly refers to those great events which are repeatedly alluded to in other predictions of Holy Writ, as about to take place at the end of the world. In this and similar passages, it may be said, "coming events cast their shadows before:" yet we cannot penetrate into the clouds and thick darkness that encircle the future. We are both exhorted and encouraged to study the word of prophecy; not with the view of indulging curiosity, but of enforcing humility; to strengthen our faith, by enabling us so plainly to see the hand of Providence, in the past and present, that we may believe the promises which relate to the future. As the present dispensation of the kingdom of the Messiah was predicted in general and indefinite terms to the ancient Jews, so is the millennial period of the world predicted to us. As the Jew was called on to believe in those ages of the Church, so is the Christian required to believe at present. As the former prophecies have been fulfilled, so will the latter be accomplished.—Vide Faber's View of the Prophecies, relative to the Conversion, Restoration, Union, and future Glory of the Houses of Judah and Israel, vol. ii. prophecy xxv.; Newton On the Prophecies, Dissert. xxv.; Mede's Works, book iv. epist. 54; and Faber On the Prophecies relative to the Period of 1260 Years, vol. i. chap. vi.

Neither cut down any out of the forests,
For they shall burn the weapons with fire;
And [o]they shall spoil those that spoiled them, [o] Is. 14. 2.
And rob those that robbed them, saith the Lord God.

11 And it shall come to pass in that day, that I will give unto Gog a place there of graves in Israel, the valley of the passengers on the east of the sea; and it shall stop the †noses of the passengers: and there shall they bury Gog and all his multitude; and they shall call it The Valley of ‡Hamon-gog. 12 And seven months shall the house of Israel be burying of them, that they may cleanse the land. 13 Yea, all the people of the land shall bury them; and it shall be to them a renown the day that I shall be glorified, saith the Lord God. 14 And they shall sever out *men of continual employment, passing through the land to bury with the passengers those that remain upon the face of the earth, to cleanse it; after the end of seven months shall they search. 15 And the passengers that pass through the land, when any

[17] And, thou son of man, thus saith the Lord GOD, [p]Speak *unto every feathered fowl, and to every beast of the field,—

Assemble [q]yourselves, and come;
Gather yourselves on every side to my †sacrifice that I do sacrifice [for you,
Even a great sacrifice upon the mountains of Israel,
That ye may eat flesh, and drink blood.
[18] Ye [r]shall eat the flesh of the mighty,
And drink the blood of the princes of the earth,
Of rams, of lambs, and of ‡goats, of bullocks,
All of them [s]fatlings of Bashan.
[19] And ye shall eat fat till ye be full,
And drink blood till ye be drunken,
Of my sacrifice which I have sacrificed for you.
[20] Thus ye shall be filled at my table with horses and chariots,
With [t]mighty men, and with all men of war, saith the Lord GOD.
[21] And I will set my glory among the heathen,
And all the heathen shall see my judgment that I have executed,
And [u]my hand that I have laid upon them.
[22] So the house of Israel shall know that I am the LORD their God
From that day and forward.
[23] And the heathen shall know
That the house of Israel went into captivity for their iniquity;
Because they trespassed against me,
Therefore [v]hid I my face from them,
And [w]gave them into the hand of their enemies:
So fell they all by the sword.
[24] According to their uncleanness
And according to their transgressions have I done unto them,
And hid my face from them.
[25] Therefore thus saith the Lord GOD,
Now [x]will I bring again the captivity of Jacob,
And have mercy upon the [y]whole house of Israel,
And will be jealous for my holy name;
[26] After [z]that they have borne their shame,
And all their trespasses whereby they have trespassed against me,
When they [a]dwelt safely in their land, and none made them afraid.
[27] When I have brought them again from the people,
And gathered them out of their enemies' lands,
And am sanctified in them in the sight of many nations;
[28] Then shall they know that I am the LORD their God,
*Which caused them to be led into captivity among the heathen;
But I have gathered them unto their own land,
And have left none of them any more there.
[29] Neither [b]will I hide my face any more from them;
For I have [c]poured out my spirit upon the house of Israel,
Saith the Lord GOD.

(43) This vision of the second temple was presented to Ezekiel towards the conclusion of his mission. In his preceding prophecies he predicted the return of the Jews to their own land—the punishment of their enemies—the great contest which should take place in the latter days—and the eventual overthrow of the power of Gog and Magog. From this subject he is naturally led to describe the

[1] In the five and twentieth year of our captivity, in the beginning of the year, in the tenth day of the month, in the fourteenth year after that the city was smitten, in the self-same day the hand of the Lord was upon me, and brought me thither. [2] In the visions of God brought a Re. 21. 10. he me into the land of Israel, [a]and set me upon a very high mountain,
* Or, upon which. *by which was as the frame of a city on the south. [3] And he brought b Da. 10. 6. me thither, and, behold, there was a man, whose appearance was [b]like c Re. 11. 1. & 21. 15. the appearance of brass, with a line of flax in his hand, and [c]a measuring reed; and he stood in the gate. [4] And the man said unto me,—

Son of man, behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears,
And set thy heart upon all that I shall show thee,
For to the intent that I might show them unto thee
Art thou brought hither;
Declare all that thou seest to the house of Israel.

[5] And behold a wall on the outside of the house round about, and in the man's hand a measuring reed of six cubits long by the cubit and a hand breadth; so he measured the breadth of the building, one reed, and the height, one reed.

† Heb. whose face was the way toward the east. [6] Then came he unto the gate †which looketh toward the east, and went up the stairs thereof, and measured the threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad; and the other threshold of the gate, which was one reed broad. [7] And every little chamber was one reed long, and one reed broad; and between the little chambers were five cubits; and the threshold of the gate by the porch of the gate within was one reed. [8] He measured also the porch of the gate within, one reed.
[9] Then measured he the porch of the gate, eight cubits; and the posts thereof, two cubits; and the porch of the gate was inward. [10] And the little chambers of the gate eastward were three on this side, and three on that side; they three were of one measure; and the posts had one measure on this side and on that side. [11] And he measured the breadth of the entry of the gate, ten cubits; and the length of ‡ Heb. limit, or, bound. the gate, thirteen cubits. [12] The ‡space also before the little chambers was one cubit on this side, and the space was one cubit on that side; and the little chambers were six cubits on this side, and six cubits on that side. [13] He measured then the gate from the roof of one little chamber to the roof of another; the breadth was five and twenty cubits, door against door. [14] He made also posts of threescore cubits, even unto the post of the court round about the gate. [15] And from the peaceful and flourishing state of the Church in the latter days, typified by the rebuilding of the temple, on the return of the people after the decree of Cyrus. This rebuilding is circumstantially described, but expressions are used respecting the glory of the Divine Presence, which is represented as filling the house, which could not refer to that temple. The new temple, described by Ezekiel is larger than all Jerusalem, and the new Jerusalem larger than all the land of Canaan; these prophetic dimensions, therefore, demonstrate that these things cannot be understood literally, but spiritually. The expression, ch. xliii. 5, "The place of my throne, and the place of the soles of my feet, where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel for ever," cannot allude to the glory which, in the person of Christ, only temporally visited the second temple. It evidently seems to prefigure the eventual restoration and ultimate glory of the Jewish nation, when they should again inhabit the land of their fathers, and rebuild in Jerusalem the temple of Jehovah.—Vide A Dissertation on Ezekiel's Vision of the Temple, Ordinances of the Priests, &c. by Archbishop Secker, inserted in Archbishop Newcome's Translation of Ezekiel; Lightfoot's Chronicle, p. 132.

[26] And there were seven steps to go up to it, and the arches thereof were before them; and it had palm trees, one on this side, and another on that side, upon the posts thereof. [27] And there was a gate in the inner court toward the south; and he measured from gate to gate toward the south an hundred cubits.

[28] And he brought me to the inner court by the south gate; and he measured the south gate according to these measures; [29] and the little chambers thereof, and the posts thereof, and the arches thereof, according to these measures; and there were windows in it and in the arches thereof round about; it was fifty cubits long, and five and twenty cubits broad. [32] And he brought me into the inner court toward the east; and he measured the gate according to these measures. [37] And the posts thereof were toward the outer court; and palm trees were upon the posts thereof, on this side, and on that side: and the going up to it had eight steps.

[38] And the chambers and the entries thereof were by the posts of the gates, where they washed the burnt offering. [39] And in the porch of the gate were two tables on this side, and two tables on that side, to slay thereon the burnt offering and [f]the sin offering and [g]the trespass offering. [40] And at the side without, †as one goeth up to the entry of the north gate, were two tables; and on the other side, which was at the porch of the gate, were two tables. [41] Four tables were on this side, and four tables on that side, by the side of the gate; eight tables, whereupon they slew their sacrifices. [42] And the four tables were of hewn stone for the burnt offering, of a cubit and a half long, and a cubit and a half broad, and one cubit high: whereupon also they laid the instruments wherewith they slew the burnt offering and the sacrifice. [43] And within were ‡hooks, a hand broad, fastened round about; and upon the tables was the flesh of the offering.

[11] And the doors of the side chambers were toward the place that was left, one door toward the north, and another door toward the south; and the breadth of the place that was left was five cubits round about.

[12] Now the building that was before the separate place at the end toward the west was seventy cubits broad; and the wall of the building was five cubits thick round about, and the length thereof ninety cubits. [13] So he measured the house, an hundred cubits long; and the separate place, and the building, with the walls thereof, an hundred cubits long; [14] also the breadth of the face of the house, and of the separate place toward the east, an hundred cubits.

[15] And he measured the length of the building over against the separate place which was behind it, and the *galleries thereof on the one side and on the other side, an hundred cubits, with the inner temple, and the porches of the court; [16] the door posts, and the narrow windows, and the galleries round about on their three stories, over against the door, †ceiled with wood round about, ‡and from the ground up to the windows, and the windows were covered; [17] to that above the door, even unto the inner house, and without, and by all the wall round about within and without, by *measure.

[23] And [u]the temple and the sanctuary had two doors. [24] And the doors had two leaves apiece, two turning leaves; two leaves for the one door, and two leaves for the other door. [1] Then he brought me forth into the outer court, the way EZEKIEL xlii.
toward the north; and he brought me into the chamber that was over against the separate place, and which was before the building toward the north. [2] Before the length of an hundred cubits was the north door, and the breadth was fifty cubits. [3] Over against the twenty cubits which were for the inner court, and over against the pavement which was for the outer court, was gallery against gallery in three stories. [4] And before the chambers was a walk of ten cubits' breadth inward, a way of one cubit; and their doors toward the north. [5] Now the upper chambers were shorter; for the galleries ‡were higher than these, *than the lower, and than the middlemost of the building. [6] For they were in three stories, but had not pillars as the pillars of the courts; therefore the building was straitened more than the lowest and the middlemost from the ground.

‡ Or, did eat of these.

* Or, and the building consisted of the lower and the middlemost.

[7] And the wall that was without over against the chambers, toward the outer court on the forepart of the chambers, the length thereof was court was fifty cubits; and, lo! before the temple were an hundred *as one goeth into them from the outer court. [10] The chambers were in the thickness of the wall of the court towards the east, over against the separate place, and over against the building. [11] And the way before them was like the appearance of the chambers which were toward the north, (as long as they, and as broad as they;) and all their goings out were both according to their fashions, and according to their doors.

[12] And according to the doors of the chambers that were toward the south was a door in the head of the way, even the way directly before the wall toward the east, as one entereth into them.

[13] Then said he unto me, The north chambers and the south chambers, which are before the separate place, they be holy chambers, where the priests that approach unto the Lord [v]shall eat the most holy things; there shall they lay the most holy things, and [w]the meat offering, and the sin offering, and the trespass offering, for the place is holy. [14] When the priests enter therein, then shall they not go out of the holy place into the outer court, but there they shall lay their garments wherein they minister, (for they are holy;) and shall put on other garments, and shall approach to those things which are for the people.

[15] Now when he had made an end of measuring the inner house, he

[1] Then he brought me back the way of the gate of the outward sanctuary which looketh toward the east; and it was shut. [2] Then said the LORD unto me, This gate shall be shut, it shall not be opened, and no man shall enter in by it; because the LORD, the God of Israel, hath entered in by it, therefore it shall be shut. [3] It is for the prince; the prince, he shall sit in it to [o]eat bread before the LORD; he shall enter by the way of the porch of that gate, and shall go out by the way of the same.

[4] Then brought he me the way of the north gate before the house. And I looked, and, behold, the glory of the LORD filled the house of the LORD; and I fell upon my face. [5] And the LORD said unto me, Son of man! ‡mark well, and behold with thine eyes, and hear with thine ears all that I say unto thee concerning all the ordinances of the house of the LORD, and all the laws thereof; and mark well the entering in of the house, with every going forth of the sanctuary. (44) The date of this prophecy proves that it was the last given by Ezekiel. In all probability, it was placed in the Sacred Canon, where it there stands, that all the prophecies against Egypt might come together. In the second year after the destruction of Jerusalem, Nebuchadnezzar laid siege to Tyre. The siege was long and laborious: it lasted thirteen years. The heads of the soldiers were "made bald" by disease and by toil; their shoulders were "peeled" by carrying earth to raise mounts and fortifications against it; yet Nebuchadnezzar had (Ezek. xxix. 18,) "no wages, nor his army, for Tyrus, for the service that he had served against it:" for as soon as the inhabitants found the works for carrying on the siege were perfected, and the foundations of the walls were shaken by the battering rams, whatsoever precious things in gold, silver, clothes, and various kinds of furniture, the nobility had, they put them on board their ships, and carried them to the islands; so that when the city was taken, Nebuchadnezzar found "no wages," either for himself or his army. To compensate for this disappointment, the plunder of Egypt is promised; "her multitude, her spoil, and her prey," (ver. 19.) Accordingly, in the spring of the year, after the Tyrian war was finished, Nebuchadnezzar invaded Egypt, and quickly overran the whole extent of the country from Migdol, or Magdolus, its northern extremity, near the Red Sea, to Syene, the southern, bordering on Ethiopia, or Abyssinia, which part of the country he also reduced with the other auxiliaries of the Egyptians. In the course of this war, that "cruel lord and fierce king" so wasted and depopulated the land with fire and sword, that it lay desolate for forty years, (Ezek. xxix. 11;) he defeated Hophra, or Apries, and forced him to become his vassal, (Jer. xlvi. 25, 26;) soon after which this king was slain by his own subjects, (Herod. ii. § 162–169,) fulfilling Jeremiah's prophecy, xliv. 30, and Ezekiel's, xxxii. 32. From this period commenced the fulfilment of that prophecy which declared that Egypt should be the basest of kingdoms, and there should no more reign over it an independent, native prince; it was ever after successively subject to the Babylonians, Persians, Macedonians, Romans, Saracens, Mamelukes, and it is at the present day a province of the Ottoman empire.—Newton On the Prophecies.

The rise and fall of empires, the destruction of cities and countries, is the work of God's almighty providence. Egypt, though so finely situated for commerce, once at the height of grandeur, and in the possession of every natural and intellectual superiority, has never, can never recover itself. God makes use of kings and princes as instruments of his will, (Ez. xxix ver. 20;) and the human ambition, the violence and worldly power of man, are all overruled to the accomplishment of his prophecies, and the fulfilment of his decrees. "My counsel shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure."

(45) The expression, "In that day will I cause the horn of the house of Israel to bud forth," appears to have a primary allusion to the promotion and distinction of the prophet Daniel at Babylon.

When Nebuchadnezzar returned home after his Egyptian and other conquests, Daniel interpreted the king's dream; by which means he obtained the favor of the sovereign, both for himself and his countrymen; and to this circumstance may be attributed the high estimation in which the Jews were held in the place of their captivity, and that series of events which terminated in their restoration by Cyrus.

(46) With this prediction against Egypt, the prophecies of Ezekiel, according to the present arrangement, are concluded. Ezekiel was at this time in captivity at Babylon, and is supposed, by Selden, to have conversed in that country with Pythagoras. The dispersion of the Jews, in their several captivities, conferred many benefits on mankind; among which may be mentioned, its effects on the progress of philosophy and literature in Greece. As this is a subject which has not frequently been discussed, I have considered it in the following note; as another proof of the wonderful superintendence of an all-wise Providence over the affairs of men.

The communication between Egypt and Judæa was uniform and constant. Even in the wilderness, the people murmured to return to that country; and, after the establishment of the Jews in the Holy Land, although prohibited by the Mosaic Law, we find an intercourse still prevailed between the two nations. Solomon, the wisest of their kings, married the daughter of Pharaoh, and in future reigns Egyptians were admitted into Judæa to contribute to its defence. In the time of Pharaoh Necho, however, we find that Josiah king of Israel "went out against" the king of Egypt, (2 Chron. xxxv. 20, and xxxvi. 4.) and that his son Jehoahaz was taken prisoner into Egypt. The circumstances of his captivity were depictured on the walls of the chief temples in Egypt, as has been singularly discovered by the enterprising and ingenious traveller Belzoni. In war, the Jews were carried captive into this country; in peace they courted its alliance; and in time of danger fled to it for refuge. After the destruction of Jerusalem, the Jews compelled Jeremiah to accompany them into Egypt, where they shared the fate of the natives, during the terrible destruction of that country by the army of Nebuchadnezzar, in 572 B. C.

From this intimate alliance between the two nations, it is evident, that all those strangers who might have sojourned in Egypt, either for the purposes of commerce, or the acquisition of knowledge, must have been made acquainted with the Jews, whose history was so closely interwoven with that of the Egyptians. In the same manner, all those who travelled into Babylon during this period of the ruin of Egypt, and the captivity of the Jews, would there meet also some of the Jewish nation; whose peculiar history must have excited interest, and whose laws, customs, opinions, and writings, must have been generally known.

The Greeks from the earliest periods appear to have held constant communication with Egypt. Many of the Grecian tribes were of Egyptian origin. The Egyptians were celebrated for their wisdom: and it is "generally acknowledged (Warburton's Divine Legation, vol. ii. p. 105,) by the Greeks themselves, that all their learning and wisdom came from Egypt; and the Greeks are unanimous in this assertion. The first who went out of Greece to learn Egyptian wisdom were the legislators; or such as, projecting to reduce the scattered tribes, which then overran Greece, into civil society, travelled thither to learn the art of lawgiving, from a nation the most celebrated for that knowledge. Of these were Orpheus, Rhadamanthus, Minos, Lycaon, Triptolemus, and others. The next who went to Greece for instruction (though the intercourse of the lawgivers with Egypt was not interrupted, but continued down to the times of Draco, Lycurgus, and Solon) were the naturalists, who through their whole course bore the name of Sophists. For now Greece being advanced from a savage and barbarous state to one of civil polity, the inhabitants, in consequence of the cultivation of the arts of life, began to refine and speculate. The last sort of people who went to Egypt for instruction, were the philosophers, properly so called; a character exactly compounded of the two preceding, the lawgiver and the naturalist. For when now, after various struggles and revolutions, the Grecian states had asserted or regained their liberties, morals, public and private, would become the subject most in fashion." Thus far Bishop Warburton; and Gale, Stillingfleet, Cudworth, and others, have amply shown that there was a constant communication between Greece and Egypt. Knowledge of every kind was derived by the former from the latter, and all that was known in Egypt was gradually transferred to Greece.

In this state of things it is natural to conclude, that the Greeks must have been intimately acquainted with the history and polity of the Jewish people. We shall now, therefore, consider the effects of this knowledge on the literature and character of the Greeks.

From the period of the dispersion of the Jews among the Egyptians and the Babylonians, we find that the Greeks began to have more exalted and refined ideas of a Deity; and that they applied themselves more particularly to that philosophy and literature, which contributed so eminently to raise them to the highest intellectual rank among ancient or modern nations.

All the sects and schools of philosophy, in ancient Greece, originated from the Ionic and the Italic sects. The Ionic sect was founded by Thales, the Italic by Pythagoras. Thales was born about the year 640 B. C., and is remarkable, as being the first Grecian who taught a regular system of philosophy, and left a succession of disciples to establish and maintain it. He travelled into Egypt while he was a young man, and resided there several years. If he went into that country when at the age of twenty or twenty-five, and resided there ten or more years, (and this period was not beyond that which was usually passed by the students of the Egyptian learning,) he would have been in Egypt when Jehoahaz, king of Judah, was brought there as a prisoner by Pharaoh Necho. The attention of the curious Greek must naturally have been attracted by the various captive strangers thus introduced into Egypt; and while he improved himself in those sciences in which the Egyptians excelled, it is highly probably (and a high degree of probability is all that can be obtained, in the attempt to ascertain the events of these remote periods) that from conversing with these Jewish captives, he acquired some of those great and truly philosophical notions, which he afterwards taught at his native Miletus, and in Greece.

The chief of these opinions were, that the world was not eternal, but was made by God the Spirit out of water; an opinion which seems to be derived from the Mosaic and Christian doctrine, "The Spirit of God moved on the face of the waters;" that the world, being God's workmanship, was exceedingly good or perfect; that the universe was filled with invisible spirits, who inspect the actions of men. Thales was the first of the Greeks who made any philosophic inquiries into the nature and perfections of God; for though, as Gale remarks, Orpheus, Linus, Homer, and Hesiod, had some traditions of God, their value was obscured by a mixture with pagan fables. Thales, however, delivered his knowledge concerning God in a more plain and simple manner. He first maintained among the Greeks, that God was the most ancient of beings; that his providence governs the world; and explained to them the wonderful phenomena of nature. These excellent opinions and information appear to have been till now unknown to the Greeks, and are evidently derived from purer sources than from invented traditions or speculative pagan philosophy. From the Jews alone, therefore, with whom Thales became acquainted in Egypt, could he have received those ideas of God and his providence, which shine as a meteor through the dark mist of the ignorance and blindness of that superstitious age.

Thales was succeeded by Anaximander, Anaximenes, and Anaxagoras, the friend and tutor of Pericles; by Diogenes Apolloniates, and by Archelaus, the instructor of Socrates. The various sects, which are referred to the Ionic school, are the Socratic, founded by Socrates, among whose disciples and followers are Xenophon, Plato, Euclid, and Alcibiades; the Cyrenaic sect, founded by Aristippus; the Megaric, established by Euclid of Megara; the Eretriac, or Eliac school, instituted by Phædo, of Elis; the Academic sect, founded by Plato, whose school, after his death, was divided into the old, middle, and new academies; the Peripatetic, founded by Aristotle; the Cynic, by Antisthenes; the Stoic, by Zeno. These sects continued till the time of Christ; and when St. Paul visited Athens, he found the Greeks still engaged in disputes and inquiries into the mysteries and difficulties of philosophy. Although the purest and most refined speculations of the best and most celebrated of these philosophers, fall far short of the principles and morality inculcated by the Christian dispensation, they still served to advance the progress of Christianity; or rather, they tended to diminish the superstitious reverence paid to the pagan deities. The commonest of the people became at last sensible that their philosophers only adhered to the religious ceremonies of the established superstition, from mere compliance with popular custom; and all the reflecting part of the community were divided, in a state of doubt and uncertainty: Socrates, in particular, declared, that a teacher from heaven was necessary to impart instruction to mankind.

Moral philosophy may be considered as a light to the dark and ignorant age in which it flourished: but when compared with Christianity, it is little his sleep brake from him. [2] Then the king commanded to call the magicians, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans, for to show the king his dreams. So they came and stood before the king. [3] And the king said unto them, "I have dreamed a dream, and my spirit less than the very darkness it so partially illuminated. Philosophy, at the height of its splendor, displayed only the corruption, the folly, and the degradation of the human mind when deprived of revelation. It was like a taper in a charnel-house at midnight, which disperses the darkness of the tomb, and shows to the sickening spectator how melancholy is the sight of humanity, when bereaved of life and spirit.

Though the accounts of Pythagoras are mingled with fable, there is abundant authority to induce us to believe that this philosopher conversed likewise with the Jews of the dispersion at Tyre in Phœnicia; and probably at Mount Carmel, where, it is said, his walk was long shown. It is certain that he was in Egypt, and many suppose that he was taken prisoner into that country, either by Nebuchadnezzar, or by Cambyses. From Egypt he either went or was taken to Babylon, where again he must have acquired an intimate knowledge of the Jews; and in this latter place he is said to have had for an instructor Zabratas, or Nazaratus; whom the learned Selden supposes to have been Ezekiel; and Prideaux, Zoroaster. The exact period of the birth of Pythagoras is not certainly known. The accounts of his life, now extant, are uncertain and contradictory: that which appears most probable and satisfactory, informs us, that at the age of eighteen he consulted Thales at Miletus, who recommended him to visit Egypt.

From Miletus he proceeded to Tyre, (the place of his nativity, though educated at Samos;) from thence he travelled to Egypt, with letters to Amasis from Polycrates, tyrant of Samos. He quited Egypt for Babylon, where he continued twelve years, and conversed with Zabratas or Nazaratus: he is then supposed to have returned to his own country, and to have been at that time about fifty-six years of age.

The birth of Pythagoras is referred by the learned Dr. Bentley to the year B. C. 605; by Bishop Lloyd to B. C. 583; by Dodwell to B. C. 569; by Le Clerc to a period not earlier than the first nor later than the last of these. If, then, we take the medium date, which would be 587, or that of Bishop Lloyd's at 583, it will assist us to account in a great degree for those changes of Pythagoras from one country to another.

If he was born in 583, and returned home in the fifty-sixth year of his age, after remaining twelve years at Babylon, twenty-two in Egypt, and consulting Thales at Miletus in the eighteenth year of his age, the several dates of these events may be thus arranged:

Birth of Pythagoras..................	583 B. C.
Visits Thales, at Miletus.............	565
Travels to Phœnicia, Tyre, and Palestine	563
Resides in Egypt from 563 to........	541
Resides in Babylon from 541 to.......	529
Returns to Samos..................	529

On comparing the above dates with the various events recorded in the history of the times, we shall find that Thales, in the year 565, was in all probability at Miletus. He was then seventy-five years old: an age when travelling could have been no longer desirable; and before Crœsus, king of Lydia, had engaged him in his service. He died, aged more than ninety-six years, in the court of that monarch.

In B. C. 563, the whole country of Judæa was still desolate; not having recovered from its last ravage by Nebuzaradan. In this year Nebuchadnezzar was restored from his lycanthropy, and the Jews were rising into distinction in the Persian empire. Leaving Judæa and its refugees, whom he might have found both at Tyre and Carmel, Pythagoras proceeded to Egypt. He would there meet with many of the Jews who had fled with Jeremiah from Judæa nineteen years preceding. From them, as well as from the natives, he would learn the fulfilment of that prophet's predictions respecting Apries. This and other circumstances exciting his curiosity, he at last visited Babylon, where he is supposed to have arrived in the year 541, and two years before the death of Belshazzar.

During his residence of twelve years in Babylon, Pythagoras must have been a spectator of the wonderful events recorded in the Book of Daniel. The greatest statesman of the day in Babylon, was a Jew. As the time and manner of Ezekiel's death are unknown, and as in this year, Ezekiel, if alive, would not be more than fifty-three years of age, it is by no means improbable that he might have conversed, as tradition asserts, with that prophet. Pythagoras must have been informed of the decree of Cyrus, B. C. 536, for the return of the Jews, and as he must have been acquainted with the prophecies thereby fulfilled, it is not improbable that he was a wondering spectator of their departure for their own land. At Babylon he undoubtedly saw the schools or universities established by the Jews; for he introduced into his own country institutions which were characterized by similar regulations to those adopted by the Jews.

Struck with astonishment at all he read, or heard, or saw, of this persecuted and favored people, we cannot be surprised that he should have engrafted many of the purer truths of morality on his system of philosophy.

Pythagoras quitted Babylon in 529, the same year that Cyrus died. It is probable his departure was accelerated by the cruel and tyrannical government of Cambyses his successor. In this year the Greek philosopher returned home; and dissatisfied with the political state of affairs at Samos, he taught his new system, called the Italic philosophy, in the towns of Magna Grecia.

The philosophy of Pythagoras, so far as it is known, may be described as a mixture of Persian, Grecian, and Egyptian superstition, interwoven with Jewish doctrines, institutions, and customs. The numerous coincidences between his enactments and those of the Jews are found in the similarity of discipline established in his schools and colleges; in his distinction between the perfect, or the initiated, and the novice, the τελειος, and the νεόφυτος, or the תמים, and נטע of the Jews; in the covenant among the members of his colleges, in the use of salt as a sign of union or agreement, and some others.

The doctrines of Pythagoras must have tended to remove many of the evils of polytheism and idolatry.

He acknowledged but one God, the Creator of the world. He had some idea of the sacred name, the Tetragrammaton of the Jews, which he revealed as a mystery to his disciples. He describes the Deity in the very words of the Hebrew Scriptures, as the יה, the το ὀν, the self-existent. He taught by this definition that God was infinite and eternal; a truth which human reason, unassisted by divine revelation, has never yet discovered. He likewise instructed his disciples in the doctrine of a peculiar providence, particularly over good men—the necessity of pure worship—the immortality of the soul—the incorporeality of the Deity. His morality was troubled to know the dream." [4] Then spake the Chaldeans to the king in Syriac, "O king, live for ever! tell thy servants the dream, and we will show the interpretation." [5] The king answered and said to the Chaldeans, "The thing is gone from me; if ye will not make known evidently sprung from a purer source than from the profane worship of pagan deities; his golden verses (if they are certainly his) are evidently transcripts of the Mosaic precepts; and virtuous will be the life, and tranquil the death of that man who habitually observes the precepts they contain, and thrice reviews the actions of the day, before he resigns himself to rest at night.

The Italic sect flourished till the end of the reign of Alexander. It gave rise to the Eleatic, the Heraclitean, the Epicurean, and the Pyrrhonic sects, whose doctrines, however, differed materially from those enforced by Pythagoras himself. When the best pagan philosophy, considered as a system, is compared with Christianity, the observations already made on the speculations of Thales are equally applicable. But when we consider this philosophy as a virtuous effort of the human mind to penetrate through the darkness and superstition by which it was surrounded; and gaining by these efforts, and the light they borrowed from revelation, more pure ideas of morality, and more just notions of a Deity, we are called upon to acknowledge that philosophy was beneficial to man, and that those who acquiesced in the doctrines of Pythagoras, and received the better part of his system, must have been wiser and purer than their more ignorant or prejudiced countrymen.

That the Greeks, therefore, were indebted to their intercourse with the Jews for the origin of their philosophy is highly probable; it is, therefore, no less probable, that their literature may be partly traced to the same source. From the temperance Pythagoras uniformly practised, it is probable that his life was extended to a late period. He is supposed to have perished in consequence of a political disturbance in the seventieth Olympiad, about the year 503 B. C. If this tradition be correct, he must at this time have entered his eighty-third or eighty-fourth year.

Æschylus, the founder of the Greek drama in its present form, would have been at that time about twenty-five years of age; and though we are not acquainted with the particulars of his early life, we may naturally conclude that one so eminent would have carefully instructed himself in all the philosophy and learning of his age. A Pythagorean in principle, many of his sentiments are the same as those taught in the golden verses of Pythagoras. We may justly conclude, therefore, that this great tragedian was either personally acquainted with, and a disciple of the Samian; or that he was well versed in the system promulgated by that philosopher. Like many of his countrymen, he gave offence to the people, by deviating from received opinions. In the mythology of Æschylus, Dr. Gray observes, there is frequent reference to principles originating in revelation. In the passage cited by Eusebius, he describes the Supreme God as a being who is carefully to be distinguished from mortals, having nothing like the body of man. At one time he declares, that God shines forth in unapproachable fire: at another he invests Him in the elements, appearing in the wind, thunder, and lightning! He represents the ocean, the rocks, and the fountains as ministering to the Supreme Being; the hills, and the earth, the depths of the sea, and the summits of the mountains as trembling at His presence. The piercing eye of God he describes as overlooking all things, for the glory of the highest God is powerful. His celebrated scene in the Persæ, in which the shade of Darius is summoned by Atossa, is very similar to the account of the appearance of Samuel to Saul, as related in the narrative of the witch of Endor. Many of the Christian fathers have asserted, that the character of "Prometheus" could not have been drawn, unless the author of that drama had been acquainted with the Sacred Writings, or with at least many of the prophetic books. The subject deserves to be considered at greater length than this note admits. Yet I cannot but observe, that the dramas of Æschylus exhibit the most decisive evidence of his acquaintance with the Sacred Writings; and it is probable that they were partly made known to him by his tutor and contemporary, Pythagoras. Similarity of description only, with identity of expression, would not prove this point; these, it is true, might be mere coincidences: but where the same personifications are used, we may justly conclude, that the resemblance is not accidental. In Jeremiah xlvii. 6, we meet with this bold personification—"O thou sword of the Lord, how long will it be ere thou be quiet? put up thyself into thy scabbard, rest, and be still. How can it be quiet, seeing the Lord hath given it a charge against Ashkelon?"—The same metaphor is adopted by Æschylus,—

Ξενὸς δὲ κλήρους ἐπινωμᾷ χάλυβος, σκυθῶν ἄποικος κτεάνων χρηματοδαίτας
πικρος, ὠμόφρων σίδαρος,
χθόνα ναίειν διαπήλας,
Οπόσαν ἂν καὶ φθιμένους κατέχειν,
Τῶν μεγάλων πεδίων ἀμοίρους.
επτ᾽ επι Θηβας.
Pors. edit. line 727.

And, as if the idea was a favorite one with the poet, it is twice again repeated in the same drama. In Ezekiel xvii. 20, we read, "Thus saith the Lord God, I will spread my net over him, and he shall be taken in my snare;" and the same expression is used in other passages of Scripture, to describe a state of inextricable difficulty, of distress, or ruin. The same metaphor is applied by Æschylus to describe the ruin of Troy,—

Ω Ζεῦ βασιλεῦ, καὶ νὺξ φιλία,
Μεγάλων κόσμων κτεάτειρα
Ητ' ἐπὶ Τροίας πύργοις ἔβαλες
Στεγανὸν δίκτυον.
Agamemnon, line 356, Pors. edit.

In Ezekiel xxvi. 3.—"I am against thee, O Tyrus, and will cause many nations to come up against thee, as the sea causeth his waves to come up." Æschylus has adopted the same idea, βοᾷ γὰρ κῦμα χερσαῖον στρατοῦ.

επτ᾽ επι Θηβ᾽.—Line 64.

And many other parallel passages might be found. The tragedians who followed Æschylus, although perhaps inferior to him in sublimity, maintained an exalted nobleness of moral sentiment. A higher tone seems to have been given to the public mind in Greece, which cannot entirely be attributed to their political institutions, or to the incessant agitation and restlessness of mind induced by their party dissensions. We must refer this intellectual elevation to a more intellectual source; to the spirit of their philosophy, morality, and poetry, which was partially derived from the purer fountains of the Hebrew Scriptures. And the peculiar object of Providence, in thus communicating to the Greeks, through the dispersion and captivity of the Jews, some knowledge of a purer creed, was shown in you; for ye have prepared lying and corrupt words to speak before me, till the time be changed: therefore tell me the dream, and I shall deans answered before the king, and said, "There is not a man upon the earth that can show the king's matter; therefore there is no king, lord, nor ruler, that asked such things at any magician, or astrologer, or Chaldean. [11] And it is a rare thing that the king requireth, and there is none other that can show it before the king, except the gods, whose dwelling is not with flesh." [12] For this cause the king was angry and very furious, and commanded to destroy all the wise men of Babylon.

they sought Daniel and his fellows to be slain.

subsequent ages, when that language was selected to impart the knowledge of the Scriptures to the world. The universality of the Greek language may be attributed to the general interest excited by the Greek drama, the splendid compositions of the poets, and the more exalted speculations of their philosophers. (47) In Daniel i. 5, 6, we read that Daniel, with some other Jewish captives, was placed under the care of the master of the eunuchs, to be instructed for the space of three years in the language and sciences of Chaldea. At the end of that time they were to be admitted to the presence of the king, to stand and serve before him. In Daniel ii. 1, it is said, in the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, the king dreamed the dream which Daniel interpreted; and as the time appointed for Daniel's improvement had expired, (Dan. i. 18.), it may be asked why this chapter was not inserted in the same place as the first chapter. Prideaux has dated it in the year 603, on the authority of the literal interpretation of the words "in the second year of his reign." It must, however, be recollected that the inspired writers date from different eras; instances of which have been given in these notes: and Daniel, writing this part of his history in Chaldee, for the use of the Chaldeans, most probably followed the computation prevalent among them; and refers not to the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, as dated from his accession to the throne, but from the second year of his universal monarchy; after Egypt, and all the surrounding nations, who, with the Jews, had leagued against him, had been subdued. Lightfoot and Hales both agree in making the events related in this chapter succeed Nebuchadnezzar's conquests: and when it is remembered, that, in the second year of Nebuchadnezzar, (dated from his accession to the throne of Babylon,) Daniel was still under the care of Melzar; that a short time after Jehoiakim rebelled, depending, in all probability, upon the league formed against the king of Babylon by the surrounding nations; it cannot be conceived that a prior date can be correct. In addition to these arguments, it must be considered, that when Daniel left the prince of the eunuchs, he must have been very young, and still a stranger in the land: is it therefore probable, that Nebuchadnezzar would make him at this time ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and chief of the governors over all its wise men, (chap. ii. ver. 48,) and advance his three friends to such high offices in the state? When too, in addition to these things, it is stated that Daniel, at the time of the king's dream, was living in his own house, (chap. ii. ver. 17,) and that he was numbered among the wise men who were decreed by the king to be slain, (ver. 13): he could not have been under the care of Melzar, in the palace of the king; for in the latter case, while he was pursuing his studies under the immediate protection of Nebuchadnezzar, Daniel would not have been ranked among the wise men of Babylon. These considerations have induced me to insert here this chapter of Daniel, and to compute the second year of Nebuchadnezzar mentioned in it, from the universal dominion he obtained by his conquests.

(48) The Jewish Church, at the time of the wonderful interposition of Providence in enabling Daniel to discover and to interpret the dream of Nebuchadnezzar, when all the magicians, the astrologers, the sorcerers, and Chaldeans of Babylon, were not able to do so, was in the depth of its distress. Its enemies were on every side victorious. The gods of gold, of silver, of wood, and of stone appeared to be more powerful than Jehovah.

The prophet Ezekiel had ceased to address the people. Jeremiah, in all probability, no longer existed. Jerusalem was destroyed; the temple burnt; the visible Church almost annihilated; when the men of Babylon. [15] He answered and said to Arioch the king's captain,

" Why is the decree so hasty from the king ? " Then Arioch made the thing known to Daniel. [16] Then Daniel went in, and desired of the king that he would give him time, and that he would show the king the interpretation. [17] Then Daniel went to his house, and made the thing known to Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, his companions : [18] that [c]they would desire mercies ‡of the God of heaven concerning this secret ; *that Daniel and his fellows should not perish with the rest of the wise men of Babylon.

[19] Then was the secret revealed unto Daniel [d]in a night vision.
Then Daniel blessed the God of heaven. [20] Daniel answered and said,

Blessed be the name of God for ever and ever !
For wisdom and might are his ;
[21] And he changeth the times and the seasons ;
He removeth kings, and setteth up kings ;
He [e]giveth wisdom unto the wise,
And knowledge to them that know understanding.

He knoweth what is in the darkness,

[23] I thank thee, and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers !
Who hast given me wisdom and might,
And hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee ;
For thou hast now made known unto us the king's matter.

[24] Therefore Daniel went in unto Arioch, whom the king had ordained to destroy the wise men of Babylon ; he went and said thus unto him, " Destroy not the wise men of Babylon ; bring me in before the king, and I will show unto the king the interpretation." [25] Then Arioch brought in Daniel before the king in haste, and said thus unto him, " †I have found a man of the ‡captives of Judah, that will make known unto the king the interpretation." [26] The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, " Art thou able to make known unto me the dream which I have seen, and the interpretation thereof ? " [27] Daniel answered in the presence of the king, and said, attention of the world was fixed, and the Church of God comforted, by the miraculous powers of Daniel. Through the providence of God this favored captive became the adviser and the friend of kings, the head of governments and provinces, and the chief means of fulfilling the prophecies of His Scriptures, by accomplishing the deliverance of the Jews.

Daniel (ch. iii.) gives us an account of the dedication of a golden image by Nebuchadnezzar. This image is supposed to have been erected in commemoration of his conquests ; it is therefore probable, that it was commanded to be made on his triumphal return to his capital, elated with victory, the conqueror of the world, with every ambitious project accomplished. At last his mind gradually fixes itself on futurity ; the visions which come into the king's head on his bed, as to " what should come to pass hereafter," are most probably the result of meditations on his present grandeur and unrivalled power ; and the monument intended to transmit his fame and glories to posterity would naturally, at such a moment, have presented itself to his mind.

The idea therefore has suggested itself to me (and I cannot consider it as improbable), that the Almighty in his mercy selected the same figure that Nebuchadnezzar had designed to purpetuate his name and possessions, to reveal to him the instability of his empire, and the vanity of all human grandeur.

The worshipper of idols had a prophetic dream, (as Bishop Newton observes from St. Jerome,) that the servant of God interpreting it, God might be glorified, and that the captives and those who served God in captivity might receive great consolation. Nebuchadnezzar, with a mind thus lost in futurity, dreams about an image composed of different metals (1–13) ; the interpretation of this dream is communicated to Daniel (14–23), who reveals it to the monarch (24–35), and interprets it of the four great monarchies. The head of gold represented the Babylonian empire (32) ; the breast and arms, which were of silver, represented the Medo-Persian empire (32–39) ; the brazen belly and thighs represented the Macedo-Grecian empire (32–39) ; the legs and feet, which were partly of iron and partly of clay, represented the Roman empire (33, 40–43), which would bruise and break to pieces every other kingdom, but in its last stage should be divided into ten smaller kingdoms, denoted by the ten toes of the image. The stone " cut out of the mountain without hands, which brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold " (34, 35,) represented the kingdom of the Messiah, which was " to fill the whole earth," become universal, and stand for ever (44, 45). The chapter concludes with an account of the promotion of Daniel and his friends to distinguished honor.

astrologers, the magicians, the soothsayers, show unto the king; [28] but [h]there is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets, and *maketh known to the king Nebuchadnezzar [i]what shall be in the latter days. Thy dream, and the visions of thy head upon thy bed, are these. [29] As for thee, O king, thy thoughts †came into thy mind upon thy bed, what should come to pass hereafter; and HE that revealeth secrets maketh known to thee what shall come to pass. [30] But [j]as for me, this secret is not revealed to me for any wisdom that I have more than any living, but for ‡their sakes that shall make known the interpretation to the king, and that thou mightest know the thoughts of thy heart.

[31] "Thou, O king, *sawest, and behold a great image! This great image, whose brightness was excellent, stood before thee; and the form thereof was terrible. [32] This image's head was of fine gold, his breast and his arms of silver, his belly and his †thighs of brass, [33] his legs of iron, his feet part of iron and part of clay. [34] Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out ‡without hands, which smote the image upon his feet that were of iron and clay, and brake them to pieces. [35] Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold, broken to pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing-floors; and the wind carried them away, that no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth.

[36] "This is the dream; and we will tell the interpretation thereof before the king. [37] Thou, O king! art a king of kings; for the God of heaven hath given thee a kingdom, power, and strength, and glory. [38] And wheresoever the children of men dwell, the beasts of the field and the fowls of the heaven hath he given into thy hand, and hath made thee ruler over them all. Thou art this head of gold. [39] And after thee shall arise another kingdom inferior to thee, and another third kingdom of brass, [k]which shall bear rule over all the earth. [40] And the fourth kingdom shall be strong as iron, forasmuch as iron breaketh in pieces and subdueth all things; and as iron that breaketh all these, shall it break in pieces and bruise. [41] And whereas thou sawest the feet and toes, part of potter's clay, and part of iron, the kingdom shall be divided; but there shall be in it of the strength of the iron, forasmuch as thou sawest the iron mixed with miry clay. [42] And as the toes of the feet were part of iron, and part of clay, so the kingdom shall be partly strong, and partly *broken. [43] And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men; but they shall not cleave †one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay. [44] And in ‡the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, [l]which shall never be destroyed; and the *kingdom shall not be left to other people, [m]but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand for ever. [45] Forasmuch [n]as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain †without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass ‡hereafter; and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure."

[46] Then [o]the king Nebuchadnezzar fell upon his face, and worshipped Daniel, and commanded that they should offer an oblation and [p]sweet odors unto him. [47] The king answered unto Daniel, and said, "Of a truth it is, that your God is a God of gods, and a Lord of kings, and a revealer of secrets, seeing thou couldest reveal this secret." [48] Then the king made Daniel a great man, and gave him many great gifts, and made him ruler over the whole province of Babylon, and [q]chief of the governors over all the wise men of Babylon. Section XI.—Nebuchadnezzar, on the Completion of his Conquest, sets up the Golden Image.

Daniel iii.(49)

Nebuchadnezzar dedicateth a golden image in Dura. 8 Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, are accused for not worshipping the image. 13 They, being threatened, make a good confession. 19 God delivereth them out of the furnace. 26 Nebuchadnezzar, seeing the miracle, blesseth God.

[1] Nebuchadnezzar the king made an image of gold, whose height was threescore cubits, and the breadth thereof six cubits; he set it up in the plain of Dura, in the province of Babylon. [2] Then Nebuchadnezzar the king sent to gather together the princes, the governors, and the captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, to come to the dedication of the image which Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up. [3] Then the princes, the governors, and captains, the judges, the treasurers, the counsellors, the sheriffs, and all the rulers of the provinces, were gathered together unto the dedication of the image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up; and they stood before the image that Nebuchadnezzar had set up. [4] Then a herald cried *aloud, "To you †it is commanded, O people, nations, and languages, [5] that at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, ‡dulcimer, and all kinds of music, ye fall down and worship the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king hath set up. [6] And whoso falleth not down and worshippeth shall the same hour [a]be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace." [7] Therefore at that time, when all the people heard the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and all kinds of music, all the people, the nations, and the languages, fell down and worshipped the golden image that Nebuchadnezzar the king had set up.

[8] Wherefore at that time certain Chaldeans came near and accused the Jews. [9] They spake and said to the king Nebuchadnezzar, "O king, live for ever! [10] Thou, O king, hast made a decree, that every man that shall hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of music, shall fall down and worship the golden image: [11] and whoso falleth not down and worshippeth, that he should be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace. [12] There are certain Jews whom thou hast set over the affairs of the province of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego; these men, O king, *have not regarded thee, they serve not thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up."

(49) This chapter describes the dedication of that golden image, most probably ordered by Nebuchadnezzar on his triumphal return to his capital, after his conquests. The conduct of Nebuchadnezzar, on this occasion proves that the miraculous interpretation of his dream, given by Daniel, made no lasting impression on the king's mind. The consecration of this idol to Bel, or Belus (ver. 14, Dan. iv. 8), shows that he no longer acknowledged the superiority of the God of Daniel, (chap. ii. 47.) But this arrogant idolator, by the wonderful deliverance of his three captive servants, and the miraculous appearance of the Son of God, is again compelled to confess the superior power of the Most High God, and to declare "there is no other God can deliver after this sort." The believing Jews, on beholding the Divine Form which appeared in the midst of the fire, would recognise the same Almighty Being which had guided their fathers through the wilderness, and had so frequently manifested himself as the guardian God of the visible Church. And the wonderful preservation of these three faithful Hebrews, must have signified to all the Jews, that the same power would likewise be exerted to support them in all their trials, and to deliver them at the appointed time from the furnace of affliction, and finally restore them to the land and the worship of their fathers. By this most extraordinary miracle, the knowledge of the true God, his power, and superiority, were made known by the decree of Nebuchadnezzar through his extensive and universal empire; and every "people, nation, and language," were called upon to worship the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego.

†true, O Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, do not ye serve my gods, nor worship the golden image which I have set up? [15] Now if ye be ready that at what time ye hear the sound of the cornet, flute, harp, sackbut, psaltery, and dulcimer, and all kinds of music, ye fall down and worship the image which I have made, [b]well; but if ye worship not, ye shall be cast the same hour into the midst of a burning fiery furnace; and [c]who is that God that shall deliver you out of my hands?" [16] Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, answered and said to the king, "O Nebuchadnezzar, [d]we are not careful to answer thee in this matter. [17] If it be so, our God whom we serve is able to deliver us from the burning fiery furnace, and he will deliver us out of thy hand, O king. [18] But if not, be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up."

[19] Then was Nebuchadnezzar ‡full of fury, and the form of his visage was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego; therefore he spake, and commanded that they should heat the furnace one seven times more than it was wont to be heated. [20] And he commanded the *most mighty men that were in his army to bind Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, and to cast them into the burning fiery furnace. [21] Then these men were bound in their †coats, their hosen, and their ‡hats, and their other garments, and were cast into the midst of the burning fiery furnace. [22] Therefore because the king's *commandment was urgent, and the furnace exceeding hot, the †flame of the fire slew those men that took up Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego. [23] And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace. [24] Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished, and rose up in haste, and spake, and said unto his ‡counsellors, "Did not we cast three men bound into the midst of the fire?" They answered and said unto the king, "True, O king!" [25] He answered and said, "Lo! I see four men loose, [e]walking in the midst of the fire, and *they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like [f]the Son of God."

SECTION XII.—Nebuchadnezzar's Second Dream;—His Madness and Recovery.

DANIEL iv.

Nebuchadnezzar confesseth God's kingdom, 4 maketh relation of his dream, which the magicians could not interpret. 8 Daniel heareth the dream. 19 He interpreteth it.

[1] "NEBUCHADNEZZAR the king, unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth; Peace be multiplied unto you!

* Chald. It was seemly before me. [2] *I thought it good to show the signs and wonders that the High God hath wrought toward me. [3] How great are his signs! and how mighty are his wonders! his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his dominion is from generation to generation.

[4] "I Nebuchadnezzar was at rest in my house, and flourishing in my palace. [5] I saw a dream which made me afraid, and the thoughts upon my bed and the visions of my head troubled me. [6] Therefore made I a decree to bring in all the wise men of Babylon before me, that they might make known unto me the interpretation of the dream. [7] Then came in the magicians, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers; and I told the dream before them, but they did not make known unto me the interpretation thereof. [8] But at the last Daniel came in before me, (whose name was Belteshazzar, according to the a Is. 63. 11. name of my god, [a]and in whom is the spirit of the holy gods;) and before him I told the dream, saying, [9] 'O Belteshazzar, master of the magicians, because I know that the spirit of the holy gods is in thee, and no secret troubleth thee, tell me the visions of my dream that I have seen, and the interpretation thereof. [10] Thus were the visions of [16] Let his heart be changed from man's, and let a beast's heart be given unto him; and let seven times pass over him. [17] This matter is by the decree of the watchers, and the demand by the word of the holy ones; to the intent that the living may know that the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and setteth up over it the basest of men.'—[18] This dream I king Nebuchadnezzar have seen. Now thou, O Belteshazzar, declare the interpretation thereof, forasmuch as all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to make known unto me the interpretation; but thou art able, for the spirit of the holy gods is in thee.'

[19] "Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, was astonied for one hour, and his thoughts troubled him. The king spake and said, 'Belteshazzar, let not the dream, or the interpretation thereof, trouble
g See 2 Sa. 18. 32. Je. 29. 7. thee.' Belteshazzar answered and said, 'My lord, [g]the dream be to them that hate thee, and the interpretation thereof to thine enemies! of iron and brass, in the tender grass of the field; and let it be wet

(50) The signal judgment inflicted upon Nebuchadnezzar, related in this chapter, with its attendant circumstances, must have impressed all the nations of the east with the conviction that Jehovah was the one true God; that kings and princes were only the instruments of his will in the government of the world. After having been raised by the most brilliant and unexampled successes to the very height of human power and ambition, this king was suddenly removed from all his possessions, "was driven from men, and did eat grass as oxen, till his hairs were grown like eagles' feathers, and his nails like birds' claws." The madness of this great monarch is generally supposed to have consisted in his fancying himself a beast, and living like one, and that during this bereavement of reason he was too untameable and unmanageable to be controlled by man. His intellect returned after seven years, and he again resumed the government of his kingdom, (ver. 36.) The evidence of the prediction, the fall, and the restoration of Nebuchadnezzar, is perhaps the most undeniable of any thing that rests upon mere human testimony. The king himself, upon his recovery, published a proclamation in every part of his vast empire giving an account of all that had befallen him, and praising and honoring the King of heaven. The evidence of the whole fact stands upon this public record of the Babylonian empire, preserved, word for word, in this chapter, which must therefore be considered, not as Daniel's, but as Nebuchadnezzar's writing. —Bishop Horsley.

Daniel's vision of four beasts. 9 Of God's kingdom. 15 The interpretation thereof.

I saw in my vision by night, and, behold, the four winds of the heaven strove upon the great sea. [3] And four great beasts [a]came up from the sea, diverse one from another. And it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; [c]and it had ten horns. (51) Evil-merodach, the son of Nebuchadnezzar, succeeded his father, in the thirty-seventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin. No transaction of his reign is recorded in Scripture, but the release of Jehoiachin, "whom he treated kindly and hospitably, setting him above all the other captive kings which were in Babylon." Jerome notices a Jewish tradition, that Evil-merodach, during his father's distraction, behaved so ill in provoking a war with the Medes, that on his recovery, Nebuchadnezzar threw him into prison, where he contracted an intimacy with Jehoiachin.

(52) The vision of the four beasts in this chapter represents the same four great monarchies of the world prefigured in Nebuchadnezzar's dream (ch. ii.), by a large statue composed of various metals. Nebuchadnezzar saw his kingdom flourishing. Daniel now beholds it on the eve of destruction, with its wings plucked, and "lifted up from the earth," (ver. 4.) The ten horns of this beast, signified by the ten toes of the image (ii. 41, 42,) denote ten kingdoms, or principalities; which have been variously interpreted by different writers, the result of whose researches on this subject are given by Horne, in his Critical Introduction, according to the following table.

Besides these ten horns, or kingdoms, there was to spring up another "little horn," which is generally suppose to denote the papal power; a power which fully answers the character of the "little horn;" setting up himself above all laws, divine and human, arrogating to himself godlike attributes, and titles of holiness, of infallibility, wearing "out the saints of the Most High," by massacres and inquisitions, and destroying all those who refuse to comply with his ordinances, innovations, and decrees. The papal power, being an ecclesiastical and spiritual, as well as a civil and temporal authority, is called "diverse from the first," and it is said, that "he shall subdue three kings," (ver. 23, 24.) Out of the ten horns or kingdoms, those of the Heruli, the Ostrogoths, and the Lombards were successively "plucked up," and annexed to the papacy by the "little horn," through which means the pope became a temporal prince. All the kingdoms above described will be succeeded by the "everlasting dominion" of the Messiah, (ver. 9–15, and 27.)—Bishop Newton; Horne's Crit. Introd.

[19] Then I would know the truth of the fourth beast, which was diverse †from all the others, exceeding dreadful, whose teeth were of iron, and his nails of brass; which devoured, brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with his feet; [20] and of the ten horns that were in his head, and of the other which came up, and before whom three fell; even of that horn that had eyes, and a mouth that spake very great things, whose look was more stout than his fellows. [21] I beheld, [q]and the same horn made war with the saints, and prevailed against them; [22] until The Ancient of Days came, [r]and judgment was given to the saints of the Most High; and the time came that the saints possessed the kingdom. [23] Thus he said, "The fourth beast shall be the fourth kingdom upon earth, which shall be diverse from all kingdoms, and shall devour the whole earth, and shall tread it down, and break it in pieces. [24] And [s]the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise; and another shall rise after them; and he shall be diverse from the first, and he shall subdue three kings. [26] But the judgment shall sit, and they shall take away his dominion, to consume and to destroy it unto the end. PSALM CXXXVII.

The constancy of the Jews in captivity. 7 The prophet curseth Edom and Babel.

[1] By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down,
Yea, we wept, when we remembered Zion.

---

(53) The Psalms contained in this section are supposed by Calmet, Horne, Gray, and others, to have been written during the Babylonish captivity. They are inserted thus late in the Period, because the exact time of their date is quite uncertain, and it is most probable that the persecution and distress of the Jews were greatest during the reign of Belshazzar, who did not know Daniel. The character of this king, as given by Xenophon, and by Isaiah, (xiv. 29,) corroborates this supposition. The lxxxviiith Psalm, on the authority of Lightfoot, was inserted in the first part of Period III.; and as he has used the same arguments with respect to the lxxxixth as to the lxxxviiith, it may excite surprise, that the two Psalms are not placed together. On referring to the contents of Psalm lxxxix. it will be seen that the name of David occurs more than once. This circumstance compelled me to conclude that it was written either in, or after, the time of the Psalmist: the supposition of Lightfoot, that the name of David was inserted prophetically, during the distress in Egypt before the Exodus, appeared to require confirmation.—Vide Lightfoot's Chronicle, p. 23. The reader will observe that there is a misprint in the passage of Lightfoot here referred to. Psalm lxxix. is printed by mistake for Psalm lxxxix. It is plain that the latter is meant, for the name of David does not occur in Psalm lxxix.

A Song of Degrees.

[1] Out [a]of the depths have I cried unto thee, O Lord!
[2] Lord, hear my voice;
Let thine ears be attentive to the voice of my supplications.
[3] If [b]thou, Lord, shouldest mark iniquities,
O Lord, who shall stand?
[4] But there is [c]forgiveness with thee,
That [d]thou mayest be feared.
[5] I wait for the Lord,
My soul doth wait, and in his word do I hope.
[6] My soul waiteth for the Lord
More than they that watch for the morning;
*I say, more than they that watch for the morning.
[7] Let Israel hope in the Lord;
For [e]with the Lord there is mercy,
And with him is plenteous redemption.
[8] And [f]he shall redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

PSALM LXXX.

PSALM LXXX.

The psalmist in his prayer complaineth of the miseries of the Church. 8 God's former favors are turned into judgments. 14 He prayeth for deliverance.

To the chief Musician *upon Shoshannim-Eduth, A Psalm †of Asaph.

[1] Give ear, O Shepherd of Israel!
Thou that leadest Joseph like a flock;
Thou [a]that dwellest between the cherubim, shine forth.
[2] Before Ephraim and Benjamin and Manasseh stir up thy strength,
And ‡come and save us.
[3] Turn us again, O God, and cause thy face to shine;
And we shall be saved.
[4] O Lord God of hosts!
How long *wilt thou be angry against the prayer of thy people?
[5] Thou feedest them with the bread of tears;
And givest them tears to drink in great measure.
[6] Thou makest us a strife unto our neighbours;
And our enemies laugh among themselves.
[7] Turn us again, O God of hosts!
And cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

[8] Thou hast brought [b]a vine out of Egypt:
Thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it.
[9] Thou [c]preparedst room before it,
And didst cause it to take deep root,
And it filled the land.
[10] The hills were covered with the shadow of it,
And the boughs thereof were like †the goodly cedars.
[11] She sent out her boughs unto the sea,
And her branches unto the river.
[12] Why hast thou then broken down her hedges,
So that all they which pass by the way do pluck her?
[13] The boar out of the wood doth waste it,
And the wild beast of the field doth devour it.
[14] Return, we beseech thee, O God of hosts;
Look [d]down from heaven, and behold, and visit this vine,
[15] And the vineyard which thy right hand hath planted,
And the branch that thou madest strong for thyself.
[16] It is burned with fire, it is cut down:
They perish at the rebuke of thy countenance.
[17] Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand,
Upon the son of man whom thou madest strong for thyself.
[18] So will not we go back from thee:
Quicken us, and we will call upon thy name.
[19] Turn us again, O LORD God of hosts!
Cause thy face to shine; and we shall be saved.

PS. LXXVII.

PSALM LXXVII.

The psalmist showeth what fierce combat he had with diffidence. 10 The victory which he had by consideration of God's great and gracious works.

To the chief Musician, *to Jeduthun, A Psalm †of Asaph.

[1] I cried unto God with my voice,
Even unto God with my voice; and he gave ear unto me.
[2] In the day of my trouble I sought the LORD:
My ‡sore ran in the night, and ceased not:
My soul refused to be comforted.
[3] I remembered God, and was troubled:
I complained, and my spirit was overwhelmed. Selah!
[4] Thou holdest mine eyes waking:
I am so troubled that I cannot speak.
[5] I [a]have considered the days of old,
The years of ancient times.
[6] I call to remembrance my song in the night:
I commune with mine own heart;
And my spirit made diligent search.
[7] Will the LORD cast off for ever?
And will he be favorable no more?
[8] Is his mercy clean gone for ever?
Doth [b]his promise fail *for evermore?
[9] Hath God forgotten to be gracious?
Hath he in anger shut up his tender mercies? Selah!
[10] And I said, "This is mine infirmity:
But I will remember the years of the right hand of the Most High.
[11] I will remember the works of the LORD:
Surely I will remember thy wonders of old.
[12] I will meditate also of all thy work,
And talk of thy doings."

[16] The [e]waters saw thee, O God!
The waters saw thee—they were afraid:
The depths also were troubled.
[17] The clouds †poured out water:
The skies sent out a sound:
Thine [f]arrows also went abroad.
[18] The voice of thy thunder was in the heaven:
The lightnings lightened the world:
The earth trembled and shook.

PS. XXXVII.

PSALM XXXVII.

David persuadeth to patience and confidence in God, by the different estate of the godly and the wicked.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Fret [a]not thyself because of evil doers,
Neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity.
[2] For they shall soon be cut down like the grass,
And wither as the green herb.
[3] Trust in the LORD, and do good;
So shalt thou dwell in the land, and *verily thou shalt be fed.
[4] Delight thyself also in the LORD,
And he shall give thee the desires of thy heart.
[5] †Commit thy way unto the LORD,
Trust also in him, and he shall bring it to pass.
[6] And [b]he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light,
And thy judgment as the noonday.
[7] ‡Rest in the LORD, and wait patiently for him;
Fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way,
Because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass.
[8] Cease from anger, and forsake wrath;
Fret [c]not thyself in any wise to do evil.
[9] For [d]evildoers shall be cut off;
But those that wait upon the LORD, they shall [e]inherit the earth.
[10] For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be—
Yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and it shall not be.
[11] But [f]the meek shall inherit the earth;
And shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace.
[12] The wicked *plotteth against the just,
And gnasheth upon him with his teeth.
[13] The LORD shall laugh at him;
For he seeth that his day is coming.
[14] The wicked have drawn out the sword, and have bent their bow,
To cast down the poor and needy,
And to slay †such as be of upright conversation.
[15] Their sword shall enter into their own heart,
And their bows shall be broken.
[16] A [g]little that a righteous man hath
Is better than the riches of many wicked.
[17] For [h]the arms of the wicked shall be broken,
But the LORD upholdeth the righteous.

[18] The Lord knoweth the days of the upright,
And their inheritance shall be [i]for ever.
[19] They shall not be ashamed in the evil time,
And in the days of famine they shall be satisfied.
[20] But the wicked shall perish,
And the enemies of the Lord shall be as ‡the fat of lambs;
They shall consume; into smoke shall they consume away.
[21] The wicked borroweth, and payeth not again;
But the righteous showeth mercy, and giveth.
[22] For [j]such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth,
And they that be cursed of him shall be cut off.
[23] The [k]steps of a good man are *ordered by the Lord,
And he delighteth in his way.
[24] Though [l]he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down;
For the Lord upholdeth him with his hand.
[25] I have been young, and now am old;
Yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken,
Nor his seed [m]begging bread.
[26] He is †ever merciful, and lendeth;
And his seed is blessed.
[27] Depart from evil, and do good;
And dwell for evermore.
[28] For the Lord loveth judgment,
And forsaketh not his saints;
They are preserved for ever;
But [n]the seed of the wicked shall be cut off.
[29] The [o]righteous shall inherit the land,
And dwell therein for ever.
[30] The [p]mouth of the righteous speaketh wisdom,
And his tongue talketh of judgment.
[31] The [q]law of his God is in his heart,
None of his ‡steps shall slide.
[32] The wicked watcheth the righteous,
And seeketh to slay him.
[33] The Lord [r]will not leave him in his hand,
Nor condemn him when he is judged.
[34] Wait [s]on the Lord, and keep his way,
And he shall exalt thee to inherit the land;
When the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it.
[35] I have seen the wicked in great power,
And spreading himself like *a green bay tree.
[36] Yet he passed away—and, lo, he was not!
Yea, I sought him—but he could not be found!
[37] Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright;
For [t]the end of that man is peace.
[38] But the transgressors shall be destroyed together,
The end of the wicked shall be cut off.
[39] But the salvation of the righteous is of the Lord,
He is their strength in the time of trouble.
[40] And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them;
He shall deliver them from the wicked,
And save them, [u]because they trust in him.

[1] God be merciful unto us, and bless us;
And [a]cause his face to shine *upon us. Selah!
[2] That [b]thy way may be known upon earth,
Thy [c]saving health among all nations.
[3] Let the people praise thee, O God!

PSALM XLIX.

PSALM XLIX.

An earnest persuasion to build the faith of resurrection, not on worldly power, but on God. 16 Worldly prosperity is not to be admired.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm *for the sons of Korah.

[1] Hear this, all ye people!
Give ear, all ye inhabitants of the world;
[2] Both low and high,
Rich and poor, together!
[3] My mouth shall speak of wisdom,
And the meditation of my heart shall be of understanding.
[4] I [a]will incline mine ear to a parable,
I will open my dark saying upon the harp.
[5] Wherefore should I fear in the days of evil,
When the iniquity of my heels shall compass me about?
[6] They that [b]trust in their wealth,
And boast themselves in the multitude of their riches;
[7] None of them can by any means redeem his brother,
Nor [c]give to God a ransom for him,
[8] (For the redemption of their soul is precious,
And it ceaseth for ever,)
[9] That he should still live for ever,
And not see corruption.
[10] For he seeth that [d]wise men die,
Likewise the fool and the brutish person perish,
And [e]leave their wealth to others.
[11] Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever,
And their dwelling-places †to all generations;
They call their lands after their own names.
[12] Nevertheless man being in honor abideth not;
He is like the beasts that perish.
[13] This their way is their [f]folly,
Yet their posterity ‡approve their sayings. Selah!
[14] Like sheep they are laid in the grave;
Death shall feed on them;
And [g]the upright shall have dominion over them in the morning;

PSALM X.

The psalmist complaineth to God of the outrage of the wicked. 12 He prayeth for remedy. 16 He professeth his confidence.

1 Why standest thou afar off, O LORD?
Why hidest thou thyself in times of trouble?
2 *The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor:
Let [a]them be taken in the devices that they have imagined.
3 For the wicked boasteth of his †heart's desire,
And ‡blesseth the covetous, whom the LORD abhorreth.
4 The wicked, through the pride of his countenance,
Will not seek after God:
*God is not in all his thoughts.
5 His ways are always grievous,

As for all his enemies, he puffeth at them.
6 He [c]hath said in his heart, I shall not be moved;
For [d]I shall †never be in adversity.
7 His [e]mouth is full of cursing and ‡deceit and fraud,

PSALM XIII.

PSALM XIII.

David complaineth of delay in help. 3 He prayeth for preventing grace. 5 He boasteth of divine mercy.

To the [*]chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

[1] How long wilt thou forget me, O LORD?
For ever? [a]how long wilt thou hide thy face from me?
[2] How long shall I take counsel in my soul,
Having sorrow in my heart daily?
How long shall mine enemy be exalted over me?
[3] Consider and hear me, O LORD my God;
Lighten mine eyes, lest I sleep the sleep of death;
[4] Lest mine enemy say, I have prevailed against him;
And those that trouble me rejoice when I am moved.
[5] But I have trusted in thy mercy;
My heart shall rejoice in thy salvation.
[6] I will sing unto the LORD,
Because he hath dealt bountifully with me.

[*] Or, overseer.

PSALM XIV.

PSALM XIV.

David describeth the corruption of a natural man. 4 He convinceth the wicked by the light of their conscience. 7 He glorieth in the salvation of God.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David.

[1] The [a]fool hath said in his heart, There is no God.
They [b]are corrupt, they have done abominable works,
There is none that doeth good.
[2] The [c]LORD looked down from heaven
Upon the children of men,
To see if there were any that did understand,
And seek God.
[3] They [d]are all gone aside,
They are all together become [*]filthy;
There is none that doeth good—no, not one.

Who shall dwell in thy holy hill?
[2] He [a]that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness,
And [b]speaketh the truth in his heart.
[3] He [c]that backbiteth not with his tongue,
Nor doeth evil to his neighbour,

But he honoreth them that fear the LORD.

PSALM XXV.

David's confidence in prayer. 7 He prayeth for remission of sins, 16 and for help in affliction.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Unto thee, O LORD, do I lift up my soul!
[2] O my God, I [a]trust in thee;
Let me not be ashamed,
Let not mine enemies triumph over me.
[3] Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed;
Let them be ashamed which transgress without cause.
[4] Show [b]me thy ways, O LORD;
Teach me thy paths.
[5] Lead me in thy truth, and teach me;
For thou art the God of my salvation;
On thee do I wait all the day.
[6] Remember, O LORD, *thy tender mercies and thy lovingkindnesses;
For they have been ever of old.
[7] Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions:
According to thy mercy remember thou me
For thy goodness' sake, O LORD!
[8] Good and upright is the LORD,
Therefore will he teach sinners in the way.
[9] The meek will he guide in judgment,
And the meek will he teach his way.
[10] All the paths of the LORD are mercy and truth
Unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies.
[11] For thy name's sake, O LORD, pardon mine iniquity;
For [c]it is great.
[12] What man is he that feareth the LORD?
Him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose.
[13] His [d]soul shall †dwell at ease,
And his seed shall inherit the earth.
[14] The [e]secret of the LORD is with them that fear him,
‡And he will show them his covenant.

And forgive all my sins.
[19] Consider mine enemies, for they are many;

PSALM XXVI.

David resorteth unto God in confidence of his integrity.

A Psalm of David.

[1] Judge me, O LORD,
a Pr. 20. 7.
For I have [a]walked in mine integrity;
b Pr. 29. 25.
I [b]have trusted also in the LORD, therefore I shall not slide.
c Zec. 13. 9.
[2] Examine [c]me, O LORD, and prove me;
Try my reins and my heart.
[3] For thy lovingkindness is before mine eyes,
d 2 Ki. 20. 3.
And [d]I have walked in thy truth.
[4] I have not sat with vain persons,
Neither will I go in with dissemblers.
[5] I have hated the congregation of evil doers,
And will not sit with the wicked.
e See Ex. 30. 19, 20. Ps. 73. 13. 1 Ti. 2. 8.
[6] I [e]will wash my hands in innocency:
So will I compass thine altar, O LORD!
[7] That I may publish with the voice of thanksgiving,
And tell of all thy wondrous works.
[8] LORD, I have loved the habitation of thy house,

In the congregations will I bless the LORD.

PSALM XXVII.

PSALM XXVII.

David sustaineth his faith by the power of God, 4 by his love to the service of God, 9 by prayer.

A Psalm of David.

[1] The LORD is my light and my salvation—whom shall I fear?
a Ps. 62. 2, 6. Is. 12. 2.
The [a]LORD is the strength of my life—of whom shall I be afraid?
* Heb. approached against me.
[2] When the wicked (even mine enemies and my foes) *came upon me to eat up my flesh,
They stumbled and fell.
[3] Though a host should encamp against me,
My heart shall not fear;
Though war should rise against me,
In this will I be confident.
[4] One thing have I desired of the LORD,
That will I seek after;

That I may [b]dwell in the house of the LORD all the days of my life,
To behold †the beauty of the LORD,
And to inquire in his temple.
5 For in the time of trouble he shall hide me in his pavilion;
In the secret of his tabernacle shall he hide me;
He shall set me up upon a rock.
6 And now shall my head be lifted up above mine enemies round about me;
Therefore will I offer in his tabernacle sacrifices of ‡joy;
I will sing, yea, I will sing praises unto the LORD.
7 Hear, O LORD, when I cry with my voice;
Have mercy also upon me, and answer me.
8 *When thou saidst, "Seek ye my face;"
My heart said unto thee, Thy face, LORD, will I seek.
9 Hide not thy face far from me,
Put not thy servant away in anger;
Thou hast been my help; leave me not,
Neither forsake me, O God of my salvation!
10 When my father and my mother forsake me,
Then the LORD †will take me up.
11 Teach me thy way, O LORD!
And lead me in ‡a plain path, because of *mine enemies.
12 Deliver me not over unto the will of mine enemies;
For [c]false witnesses are risen up against me,
And such as [d]breathe out cruelty.
13 I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the [LORD
In the land of the living.

PS. XXXVI.

PSALM XXXVI.

The grievous estate of the wicked. 5 The excellency of God's mercy. 10 David prayeth for favor to God's children.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David the servant of the LORD.

1 The transgression of the wicked saith within my heart,
That [a]there is no fear of God before his eyes.
2 For he flattereth himself in his own eyes,
*Until his iniquity be found to be hateful.
3 The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit;
He hath left off to be wise, and to do good.
4 He [b]deviseth †mischief upon his bed;
He setteth himself in a way that is not good;
He abhorreth not evil.
5 Thy mercy, O LORD! is in the heavens;
And thy faithfulness reacheth unto the clouds.
6 Thy righteousness is like ‡the great mountains;
Thy [c]judgments are a great deep;
O LORD, [d]thou preservest man and beast.
7 How *excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God!
Therefore the children of men [e]put their trust under the shadow of thy wings.
8 They shall be †abundantly satisfied
With the fatness of thy house;
And thou shalt make them drink
Of [f]the river of thy pleasures.
9 For [g]with thee is the fountain of life,
In [h]thy light shall we see light.

And thy righteousness to the upright in heart.
[11] Let not the foot of pride come against me,
And let not the hand of the wicked remove me.
[12] There are the workers of iniquity fallen;
They are cast down, and shall not be able to rise.

PS. LXXXIX.

PSALM LXXXIX.

The psalmist praiseth God for his covenant, 5 for his wonderful power, 15 for the care of his Church, 19 for his favor to the kingdom of David. 38 Then, complaining of contrary events, 46 he expostulateth, prayeth, and blesseth God.

*Maschil of †Ethan the Ezrahite.

[1] I will sing of the mercies of the LORD for ever,
With my mouth will I make known thy faithfulness ‡to all generations.
[2] For I have said, "Mercy shall be built up for ever;
Thy faithfulness shalt thou establish in the very heavens."
[3] I [a]have made a covenant with my chosen,
I have [b]sworn unto David my servant,
[4] Thy seed will I establish for ever,
And build up thy throne [c]to all generations. Selah!
[5] And [d]the heavens shall praise thy wonders, O LORD!
Thy faithfulness also in the congregation of the saints.
[6] For who in the heaven can be compared unto the LORD?
Who among the sons of the mighty can be likened unto the LORD?
[7] God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints,
And to be had in reverence of all them that are about him.
[8] O LORD God of hosts, who is a strong LORD [e]like unto thee?
Or to thy faithfulness round about thee?
[9] Thou [f]rulest the raging of the sea;
When the waves thereof arise, thou stillest them.
[10] Thou [g]hast broken *Rahab in pieces, as one that is slain;
Thou hast scattered thine enemies †with thy strong arm.
[11] The [h]heavens are thine, the earth also is thine;
As for the world and the fulness thereof, thou hast founded them.
[12] The north and the south thou hast created them;
Tabor and Hermon shall rejoice in thy name.
[13] Thou hast ‡a mighty arm;
Strong is thy hand, and high is thy right hand.
[14] Justice and judgment are the *habitation of thy throne;
Mercy and truth shall go before thy face.
[15] Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound;
They shall walk, O LORD! in the light of thy countenance.
[16] In thy name shall they rejoice all the day;
And in thy righteousness shall they be exalted.
[17] For thou art the glory of their strength;
And in thy favor our horn shall be exalted.
[18] For †the LORD is our defence,
And the Holy One of Israel is our king.
[19] Then thou spakest in vision to thy holy one, and saidst,
"I have laid help upon one that is mighty,
I have exalted one [i]chosen out of the people.
[20] I [j]have found David my servant,
With my holy oil have I anointed him;
[21] With whom my hand shall be established:
Mine arm also shall strengthen him.
[22] The enemy shall not exact upon him,
Nor the son of wickedness afflict him.

(54) Psalm cxxiii. is reckoned likewise by Calmet, Horne, and Gray, among those which were composed during the captivity, or one of the principal distresses of the Church.

(55) The fifth chapter of Daniel is inserted here as in its proper historical place: but who the Belshazzar of Daniel was, and the time of his death, has given rise to much conjecture, and both are uncertain. This uncertainty arises from the difficulty of ascertaining the succession of the kings of Babylon, between the death of Nebuchadnezzar, and the accession of Cyrus to the Babylonian empire, after the death of Darius. The extreme confusion which prevails among the historians of this period, may be seen from the following table:—

SUCCESSION OF THE KINGS OF BABYLON,

ACCORDING TO

JOSEPHUS.

Nebuchadnezzar reigned	43 years.
Evil-Merodach	18
Niglissar	46
Laborosoarchod	9 months.
Belshazzar, or Naboandelus	17 years.
Darius, or Cyrus.

But in his treatise against Apion, Josephus assigns two years only to Evil-Merodach, and four to Niglissar.

JOSEPH SCALIGER.

Nebuchadnezzar reigned	44 years.
Evil-Merodach	2
Balthasar, or Belshazzar	5
Nabonadius, or Darius the Mede	17

Vide Sir Walter Raleigh's History of the World, book iii. chap. i. sect. 4.

PRIDEAUX.

Nebuchadnezzar reigned	45 years.
Evil-Merodach	1
Neriglassar	3
Laborosoarchod	9 months.
Nabonadius, Belshazzar	17 years.
Darius, Cyrus.

LIGHTFOOT.

Nebuchadnezzar reigned	45 years.
Evil-Merodach	23
Belshazzar	3
Darius and Cyrus.

After examining the several hypotheses here inserted, I cannot but think that the system proposed by Lightfoot is the most consistent and the most conformable with Scripture.

CANON OF PTOLEMY.

SIR WALTER RALEIGH.

Nebuchadnezzar reigned	44 years.

SCRIPTURE,

(Which mentions three only,)

Nebuchadnezzar,
Evil-Merodach,
Belshazzar;

The duration of these reigns is given variously by commentators.

Three facts seem to be implied in the book of Daniel; first, that Belshazzar was of the family of Nebuchadnezzar; for he is repeatedly called his son, and Nebuchadnezzar is said to be his father, b Re. 9. 20.

[1] Belshazzar the king made a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before the thousand. [2] Belshazzar, while he tasted the wine, commanded to bring the golden and silver vessels [a]which his *father Nebuchadnezzar had †taken out of the temple which was in Jerusalem; that the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, might drink therein. [3] Then they brought the golden vessels that were taken out of the temple of the house of God which was at Jerusalem; and the king, and his princes, his wives, and his concubines, drank in them. [4] They drank wine, and [b]praised the gods of gold, and of silver, of brass, of iron, of wood, and of stone.

(see Dan. v. 18); and in 2 Chron. xxxvi. 20, it is said, that the captive Jews should continue the servants of Nebuchadnezzar and "his sons, until the reign of the kingdom of Persia." Again, Jeremiah (xxvii 7,) prophesies that all the nations of the east shall serve this king, and "his son, and his son's son, until the very time of his land come." Secondly, Belshazzar reigned only three years. We find that Daniel saw the vision related in chapter viii. 1, 2, at the palace of Shushan, in the province of Elam. Now Shushan, in the reign of Belshazzar, was not a city of Babylon, but of Persia; neither was Elam a province of Babylon; Elam was another name for Persia, of which Shushan was the capital, and this country had been engaged in perpetual wars with Babylon for the space of twenty years before its overthrow. We have no reason, therefore, for supposing that Daniel was ever absent from the city of Babylon, a place where he was held in much honor, till he was removed either by Cyrus or Darius. Lightfoot therefore interprets the first and second verses of this chapter to signify, "In the third year of Belshazzar, after the fall of that monarch, Daniel was taken by the king of Persia to his own capital, where he saw this vision." The expression in ver. 2, "I rose up, and did the king's business," refers to the business which was entrusted to his care by Cyrus and Darius king of Persia, and not by Belshazzar the king of Babylon. Thirdly, that Belshazzar was the last of the Babylonish kings. Immediately after the death of Belshazzar his kingdom was divided, and given to the Medes and Persians, (Dan. v. 28, 30, 31.) Scripture assures us, that Nebuchadnezzar should have "sons, and son's sons," to succeed him on the throne of Babylon; and it confines itself to three generations, father, son, and grandson, to whom the Jews should continue captives for the space of seventy years: now if we suppose that Belshazzar was not of the seed of Nebuchadnezzar, and that his kingdom was possessed by the Medes and Persians before the expiration of the appointed seventy years, these prophecies must have failed of their accomplishment. God likewise threatens to punish the king of Babylon and the land of the Chaldeans, by bringing "many nations and great kings" against them, (Jer. xxv. 12, 14, and l. 18); but this prophecy again could not have been fulfilled, if at the end of the seventy years the family of Nebuchadnezzar was extinct, and no longer filled the throne of Babylon. The evils denounced against the kings of Babylon were caused not only by their iniquities, but for cruelties inflicted on the Jews by the family of Nebuchadnezzar. Isaiah foretells (chap. xxi.) the capture of the city at a feast, the "night of pleasure turned into fear;" and in Isaiah xliv. God promises to dry up the rivers, and to break in pieces the gates of brass, before his anointed servant Cyrus; who was to build Jerusalem, and lay the foundations of the temple; Isaiah xlv. 1, 2. It cannot be thought probable, then, that the Almighty would inflict on any other family, the evils which Nebuchadnezzar's conduct had brought upon his own; and consequently whoever was the reigning monarch when Cyrus gained admittance into the city, must have been a son, or a descendant of Nebuchadnezzar.

I have therefore, according to Lightfoot, supposed that Evil-Merodach, who succeeded his father Nebuchadnezzar, reigned twenty-three years; and that at his death Belshazzar his son came to the throne, who was slain in the third year of his reign. Herodotus represents the last king of Babylon as being the son of the great queen Nitocris; in which case she must have been the wife of Evil-Merodach, for by this king only could she have been the mother of a son that was son's son to Nebuchadnezzar.

Profane writers give a variety of names to the last king that reigned in Babylon: he is called by Berosus, Nabonnedus; by Megasthenes, Nabonnedochus; by Herodotus, Labynetus; and by Josephus, Naboandelus, who, he says, is the same as Belshazzar: but these authors are, on many occasions, so contradictory and inconsistent, that when they at all interfere with Scripture, their evidence must lose its authority. They agree in the important fact, that Babylon was taken during a festival; and both Herodotus and Xenophon relate the draining of the river by Cyrus; by which stratagem he gained admission for his troops.

The causes of the contradictory accounts related in the ancient writers, may in some degree be ascertained from the hints they give us of the state of the kingdom of Babylon after the death of Nebuchadnezzar, or perhaps during his distraction. Evil-Merodach, or foolish Merodach, his successor, was, as his name implies, a weak prince; and, taking advantage of this circumstance, several of the princes mentioned by these different authorities may have opposed him, and successively exercised the regal power, while he only nominally retained it. And to these usurpers, in all probability, may be attributed the various accounts handed down to us of the Babylonish succession during this period. The injured nobleman, in the Cyropædia, repeatedly praises the father of that king of Babylon whom Cyrus was proceeding against; whom the latter calls the Assyrian. And from the description given by Isaiah (xiv. 29.) of the three kings of Babylon, when he describes Nebuchadnezzar as a serpent, Evil-Merodach as a cockatrice, and Belshazzar as a fiery-flying serpent, that is, worse than his cruel predecessors, it is not improbable, that Belshazzar was the king who was guilty of the acts complained of by the friends of Cyrus, and likewise of those cruelties recorded by Xenophon.

Sir Walter Raleigh, in his History of the World, proposes an opinion, that the manuscript of Berosus must have been altered by the carelessness of a scribe; and that it originally assigned twenty-three years to the reign of Evil-Merodach. In the short account of the reign of Evil-Merodach given in Scripture, we are only informed that he released Jehoiachin from prison, and "that he eat bread continually before him all the days of his life;" 2 Kings xxv. 29, 30. From this expression we can alone infer that Jehoiachin lived many years after he was restored to liberty, and that during his life time Evil-Merodach was still king.

[5] In the same hour came forth fingers of a man's hand, and wrote over against the candlestick upon the plaster of the wall of the king's palace; and the king saw the part of the hand that wrote. [6] Then the king's ‡countenance *was changed, and his thoughts troubled him, so that the †joints of his loins were loosed, and his knees smote one against another. [7] The king cried ‡aloud to bring in the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers. And the king spake, and said to the wise men of Babylon, "Whosoever shall read this writing, and show me the interpretation thereof, shall be clothed with *scarlet, and have a chain of gold about his neck, and shall be the third ruler in the kingdom." [8] Then came in all the king's wise men; but they could not read the writing, nor make known to the king the interpretation thereof. [9] Then was king Belshazzar greatly troubled, and his †countenance was changed in him, and his lords were astonied.

[10] Now the queen by reason of the words of the king and his lords came into the banquet house. And the queen spake and said, "O king, live for ever! let not thy thoughts trouble thee, nor let thy countenance be changed. [11] There is a man in thy kingdom, in whom is the spirit of the holy gods; and in the days of thy ‡father light and understanding and wisdom, like the wisdom of the gods, was found in him; whom the king Nebuchadnezzar thy *father, (the king, I say, thy father,) made [c]master of the magicians, astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers; [12] forasmuch as an excellent spirit, and knowledge, and understanding, †interpreting of dreams, and showing of hard sentences, and ‡dissolving of *doubts, were found in the same Daniel, whom the king named Belteshazzar. Now let Daniel be called, and he will show the interpretation."

[13] Then was Daniel brought in before the king. And the king spake and said unto Daniel, "Art thou that Daniel, which art of the children of the captivity of Judah, whom the king my †father brought out of Jewry? [14] I have even heard of thee, that the spirit of the gods is in thee, and that light and understanding and excellent wisdom is found in thee. [15] And now the wise men, the astrologers, have been brought in before me, that they should read this writing, and make known unto me the interpretation thereof; but they could not show the interpretation of the thing. [16] And I have heard of thee, that thou canst ‡make interpretations, and dissolve doubts: now if thou canst read the writing, and make known to me the interpretation thereof, thou shalt be clothed with scarlet, and have a chain of gold about thy neck, and shalt be the third ruler in the kingdom."

[18] O thou king! [d]the most high God gave Nebuchadnezzar thy father a kingdom, and majesty, and glory, and honor: [19] and for the majesty that he gave him, [e]all people, nations, and languages, trembled and feared before him: whom he would he slew, and whom he would he kept alive, and whom he would he set up, and whom he would he put down. [20] But [f]when his heart was lifted up, and his mind hardened †in pride, he was ‡deposed from his kingly throne, and they took his glory from him. [21] And he was [g]driven from the sons of men; and *his heart was made like the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild asses: they fed him with grass like oxen, and his body was wet with the dew of heaven, [h]till he knew that the Most High God ruled in the kingdom of men, and that he appointeth over it whomsoever he will. SECTION XVII.—Daniel's Vision of the Ram and He Goat.(56)

DANIEL viii.

Daniel's vision of the ram and he goat. 13 The two thousand three hundred days of sacrifice. 15 Gabriel comforteth Daniel, and interpreteth the vision.

[1] IN the third year of the reign of king Belshazzar a vision appeared unto me, even unto me Daniel, after that which appeared unto me [a]at the first. [2] And I saw in a vision; and it came to pass, when I saw, that I was at Shushan in the palace, which is in the province of Elam; and I saw in a vision, and I was by the river of Ulai. [3] Then I lifted up mine eyes, and saw, and, behold, there stood before the river a ram which had two horns; and the two horns were high, but one was higher than *the other, and the higher came up last. [4] I saw the ram pushing westward, and northward, and southward; so that no beasts might stand before him, neither was there any that could deliver out of his hand; but he did according to his will, and became great. [5] And as I was considering, behold, a he goat came from the west on the face of the whole earth, and †touched not the ground; and the goat had ‡a notable horn between his eyes. [6] And he came to the ram that had two horns, which I had seen standing before the river, and ran unto

(56) From the fourth verse of the second chapter, to this chapter, Daniel has made use of the Chaldee language, because his prophecies and writings related to the Chaldeans. His remaining prophecies are written in Hebrew, because they treat of events subsequent to the times of that nation, and principally regard the Church and people of God. The second empire in the former vision (the Medo-Persian) is the first in this; and what was there compared to a bear, is here prefigured by a ram. This ram having two horns, according to the explication of the angel Gabriel, ver. 20, was the empire of the Medes and Persians. The propriety of the emblem appears from hence, that the kings of Persia wore a ram's head of gold, and precious stones, instead of a diadem, and a ram was the armorial ensign of that empire. The he goat is the Macedonian empire. The first king of the Macedonians, 200 years before Daniel, called his capital city Ægeæ, or Ægæ, a goat being their ensign. "The rough goat," ver. 21, represents the Greeks or Macedonians under Alexander: ver. 6 and 7 describe the Grecians overthrowing the Persian empire. The final and principal engagement in which Alexander overcame the Persians, was at the river Granicus, in Phrygia, "standing before the river," ver. 6. The four "notable" horns that sprang up in the room of the first great horn, are the same as the four heads of the leopard in the former vision, and denote the four kingdoms of Greece, Thrace, Syria, and Egypt, which were thus divided "toward the four winds of heaven" by Cassander, Lysimachus, Seleucus, and Ptolemy about fifteen years after the death of Alexander, and the murder of his descendants. The "little horn," which is described as rising among the four horns of the Grecian empire, ver. 9, is supposed by the generality of commentators to signify the Roman temporal power. It was this power that magnified itself against "the prince of the host," "stood up against the Prince of princes," ver. 25, crucified the Messiah, the Lord of life, took away the "daily sacrifice," destroyed the temple of the Jews, (ver. 11,) and made a desolation of the holy city. But, as "the stone," in Nebuchadnezzar's dream, was "cut out of the mountain without hands," that is, not by human, but supernatural means, so likewise shall this kingdom "be broken without hands." Compare chap. ii. 34, and chap. vii. 11 and 26. All which passages seem to imply that the dominion of the Romans shall be finally destroyed with some extraordinary manifestation of the Divine power.—Bishop Newton.

him in the fury of his power. [7] And I saw him come close unto the ram, and he was moved with choler against him, and smote the ram, and brake his two horns; and there was no power in the ram to stand before him, but he cast him down to the ground, and stamped upon him; and there was none that could deliver the ram out of his hand. [8] Therefore the he goat waxed very great; and when he was strong, the great horn was broken; and for it came up four notable ones toward the four winds of heaven. [9] And out of one of them came forth a little horn, which waxed exceeding great, [b]toward the south, and toward the east, and toward the pleasant land. [10] And it waxed great, even *to the host of heaven; and [c]it cast down some of the host and of the stars to the ground, and stamped upon them. [11] Yea, [d]he magnified himself even †to the prince of the host, [e]and ‡by him [f]the daily sacrifice was taken away, and the place of his sanctuary was cast down. [12] And *a host was given him against the daily sacrifice [g]by reason of transgression, and it cast down the truth to the ground; and it practised, and prospered. [13] Then I heard [h]one saint speaking, and another saint said unto †that certain saint which spake, "How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice, and the transgression of ‡desolation, to give both the sanctuary and the host to be trodden under foot?" [14] And he said unto me, "Unto two thousand and three hundred *days; [i]then shall the sanctuary be †cleansed."

[15] And it came to pass, when I, even I Daniel, had seen the vision, and [j]sought for the meaning, then, behold, there stood before me [k]as the appearance of a man. [16] And I heard a man's voice between the banks of Ulai, which called, and said, "Gabriel, [l]make this man to understand the vision." [17] So he came near where I stood. And when he came, I was afraid, and fell upon my face; but he said unto me, "Understand, O son of man! for at the time of the end shall be the vision." [18] Now [m]as he was speaking with me, I was in a deep sleep on my face toward the ground; but he touched me, and ‡set me upright. [19] And he said, "Behold, I will make thee know what shall be in the last end of the indignation; for at the time appointed the end shall be. [20] The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia. [21] And the rough goat is the king of Grecia; and the great horn that is between his eyes [n]is the first king. [22] Now that being broken, whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, but not in his power. [23] And in the latter time of their kingdom, [o]when the transgressors *are come to the full, a king [p]of fierce countenance, and understanding dark sentences, shall stand up. [24] And his power shall be mighty, [q]but not by his own power; and he shall destroy wonderfully, and shall prosper, and practise, and shall destroy the mighty and the †holy people. [25] And through his policy also he shall cause craft to prosper in his hand; and he shall magnify himself in his heart, and by ‡peace shall destroy many. He shall also stand up against the Prince of princes; but he shall be [r]broken without hand. [26] And the vision of the evening and the morning which was told is true; [s]wherefore shut thou up the vision, for it shall be for many days." [27] And I Daniel fainted, and was sick certain days; afterward I rose up, and did the king's business; and I was astonished at the vision, but none understood it.

(57) In this chapter, Daniel, understanding from books (which are supposed to have been the prophecies of Jeremiah, chapters xxv. xiii. xxix. 1.), that the appointed captivity of seventy years was now drawing towards its conclusion, intercedes with God, by prayer and supplication, for his brethren. In verse 17, we clearly find a plurality in the Godhead signified; Daniel asks for blessings on the sanctuary and the people "for the Lord's sake." And in acceptance of his petitions, while he was yet praying, the Angel Gabriel appears, and communicates to the prophet a most wonderful revelation; assuring him at the same time of the restoration and rebuilding of Jerusalem. The captivity was to last seventy years; at its close, the future state of the Jews and the holy city for the space of another seventy weeks is revealed to Daniel, comprising the period "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, till Messiah be cut off." The commencement of the whole period of seventy weeks [of years], or 490 years, being reckoned from the seventh year of Artaxerxes (Ezra vii. 11); when the wall of their city was built, and its inhabitants restored to its ancient laws, falls upon the 457th year before the Christian era. To 457 years before the birth of Christ, add 26 years after the birth of Christ, which 26 is the number that 483 years, or 69 weeks, exceed 457 years, and we are brought to the beginning of John the Baptist's preaching of the advent of the Messiah: adding seven years, or one week, to the former, we come to the 33d year of our Lord, which was the year of Jesus Christ's death. In other words, compute 490 years, the whole seventy weeks, from the seventh of Artaxerxes; by subtracting 457 years, (the space of time between that year and the beginning of the Christian era,) from 490, there remains 33, the year of our Lord's death. —Prideaux.

In this most wonderful prediction the sufferings and atonement of Christ are, perhaps, more explicitly and clearly revealed, than in any other prophecy of the Old Testament. Seventy weeks are "determined upon" for the continuance of the Mosaical worship; at the end of this time, the prophet declares the "Most Holy" will make reconciliation for iniquity, and bring in everlasting righteousness. The Messiah shall be "cut off, but not for himself," (1 Pet. iii. 18.), that "He shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease;" "by His one oblation of Himself," on the cross, the sacrifice and burnt offerings of the Law were to be annulled; and, finally, that the people of the prince that shall come shall destroy the city and the sanctuary. This prediction, of the destruction of Jerusalem and the temple, was literally fulfilled, with a long train of dreadful calamities, attended with awful indications of divine vengeance, when the Romans under Titus utterly destroyed this condemned city and its miserable inhabitants.

Bishop Watson remarks, "To read these prophecies of Daniel with attention, intelligence, and an unbiased mind, is sufficient to convert an unbeliever from Deism to Christianity." They were delivered several hundred years before the birth of Christ; they extend through many ages; and have ever been considered as the foundation of all modern history; revealing the successive rise and fall of the four great monarchies of the world; the establishment of Messiah's kingdom upon earth; his death and sufferings; and passing from earth to heaven, they terminate only in eternity.

us by his servants the prophets. [11] Yea, [g]all Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice; therefore the curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the [h]Law of Moses the servant of God, because we have sinned against him. [12] And he hath [i]confirmed his words, which he spake against us, and against our judges that judged us, by bringing upon us a great evil; [j]for under the whole heaven hath not been done as hath been done upon Jerusalem. [13] As it is written in the Law of Moses, all this evil is come upon us; yet ‡made we not our prayer before the LORD our God, that we might turn from our iniquities, and understand thy truth. [14] Therefore hath the LORD watched upon the evil, and brought it upon us; for the LORD our God is righteous in all his works which he doeth; for we obeyed not his voice. [15] And now, O Lord our God, [k]that hast brought thy people forth out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand, and hast *gotten thee renown, as at this day; we have sinned, we have done wickedly. [16] O Lord, according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain; because for our sins, and [l]for the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and thy people are become a reproach to all that are about us. [17] Now therefore, O our God, hear the prayer of thy servant, and his supplications, and cause thy face to shine upon thy sanctuary that is desolate, for the Lord's sake. [18] O my God, incline thine ear, and hear; open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city †which is called by thy name: for we do not ‡present our supplications before thee for our righteousnesses, but for thy great mercies. [19] O Lord, hear! O Lord, forgive! O Lord, hearken and do! defer not, for thine own sake, O my God! for thy city and thy people are called by thy name."

[20] And while I was speaking, and praying, and confessing my sin and the sin of my people Israel, and presenting my supplication before the LORD my God for the holy mountain of my God; [21] yea, while I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in the vision at the beginning, being caused to fly *swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. [22] And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, "O Daniel, I am now come forth †to give thee skill and understanding. [23] At the beginning of thy supplications the ‡commandment came forth, and I am come to show thee, (for thou art *greatly beloved;) therefore [m]understand the matter, and consider the vision. [24] †Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people and upon thy holy city, ‡to finish the transgression, and *to make an end of sins, and [n]to make reconciliation for iniquity, [o]and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and †prophecy, [p]and to anoint the Most Holy. [25] Know [q]therefore and understand, that [r]from the going forth of the commandment ‡to restore and to build Jerusalem unto [s]the Messiah [t]the Prince shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks: the street *shall be built again, and the †wall, [u]even ‡in troublous times. [26] And after threescore and two weeks [v]shall Messiah be cut off, *but not for himself; †and [w]the people of the prince that shall come [x]shall destroy the city [y]and the sanctuary; [z]and the end thereof shall be [a]with a flood, and unto the end of the war ‡desolations are determined. [27] And he shall confirm *the covenant with [b]many for one week: and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, †and for the overspreading of [c]abominations he shall make it desolate, [d]even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured ‡upon the desolate."

(58) This Psalm seems, by the thirteenth verse, to have been composed about the time that God promised a restoration to his people from their captivity in Babylon; namely, after a period of seventy years. It may be appropriately placed therefore in the same section with the prayer of Daniel on the same occasion.—Mudge.

SECTION XIX.—Daniel is cast into the Den of Lions.

DANIEL vi.(59)

Daniel is made chief of the presidents. 4 They, conspiring against him, obtain an idolatrous decree. 10 Daniel, accused of the breach thereof, is cast into the lions' den. 18 Daniel is saved. 24 His adversaries devoured, 25 and God magnified by a decree.

[1] IT pleased Darius to set over the kingdom an hundred and twenty princes, which should be over the whole kingdom; [2] and over these three presidents, of whom Daniel was first: that the princes might give accounts unto them, and the king should have no damage. [3] Then this Daniel was preferred above the presidents and princes, because an excellent spirit was in him; and the king thought to set him over the whole realm.

a Ec. 4. 4.

[4] Then [a]the presidents and princes sought to find occasion against Daniel concerning the kingdom; but they could find none occasion nor fault, forasmuch as he was faithful, neither was there any error or fault found in him. [5] Then said these men, "We shall not find any occasion against this Daniel, except we find it against him concerning the law of his God." [6] Then these presidents and princes [*]assembled together to the king, and said thus unto him, "King Darius, live for ever! [7] All the presidents of the kingdom, the governors, and the princes, the counsellors, and the captains, have consulted together to establish a royal statute, and to make a firm [†]decree, that whosoever shall ask a petition of any God or man for thirty days, save of thee, O king, he shall be cast into the den of lions. [8] Now, O king, establish the decree, and sign the writing, that it be not changed, according to the [b]law of the Medes and Persians, which [‡]altereth not." (59) That the wonderful events recorded in the sixth chapter of Daniel took place about this time, and that the chapter itself ought therefore to be inserted in this part of the arrangement, appears certain, if we consider that Darius reigned only two years; and ver. 1, 2, seems to allude to the division of his empire immediately on his elevation. It is not improbable that Daniel, who in the first year of Darius (Dan. ix. 2, 3.), had calculated the date of the captivity, and the promised deliverance of his people, still continued to offer up his prayers to God for their speedy restoration. He perceived no prospect of their immediate return, and became more noticed among the satraps of the court of Persia, by his unusual dedication of himself to the service of the God of his fathers. They attempted his ruin by the means here related. The miraculous preservation of Daniel, and the consequent influence he thereby obtained over the mind of Darius, was, in all probability, one of the additional causes which led to the decree of Cyrus on the death of Darius.

The captivity of Judah glorified God even from its commencement, by accomplishing the predictions of the prophets; and during its continuance, God in his mercy, employed various means to convince the Gentiles of his universal providence and his resistless power. He raised up Daniel by prophetic spirit; He rescued the three illustrious friends of Daniel; He punished the proud impiety of Nebuchadnezzar, by a seven years' insanity and degradation; and at the moment when his majesty was insulted, by the impious profanation of the vessels of his temple, a miraculous handwriting on the wall condemned the idolatrous king, denounced his impending fate, and the downfall of his empire. And, last of all, these wonderful interpositions were crowned by the deliverance of Daniel from the lions' den. These were not obscure or doubtful transactions, but attested by the authentic decrees of the most distinguished monarchs, and proclaimed through their wide-extended dominions: particularly in the instances of Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. iv. 1, 37. iii. 29); and of Darius (Dan. vi. 25.) And the great Cyrus was so fully persuaded, by these important events, of the truth of the Divine Providence, whose spirit had so clearly pointed out even the particulars of his own successes, that he became the active assistant in the restoration of the Jews to their own country; and added another public testimony to the glory and power of the God of Israel.—Dr. Graves.

salem, he kneeled upon his knees [d]three times a day, and prayed, and gave thanks before his God, as he did aforetime. [11] Then these men assembled, and found Daniel praying and making supplication before his God. [12] Then they came near, and spake before the king concerning the king's decree, "Hast thou not signed a decree, that every man that shall ask a petition of any God or man within thirty days, save of thee, O king! shall be cast into the den of lions?" The king answered and said, "The thing is true, according to the law of the Medes and Persians, which altereth not." [13] Then answered they and said before the king, "That Daniel, which is of the children of the captivity of Judah, regardeth not thee, O king! nor the decree that thou hast signed, but maketh his petition three times a day." [14] Then the king, when he heard these words, [e]was sore displeased with himself, and set his heart on Daniel to deliver him; and he labored till the going down of the sun to deliver him. [15] Then these men assembled unto the king, and said unto the king, "Know, O king! that the law of the Medes and Persians is, 'That no decree nor statute which the king establisheth may be changed.'" [16] Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel, and cast him into the den of lions. Now the king spake and said unto Daniel, "Thy God whom thou servest continually, he will deliver thee." [17] And a stone was brought, and laid upon the mouth of the den; [f]and the king sealed it with his own signet, and with the signet of his lords, that the purpose might not be changed concerning Daniel.

[18] Then the king went to his palace, and passed the night fasting; neither were *instruments of music brought before him, and his sleep went from him. [19] Then the king arose very early in the morning, and went in haste unto the den of lions. [20] And when he came to the den, he cried with a lamentable voice unto Daniel; and the king spake and said to Daniel, "O Daniel! servant of the living God, is thy God, whom thou servest continually, able to deliver thee from the lions?" [21] Then said Daniel unto the king, "O king, live for ever! [22] My God hath sent his angel, and hath [g]shut the lions' mouths, that they have not hurt me, forasmuch as before him innocency was found in me; and also before thee, O king! have I done no hurt." [23] Then was the king exceeding glad for him, and commanded that they should take Daniel up out of the den. So Daniel was taken up out of the den, and no manner of hurt was found upon him, because he believed in his God.

[24] And the king commanded, [h]and they brought those men which had accused Daniel, and they cast them into the den of lions, (them, [i]their children, and their wives;) and the lions had the mastery of them, and brake all their bones in pieces or ever they came at the bottom of the den.

[25] Then king Darius wrote unto all people, nations, and languages, that dwell in all the earth, "Peace be multiplied unto you! [26] I make a decree, That in every dominion of my kingdom men tremble and fear before the God of Daniel; for he is the living God, and steadfast for ever, and his kingdom that which shall not be [j]destroyed, and his dominion shall be even unto the end. [27] He delivereth and rescueth, and he worketh signs and wonders in heaven and in earth, who hath delivered Daniel from the †power of the lions."

[28] So this Daniel prospered in the reign of Darius, and in the reign of [k]Cyrus the Persian.

(60) After the death of Darius the Median, Cyrus returned to Babylon, and took on him the whole government of the empire; over which he reigned, as sole monarch, seven years. The seventy years' captivity, prophesied by Jeremiah, had now just expired, computing it from the fourth of Jehoiakim; and on the same month on which it began, Cyrus, in the first year of his reign, granted a public decree for the rebuilding of the temple and the return of the Jews into their own land.—See Prideaux, vol. i. p 183; and Ezra i. 1.

There can be no doubt but that Daniel obtained from Cyrus this decree in favor of the Jews. The fame of Daniel had extended itself all over the east; and his recent interpretation of the wonderful handwriting on the wall must have materially increased his reputation. As soon, therefore, as Cyrus had taken possession of Babylon, he sent for Daniel, and consulted with him as to the best measures for the settlement of the government; and, on this occasion, he gave so much satisfaction, that Cyrus soon after made him his minister of state over all the provinces of the Babylonian empire. When Cyrus returned from his Syrian expedition to Babylon, he found that Daniel was held in the highest favor and esteem by his uncle Darius the Median; and that his fame was very much increased by his miraculous preservation in the lions' den. There is every reason, therefore, to suppose that the prophet availed himself of this moment of popularity, and used all his influence and authority to bring about the restoration of his people. Josephus informs us, that Cyrus was acquainted with the prophecies of Isaiah; and that he was so, is evident from the decree itself: "He hath charged me to build him a house at Jerusalem," (v. 2.) It is only natural, therefore, to conclude that Daniel, who was so much interested in their accomplishment, and who had such constant access to the king, should lay before him those predictions (Isaiah xliv. 28, and xiv. 1,) which called him by name, and foretold his high destiny, so many years before he was born. Seventy years were now nearly elapsed since the Jews were first carried out of Judæa by Nebuchadnezzar, to people and strengthen Babylon; and now, at their close, under the Persian government, the weakening and dispeopling of that same city might be a strong reason for their being sent back again to their own country. No wise prince would ever desire that any part of his dominions should remain unpeopled: who, then, could be more proper again to plant the desolated country of Judæa than its former inhabitants? But, whatever secondary causes operated on the mind of Cyrus, God's overruling power, which stirreth up the hearts of princes according to his will, brought it to pass, that in the first year of Cyrus' monarchy over the east, he issued his royal decree for the rebuilding of the temple and the return of the Jews into their own country; thereby fulfilling the prophecy of Jeremiah xxv. 11, "and these nations shall serve the king of Babylon seventy years."—Prideaux's Connection, p. 185, &c.

(61) Psalm cxxvi. There is little doubt that this Psalm was composed on the return of the Jews, from their captivity in Babylon: the internal evidence almost demonstrates it.—Vide Bishop Horne; Travell; Dr. Wells.

That Psalm lxxxv. was likewise written on the same occasion is evident from ver. 1.—Dimock, Poole's Annotations.

2 Chronicles xxxvi. 22, 23.—[22] Now in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia, that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished, the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, and put it also in writing, saying, [23] "Thus saith Cyrus king of Persia, All the kingdoms of the earth hath the Lord God of heaven given me; and he hath charged me to build him a house in Jerusalem, which is in Judah. Who is there among you of all his people? The Lord his God be with him, and let him go up."

(1) The Book of Ezra derives its name from its author, who was a descendant of Seraiah the high priest, slain by Nebuchadnezzar when he burnt the city and temple of Jerusalem. It is written in Chaldee from the eighth verse of the fourth chapter to the twenty-seventh verse of the seventh chapter; as this part of the work contains letters and public decrees given in that language; Ezra, as a faithful historian, records them in the very words which were originally used; more particularly, perhaps, as the Jews, from their long continuance in Babylon, were more accustomed to the Chaldee than even to the Hebrew tongue. It is probable, likewise, at this time the Chaldee paraphrases began to be used, for it appears, Nehem. viii. 2, 3, 8, that some could not understand the Law, which may signify they had forgotten the Hebrew language during their captivity. It is evident that the author of the Book of Ezra was personally present at the transactions mentioned in it, the narrative being in the first person. It also bears upon the face of it every character of natural simplicity, and contains more particulars of time, persons, and places, than could have been introduced by any other individual. That the last four chapters of this book were written by Ezra himself there can be no doubt, as he particularly describes himself in the beginning of the seventh chapter, and likewise frequently introduces himself in the subsequent chapters. The Jews, indeed, ascribe the whole of this book to Ezra, and their opinion is adopted by most Christian commentators. But as the writer of the first six chapters appears, from chap. v. 4, to have been at Jerusalem in the reign of Darius Hystaspes, and it appears from the beginning of the seventh chapter that Ezra did not go thither until the reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, (a distance of sixty years,) some persons have ascribed the first six chapters to a more ancient author. This, however, does not necessarily follow; and we apprehend it will appear that these chapters were written by Ezra as well as the last four, for possibly Ezra, after having accompanied Zerubbabel in the first return of the captivity, might have been again sent up to Babylon to counteract the representations of those who opposed, at the Persian court, the rebuilding of the city and the temple; and the account of his departure, given in the seventh chapter, perhaps refers only to his going up with that commission and power which he received from Artaxerxes. But whether Ezra were, or were not at Jerusalem at the time when this answer was made to Tatnai, (chap. iv. 5.) "We said unto them," he may well be conceived, if not actually present at the time, either as copying a public record of the transaction, or as relating the speech of his countryman on that occasion. The same method of narration is observable throughout this book; in the latter part of it (chap. vii. 12–26) the royal decree is inserted entire, in the Chaldee dialect; so, likewise, in the first part, we find the edict of Cyrus, the epistle of the Samaritans, and the reply, together with part of the fourth chapter, are also given in Chaldee. And it is not likely that a short historical compendium, like the Book of Ezra, should be the work of more than one author; nor ought we to assign it to several authors, unless we had either express declaration or internal evidence that they were concerned in it; all these evidences are wanting in the Book of Ezra.

This book is a continuation of the Jewish history, from the time at which the Chronicles conclude: it begins with a repetition of the two verses which terminate the Book of Chronicles. The first six chapters relate the return of the Jews under Zerubbabel, after their appointed period of captivity; their reëstablishment in Judæa, and the rebuilding and dedication of the temple in Jerusalem. The last four chapters give an account of the appointment of Ezra to the government of Judæa by Artaxerxes Longimanus; his return to his own country from Babylon; the disobedience of the Jews; and the reformation he effected among them. The Book of Ezra harmonizes most strictly with the prophecies of Haggai and Zechariah, which it materially elucidates, (compare Ezra v. with Hagg. i. 12. and Zech. iv. 4.) It evinces the paternal care of Jehovah over his chosen people, whose history it relates from the time of the edict issued by Cyrus, to the twentieth year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, a period of about seventy-nine years. Ezra is reported by some traditionary accounts to have died in the 120th year of his age, and to have been buried at Jerusalem; though others say that he died in Persia, and was buried on the banks of the river Samura, where his tomb is shown.—Gray and Horne in loc.

[7] Also Cyrus the king brought forth the vessels of the house of the LORD, [b]which Nebuchadnezzar had brought forth out of Jerusalem, and had put them in the house of his gods; [8] even those did Cyrus king of Persia bring forth by the hand of Mithredath the treasurer, and numbered them unto Sheshbazzar, the prince of Judah. [9] And this is the number of them: thirty chargers of gold, a thousand chargers of silver, nine and twenty knives, [10] thirty basons of gold, silver basons of a second sort four hundred and ten, and other vessels a thousand. [11] All the vessels of gold and of silver were five thousand and four hundred. (2)All these did Sheshbazzar bring up with them of †the captivity that were brought up from Babylon unto Jerusalem.

(2) The several events related in this eighth Period, are chiefly arranged in the order assigned to them by Prideaux, and sanctioned by the high authorities of Bishop Tomline, Dr. Hales, Dr. Adam Clarke, and others.

Every circumstance which took place at this interesting moment, when the captives were about to return to their own land, seems intended to prove to the Jews the peculiar providence which had watched over their nation. The conquests of Cyrus had brought about a universal peace; so that no interruption was apprehended by the exiles on their return to Judæa. The decree itself, of Cyrus, was obtained in consequence of the high reputation of Daniel, and the perusal of the prophecies of Isaiah, in which he was mentioned by name. The reputation of Daniel had been raised to its present eminence by a series of astonishing events; which impressed the heathen nation with awe, and seemed to eradicate from the breasts of the Jews the least remaining tendency to idolatry. And now on the publication of the decree of Cyrus, another prediction of their prophet Jeremiah was fulfilled, Jer. xxvii. 21, 22. "The vessels that remain in the house of the Lord, shall be carried to Babylon, and there shall they be till the day that I visit them, saith the Lord; then will I bring them up, and restore them to this place." The Jews, in this instance, must have been clearly convinced that nothing but Divine inspiration could have foreseen an event so improbable, as the preservation of the golden vessels of the temple from the rapacity and impious sacrilege of the various idolatrous monarchs into whose hands they must have successively fallen; and at last, after the expiration of seventy years, be voluntarily restored to their rightful possessors.

dren of Nebo, fifty and two. [30] The children of Magbish, an hundred fifty and six. [31] The children of the other Elam, a thousand two hundred fifty and four. [32] The children of Harim, three hundred and twenty. [33] The children of Lod, †Hadid, and Ono, seven hundred twenty and five. [34] The children of Jericho, three hundred forty and five. [35] The children of Senaah, three thousand and six hundred and thirty.

[36] The priests: the children of [g]Jedaiah, of the house of Jeshua, nine hundred seventy and three. [37] The children of [h]Immer, a thousand fifty and two. [38] The children of [i]Pashur, a thousand two hundred forty and seven. [39] The children of [j]Harim, a thousand and seventeen.

[40] The Levites: the children of Jeshua and Kadmiel, of the children of ‡Hodaviah, seventy and four.

[41] The singers: the children of Asaph, an hundred twenty and eight.

(3) Some degree of surprise may perhaps be excited, that not more of the Jews returned to their own land. The circumstance, however, may be easily accounted for, when we consider the motives which are generally most powerful in their influence over the human mind. The Jews who were taken captive to Babylon, had been commanded by their prophet Jeremiah to seek the peace of the land where they were about to sojourn, to build houses, and to plant vineyards. They were received at an early period of their captivity into the peculiar favor of the kings of Babylon, in consequence of the miraculous interposition of a Supreme Providence in favor of Daniel; it is not therefore to be wondered at, that so many of the Jews preferred the luxury and ease of Babylon, to the labors, the difficulties, and hardships to which they would be exposed, by returning to their now desolate of whom there were seven thousand three hundred thirty and seven; and there were among them two hundred singing men and singing women. [66] Their horses were seven hundred thirty and six; their mules, two hundred forty and five; [67] their camels, four hundred thirty and five; their asses, six thousand seven hundred and twenty.

[68] And some of the chief of the fathers, when they came to the house of the LORD which is at Jerusalem, [s]offered freely for the house of God to set it up in his place. [69] They gave after their ability unto the treasure of the work threescore and one thousand drams of gold, and five thousand pounds of silver, and one hundred priests' garments. [70] So the priests, and the Levites, and some of the people, and the singers, and the porters, and the Nethinims, dwelt in their cities, and all Israel in their cities.

country. The higher ranks preferred the splendor and luxuries of the court of Persia; the lower classes, the quiet enjoyment of their homes. Few were found with sufficient attachment for their religious principles, or zeal for the restoration of their ecclesiastical and civil polity, and their reunion as an independent nation, as to induce them to exchange the attractions of Babylon for the dangers and trials incident, even under the most favorable circumstances, to their reëstablishment in Judæa.

Among the comparatively few who took advantage of the decree of Cyrus must be enumerated, not only the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, but several likewise of the other tribes, who were carried away by Tiglath-pileser, Salmaneser, and Esarhaddon; who still retained the true worship of God in a strange land, and did not go into the idolatrous usages and impieties of the heathens, among whom they were dispersed, but joined themselves to the Jews, when, by a like captivity, they were brought into the same parts; and some, after all the Assyrian captivities, were still left in the land. For we find some of them still there in the time of Josiah (2 Chron. xxxiv. 9, and xxxv. 18), and they suffered the Babylonish captivity, as well as the Jews, till at length they were wholly carried away in the last of them by Nebuzar-adan, in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, (Jer. lii. 30.) And many of them had long before left their tribes for their religion (2 Chron. xi. 16, xv. 9, and xxxi. 6,) and, incorporating themselves with their brethren of Judah and Benjamin, dwelt in their cities, and there fell into the same calamity with them in their captivity under the Babylonians And of all these a great number availed themselves of this decree to return and dwell in their own cities; for both Cyrus' decree, as well as that of Artaxerxes, extended to all the house of Israel. The decree of Artaxerxes (Ezra vii. 13) is, by the name, to all the people of Israel, and that of Cyrus (Ezra i. 3.) is to all the people of the God of Israel, that is, as appears by the text, to all those that worshipped God at Jerusalem, which must be understood of the people of Israel, as well as of Judah; for that temple was built for both, and both had an equal right to worship God there. And therefore Ezra, when he returned, in the reign of Artaxerxes Longimanus, sent a copy of the king's decree, whereby that favor was granted him though all Media, where the ten tribes were in captivity, as well as through all Chaldea and Assyria, where the Jews were in captivity; which plainly implies, that both of them were included in that decree, and that being a renewal of the decree of Cyrus, both must be understood of the same extent. And we are told in Scripture, that, after the captivity (1 Chron. ix. 3), some of the children of Ephraim and Manasseh dwelt in Jerusalem, as well as those of Judah and Benjamin. And it appears from several places in the New Testament (Luke ii. 36. James i. 1, Acts xxvi. 7,), that some of all the tribes were still in being among the Jews, even to the time of their last dispersion on the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, though then all we recomprehended under the name of Jews, which, after the Babylonish captivity, became the general name of the whole nation, as that of Israelites was before. And this being premised, it solves the difficulty which arises from the difference that is between the general number, and the particulars of those that returned upon Cyrus' decree. For the general number both in Ezra and Nehemiah, is said to be 42,360; but the particulars, as reckoned up in their several families in Ezra, amount only to 29,818, and in Nehemiah to 31,031. The meaning of which is, they are only the tribes of Judah, Benjamin, and Levi, that are reckoned by their families in both these places, the rest being of the other tribes of Israel, are numbered only in the gross sum, and this is that which makes the gross sum so much exceed the particulars in both the computations.—Prideaux's Connection, vol. i. anno 556.

(4) The undoubted piety of the Jews who returned to their own country, was shown in their anxiety to restore the altar of God for burnt offering. This altar stood in the middle of the inner court of the temple of Solomon, exactly before the porch leading into the holy place; and on this were made the daily offerings of the morning and evening service, and all other offerings, ordinary and extraordinary, which were offered up to God by fire. It had been beaten down and destroyed by the Babylonians at the burning of the temple, and now the first exertions of the Jews were directed to the rebuilding of it in the same place in which it had originally stood, and there they daily offered sacrifices, before any other part of the temple was raised. —Prideaux's Connection, vol. i. p. 187.

(5) We may observe here, that the Tyrians were the wealthy, commercial, maritime nation, which contributed more than any other people to the building of the first temple by Solomon. They were principally concerned also in assisting the rebuilding of the second temple under Ezra, (chap. iii. 7.) Is it fanciful to suppose that this nation was but a type of that more powerful, wealthy, commercial, and maritime nation, which in the latter days shall contribute to the rebuilding of the spiritual, and perhaps actual temple, at the final restoration of the Jews, before the second advent of the common Head of the Church? Many coincidences of this nature have suggested themselves in proceeding through this Arrangement; but they have been carefully withheld, from the apprehension that I might be indulging in a spirit of speculation, instead of that sobriety and judgment which should characterize every attempt to elucidate the Holy Scriptures.

(6) Psalm cvii. is enumerated by Calmet, Horne, and Gray among those which were probably written, as well after other deliverances, as upon the release from the Babylonish captivity, and at the building and dedication of the second temple. It is inserted here on the united authority of these laborious and distinguished writers, as well as on its internal evidence, arising from its applicability to the circumstances of the Jewish Church at this period. On the same authorities, and for the same additional reason, I have inserted here the lxxxviith, cxith, cxiith, cxiiith, cxivth, cxvith, cxviith, cxxviith, cxxviiith, and cxxxivth. The cxxvth is referred by Dr. Gray to the distresses of the Church, by Horne to the return from the captivity.

[20] He [h]sent his word, and healed them,
And delivered them from their destructions.
[21] Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness,
And for his wonderful works to the children of men!
[22] And [i]let them sacrifice the sacrifices of thanksgiving,
And declare his works with †rejoicing.
[23] They that go down to the sea in ships,
That do business in great waters,
[24] These see the works of the LORD,
And his wonders in the deep.
[25] For he commandeth, and ‡raiseth the stormy wind,
Which lifteth up the waves thereof.
[26] They mount up to the heaven,
They go down again to the depths,
Their soul is melted because of trouble.
[27] They reel to and fro, and stagger like a drunken man,
And *are at their wit's end.
[28] Then they cry unto the LORD in their trouble,
And he bringeth them out of their distresses.
[29] He [j]maketh the storm a calm,
So that the waves thereof are still.
[30] Then are they glad because they be quiet,
So he bringeth them unto their desired haven.
[31] Oh that men would praise the LORD for his goodness,
And for his wonderful works to the children of men!
[32] Let them exalt him also in the congregation of the people,
And praise him in the assembly of the elders.
[33] He [k]turneth rivers into a wilderness,
And the watersprings into dry ground;
[34] A [l]fruitful land into †barrenness,
For the wickedness of them that dwell therein.
[35] He [m]turneth the wilderness into a standing water,
And dry ground into watersprings.
[36] And there he maketh the hungry to dwell,
That they may prepare a city for habitation;
[37] And sow the fields, and plant vineyards,
Which may yield fruits of increase.
[38] He [n]blesseth them also, so that they [o]are multiplied greatly;
And suffereth not their cattle to decrease.
[39] Again, they are [p]diminished and brought low
Through oppression, affliction, and sorrow.
[40] He poureth contempt upon princes,
And causeth them to wander in the ‡wilderness, where there is no [way.
[41] Yet [q]setteth he the poor on high *from affliction,
And maketh him families like a flock.

PSALM LXXXVII.

The nature and glory of the Church. 4 The increase, honor, and comfort of the members thereof.

A Psalm or Song *for the Sons of Korah.

[1] [a]His foundation is in the holy mountains.
[2] The LORD loveth the gates of Zion
More than all the dwellings of Jacob.
[3] Glorious [a]things are spoken of thee,
O city of God! Selah!
[4] I will make mention of Rahab and Babylon to them that know [me:
Behold Philistia, and Tyre, with Ethiopia;
This man was born there.
[5] And of Zion it shall be said,
This and that man was born in her;
And the Highest himself shall establish her.
[6] The LORD shall count, when he [b]writeth up the people,
That this man was born there. Selah!

PSALM CXIII.[a]

An exhortation to praise God for his excellency, 6 for his mercy.

1 *Praise ye the LORD!
Praise, O ye servants of the LORD,
Praise the name of the LORD!
2 Blessed be the name of the LORD
From this time forth and for evermore!
3 From [a]the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same
The LORD's name is to be praised.
4 The LORD is high above all nations,

PSALM CXIV.

An exhortation, by the example of the dumb creatures, to fear God in his Church.

1 When [a]Israel went out of Egypt,
The house of Jacob from a people of strange language;
2 Judah [b]was his sanctuary,
And Israel his dominion.
3 The [c]sea saw it, and fled;
Jordan [d]was driven back.
4 The mountains skipped like rams,
And the little hills like lambs.
5 What ailed thee, O thou sea, that thou fleddest?
Thou Jordan, that thou wast driven back?

PSALM CXVI.

PSALM CXVI.

The psalmist professeth his love and duty to God for his deliverance. 12 He studieth to be thankful.

1 I love the LORD, because he hath heard
My voice and my supplications.
2 Because he hath inclined his ear unto me,
Therefore will I call upon him *as long as I live.
3 The sorrows of death compassed me,
And the pains of hell †gat hold upon me;
I found trouble and sorrow.
4 Then called I upon the name of the LORD;
O LORD, I beseech thee, deliver my soul.
5 Gracious is the LORD, and righteous;
Yea, our God is merciful.
6 The LORD preserveth the simple;
I was brought low, and he helped me.
7 Return unto thy [a]rest, O my soul;
For the LORD hath dealt bountifully with thee.
8 For thou hast delivered my soul from death,
Mine eyes from tears, and my feet from falling.
9 I will walk before the LORD
In [b]the land of the living.
10 I [c]believed, therefore have I spoken;
I was greatly afflicted;
11 I said in my haste,
"All [d]men are liars."
12 What shall I render unto the LORD
For all his benefits toward me?
13 I will take the cup of salvation,
And call upon the name of the LORD.
14 I [e]will pay my vows unto the LORD
Now in the presence of all his people.
15 Precious in the sight of the LORD
Is the death of his saints.
16 O LORD, truly I am thy servant;
I am thy servant, and the son of thy handmaid;
Thou hast loosed my bonds.
17 I will offer to thee [f]the sacrifice of thanksgiving,
And will call upon the name of the LORD.
18 I will pay my vows unto the LORD
Now in the presence of all his people.

Except the LORD keep the city,
The watchman waketh but in vain.
[2] It is vain for you to rise up early, to sit up late,

(7) Psalm lxxxiv. is inserted in this place from its internal evidence that it was written about this period. The precise time of its composition is quite uncertain; and if the beautiful earnestness and devotional spirit which runs through this psalm be compared with the actual state of the Jewish Church, which was now again enjoying the services of the altar, it will not appear improbable that the psalm was composed about this time, by one of those pious Jews who were anxious to see their worship restored in its former splendor.

[12] O Lord of hosts,
Blessed is the man that trusteth in thee!

[1] Now when the adversaries of Judah and Benjamin heard that *the children of the captivity builded the temple unto the LORD God of Israel; [2] then they came to Zerubbabel, and to the chief of the fathers, and said unto them, "Let us build with you; for we seek your God, as ye do, and we do sacrifice unto him [a]since the days of Esar-haddon king of Assur, which brought us up hither." [3] But Zerubbabel, and Jeshua, and the rest of the chief of the fathers of Israel, said unto them, "Ye have nothing to do with us to build a house unto our God; but we ourselves together will build unto the LORD God of Israel, as king Cyrus the king of Persia hath commanded us." [4] Then the people of the land weakened the hands of the people of Judah, and troubled them in building, [5] and hired counsellors against them, to frustrate their

(9) The sacred authors commonly give the name of Samaritans only to those stranger people the Cuthites, whom the kings of Assyria sent from beyond the Euphrates to people the kingdom of Samaria, when they carried captive the Israelites, who were its former inhabitants, (2 Kings xvii. 23, 24.) We may therefore fix the first establishment of the Samaritans in Judæa when Shalmaneser conquered that part of the country. When Esarhaddon was informed that this people were infested by lions, he imputed it to their ignorance of the "god of the land," (2 Kings xvii. 26–34.) He therefore sent unto them one of the Jewish priests to teach them the worship and the rites of the God of Israel, and from this time they worshipped Jehovah, in conjunction with their own idol deities. The Samaritans, hearing that the Jews had begun to rebuild the temple at Jerusalem, expressed a great desire to be allowed to unite with them in this work; but the Jews, doubting their sincerity, and considering them as idolators, made answer to them,—that they, not being of the seed of Israel, had nothing to do to build a temple to their God, and that they would, according to the decree of Cyrus, build by themselves a temple to the Lord God of Israel. At which the Samaritans being much incensed, they did all they could to hinder the work; and although they could not alter Cyrus's decree, yet they prevailed, by bribes and underhand dealings with his ministers, and other officers concerned therein, to put obstructions to the execution of it; so that for several years the building went but very slowly on; which the Jews resenting, according as it deserved, this became the beginning of that bitter rancor which hath ever since existed between them and the Samaritans; which, being increased by other causes, grew at length to that height, that nothing became more odious to a Jew than a Samaritan; of which we have several instances in the Gospels; and so it still continues. For, even to this day, a Cuthean (that is, a Samaritan), in their language, is the most odious name among them, and that which, in the height of their anger, by way of infamy and reproach, they bestow on those they most hate and abominate. And by this they commonly call us Christians, when they would express the bitterest of their hatred against us.

Hence the Jews, in expressing their utmost aversion to our Saviour, said unto him, "Thou art a Samaritan, and hast a devil;" as if to be a Samaritan and have a devil were things of equal reproach. This rancor, from various circumstances, was carried to such an excess, that the Jews published a curse and an anathema against them, the bitterest that ever was denounced against any people; for thereby they forbade all manner of communication with them, declared all the fruits and products of their land, and every thing else of theirs, which was either eaten or drunk among them, to be as swine's flesh, and prohibited all of their nation ever to taste thereof, and also excluded all of that people from being ever received as proselytes to their religion. And, in the last place, proceeded so far, as even to the barring of them for ever from having any portion in the resurrection of the dead to eternal life, as if this also were in their power. For many ages past, the conduct of the Jews towards the Samaritans hath been according to the tenor of this anathema; they constantly refusing all manner of converse or communication with them: and so it was even in our Saviour's time; for why else should the woman of Samaria ask our Saviour, "How is it that thou being a Jew askest drink of me, who am a woman of Samaria?" but that it was even then forbidden among the Jews either to eat or drink any thing of that which was the Samaritans': and the words immediately following are to this purpose; for they tell us that "the Jews had no dealings with the Samaritans."

The learned Dean Graves has beautifully pointed out the manner in which the opposition of the Samaritans was overruled to the general good of the Church of God. The intermixture of the Samaritans, who were not entirely weaned from the surrounding idolatry, might, had the Jews acquiesced in their wishes, once more have involved them in that sin. The very opposition of this people served to make the Jews more vigilant in preserving, and the Samaritans of emulating, the purity of the Mosaic Law. They became hostile, and therefore unsuspected, guardians of the purity of the Sacred Text, particularly, the Pentateuch: and while many of the Jews expected only a temporal Messiah, some of the Samaritans, from the Pentateuch alone, seem to have attained a juster notion of his real character. See also on this subject, Bishop Horsley's admirable Sermon on the words—"The woman was a Greek, a Syro-Phœnician by nation."—Prideaux, Connection, vol. i. p. 227, anno 535; Calmet, art. Samaritan; Graves On the Pentateuch purpose, all the days of Cyrus king of Persia, even until the reign of Darius king of Persia. [24] Then ceased the work of the house of God which is at Jerusalem.

(10) Psalm cxxix. This Psalm was probably composed by Ezra, or Nehemiah, for the consolation of the Jews at the time when the Samaritans obstructed the rebuilding of the city and temple.—Dimock.

(11) In consequence of the stratagems used by the Samaritans to defeat the object of the decree of Cyrus, the building of the temple had now ceased. Daniel gave himself up to mourning three weeks together; he then sees the vision, an account of which is contained in these three last chapters of his book. In this vision he is informed of various particulars concerning the Persian, Grecian, and Roman empires, and the kingdom of the Messiah, (chap. x.), states the occasion of the vision, and describes the Glorious Personage who appeared to the prophet.

The prediction then foretells the fate of the Persian empire (xi. 2,) whose fourth king, Darius, was attacked, and his empire destroyed, by Alexander (3); the partition of his vast dominions into four kingdoms (4); and the wars between the kingdoms of Egypt (which lay to the south of Judæa) and of Syria (which lay to the north of the Holy Land,) are then related together with the conquest of Macedon by the Romans (5–36). The prophecy then declares the tyranny of the papal antichrist, which was to spring up under the Roman empire (36–39), and the invasions of the Saracens (from the south) and of the Turks (from the north) in the time of the end, or latter days of the Roman monarchy (40–45.) This prophetic vision concludes with foretelling the general resurrection (xii. 1–4), and with announcing the time when all these great events were to have their final consummation, when the Jews were to be restored, antichrist destroyed, the fulness of the Gentiles brought in, and the Millennium, or reign of saints, was to begin (5–13). But the exact period, until Providence shall open more of the seals, cannot be fully ascertained.

Upon the whole, we may observe with Bishop Newton, what an amazing prophecy is this, comprehending so many various events, and extending through so many successive ages, from the first establishment of the Persian empire, upwards of 530 years before Christ, to the general resurrection! What a proof of a Divine Providence, and of a Divine Revelation! for who could thus declare the things that shall be, with their times and seasons, but He only who hath them in his power; whose dominion is over all, and whose kingdom endureth from generation to generation!

Of all the old prophets, Daniel is the most distinct in the order of time, and easiest to be understood; and on this account, Sir Isaac Newton observes, in those events which concern the last times, he must be the interpreter of the rest. All his predictions relate to each other, as if they were several parts of one general prophecy. The first is the easiest to be understood, and every succeeding prophecy adds something to the former. Though his style is not so lofty and figurative as that of the other prophets, it is more suitable to his subject, being clear and concise; his narratives and descriptions are simple and natural; and, in short, he writes more like a historian than a prophet.

Of the genuineness and authenticity of the book of Daniel we have every possible evidence, both external and internal.

for the men that were with me saw not the vision; but a great quaking fell upon them, so that they fled to hide themselves. [8] Therefore I was left alone, and saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me; for my †comeliness was turned in me into corruption, and I retained no strength. [9] Yet heard I the voice of his words: and when I heard the voice of his words, then was I in a deep sleep on my face, show thee the truth. Behold, there shall stand up yet three kings in Persia; and the fourth shall be far richer than they all; and by his strength through his riches he shall stir up all against the realm of Grecia. [3] And a mighty king shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his will. [4] And when he shall stand up, his kingdom shall be broken, and shall be divided toward the four winds of heaven; and not to his posterity, nor according to his dominion which he ruled;

for his kingdom shall be plucked up, even for others besides those.

[5] "And the king of the south shall be strong, and one of his princes; and he shall be strong above him, and have dominion; his dominion shall be a great dominion. [6] And in the end of years they shall ‡join themselves together; for the king's daughter of the south shall come to the king of the north to make *an agreement. But she shall not retain the power of the arm, neither shall he stand, nor his arm; but she shall be given up, and they that brought her, and †he that begat her, and he that strengthened her in these times. (12) Much discussion has at various times been entered into respecting the meaning of the word Michael, which occurs in this last vision of Daniel. Many learned men are of opinion that Michael is but a name for Christ, or the Angel of the Covenant, the Angel Jehovah.

Lightfoot is of this opinion. In his fifth of November Sermon, preached at Ely, of which Church he was a prebendary, in 1661; he is discussing the passage in Daniel x. 21. "There is none that holdeth with me but Michael your Prince. Who is the Prince of the Church but Christ," &c. —Vide Lightfoot's Works. vol. ii. p. 114.

The learned Joseph Mede is of the opposite there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time. And at that time thy people [n]shall be delivered, every one that shall be [o]found written in the book. [2] And many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, [p]some to everlasting life, and some to shame [q]and everlasting contempt. [3] And they that be ‡wise shall [r]shine as the brightness of the firmament; [s]and they that turn many to righteousness, [t]as the stars for ever and ever. [4] But thou, O Daniel, [u]shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased."

[5] Then I Daniel looked, and, behold, there stood other two, the one on this side of the *bank of the river, and the other on that side of the bank of the river. [6] And one said to the man clothed in linen, which was †upon the waters of the river, "How long shall it be to the end of these wonders?" [7] And I heard the man clothed in linen, which was upon the waters of the river, when he [v]held up his right hand and his left hand unto heaven, and sware by Him that liveth for ever [w]that it shall be for a time, times, and ‡a half; [x]and when he shall have accomplished to scatter the power of the holy people, all these things shall be finished. [8] And I heard, but I understood not; then said I, "O my Lord, what shall be the end of these things?" [9] And he said, "Go thy way, Daniel; for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end. [10] Many [y]shall be purified, and made white, and tried; [z]but the wicked shall do wickedly. And none of the wicked shall understand; but [a]the wise shall understand. [11] And from the time that the daily sacrifice shall be taken away, and *the abomination that †maketh desolate set up, there shall be a thousand two hundred and ninety days. [12] Blessed is he that waiteth, and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days. [13] But go thou thy way till the end be; ‡for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days."

Haggai reproveth the people for neglecting the building the house. He inciteth them thereto. Zerubbabel and Shealtiel set forward the building. Haggai promiseth them God's assistance, and encourageth the people to the work by the promise of greater glory to the second temple than was in the first. Zechariah exhorteth the people to repentance. Haggai, by the type of holy things and unclean, showeth that their sins hindered the work. God's promise to Zerubbabel. opinion. Sed quis, inquies, est iste Michael? Non opinor Christus ipse, sed,' &c.—Mede's Works, p. 495, line 1.

Bishop Horsley, in his Sermon on the Watchers, supposes that Michael is merely a name given to Christ; and after much ingenious discussion. he thus proceeds: "From all this it is evident that Michael is a name for our Lord himself, in his particular character of the champion of his faithful people, against the violence of the apostate faction, and the wiles of the devil. In this point I have a host of the learned on my side; and it will be further evident from what is yet to come."—Horsley's Sermons, vol. ii. p. 376.

Bishop Warburton has given his vote on the opposite side, in a very singular remark contained in the thirty-fourth of his letters, p. 92.

Mr. Faber too agrees with Lightfoot and Horsley in their opinion that Michael was Christ. See the arguments on this point, admirably discussed in the fifth Exercitation of the learned Witsius. With the most commendable impartiality he has examined both sides of this question, and I think the reader will be inclined to adopt his conclusion, that Michael the Archangel is the Saviour of the Christian Church.—Vide Witsius, Miscel. Sacra, Exerc. 5.—De Michaele.

said to have commenced with Darius Hystaspes, who in the second year of his reign published the decree for the resuming the building of the temple, which had been discontinued since the third year of Cyrus. From the publication of this decree may be reckoned the thorough restoration of the Jewish state. The dynasty of Cyrus, Cambyses, and Smerdis, being at an end, the edict which prohibited the building of the temple was considered obsolete, yet the Jews neglected to resume the work. On account of this negligence God smote the land with barrenness, so that both the vintage and harvest failed them. But in the second year of Darius, the prophet Haggai being commanded to inform the Jews of the cause of this judgment upon them, in obedience to his exhortations, they proceed with the work. This took place in the second year of Darius, the sixth month, in the first day of the month, vide Haggai, i. 1, compared with Ezra v. 1. The arrangement of the several passages of the prophecies of Haggai and Zechariah, contained in this section, is made on the authority of the various dates assigned by the prophets themselves. Compare Haggai i. 1, with Ezra v. 1; Haggai i. 12, with Ezra v. 2; Haggai ii 1, Zech. i. 1; Haggai ii. 10, and Zechariah i. 7.

With respect to Haggai, there is nothing transmitted to us on which we can depend, but that he was the first prophet commissioned to make known the divine will to the Jews after their return from captivity. The general opinion, founded on the assertion of the Pseudo-Epiphanius, is, that he was born at Babylon, and was one of the Jews who returned with Zerubbabel, in consequence of the edict of Cyrus. The same author affirms that he was buried at Jerusalem among the priests, whence some have conjectured that he was of the family of Aaron. The times of his predictions, however, are so distinctly marked by himself, that we have as much certainty on this point as we have with respect to any of the prophets.

The Jews, who were released from captivity in the first year of the reign of Cyrus (Ezra i. 1, et seq.), having returned to Jerusalem and commenced the rebuilding of the temple (Ezra ii. 1), were interrupted in their undertakings by the neighbouring satraps, who contrived to prejudice the Persian monarch against them (Ezra iv. 1, with 24), until the second year of Darius. Discouraged by these impediments, the people ceased, for fourteen years, to prosecute the erection of the second temple, as if the time were not yet come, and applied themselves to the building of their own houses; for which they are reproved by Haggai, chap. i. 1–12.

Ezra v. 2.

[2] Then rose up Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Jeshua the son of Jozadak, and began to build the house of God which is at Jerusalem: and with them were the prophets of God helping them.

Hag. i. 12, to the end.

[12] Then Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, with all the remnant of the people, obeyed the voice of the Lord their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, as the Lord their God had sent him, and the people did fear before the Lord.

[13] Then spake Haggai the Lord's messenger in the Lord's message unto the people, saying, I [f]am with you, saith the Lord. [14] And [g]the Lord stirred up the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Joshua the son of Josedech, the high priest, and the spirit of all the remnant of the people; and they came and did work in the house of the Lord of hosts, their God, [15] in the four and twentieth day of the sixth month, in the second year of Darius the king.

That saw this house
In her first glory?
And how do ye see it now?
Is it not in your eyes in comparison of it as nothing?

(14) In consequence of the exhortations of the prophet, the Jews applied themselves diligently to the rebuilding of the temple; and to encourage them to go on vigorously in their undertaking, in the fourth and twentieth day of the sixth month (compare Haggai i. 1 with Ezra v. 15), another message from God assures them of his presence and blessing. And further to stimulate their exertions, Haggai a month after (chap. ii. 1) promises them that the glory of the latter house, when built, should be greater than the glory of the former house; which was accordingly accomplished, when Christ our Lord came to this his temple, and honored it with his presence. In all other respects this latter temple, the same prophet tells us, at its first building, was as nothing in comparison of the former.

The Jews reckon up five several marks of divine favor which distinguished the first temple, and were wanting in the second. The ark of the covenant, and the mercy-seat which was upon it; the Shechinah, or the Divine Presence; the Urim and Thummim; the holy fire upon the altar; and the Spirit of prophecy. Now the absence of these several things was abundantly supplied by the presence of that Divine Personage, of whom each of them

[10] In the four and twentieth day of the ninth month,(16) in the second year of Darius, came the word of the LORD by Haggai the prophet, saying, [11] Thus saith the LORD of hosts, Ask [u]now the priests concerning the law, saying, [12] If one bear holy flesh was in some measure typical. Christ may be called the ark, as he was the material representative of the Deity, in which was deposited the perfect law of God. Like the cedar of which the ark was composed, Christ was incorruptible; and the golden crown of divinity and glory was upon him, as it was upon the ark. Angels attended him in his humiliation, and desired to penetrate the mystery of his incarnation as the cherubim bent over the mercy-seat. From Him, as from the ark, the oracle was given to man. As God met with man between the cherubim before the mercy-seat, so is Christ the meeting place between God and man. Christ was the Shechinah, for he dwelt or tabernacled among men, the true glory of the Shechinah. The Urim and Thummim were not required when the Messiah was on earth, he only has given those clear oracular answers, which shall ever instruct the world; the others were but typical of that union of light and perfection, which met in him alone. Never but in him were united perfect knowledge and perfect holiness. He is the Great High Priest who has spoken with the mouth of God. The holy fire was not necessary; it was but typical of that eternal flame of devotion, purity, and love, which God requires, and Christ exemplified. The spirit of prophecy was not wanted, for on him rested the spirit without measure. He was the prophet like unto Moses, in bringing in a new dispensation; though greater than Moses, for he was perfect in himself, and grace and truth are better than the law. Christ united in himself all these ornaments of the first temple, and he excelled them all, inasmuch as the substance is superior to the shadow. These things, it is true, made the first temple glorious; but the glory of the second temple was indeed greater than that of the first; when Christ, uniting all the realities of which the first temple were but typical, presented himself in the second temple to the admiring and wondering crowd, as the true Messiah, the expected Hope, and Saviour of Israel.

(15) All that we know of the prophet Zechariah is, that he was one of the captives who returned to Jerusalem on the decree of Cyrus, a contemporary with Haggai, that he began to prophesy two months after him, and that he was commissioned as well as Haggai to encourage the Jews in the building of their temple. He prophesied about two years: his last revelation having been delivered in the fourth day of the ninth month of the fourth year of Darius Hystaspes, (ch. vii. 1.) Zechariah therefore probably lived to witness the completion of the temple, which was finished six years after.

Zechariah is quoted as an inspired writer, (Matt. xxi. 4, 5,) and the minute accomplishment of his own prophecies bears a signal testimony to the truth of that Divine Spirit by which he was inspired.

The prophecy of Zechariah consists of two parts, the first of which concerns the events which were then taking place, viz. the restoration of the temple, interspersing predictions relative to the advent of the Messiah. The second part comprises prophecies relative to more remote events, particularly the coming of Jesus Christ, and the war of the Romans against the Jews.

In this portion of the first chapter he exhorts the Jews to repentance, and to go on with the building of the temple.—Gray and Horne in loc.

(16) On the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, the Jews, after they had been employed from the twenty-fourth day of the sixth month (Haggai i. 1–9, and 15) in preparing materials for the temple, proceeded again with the building of it; whereupon the prophet Haggai promised them from God a deliverance from that barrenness of their land with which it had been smitten, and plentiful increase of all its fruits for the future. He also delivered unto Zerubbabel, a message from God, of mercy and favor to him.—Prideaux's Connection, vol. i. p. 257.

(17) In this prophecy of Zechariah it is predicted that Darius should permit the building of the temple, (chap. i. 7–18,) and that the Samaritans should be compelled to suspend their opposition to the building, (18–21.) Further, to encourage the Jews in their work, the prophet foretells the prosperity of Jerusalem, (ii. 1–5,) and admonishes the Jews to depart from Babylon before her destruction, (6–9,) promising them the divine presence, (10–13.) These promises, though partly fulfilled by the prosperity of the Jews under the Maccabees, remained to be still more fully accomplished after the restoration of the Jews, and their conversion to the Gospel.

The adversaries of the Jews having endeavoured to interrupt their work (Ezra v.), in order to encourage them, the restoration of the temple and its service is foretold under the vision of Joshua the high priest, arrayed in new sacerdotal attire, (iii. 1–7;) whence, by an easy transition, the prophet proceeds to set forth the glory of Christ as the chief cornerstone of his Church, (8–10.)

Under the vision of the golden candlestick and two olive trees, is typically represented the success of Zerubbabel and Joshua in rebuilding the temple, and restoring its service.

Under the vision of a flying roll, the divine judg-

Under the vision of the four chariots, drawn by several sorts of horses, are represented the successions of the Babylonian, Persian, Macedo-Greek, and Roman empires, (vi. 1–8); and by the two crowns placed upon the head of Joshua, are set forth, primarily, the reëstablishment of the civil and religious polity of the Jews, under Zerubbabel and Joshua; and secondarily, the high priesthood and kingdom of Christ, emphatically termed here "the Branch."—Horne's Critical Introduction.

[3] AT the same time came to them Tatnai, governor on this side the river, and Shethar-boznai, and their companions, and said thus unto them, "Who hath commanded you to build this house, and to make up this wall?" [4] Then said we unto them after this manner, "What are the names of the men *that make this building?" [5] But [a]the eye of their God was upon the elders of the Jews, that they could not cause them to cease, till the matter came to Darius; and then they returned answer by letter concerning this matter.

[6] The copy of the letter that Tatnai, governor on this side the river, and Shethar-boznai, and his companions the Apharsachites, which were on this side the river, sent unto Darius the king. [7] They sent a letter unto him, †wherein was written thus:—

† Chald. in the midst whereof.

"Unto Darius the king, all peace! [8] Be it known unto the king, that we went into the province of Judæa, to the house of the great God, which is builded with ‡great stones, and timber is laid in the walls, and this work goeth fast on, and prospereth in their hands. [9] Then asked we those elders, and said unto them thus, 'Who commanded you to build this house, and to make up these walls?' [10] We asked their names also, to certify thee, that we might write the names of the men that were the chief of them. [11] And thus they returned us answer, saying, 'We are the servants of the God of heaven and earth, and build the house that was builded these many years ago, which a great king of Israel builded and [b]set up. [12] But [c]after that our fathers had provoked the God of heaven unto wrath, he gave them into the hand of [d]Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, the Chaldean, who destroyed this house, and carried the people away into Babylon. [13] But in the first year of [e]Cyrus the king of Babylon, the same king Cyrus made a decree to build this house of God. [14] And [f]the vessels also of gold and silver of the house of God, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the temple that was in Jerusalem, and brought them into the temple of Babylon, those did Cyrus the king take out of the temple of Babylon, and they were delivered unto one, whose name was Sheshbazzar, whom he had made *governor; [15] and said unto him, 'Take these vessels, go, carry them into the temple that is in Jerusalem, and let the house of God be builded in his place.' [16] Then came the same Sheshbazzar, and laid the foundation of the house of God which is in Jerusalem; and since that time even until now hath it been in building, and yet it is not finished.' [17] Now, therefore, if it seem good to the king, let there be search made in the king's treasure-house, which is there at Babylon, whether it be so, that a decree was made of Cyrus the king to build this house of God at Jerusalem, and let the king send his pleasure to us concerning this matter."

PSALM CXXXVIII.(18)

The psalmist praiseth God for the truth of his word. 4 He prophesieth that the kings of the earth shall praise God. 7 He professeth his confidence in God.

A Psalm of David.[a] a Five MSS. omit this title, and the LXX. and Arabic prefix also the names of Haggai and Zechariah, by one of whom it was probably composed.—Ed.

[1] I will praise thee with my whole heart,
Before the gods will I sing praise unto thee.
[2] I will worship [a]toward thy holy temple,
And praise thy name for thy lovingkindness and for thy truth;
For thou hast [b]magnified thy word above all thy name.
[3] In the day when I cried thou answeredst me,
And strengthenedst me with strength in my soul.
[4] All [c]the kings of the earth shall praise thee, O Lord,
When they hear the words of thy mouth.
[5] Yea, they shall sing in the ways of the Lord,
For great is the glory of the Lord.
[6] Though [d]the Lord be high, yet [e]hath he respect unto the lowly;
But the proud he knoweth afar off.
[7] Though [f]I walk in the midst of trouble, thou wilt revive me;
Thou shalt stretch forth thy hand against the wrath of mine enemies,
And thy right hand shall save me.

(19) The seventh and eighth chapters of the book of Zechariah were delivered to some Jews who had been sent to Jerusalem from their brethren at Babylon, to inquire of the priests and prophets whether it was still necessary to observe the fasts that had been instituted on account of the destruction of Jerusalem, and which had been observed during the captivity (vii. 1–4.)—the prophet is commanded to take this occasion of enforcing upon them the weightier matters of the Law, viz. judgment and mercy, lest the same calamities should befall them which had been inflicted upon their fathers for their neglect of those duties, (4–14.) In the event of their obedience, God promises the continuance of his favor, (viii. 1–8;) they are encouraged to go on with the building, (9–17,) and are permitted to discontinue the observance of the fasts which they had kept during the captivity, (18–23.)—Horne's Critical Introduction.

I [m]am returned unto Zion, and [n]will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem;
And Jerusalem [o]shall be called A City of Truth;
And the mountain of the Lord of hosts [p]The Holy Mountain.
4 Thus saith the Lord of hosts,
There [q]shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem,
And every man with his staff in his hand for *very age.
5 And the streets of the city shall be full
Of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.
6 Thus saith the Lord of hosts,
If it be †marvellous in the eyes of the remnant of this people in these days,
Should [r]it also be marvellous in mine eyes? saith the Lord of hosts.
7 Thus saith the Lord of hosts,
Behold, [s]I will save my people from the east country,
And from ‡the west country,
8 And I will bring them, and they shall dwell in the midst of Jerusalem;
And they shall be my people, and I will be their God,
In truth and in righteousness.
9 Thus saith the Lord of hosts,
Let your hands be strong,
Ye that hear in these days
These words by the mouth of the prophets,
Which were [t]in the day
That the foundation of the house of the Lord of hosts was laid,
That the temple might be built.
10 For before these days
*There was no [u]hire for man, nor any hire for beast;
Neither was there any peace to him that went out or came in
Because of the affliction;
For I set all men every one against his neighbour.
11 But now I will not be unto the residue of this people
As in the former days, saith the Lord of hosts.
12 For [v]the seed shall be †prosperous;
The vine shall give her fruit,
And the ground shall give her increase,
And [w]the heavens shall give their dew;
And I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things.
13 And it shall come to pass,
That as ye were [x]a curse among the heathen,
O house of Judah, and house of Israel;
So will I save you, and [y]ye shall be a blessing.
Fear not, but let your hands be strong!
14 For thus saith the Lord of hosts,
As [z]I thought to punish you,
When your fathers provoked me to wrath,
Saith the Lord of hosts, and [a]I repented not;
15 So again have I thought in these days
To do well unto Jerusalem and to the house of Judah.
Fear ye not!
16 These are the things that ye shall do;
Speak [b]ye every man the truth to his neighbour;
‡Execute the judgment of truth and peace in your gates;
17 And [c]let none of you imagine evil in your hearts against his neighbour;
And love no false oath:
For all these are things that I hate, saith the Lord.
18 And the word of the Lord of hosts came unto me, saying—

[14] AND the elders of the Jews builded, and they prospered through the prophesying of Haggai the prophet and Zechariah the son of Iddo. And they builded, and finished it, according to the commandment of the God of Israel, and according to the *commandment of Cyrus, and Darius, and Artaxerxes king of Persia. [15] And this house was finished on the third day of the month Adar, which was in the sixth year of the reign of Darius the king.

[16] And the children of Israel, the priests, and the Levites, and the rest of †the children of the captivity, [a]kept the dedication of this house of God with joy. [17] And offered at the dedication of this house of God an hundred bullocks, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs; and for a sin offering for all Israel, twelve he goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel. [18] And they set the priests in their [b]divisions, and the Levites in their [c]courses, for the service of God, which is at Jerusalem; ‡as it is written in the Book of Moses. [19] And the children of the captivity kept the Passover [d]upon the fourteenth day of the first month. [20] For the priests and the Levites were [e]purified together, all of them were pure, and [f]killed the Passover for all the children of the captivity, and for their brethren the priests, and for themselves. [21] And the children of Israel, which were come again out of captivity, and all such as had separated themselves unto them from the [g]filthiness of the heathen of the land, to seek the LORD God of Israel, did eat, [22] and kept [h]the feast of Unleavened Bread seven days with joy; for the LORD had made them joyful, [i]and turned the heart of the king of Assyria unto them, to strengthen their hands in the work of the house of God, the God of Israel.

(20) In the sixth year of Darius, according to the Jewish account, and on the third day of the twelfth month, called the month of Adar, (which answered to part of the third and part of the fourth month of the Babylonish year, and consequently was in the seventh year of Darius, according to the Babylonish account,) the building of the temple at Jerusalem was finished, and the dedication of it was celebrated by the priests and Levites, and all the rest of the congregation of Israel, with great joy and solemnity. And, among other sacrifices then offered, there was a sin offering for all Israel of twelve he goats, according to the number of the tribes of Israel; which fully proves that on the return of Judah and Benjamin from the Babylonish captivity, some also of each of the other tribes of Israel came with them out of Assyria, Babylon, and Media, whither they had been before carried, and, joining with them in the rebuilding of the temple, (to which they had originally an equal right,) partook also with them in the solemnity of this dedication; otherwise there is no reason why any such offering should have been then made in their behalf. But the most of them that returned being of the tribe of Judah, that tribe swallowed up the names of all the rest; for from this time the whole people of Israel, of what tribe soever they were, began to be called Jews; and by that name they have all of them been ever since known all the world over.

The temple was twenty years in finishing; from the second of Cyrus, when it was first begun, to the seventh of Darius, when it was fully finished.—Prideaux, Connection, anno 515.—Darius 7.

The ornaments and privileges of the Church.

A Song and Psalm *for the sons of Korah.

1 Great is the LORD, and greatly to be praised
In the city of our God, in the mountain of his holiness.
2 Beautiful for situation,
The joy of the whole earth, is Mount Zion,
On the sides of the north, [a]the city of the great King.
3 God is known in her palaces for a refuge.
4 For, lo! [b]the kings were assembled,
They passed by together.
5 They saw it—and so they marvelled;
They were troubled—and hasted away.
6 Fear [c]took hold upon them there,
And pain, as of a woman in travail.
7 Thou [d]breakest the ships of Tarshish
With [e]an east wind.
8 As we have heard, so have we seen
In the city of the LORD of hosts, in the city of our God;
God will [f]establish it for ever. Selah!
9 We have thought of thy lovingkindness, O God,
In the midst of thy temple.
10 According to [g]thy name, O God,
So is thy praise unto the ends of the earth;
Thy right hand is full of righteousness.
11 Let Mount Zion rejoice,
Let the daughters of Judah be glad,
Because of thy judgments.
12 Walk about Zion, and go round about her;
Tell the towers thereof.
13 *Mark ye well her bulwarks, †consider her palaces;
That ye may tell it to the generation following.

To the chief Musician, *upon Gittith, A Psalm †of Asaph.

1 Sing aloud unto God our strength;
Make a joyful noise unto the God of Jacob.
2 Take a psalm, and bring hither the timbrel,
The pleasant harp with the psaltery.
3 Blow up the trumpet in the new moon,
In the time appointed, on our solemn feast day.
4 For [a]this was a statute for Israel,
And a law of the God of Jacob.
5 This he ordained in Joseph for a testimony,
When he went out ‡through the land of Egypt;
Where [a]I heard a language that I understood not.

PSALM CXLVI.(21)

The psalmist voweth perpetual praises to God. 3 He exhorteth not to trust in man. 5 God, for his power, justice, mercy, and kingdom, is only worthy to be trusted.

1 *Praise ye the Lord!
Praise the Lord, O my soul!

7 Which executeth judgment for the oppressed;
Which [e]giveth food to the hungry.

The [g]Lord raiseth them that are bowed down;

(21) Psalms cxlvi., cxlvii., and cxlviii. are placed in this section on the authority of Prideaux. They are inserted also both by Dr. Gray and Mr. Horne, with the cxlixth and clth, among those which were written on some great deliverance of the Church. The two latter Psalms are so evidently written on the same model as those which precede them, that they may be justly referred to the same period and to the same occasion. Psalm xlviii. is assigned by the same authorities to some season of joy, and its contents appear applicable to this period. The chronology of Psalm lxxxi. is uncertain; it is supposed to have been composed for the feast of Trumpets. I have inserted it here, from comparing its contents with the account of the circumstances attendant on the dedication of the temple. The Psalm seems to be an address to the people, calling upon them to revive the solemn festivals which were "the statutes for Israel, and a law of the God of Jacob." It enumerates their past deliverances, and invites the people to join in praises to the God of Jacob.

PSALM CXLVII.

The prophet exhorteth to praise God for his care of the Church, 4 his power, 6 and his mercy: 7 to praise him for his providence: 12 to praise him for his blessings upon the kingdom, 15 for his power over the meteors, 19 and for his ordinances in the Church.

1 Praise ye the Lord!
For it is good to sing praises unto our God;
For it is pleasant, and praise is comely.
2 The Lord doth build up Jerusalem;
He [a]gathereth together the outcasts of Israel.
3 He [b]healeth the broken in heart,

4 He [c]telleth the number of the stars;
He calleth them all by their names.
5 Great is our Lord, and of great power;

6 The Lord lifteth up the meek;
He casteth the wicked down to the ground.
7 Sing unto the Lord with thanksgiving,
Sing praise upon the harp unto our God;

Who prepareth rain for the earth,
Who maketh grass to grow upon the mountains.
9 He [e]giveth to the beast his food,
And to the young ravens which cry.
10 He delighteth not in the strength of the horse;
He taketh not pleasure in the legs of a man.
11 The Lord taketh pleasure in them that fear him,
In those that hope in his mercy.
12 Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem!
Praise thy God, O Zion!
13 For he hath strengthened the bars of thy gates;
He hath blessed thy children within thee.
14 ‡He maketh peace in thy borders,
And filleth thee with the *finest of the wheat.
15 He sendeth forth his commandment upon earth;

16 He [f]giveth snow like wool;
He scattereth the hoar frost like ashes.
17 He casteth forth his ice like morsels:
Who can stand before his cold?
18 He [g]sendeth out his word, and melteth them;
He causeth his wind to blow, and the waters flow.
19 He [h]showeth his †word unto Jacob,
His statutes and his judgments unto Israel.

(22) The contents of this and the following section are placed here on the authority of Dr. Hales, who observes, "The whole passage (Ezra iv. 6–23) is an historical anticipation, introduced parenthetically into the account of the former opposition of the Samaritans to rebuilding the temple, from the time of Cyrus to Darius Hystaspes; describing their subsequent oppositions to rebuilding Jerusalem and its walls, in the ensuing reign of Xerxes and Artaxerxes. It comes in between ver. 5, and 24, of this chapter; of which the latter verse takes up the subject of the former again, and the fifth chapter proceeds immediately to the account of rebuilding the temple on the exhortation of the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, by Zerubbabel and Jeshua, &c.

"The merit of distinguishing these different oppositions is due to Howe, in his ingenious strictures on Richardson's Dissertations on the Literature of Eastern Nations. See his Critical Observations on Books, vol. ii. p. 82, &c."—Vide Hales's Analysis, vol. ii. note, p. 524.

(23) There has been much difference of opinion with regard to the Ahasuerus of Scripture It is certain that the Jews were accustomed to distinguish foreign persons by different names from those given to them in profane history: and indeed every nation is known to have fallen into this custom in conformity to the genius and pronunciation of its own language. Scaliger contends, that Ahasuerus was the same with Xerxes; because, from a fancied similarity of names only, he supposes that his queen Amestries must have been the Esther of Holy Writ. Archbishop Usher is of opinion, that Darius Hystaspes was the king Ahasuerus that married Esther; and that Atossa was Vashti, and Artystone, Esther. Some, upon grounds equally conjectural, have maintained that Ahasuerus was Cyaxares; while others again have imagined that he was Cambyses. But all these contending opinions are at variance with the accounts handed down to us by profane historians. Prideaux therefore supposes, and with the greatest probability, that Ahasuerus was Artaxerxes Longimanus: in support of which argument he observes; "The most ancient and best evidences that can be had of this matter are from the Greek version of the sacred text, called the Septuagint, the apocryphal additions to the book of Esther, and Josephus; and all these agree for Artaxerxes Longimanus. For Josephus positively tells us it was he; and the Septuagint, through the whole book of Esther, wherever the Hebrew text hath Ahasuerus, translate Artaxerxes; and the apocryphal additions to that book everywhere call the husband of Esther, Artaxerxes, who could be none other than Artaxerxes Longimanus; for there are several circumstances related of him, both in the canonical and apocryphal Esther, which can by no means be applicable to the other Artaxerxes, called Mnemon. And Severus Sulpitius, and many other writers, as well of the ancients as the moderns, came also into this opinion. And the extraordinary favor and kindness which Artaxerxes Longimanus showed the Jews beyond all the other kings that reigned in Persia, first in sending Ezra, and afterwards Nehemiah, for the repairing of the broken affairs of that people in Judah and Jerusalem, and the restoring of them again to their ancient prosperity, is what can scarce be accounted for on any other reason, but that they had in his bosom such a powerful advocate as Esther to solicit for them."—Prideaux's Connection, p. 361; Dr. Gray.

(24) The Book of Esther, which derives its name from the person whose history it chiefly relates, is by the Jews termed Megilloth Esther, or the Volume of Esther. It has ever been held in the highest estimation by the Jews, who place it on the same level with the Law of Moses; and they believe, that whatever destruction may attend the other sacred writings, the Pentateuch and the Book of Esther will always be preserved by a special providence.

Concerning the author of this book, the opinions of biblical critics are so greatly divided, that it is difficult to determine by whom it was written. Some ascribe it to the joint labors of the great synagogue, who, from the time of Ezra to Simon the Just, superintended the edition and canon of Scripture. Philo the Jew assigns it to Joachin, the son of Joshua the high priest, who returned with Zerubbabel; others think it was composed by Mordecai; and others, again, attribute it to Esther and Mordecai jointly. The two latter conjectures are grounded on the following declaration in Esther ix. 20, 23. “And Mordecai wrote these things, and sent letters unto all the Jews that were in all the provinces of king Ahasuerus; and the Jews undertook to do as they had begun, and as Mordecai, seven and twenty provinces;) [2] that in those days, when the king Ahasuerus sat on the throne of his kingdom, which was in Shushan the palace, [3] in the third year of his reign, he [c]made a feast unto all his princes and his servants, (the power of Persia and Media, the nobles and princes of the provinces being before him;) [4] when he showed the riches of his glorious kingdom and the honor of his excellent majesty many days, even an hundred and fourscore days. [5] And when these days were expired, the king made a feast unto all the people that were *present in Shushan the palace, both unto great and small, seven days, in the court of the garden of the king's palace; [6] where were white, green, and †blue hangings, fastened with cords of fine linen and purple to silver rings and pillars of marble: the beds were of gold and silver, upon a pavement ‡of red, and blue, and white, and black marble. [7] And they gave them drink in vessels of gold, (the vessels being diverse one from another,) and *royal wine in abundance, according †to the state of the king. [8] And the drinking was according to the law, (none did compel;) for so the king had appointed to all the officers of his house, that they should do according to every man's pleasure. [9] Also Vashti the queen made a feast for the women in the royal house which belonged to king Ahasuerus.

had written unto them." But the context of the passage clearly shows that these words do not relate to the book itself, but to the circular letters which Mordecai distributed in the Persian provinces. Augustine and some of the fathers suppose that it was written by Ezra, and this opinion appears more probable than any that has been offered to us.

But although we have no sufficient evidence to ascertain precisely who was its real author, there is no doubt but that the book itself contains a genuine and faithful account of what actually took place; not only from its admission into the canon of Scripture, but also from the institution of the feast of Purim; which, from its first establishment, has been regularly observed as an annual solemnity, on the fourteenth and fifteenth days of the month Adar, in commemoration of the great deliverance which Esther by her interest had procured for the Jews; and which is even now celebrated among them with many peculiar ceremonies, and with rejoicings even to intoxication. This festival was called Purim, or the feast of Lots, (Pur, in the Persian language, signifying, a lot) from the events mentioned in chap. iii. 7, ix. 24. It has been remarked, that the name of God is not mentioned throughout this book; but his superintendent providence is so evidently displayed in every transaction recorded in it, that its authenticity on this account cannot be questioned.—Dr. Gray's Key, in loc.; Horne's Critical Introduction, in loc.

that ministered unto him, "Let there be fair young virgins sought for was heard, and when many maidens were gathered together unto Shushan the palace, to the custody of Hegai, that Esther was brought also unto the king's house, to the custody of Hegai, keeper of the women. [9] And the maiden pleased him, and she obtained kindness of him; and he speedily gave her her things for purification, with ‡such things as belonged to her, and seven maidens, which were meet to be given her, out of the king's house; and he *preferred her and her maids unto the best place of the house of the women. [10] Esther had not showed her people nor her kindred; for Mordecai had charged her that she should not show it. [11] And Mordecai walked every day before the court of the women's house, to know †how Esther did, and what should become of her.

[12] Now when every maid's turn was come to go in to king Ahasuerus, after that she had been twelve months, according to the manner of the women, (for so were the days of their purifications accomplished, to wit, six months with oil of myrrh, and six months with sweet odors, and with other things for the purifying of the women;) [13] then thus came every maiden unto the king; whatsoever she desired was given her to go with her out of the house of the women unto the king's house. [14] In the evening she went, and on the morrow she returned into the second house of the women, to the custody of Shaashgaz, the king's chamberlain, which kept the concubines; she came in unto the king no more, except the king delighted in her, and that she were called by name.

[15] Now when the turn of Esther, the daughter of Abihail the uncle of Mordecai, who had taken her for his daughter, was come to go in unto the king, she required nothing but what Hegai, the king's chamberlain, the keeper of the women, appointed.

(25) Ezra probably received his first commission through the interest of Esther; as a short time after it was obtained, she was made queen, (compare Esther ii. 16, with vii. 8.)

From Ezra's entering upon the work of reforming the Jewish Church, the celebrated prophecy of the seventy weeks, which is delivered to us in the ninth chapter of Daniel, concerning the coming of the Messiah, is to be computed. The words of the prophecy, in our English translation, are as follow. Ver. 24. "Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the Most Holy:" ver. 25. "Know, therefore, and understand, that, from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks, and threescore and two weeks; the street shalt be built again, and the wall even in troublous times:" ver. 26. "And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off, but not for himself; and the people of the prince that shall come, shall destroy the city and the sanctuary, and the end thereof shall be with a flood, and to the end of the war desolations are determined:" ver. 27 "And he shall confirm the covenant with many for one week; and in the midst of the week he shall cause the sacrifice and the oblation to cease, and for the overspreading of abominations he shall make it desolate, even until the consummation, and that determined shall be poured upon the desolate."

And it being of great moment, for the conviction of Jews and other infidels who reject the faith of Christ, to have this prophecy well cleared, and made out, in order hereto it is to be observed,—

That this prophecy doth relate primarily and especially to the Jews. For it expresseth the time that was determined upon the people of Daniel, that is, the Jews, and upon the holy city, that is, Jerusalem. the whole of which was seventy weeks; after the expiration of which fore-ordained time, an end being put to the Mosaic economy, the Jews should be no longer God's peculiar people, and the worship which he had established at Jerusalem being abolished, that city should be no longer a city holy unto him.

Among the Jews there were sabbatical days, whereby their days were divided into weeks of days; and there were likewise sabbatical years, (Levit. xxv. 8,) whereby their years were divided into weeks of years, and this last sort of weeks is that which is here mentioned; so that every one of the weeks of this prophecy contains seven years, and the seventy weeks here appointed, denote a period of 490 years. At the end of which time, this prophecy was accomplished in the great work of our salvation, by the death and resurrection of Christ our Lord, who made, by one oblation of Himself, an end of sin, reconciliation for our iniquity, and brought in the law of everlasting righteousness.

Then the Jewish Church and the Jewish worship at Jerusalem were wholly abolished, the kingdom of the Messiah began; and the Christian Church and the Christian worship established, and, instead of Jerusalem, every place through the whole earth, where God should be worshipped in spirit and in truth, was made holy unto him. The end of these weeks being thus fixed at the death of Christ, by which great sacrifice all visions and prophecies were sealed up and fulfilled, (Dan. ix. 24), it necessarily determines us to fix the beginning of these weeks 490 years before that event. And as most learned men agree that "Messiah was cut off" in the year of the Julian period 4746, and in the Jewish month Nisan, if we reckon 490 years backward, this will lead us up to the month Nisan, in the year of the Julian period 4256, which was the very year and month in which Ezra had his commission from Artaxerxes Longimanus, king of Persia, for his return to Jerusalem, there to restore the church and state of the Jews; for that year of the Julian period, according to Ptolemy's canon, was the seventh year of that king's reign (Ezra vii. 7), in which the Scriptures tell us his commission was granted. The beginning, therefore, of the seventy weeks, or 490 years of this prophecy, was in the month Nisan of the Jewish year, in the seventh year of Artaxerxes Longimanus, king of Persia, and in the 4256th year of the Julian period, when Ezra had his commission; and the end of them fell in the very same month of Nisan, in the 4746th year of the Julian period, in which very year and very month Christ our Lord suffered for us, and thereby completed the whole work of our salvation, there being just seventy weeks of years, or 490 years, from the one to the other.

It is evident, then, from the prophecy itself, that these weeks must have their beginning from the date of the commission granted to Ezra, because their commencement must be determined by the death of Christ. It is expressly stated (Dan. ix. 25.) that they should begin "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem:" which words, therefore, must be understood figuratively, as they refer to the ecclesiastical, as well as to the political state of the Jews, and to the future reëstablishment of both, according to the Law of Moses; which great work was completely brought about by Ezra, who effected a thorough reformation in church and state. For if these words "to restore and to build Jerusalem," are to be taken in their literal signification, they must relate to the decree of Cyrus, of whom it was pre-son of Shallum, the son of Zadok, the son of Ahitub, [3] the son of Amariah, the son of Azariah, the son of Meraioth, [4] the son of Zerahiah, the son of Uzzi, the son of Bukki, [5] the son of Abishua, the son of Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, the son of Aaron the chief priest;—

[6] this Ezra went up from Babylon; and he was a ready scribe in the Law of Moses, which the LORD God of Israel had given; and the king granted him all his request, according to the hand of the LORD his God upon him. [7] And there went up some of the children of Israel, dicted, that he “should say to Jerusalem, ‘Be thou built,’ and to the temple, ‘Thy foundation shall be laid,’” and the commencement of the seventy weeks must be computed from his edict. But they cannot begin at this time, because they would then have expired long before even the coming of the Messiah; and as we are certain, from the prophecy itself, that the seventy weeks must begin from one of the edicts granted by the kings of Persia in favor of the Jews, it is evident that they can only have their commencement from this decree of Artaxerxes, given in the seventh year of his reign: and that the words “to restore and to build Jerusalem” must be taken in their figurative signification. See the arguments at length, in Prideaux's Connection, part i. book v. p. 377–408.

[28] And I said unto them, "Ye are [u]holy unto the LORD; the vessels are [v]holy also; and the silver and the gold are a freewill offering unto the LORD God of your fathers. [33] Now on the fourth day was the silver and the gold and the vessels weighed in the house of our God by the hand of Meremoth the son of Uriah the priest; and with him was Eleazar the son of Phinehas; and with them was Jozabad the son of Jeshua, and Noadiah the son of Binnui, Levites. [34] By number and by weight of every one; and all the weight was written at that time. [35] Also the children of those that had been carried away, which were come out of the captivity, [x]offered burnt offerings unto the God of Israel, (twelve bullocks for all Israel,) ninety and six rams, seventy and seven lambs, twelve he goats for a sin offering: all this was a burnt offering unto the LORD.

[17] And the king loved Esther above all the women, and she obtained grace and *favor †in his sight more than all the virgins; so that he set the royal crown upon her head, and made her queen instead of Vashti. Ezra mourneth for the affinity of the people with strangers. 5 He prayeth unto God with confession of sins. — Chap. x. 1 Shechaniah encourageth Ezra to reform the strange marriages. 6 Ezra assembleth the people. 9 The people, at the exhortation of Ezra, repent, and promise amendment. 15 The care to perform it. 18 The names of them which had married strange wives.

[1] Now when these things were done, the princes came to me, saying, "The people of Israel, and the priests, and the Levites, have not separated themselves from the people of the lands, [a]doing according to their abominations, even of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Ammonites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Amorites. [2] For they have [b]taken of their daughters for themselves, and for their sons, so that the [c]holy seed [d]have mingled themselves with the people of those lands; yea, the hand of the princes and rulers hath been chief in this trespass." [3] And when I heard this thing, I rent my garment and my mantle, and plucked off the hair of my head and of my beard, and sat down astonied. [4] Then were assembled unto me every one that [e]trembled at the words of the God of Israel, because of the transgression of those that had been carried away; and I sat astonied until the [f]evening sacrifice.

O my God! I am [h]ashamed and blush to lift up my face to thee, my God; for our iniquities are increased over our head, and our †trespass is [i]grown up unto the heavens. [7] Since the days of our fathers have [j]we been in a great trespass unto this day; and for our iniquities [k]have we, our kings, and our priests, been delivered into the hand of the kings of the lands, to the sword, to captivity, and to a spoil, and to confusion of face, as it is this day. [8] And now for a ‡little space grace hath been showed from the LORD our God, to leave us a remnant to escape, and to give us *a nail in his holy place, that our God may lighten our eyes, and give us a little reviving in our bondage. [9] For [l]we were bondmen; yet our God hath not forsaken us in our bondage, but hath extended mercy unto us in the sight of the kings of Persia, to give us a reviving, to set up the house of our God, and †to repair the desolations thereof, and to give us a wall in Judah and in Jerusalem. [10] And now, O our God! what shall we say after this? for we have forsaken thy commandments, [11] which thou hast commanded ‡by thy servants the prophets, saying, "The land, unto which ye go to possess it, is an unclean land with the filthiness of the people of the lands, with their abominations, which have filled it from *one end to another with their uncleanness. [12] Now therefore [m]give not your daughters unto their sons, neither take their daughters unto your sons, [n]nor seek their peace or their wealth for ever; that ye may be strong, and eat the good of the land, and [o]leave it for an inheritance to your children for ever." [13] And after all that is come upon us for our evil deeds, and for our great trespass, seeing that thou our God †hast punished us less than our iniquities deserve, and hast given us such deliverance as this; [14] should we [p]again break thy commandments, and [q]join in affinity with the people of these abominations? wouldest not thou be [r]angry with us till thou hadst consumed us, so that there should be no remnant nor escaping? [15] O LORD God of Israel, thou art righteous; for we remain yet escaped, as it is this day. Behold, we are [s]before thee in our trespasses; for we cannot [t]stand before thee because of this.

EZRA X.

[1] Now when Ezra had prayed, and when he had confessed, weeping and casting himself down before the house of God, there assembled unto him out of Israel a very great congregation of men and women and children; for the people wept ‡very sore. [2] And Shechaniah the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam, answered and said unto Ezra, "We have trespassed against our God, and have taken strange wives of the people of the land; yet now there is hope in Israel concerning this thing. [3] Now therefore let us make [u]a covenant with our God *to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the counsel of my lord, and of those that tremble at [v]the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law. [4] Arise! for this matter belongeth unto thee. We also will be with thee; be of good courage, and do it." [5] Then arose Ezra, and made the chief priests, the Levites, and all Israel, to swear that they should do according to this word. And they sware.

[6] Then Ezra rose up from before the house of God, and went into the chamber of Johanan the son of Eliashib. And when he came thither, [w]he did eat no bread, nor drink water; for he mourned because of the transgression of them that had been carried away. [7] And they made proclamation throughout Judah and Jerusalem unto all the children of the captivity, that they should gather themselves together unto Jerusalem; [8] and that whosoever would not come within three days, according to the counsel of the princes and the elders, all his substance should be †forfeited, and himself separated from the congregation of those that had been carried away.

[9] Then all the men of Judah and Benjamin gathered themselves together unto Jerusalem within three days. It was the ninth month, and the twentieth day of the month; and [x]all the people sat in the street of the house of God, trembling because of this matter, and for ‡the great rain. [10] And Ezra the priest stood up, and said unto them,
"Ye have transgressed, and *have taken strange wives, to increase the trespass of Israel. [11] Now therefore [y]make confession unto the LORD God of your fathers, and do his pleasure; and separate yourselves from the people of the land, and from the strange wives." [12] Then all the congregation answered and said with a loud voice, "As thou hast said, so must we do. [13] But the people are many, and it is a time of much rain, and we are not able to stand without, neither is this a work of one day or two; for †we are many that have transgressed in this thing. [14] Let now our rulers of all the congregation stand, and let all them which have taken strange wives in our cities come at appointed times, and with them the elders of every city, and the judges thereof, until the fierce wrath of our God ‡for this matter be turned from us."

[15] Only Jonathan the son of Asahel and Jahaziah the son of Tikvah *were employed about this matter: and Meshullam and Shabbethai the Levite helped them. [16] And the children of the captivity did so.
And Ezra the priest, with certain chief of the fathers, (after the house of their fathers, and all of them by their names,) were separated, and sat down in the first day of the tenth month to examine the matter. [17] And they made an end with all the men that had taken strange wives by the first day of the first month.

[18] And among the sons of the priests there were found that had taken strange wives: namely, of the sons of Jeshua the son of Jozadak, and his brethren; Maaseiah, and Eliezer, and Jarib, and Gedaliah.
[19] And they [z]gave their hands that they would put away their wives; and being [a]guilty, they offered a ram of the flock for their trespass.

(26) There is less certainty with respect to the probable date and place of these latter chapters of Zechariah, than of any other chapters in the Old Testament. An expression quoted by St. Matthew (chap. xxvii. 9, 10), from Zechariah, is attributed by that Evangelist to Jeremiah. The learned Joseph Mede, Dr. Hammond, Bishop Kidder, and some others, assign these chapters to this latter prophet. In support of this opinion, the former uses the following arguments, Mede's Works, p. 786–833.

1. "If the contents of the prophecy be weighed, they would in all likelihood be of an elder date than the time of Zechariah, namely, before the captivity: for the subjects of them were scarce in being after that time.

2. "The chapter out of which St. Matthew quotes may seem to have somewhat much unsuitable with Zechariah's time; as, a prophecy of the destruction of the temple, then, when he was to encourage them to build it: and how does the sixth verse of that chapter suit with his time?

3. "No Scripture saith they are Zechariah's; but there is Scripture which saith they are Jeremiah's.

4. "Their being united to the other prophecies of Zechariah no more prove them to be his, than the adjoining of Agur's proverbs to Solomon's, proves they are therefore Solomon's, or that all the Psalms are David's because joined in one volume with David's Psalms.

5. Several verbal criticisms on the words used by St. Matthew, when compared with those used by Zechariah; which prove only that the Evangelist quoted according to the sense, and not the precise phrases of the prophet. (Compare Matt. xxvii. 9, 10, with Zech. xi. 12, 13, Archbp. Newcome's translation.)"

The above are selected from observations on several other passages of Scripture, in Epistle xxxi. In Epistle lxi. he resumes the subject.

6. "The titles at the head of the pages (in the Hebrew Bibles or manuscripts) matter not. The Jews wrote in rolls, or volumes, and the title was but once. If aught were added to that roll, of similitudinem argumenti, or for any other reason, it had a new title, as that of Agur, or perhaps sometimes none, but was ἀνώνυμον.

7. "That which I fancy or conceive is, that those prophecies against Damascus and the Philistines (chap. ix.) would better befit Jeremiah's time, of their destruction by Nebuchadnezzar, than (if of Zechariah's time) by Alexander. See the prophecy against Damascus (Jer. xlix. 23); against the Philistines, (chap. xlvii. 2. and Ezek. xxv. 15.) For where do we find Damascus destroyed from Zech-

When the eyes of man, as of all the tribes of Israel,

[2] And Hamath also shall border thereby;
Tyrus, and Zidon, though it be very wise.

ariah's to our Saviour's time? For to come under the hands of new masters, or to suffer some direption, or pillaging, doth not seem to satisfy the intent of the prophecy. And for the Philistines, though it be true that Alexander destroyed Gaza, yet it appears not that any such desolation befel Ashkelon, whereby it should not be inhabited: nor should they seem in Zechariah's time to have so well recovered their destruction by Nebuchadnezzar, as to be a subject for a new prophecy to that purpose.

8. "Tyre had but lately been destroyed by Nebuchadnezzar. The prophecy against this city, therefore, would be more suitable to the times of Jeremiah.

9. "That which moves me more than all the rest is in chap. xi. (whence that in the Gospel is quoted) which contains a prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem, and a description of the wickedness of its inhabitants, for which God would give them to the sword, and have no more pity upon them. It is expounded of the destruction by Titus; but methinks such a prophecy was not seasonable for Zechariah's time (when the city in great part lay in ruins, and the temple had not yet recovered herself), nor agreeable to the scope of Zechariah's commission, who, together with his colleague Haggai, was sent to encourage the people lately returned from the captivity to build the temple, and instaurate their commonwealth. Was this a fit time to foretell the destruction of both, while they were yet but building? and by Zechariah too, who was to encourage them? Would not this better befit the desolation by Nebuchadnezzar?

10. "Jeremiah's prophecies are digested in no order, but only as it seems they came to light in the scribes' hands, &c.; and why may not some be found till the return from the captivity, and be approved by Zechariah, and be added to his volume, according to the time of their finding, and approbation by him: and after that, some other prophecies of his?"

The argument for assigning the prophecy to the time of Jeremiah, derived from the text of St. Matthew, is of the greatest weight. Yet it must be observed, that the word ῾Ιεϱεμίου does not appear to have been the original reading of St. Matthew. It might either have been a marginal annotation, which afterwards crept into the text, or if the name of the prophet Zechariah had been written by St. Matthew, and was preserved in the manuscripts in an abbreviated form, that abbreviation may have been mistaken. The Syriac and Persic versions omit the name. Augustine De Cons. Ev. 3. 7, (quoted by Archbp. Newcome) says, "Primo noverit non omnes codices evangeliorum habere, quod per Hieremiam, dictum sit, sed tantummodo 'per prophetam.'" Griesbach prefixes to the word ῾Ιεϱεμίου his mark, that it should properly be omitted. Lightfoot (Harmony of the N. T.) observes, that in the old Bibles, Jeremiah was placed next after the Book of Kings, and stood first in the volume of the prophets. So that when Matthew quotes a text of Zechariah, under the name of Jeremiah, he does but cite a text out of the volume of the prophets under his name that stood first in that volume. In confirmation of this hypothesis, he refers to Matt. xvi. 14, observing, that in the saying Jeremiah, or one of the prophets, there is the same reason why Jeremiah is mentioned by name; because his name stood first in the volume of the prophets, and so occurred first to the mind, when any of the people spoke familiarly of the prophets.

We learn from Zechariah ii. 4, that, at the commencement of his prophesying, in the second year of Darius, he was a very young man. The same word being used in Jeremiah i. 6, and is rendered in the authorized translation "a child." He would not be, therefore, more than eighty years old when Ezra went up from Babylon to Jerusalem. And as we have already seen that the Spirit of God was frequently poured upon his servants on the occurrence of any important occasion, it is not unreasonable to suppose, as there is no date assigned to these chapters, and as they have been attributed to Zechariah both by Ezra and the great Sanhedrin, that they were uttered by him during the government of Ezra. The evident difference of style observable in these latter chapters of Zechariah, when compared with those that precede them, and the great resemblance the former bear to the style of Jeremiah, may be accounted for on the supposition, that his first prophecies were delivered when he was quite a young man, "a child;" and that his last were given probably after a particular attention and study of the prophecies of Jeremiah, by which his own expressions were strengthened, and his language improved.

This theory perhaps may be considered as the best solution to the difficulty; it is, however, rejected by Whitby, who seems to incline to the opinion of the learned Joseph Mede. Though it may appear presumptuous to submit to the world an opposite opinion to that which has been defended by one so eminent, yet I feel that it would be still more so to adopt so considerable an alteration, without still more powerful and convincing evidence. It will be only necessary, therefore, to state those arguments which seem to oppose the hypothesis maintained by Mr. Mede.

1. The first merely states the proposition to be proved.

2. It cannot be proved that Zechariah wrote this chapter at the exact time when he was encouraging the people to build the temple. The sixth verse may justly be interpreted as a prophecy of the destruction of the temple by Titus.

3. That these chapters have been uniformly, without one exception, in one version or MS. been given to Zechariah, is more ample proof that they were written by that prophet, than the disputed insertion of the word "Jeremiah" in Matt. xxvii. 10.

4. Agur's name is prefixed to his proverbs: other names than David's are prefixed to various Psalms. By the same analogy we are fairly warranted in concluding, that if these chapters had been written by Jeremiah, his name likewise would have been prefixed to them either by Zechariah, by Ezra, or by the great Sanhedrin.

5. The fifth objection has been already answered in a former part of the note.

6. As there is no new title given to these latter chapters, we may justly conclude they were a continuation of the former prophecies of Zechariah.

7. Damascus was betrayed into the hands of Parmenio, one of Alexander's generals, though without bloodshed, and it ceased to be a place of importance. This was sufficient to fulfil the prophecy. It is not asserted that Damascus should be pillaged, neither is it necessary to suppose that its pillage or its violent capture were essential to the accomplishment of the prediction. (Zech. ix. 1.)

The Philistines, after the destruction of Gaza, never recovered their former glory; and Ashkelon shared the fate of the rest of the country. The words, "it shall not be inhabited," are figurative, and express only extensive desolation, and total political ruin. Thus Ezekiel (chap. xxix. ver. 11)

[3] And Tyrus did build herself a strong hold,
And heaped up silver as the dust,
And fine gold as the mire of the streets.
[4] Behold, [a]the Lord will cast her out,
And he will smite [b]her power in the sea;
And she shall be devoured with fire.
[5] Ashkelon [c]shall see it, and fear;
Gaza also shall see it, and be very sorrowful;
And Ekron, for her expectation shall be ashamed;
And the king shall perish from Gaza,
And Ashkelon shall not be inhabited.
[6] And a bastard shall dwell [d]in Ashdod,
And I will cut off the pride of the Philistines.
[7] And I will take away his [*]blood out of his mouth,
And his abominations from between his teeth;
But he that remaineth, even he, shall be for our God,
And he shall be as a governor in Judah,
And Ekron as a Jebusite.
[8] And I will encamp about my house because of the army,
Because of him that passeth by,
And because of him that returneth;
And [e]no oppressor shall pass through them any more:
For now have I seen with mine eyes.

predicts that Egypt should not be inhabited forty years. If this expression be literally interpreted, the prophecy has never been fulfilled: but as it signifies only desolation and ruin, it was accomplished in the forty years of calamity which succeeded the invasion of Nebuchadnezzar.

8. Tyre was taken by Nebuchadnezzar in the year 573. If this prophecy was delivered, as we suppose, in the year 457, an interval of 116 years is allowed for the revival of the Tyrian greatness: a space of time amply sufficient to enable a commercial power to recover all its splendor; particularly when that power in its first overthrow saved all its richest effects, and enjoyed likewise, through the whole of this long time, an uninterrupted peace. The prophecy, however, seems to refer to the capture of New Tyre, by Alexander, who built the causeway, and "smote her power in the sea," (ver. 4.)

9. That the prophecy of the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus should be delivered at this time, was rather to have been expected. The only power in the world that could have assaulted Jerusalem, and inflicted such disasters upon it, was Persia; but Persia was now a friendly power, and the people would not of course apply the prophecy of Zechariah to Persia. They would refer it to another period; and thus the prediction would answer a twofold purpose. It would be a pledge to the Jews that their city should so far recover as to be again powerful and splendid; and it was a warning to them, and to their children, that the new city should share the fate of the first, if they again rebelled against the God who had brought them back to their native country. The argument of Mede is founded on the supposition that Zechariah, if he wrote these chapters, must necessarily have written them in the first years of his delegation to the prophetic office; but this hypothesis is by no means necessary.

10. Though the prophecies of Jeremiah are undoubtedly "digested in no order," yet they were most probably collected together by the priests of the temple. They were known to Daniel, for he learned from them that the seventy years of their captivity had expired. They were of course known to Ezra, who would not, when he edited the Scriptures, have referred to one prophet the labors of another.

It would be easy still further to extend the argument in favor of the hypothesis that Zechariah was the author of the prophecies in question, from a comparison of the internal evidence, with the period that followed the commission of Ezra, to the time of Christ. From ver. 1–9, in chap. ix the prophet gives a general outline of the conquests of Damascus, Tyre, and Sidon, effected by Alexander, and the overthrow of the Philistines, the ancient enemies of the Church of God, (ver. 9, 10.) He foresees the entrance of the true king of Jerusalem, into the city "lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of an ass," (see Mark xi. 7, Matt. xxi. 5, and John xii. 15), the walls of which the people about him had now begun to rebuild: and (ver. 13) foretells the victories of the Maccabees over the troops of Antiochus, who was of Grecian descent, and further deliverances and successes are promised to those that are converted and believe. The theory here adopted is in some measure warranted by Lightfoot (p. 145), who supposes that Zechariah continued to prophesy during the intermediate years between the reformation by Ezra, and the commission of Nehemiah.

And the horse from Jerusalem,
And the battle bow shall be cut off;

14 And the LORD shall be seen over them,

(27) From ver. 1–3, prosperity is still promised to the Jews; and from ver. 4, to the end, their victories over their enemies are again foretold. It is probable that this prophecy remains to be fully accomplished in the final restoration of the Jews.—Horne's Critical Introduction.

[6] And I will strengthen the house of Judah,
And I will save the house of Joseph,
And I will bring them again to place them;
For I have mercy upon them;
And they shall be as though I had not cast them off,
For I am the Lord their God, and will hear them.
[7] And they of Ephraim shall be like a mighty man,
And their heart shall rejoice as through wine:
Yea, their children shall see it, and be glad;
Their heart shall rejoice in the Lord.
[8] I will [n]hiss for them, and gather them,
For I have redeemed them;
And [o]they shall increase as they have increased.
[9] And [p]I will sow them among the people;
And they shall [q]remember me in far countries;
And they shall live with their children, and turn again.
[10] I [r]will bring them again also out of the land of Egypt,
And gather them out of Assyria;
And I will bring them into the land of Gilead and Lebanon,
And [s]place shall not be found for them.
[11] And [t]he shall pass through the sea with affliction,
And shall smite the waves in the sea,
And all the deeps of the river shall dry up;
And [u]the pride of Assyria shall be brought down,
And [v]the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away.
[12] And I will strengthen them in the Lord;
And they shall walk up and down in his name, saith the Lord.

And their own shepherds pity them not.
[6] For I will no more pity the inhabitants of the land, saith the Lord;
But, lo! I will †deliver the men every one

And they shall smite the land,
And out of their hand I will not deliver them.

[7] [a]And I will feed the flock of slaughter, ‡even you, [y]O poor of the flock! And I took unto me two staves, the one I called Beauty, and the other I called *Bands; and I fed the flock. (28) This prediction was literally fulfilled in the person of Christ. The chapter predicts the rejection of the Jews, for their rejection of Christ. Lebanon (ver. 1) is supposed to mean the temple with its cedar buildings, the doors of which, according to Josephus, opened of their own accord before its destruction.

(29) This chapter contains a series of prophecies relating principally to the latter times of the Gospel. From ver. 1–9, is predicted the preservation of Jerusalem against an invasion in the last ages of the world, which most commentators think is that of Gog and Magog, more largely described in the thirty-eighth and thirty-ninth chapters of Ezekiel From ver. 10 to the end, the grief of the Jews, on their conversion, for their fathers having pierced the Messiah is then foretold.—Horne's Critical Introduction.

On the right hand and on the left;
And Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place,
Even in Jerusalem.
7 The LORD also shall save the tents of Judah first,
That the glory of the house of David
And the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem
Do not magnify themselves against Judah.
8 In that day shall the LORD defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem;
And he that is ‡feeble among them at that day shall be as David;
And the house of David shall be as God,
As the Angel of the LORD before them.
9 And it shall come to pass in that day,
That I will seek [g]to destroy all the nations
That come against Jerusalem.
10 And [h]I will pour upon the house of David,
And upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem,
The spirit of grace and of supplications;
And they shall [i]look upon Me whom they have pierced,
And they shall mourn for him,
As one mourneth for his only son,
And shall be in bitterness for him,
As one that is in bitterness for his firstborn.
11 In that day shall there be a great [j]mourning in Jerusalem,
As [k]the mourning of Hadadrimmon in the valley of Megiddon.
12 And [l]the land shall mourn, *every family apart;
The family of the house of David apart, and their wives apart;
The family of the house of [m]Nathan apart, and their wives apart;
13 The family of the house of Levi apart, and their wives apart;

(30) This chapter opens (ver. 1) by predicting the admission of the Jews by baptism to the privileges of the Gospel covenant; and from ver. 2–7, their deliverance from the delusions of false prophets. In ver. 7, the prophet foreshows the dispersion of Christ's disciples, and the preservation of a small remainder of his converts, whose faith should be tried in affliction.—Dr. Gray in loc.

Then he shall answer,
Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends.
7 Awake, O sword, against [s]my Shepherd,
And against the man [t]that is my fellow, saith the LORD of hosts:
Smite [u]the Shepherd, and the sheep shall be scattered;
And I will turn my hand upon [v]the little ones.
8 And it shall come to pass,
That in all the land, saith the LORD,
Two parts therein shall be cut off and die;
But [w]the third shall be left therein.
9 And I will bring the third part [x]through the fire,
And will [y]refine them as silver is refined,
And will try them as gold is tried.
They shall call on my name, and I will hear them;

(31) In this chapter is represented the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans under Vespasian (ver. 1, 2,) the subsequent discomfiture of its enemies (ver. 3.) The final and triumphant establishment of Christ's righteous kingdom is then foretold, ver. 8, and following verse. And the prophet describes these particulars with a clearness which indicated the near approach of the events of which he speaks. —Dr. Gray in loc.

From Geba to Rimmon south of Jerusalem;
And it shall be lifted up, and *inhabited in her place,
From Benjamin's gate unto the place of the first gate, unto the corner gate,
And from the tower of Hananeel unto the king's wine presses.
[11] And men shall dwell in it,
And there shall be [o]no more utter destruction;
But [p]Jerusalem †shall be safely inhabited.
[12] And this shall be the plague
Wherewith the Lord will smite all the people
That have fought against Jerusalem;
Their flesh shall consume away while they stand upon their feet,
And their eyes shall consume away in their holes,
And their tongue shall consume away in their mouth.
[13] And it shall come to pass in that day,
That a great tumult from the Lord shall be among them;
And they shall lay hold every one on the hand of his neighbour,
And [q]his hand shall rise up against the hand of his neighbour.
[14] And ‡Judah also shall fight *at Jerusalem;
And [r]the wealth of all the heathen round about shall be gathered together,
Gold, and silver, and apparel, in great abundance.
[15] And so shall be the plague of the horse,
Of the mule, of the camel, and of the ass,
And of all the beasts that shall be in these tents,
As this plague.
[16] And it shall come to pass,
That every one that is left of all the nations,
Which came against Jerusalem
Shall even [s]go up from year to year
To worship the King, the Lord of hosts,
And to keep [t]the feast of Tabernacles.
[17] And [u]it shall be, that whoso will not come up
Of all the families of the earth unto Jerusalem
To worship the King, the Lord of hosts,
Even upon them shall be no rain.
[18] And if the family of Egypt go not up, and come not,
†That have no rain; there shall be the plague,
Wherewith the Lord will smite the heathen
That come not up to keep the feast of Tabernacles.
[19] This shall be the ‡punishment of Egypt,
And the punishment of all nations,
That come not up to keep the feast of Tabernacles.
[20] In that day shall there be upon the *bells of the horses,
Holiness unto the Lord;
And the pots in the Lord's house
Shall be like the bowls before the altar.
[21] Yea, every pot in Jerusalem and in Judah
Shall be holiness unto the Lord of hosts;

Shall come and take of them,

Section IX.—Plot of Haman for the Destruction of the Jews, and its Defeat.

Esther iii. to the end of the Book.

Haman, advanced by the king, and despised by Mordecai, seeketh revenge upon all the Jews. 7 He casteth lots. 8 He obtaineth by calumniation a decree of the king to put the Jews to death. — Chap. iv. 1 The great mourning of Mordecai and the Jews. 4 Esther, understanding it, sendeth to Mordecai, who showeth the cause, and adviseth her to undertake the suit. 10 She, excusing herself, is threatened by Mordecai. 15 She, appointing a fast, undertaketh the suit. — Chap. v. 1 Esther, adventuring on the king's favor, obtaineth the grace of the golden sceptre, and inviteth the king and Haman to a banquet. 6 She, being encouraged by the king in her suit, inviteth them to another banquet the next day. 9 Haman, proud of his advancement, repineth at the contempt of Mordecai. 14 By the counsel of Zeresh he buildeth for him a gallows. — Chap. vi. 1 Ahasuerus, reading in the chronicles of the good service done by Mordecai, taketh care for his reward. 4 Haman, coming to sue that Mordecai might be hanged, unawares giveth counsel that he might do him honor. 12 Complaining of his misfortune, his friends tell him of his final destiny. — Chap. vii. 1 Esther, entertaining the king and Haman, maketh suit for her own life and her people's. 5 She accuseth Haman. 7 The king, in his anger, understanding of the gallows which Haman had made for Mordecai, causeth him to be hanged thereon. — Chap. viii. 1 Mordecai is advanced. 3 Esther maketh suit to reverse Haman's letters. 7 Ahasuerus granteth to the Jews to defend themselves. 15 Mordecai's honor, and the Jews' joy. — Chap. ix. 1 The Jews slay their enemies, with the ten sons of Haman. 12 Ahasuerus, at the request of Esther, granteth another day of slaughter, and Haman's sons to be hanged. 20 The two days of Purim are made festival. — Chap. x. 1 Ahasuerus's greatness. 3 Mordecai's advancement.

[1] After these things did king Ahasuerus promote Haman the son of Hammedatha the [a]Agagite, and advanced him, and set his seat above all the princes that were with him. [2] And all the king's servants, that were in the king's gate, bowed, and reverenced Haman: for the king had so commanded concerning him. But Mordecai [b]bowed not, nor did him reverence. [3] Then the king's servants, which were in the king's gate, said unto Mordecai, "Why transgressest thou the king's commandment?" [4] Now it came to pass, when they spake daily unto him, and he hearkened not unto them, that they told Haman, to see whether Mordecai's matters would stand; for he had told them that he was a Jew. [5] And when Haman saw that Mordecai bowed not, nor did him reverence, then was Haman full of wrath. [6] And he thought scorn to lay hands on Mordecai alone, (for they had showed him the people of Mordecai;) wherefore Haman sought to destroy all the Jews that were throughout the whole kingdom of Ahasuerus, even the people of Mordecai.

[7] In the first month, that is, the month Nisan, in the twelfth year of king Ahasuerus, they cast Pur, that is, the lot, before Haman from day to day, and from month to month, to the twelfth month, that is, the month Adar.

[11] And the king said unto Haman, "The silver is given to thee, the people also, to do with them as it seemeth good to thee." [12] Then were † Or, secretaries. the king's †scribes called on the thirteenth day of the first month, and there was written according to all that Haman had commanded unto the king's lieutenants, and to the governors that were over every province, and to the rulers of every people of every province according to the writing thereof, and to every people after their language; in the name of king Ahasuerus was it written, and sealed with the king's ring. [13] And the letters were sent by posts into all the king's provinces,(33) of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar, and to take the spoil of them for a prey. [14] The copy of the writing for a commandment to be given in every province was published unto all people, that they should be ready against that day. [15] The posts went out, being hastened by the king's commandment, and the decree was given in Shushan city Shushan was perplexed.

[1] When Mordecai perceived all that was done, Mordecai Esther iv.

the king's gate clothed with sackcloth. [3] And in every province, whithersoever the king's commandment and his decree came, there was great mourning among the Jews, and fasting, and weeping, and wailing;

[4] So Esther's maids and her *chamberlains came and told it her.
Then was the queen exceedingly grieved; and she sent raiment to it not. [5] Then called Esther for Hatach, one of the king's him a commandment to Mordecai, to know what it was, and why it was.

[6] So Hatach went forth to Mordecai unto the street of the city, which was before the king's gate. [7] And Mordecai told him of all that had happened unto him, and of the sum of the money that Haman had promised to pay to the king's treasuries for the Jews, to destroy them.
[8] Also he gave him the copy of the writing of the decree that was given at Shushan to destroy them, to show it unto Esther, and to declare it unto her, and to charge her that she should go in unto the king, to make supplication unto him, and to make request before him for her people. [9] And Hatach came and told Esther the words of Mordecai.

[10] Again Esther spake unto Hatach, and gave him commandment unto Mordecai, [11] "All the king's servants, and the people of the king's provinces, do know, that whosoever, whether man or woman, shall

(33) The extent of the danger to which the Jews were exposed by the malice of Haman may be better understood from considering that the plot was laid against the whole nation, who were all to be found at this time within the boundaries of the Persian empire. Judæa itself was only one of the provinces of Persia. In the subsequent persecutions of the Jews, on being harassed by one monarch or government, they were always able to take refuge in the territories of another: but at this period of their history it was impossible for them to escape from the universal power of the Persians. (compare chap. iii. 13, 14. vii. 9.) If the design of Haman, therefore, had not been frustrated by the overruling providence of God, no human means could have saved the visible Church from destruction.

been called to come in unto the king these thirty days." [12] And they told to Mordecai Esther's words. [13] Then Mordecai commanded to answer Esther, "Think not with thyself that thou shalt escape in the king's house, more than all the Jews. [14] For if thou altogether holdest thy peace at this time, then shall there ‡enlargement and deliverance arise to the Jews from another place; but thou and thy father's house shall be destroyed; and who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

‡ Heb. respiration. Job 9. 18.

[15] Then Esther bade them return Mordecai this answer, [16] "Go, gather together all the Jews that are *present in Shushan, and fast ye for me, and neither eat nor drink three days, night or day. I also and my maidens will fast likewise; and so will I go in unto the king, (which is not according to the law;) [k]and if I perish, I perish!" [17] So Mordecai †went his way, and did according to all that Esther had commanded him.

Esther v.

[1] Now it came to pass on the third day, that Esther put on her royal apparel, and stood in the inner court of the king's house, over against the king's house; and the king sat upon his royal throne in the royal house, over against the gate of the house. [2] And it was so, when the king saw Esther the queen standing in the court, that [l]she obtained favor in his sight; and the king held out to Esther the golden sceptre that was in his hand. So Esther drew near, and touched the top of the sceptre. [3] Then said the king unto her, "What wilt thou, queen Esther? and what is thy request? [m]it shall be even given thee to the half of the kingdom." [4] And Esther answered, "If it seem good unto the king, let the king and Haman come this day unto the banquet that I have prepared for him." [5] Then the king said, "Cause Haman to make haste, that he may do as Esther hath said." So the king and Haman came to the banquet that Esther had prepared.

[6] And the king said unto Esther at the banquet of wine, "What is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee; and what is thy request? even to the half of the kingdom it shall be performed." [7] Then answered Esther, and said, "My petition and my request is, [8] if I have found favor in the sight of the king, and if it please the king to grant my petition, and ‡to perform my request, let the king and Haman come to the banquet that I shall prepare for them, and I will do to-morrow as the king hath said."

‡ Heb. to do.

[9] Then went Haman forth that day joyful and with a glad heart; but when Haman saw Mordecai in the king's gate, that he stood not up, nor moved for him, he was full of indignation against Mordecai. [10] Nevertheless Haman [n]refrained himself; and when he came home, he sent and *called for his friends, and Zeresh his wife. [11] And Haman told them of the glory of his riches, and the multitude of his children, and all the things wherein the king had promoted him, and how he had advanced him above the princes and servants of the king. [12] Haman said moreover, "Yea, Esther the queen did let no man come in with the king unto the banquet that she had prepared but myself; and to-morrow am I invited unto her also with the king. [13] Yet all this availeth me nothing, so long as I see Mordecai the Jew sitting at the king's gate."

[14] Then said Zeresh his wife and all his friends unto him, "Let a †gallows be made of fifty cubits high, and to-morrow speak thou unto the king that Mordecai may be hanged thereon; then go thou in merrily with the king unto the banquet." And the thing pleased Haman, and he caused the gallows to be made.

commanded to bring the Book of Records of the Chronicles:[a] and they were read before the king. [2] And it was found written, that Mordecai had told of *Bigthana and Teresh, two of the king's chamberlains, the keepers of the †door, who sought to lay hand on the king Ahasuerus. [3] And the king said, "What honor and dignity hath been done to Mordecai for this?" Then said the king's servants that ministered unto him, "There is nothing done for him."

[4] And the king said, "Who is in the court?" Now Haman was come into the outward court of the king's house, to speak unto the king to hang Mordecai on the gallows that he had prepared for him. [5] And the king's servants said unto him, "Behold, Haman standeth in the court." And the king said, "Let him come in." [6] So Haman came in. And the king said unto him, "What shall be done unto the man ‡whom the king delighteth to honor?" Now Haman thought in his heart, "To whom would the king delight to do honor more than to myself?" [7] And Haman answered the king, "For the man *whom the king delighteth to honor, [8] †let the royal apparel be brought which the king useth to wear, and [o]the horse that the king rideth upon, and the crown royal which is set upon his head. [9] And let this apparel and horse be delivered to the hand of one of the king's most noble princes, that they may array the man withal whom the king delighteth to honor, and ‡bring him on horseback through the street of the city, [p]and proclaim before him, Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delighteth to honor." [10] Then the king said to Haman, "Make haste, and take the apparel and the horse, as thou hast said, and do even so to Mordecai the Jew, that sitteth at the king's gate; *let nothing fail of all that thou hast spoken." [11] Then took Haman the apparel and the horse, and arrayed Mordecai, and brought him on horseback through the street of the city, and proclaimed before him, "Thus shall it be done unto the man whom the king delighteth to honor."

[12] And Mordecai came again to the king's gate. But Haman [q]hasted to his house mourning, [r]and having his head covered. [13] And Haman told Zeresh his wife and all his friends every thing that had befallen him. Then said his wise men and Zeresh his wife unto him, "If Mordecai be of the seed of the Jews, before whom thou hast begun to fall, thou shalt not prevail against him, but shalt surely fall before him." [14] And while they were yet talking with him, came the king's chamberlains, and hasted to bring Haman unto the banquet that Esther had prepared.

Esther vii.

[1] So the king and Haman came †to banquet with Esther the queen. [2] And the king said again to Esther on the second day at the banquet of wine, "What is thy petition, queen Esther? and it shall be granted thee; and what is thy request? and it shall be performed, even to the half of the kingdom." [3] Then Esther the queen answered and said, "If I have found favor in thy sight, O king, and if it please the king, let my life be given me at my petition, and my people at my request; [4] for we are sold, I and my people, ‡to be destroyed, to be slain, and to perish. But if we had been sold for bondmen and bondwomen, I had held my tongue, although the enemy could not countervail the king's damage."

[5] Then the king Ahasuerus answered and said unto Esther the queen, "Who is he, and where is he, *that durst presume in his heart to do so?" [6] And Esther said, "†The adversary and enemy is this wicked Haman." Then Haman was afraid ‡before the king and the queen.

[7] And the king arising from the banquet of wine in his wrath went into the palace garden; and Haman stood up to make request for his life to Esther the queen, for he saw that there was evil determined and seal it with the king's ring; for the writing which is written in the [9] Then were the king's scribes called at that time in the third month, that is, the month Sivan, on the three and twentieth day thereof; and it was written according to all that Mordecai commanded unto the Jews, and to the lieutenants, and the deputies and rulers of the provinces which are from India unto Ethiopia, an hundred twenty and seven provinces, unto every province according to the writing thereof, and unto every people after their language, and to the Jews according to their writing, and according to their language. [10] And he wrote in the king Ahasuerus's name, and sealed it with the king's ring, and sent letters by posts on horseback, and riders on mules, camels, and young dromedaries; [11] wherein the king granted the Jews which were in every city to gather themselves together, and to stand for their life, to destroy, to slay, and to cause to perish, all the power of the people and province that would assault them, (both little ones and women,) and to take the spoil of them for a prey, [12] upon one day in all the provinces of king Ahasuerus, namely, upon the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is the month Adar. [13] The copy of the writing for a commandment that the Jews should be ready against that day to avenge themselves

And the decree was given at Shushan the palace.

[1]Now in the twelfth month, that is, the month Adar, on the thirteenth day of the same, when the king's commandment and his decree drew near to be put in execution, in the day that the enemies of the Jews hoped to have power over them, (though it was turned to the contrary, that the Jews had rule over them that hated them;) [2]the Jews gathered themselves together in their cities throughout all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus, to lay hand on such as sought their hurt; and no man could withstand them, for the fear of them fell upon all people. [3]And all the rulers of the provinces, and the lieutenants, and the deputies, and *officers of the king, helped the Jews; because the fear of Mordecai fell upon them. [4]For Mordecai was great in the king's house, and his fame went out throughout all the provinces; for this man Mordecai [a]waxed greater and greater. [5]Thus the Jews smote all their enemies with the stroke of the sword, and slaughter, and destruction, and did †what they would unto those that hated them. [6]And in Shushan the palace the Jews slew and destroyed five hundred men. [7]And Parshandatha, and Dalphon, and Aspatha, [8]and Poratha, and Adalia, and Aridatha, [9]and Parmashta, and Arisai, and Aridai, and Vajezatha, [10](the [b]ten sons of Haman the son of Hammedatha, the enemy of the Jews,) slew they; but on the spoil laid they not their hand. [12]And the king said unto Esther the queen, "The Jews have slain and destroyed five hundred men in Shushan the palace, and the ten sons of Haman; what have they done in the rest of the king's provinces? now what is thy petition? and it shall be granted thee: or what is thy request further? and it shall be done." [13]Then said Esther, "If it please the king, let it be granted to the Jews which are in Shushan to do to-morrow also according unto this day's decree, and *let Haman's ten sons be hanged upon the gallows." [14]And the king commanded it so to be done; and the decree was given at Shushan, and they hanged Haman's ten [a]sons. [15]For the Jews that were in Shushan gathered themselves together on the fourteenth day also of the Month Adar, and slew three hundred men at Shushan; but on the prey they laid not their hand. [16]But the other Jews that were in the king's provinces gathered themselves together, and stood for their lives, and had rest from their enemies, and slew of their foes seventy and five thousand, but they laid not their hands on the prey. [17]On the thirteenth day of the Month Adar, and on the fourteenth day †of the same rested they, and made it a day of feasting and gladness. [18]But the Jews that were at Shushan assembled together on the thirteenth day thereof, and on the fourteenth thereof; and on the fifteenth day of the same they rested, and made it a day of feasting and gladness. [19]Therefore the Jews of the villages, that dwelt in the unwalled towns, made the fourteenth day of the Month Adar [c]a day of gladness and feasting, and a good day, and of [d]sending portions one to another.

e See 2 Mac. 15. 36.

[20]And Mordecai wrote these things, and sent letters unto all the Jews that were in all the provinces of the king Ahasuerus, both nigh and far, [21]to establish this among them, that they should keep [e]the fourteenth day of the Month Adar, and the fifteenth day of the same, yearly, [22] as the days wherein the Jews rested from their enemies, and the month which was [f]turned unto them from sorrow to joy, and from mourning into a good day; that they should make them days of feasting and joy, and of sending portions one to another, and gifts to the poor. [23] And the Jews undertook to do as they had begun, and as Mordecai had written unto them; [24] because Haman the son of Hammedatha, the Agagite, the enemy of all the Jews, had devised against the Jews to destroy them, and had cast Pur, (that is, the lot,) to ‡consume them, and to destroy them; [25] but when *Esther came before the king, he commanded by letters that his wicked device, which he devised against the Jews, should return upon his own head, and that he and his sons should be hanged on the gallows. [26] Wherefore they called these days Purim after the name of †Pur. Therefore for all the words of this letter, and of that which they had seen concerning this matter, and which had come unto them, [27] the Jews ordained, and took upon them, and upon their seed, and upon all such as [g]joined themselves unto them, so as it should not ‡fail, that they would keep these two days according to their writing, and according to their appointed time every year; [28] and that these days should be remembered and kept throughout every generation, every family, every province, and every city; and that these days of Purim should not *fail from among the Jews, nor the memorial of them †perish from their seed. [29] Then Esther the queen, the daughter of Abihail, and Mordecai the Jew, wrote with all ‡authority, to confirm this second letter of Purim. [30] And he sent the letters unto all the Jews, to the hundred twenty and seven provinces of the kingdom of Ahasuerus, with words of peace and truth, [31] to confirm these days of Purim in their times appointed, according as Mordecai the Jew and Esther the queen had enjoined them, and as they had decreed *for themselves and for their seed, the matters of the fastings and their cry. [32] And the decree of Esther confirmed these matters of Purim; and it was written in the book.

(34) The commision of Ezra continued till the end of the year 446 B. C., at which time he was superseded by Nehemiah, who was high in office at the court of Persia, and was sent to Jerusalem with greater powers than were possessed by Ezra. These two great reformers, however, were not divided by any inferior jealousy; they coöperated zealously together, and completely reëstablished the Jewish polity, both in church and state.

The Book of Nehemiah is in some versions termed the Second Book of Ezra or Esdras, from an opinion which anciently obtained, and was adopted by Athanasius, Epiphanius, Chrysostom, and other eminent fathers of the Church, that Ezra was the palace, [2] that Hanani, one of my brethren, came, he and certain men of Judah; and I asked them concerning the Jews that had escaped, which were left of the captivity, and concerning Jerusalem.

[3] And they said unto me, "The remnant that are left of the captivity there in the province are in great affliction and reproach; the wall of the author of this book. In the modern Hebrew Bibles it has the name of Nehemiah prefixed to it, which is also retained in our English Bibles.

That Nehemiah, who was cupbearer to Artaxerxes Longimanus, was the author of this book, there cannot be any reasonable doubt; the whole of it being written in his name, and, what is very unusual, when compared with the preceding sacred historians, in the first person. The insertion of the greater part of the register in chap. xii. 1–26, (which is thought to militate against this generally received opinion), may be accounted for by supposing it either to have been added by some subsequent author, or perhaps by the authority of the great synagogue: for it seems to be unconnected with the narrative of Nehemiah, and ascribes to him a degree of longevity which appears scarcely credible.

Nehemiah was the son of Hachaliah, and, according to some writers, was of the tribe of Levi; but, in the opinion of others, of the royal house of Judah: as the office he held in the Persian court (that of cupbearer) was a post of great honor and influence, it is certain that he was a man of illustrious family; and of his integrity, prudence, and piety, the whole of this book presents abundant evidence. He arrived at Jerusalem thirteen years after Ezra, with the rank of governor of the province, and vested with full power and authority to encourage the rebuilding of the walls of that city, and to promote the welfare of his countrymen in every possible way.

Having governed Judæa for twelve years (Neh. xiii. 6), Nehemiah returned to his royal patron (2–6), and after a short absence, he obtained permission to go back again to his country, where he is supposed to have spent the remainder of his life.

Nehemiah was probably the last governor appointed by the kings of Persia: after his time Judæa was governed by the high priests under the Persian, Macedo-Grecian, Asmonean, and Roman dynasties, till the destruction of their city and temple.

It is supposed to have been chiefly owing to the influence of Esther, that Ezra and Nehemiah were permitted by Artaxerxes Longimanus to rebuild Jerusalem, and restore the ecclesiastical and civil polity of the Jews. Dr. Hales, however, is of opinion, that the conduct of Artaxerxes respecting the Jews may be accounted for upon sound political principles, and not merely from regard to the solicitations of his cupbearer (Nehemiah), or the influence of his queen.

Four years before Nehemiah rebuilt the city, Artaxerxes suffered the celebrated defeat of his forces by Cimon, the Athenian general, which compelled him to make an inglorious peace upon the humiliating conditions that the Persians should be excluded from the whole line of seacoast within three days' journey, and precluded from keeping a garrison in any of the maritime towns. On account of this treaty it became a matter of state necessity to conciliate the Jews, and attach them to the Persian interest by further privileges, that the Persians might have the benefit of the fortified town of Jerusalem, which was within three days' journey of the sea, and at the same time opened to them a most important pass, for communication between Persia and Egypt.—Vide Hales's Analysis, vol. ii. p. 528.

NEHEMIAH ii. 1–11.

[1] And it came to pass in the Month Nisan, in the twentieth year of Artaxerxes the king, that wine was before him; and I took up the wine, and gave it unto the king. Now I had not been beforetime sad in his presence. [2] Wherefore the king said unto me, "Why is thy countenance sad, seeing thou art not sick? this is nothing else but [k]sorrow of heart." Then I was very sore afraid, [3] and said unto the king, "Let the king live for ever! Why should not my countenance be sad, when the city, the place of my fathers' sepulchres, lieth waste, and the gates thereof are consumed with fire?" [4] Then the king said unto me, "For what dost thou make request?" So I prayed to the God of heaven. [5] And I said unto the king, "If it please the king, and if thy servant have found favor in thy sight, that thou wouldest send me unto Judah, unto the city of my fathers' sepulchres, that I may build it." [6] And the king said unto me, (the *queen also sitting by him,) "For how long shall thy journey be? and when wilt thou return?" So it pleased the king to send me; and I set him a time. [7] Moreover I said unto the king, "If it please the king, let letters be given me to the governors beyond the river, that they may convey me over till I come into Judah; [8] and a letter unto Asaph the keeper of the king's forest, that he may give me timber to make beams for the gates of the palace which appertained to the house, and for the wall of the city, and for the house that I shall enter into." And the king granted me, according to the good hand of my God upon me.

[k] Pr. 15. 13. Or, wickedness of heart; and this seems a truer rendering than the text by Nehemiah being afraid. The king's observation appears to be an accusation, arising, no doubt, from the fear of poison, which was a common way of despatching kings in those days.—Ed.

* Heb. wife.

[9] Then I came to the governors beyond the river, and gave them the king's letters. Now the king had sent captains of the army and horsemen with me. [10] When Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant, the Ammonite, heard of it, it grieved them exceedingly that there was come a man to seek the welfare of the children of Israel. [11] So I came to Jerusalem, and was there three days.

NEHEMIAH ii. 12, to the end, and iii. to vi.

Nehemiah vieweth secretly the ruins of the walls. 17 He inciteth the Jews to build in despite of the enemies. — Chap. iii. The names and order of them that builded the wall. — Chap. iv. 1 While the enemies scoff, Nehemiah prayeth and continueth the work. 7 Understanding the wrath and secrets of the enemy, he setteth a watch. 13 He armeth the laborers, 19 and giveth military precepts. — Chap. v. 1 The Jews complain of their debt, mortgage, and bondage. 6 Nehemiah rebuketh the usurers, and causeth them to make a covenant of restitution. 14 He forbeareth his own allowance, and keepeth hospitality. — Chap. vi. 1 Sanballat practiseth by craft, by rumors, by hired prophecies, to terrify Nehemiah. 15 The work is finished, to the terror of the enemies. 17 Secret intelligence passeth between the enemies and the nobles of Judah.

[12] AND I arose in the night, I and some few men with me; neither told I any man what my God had put in my heart to do at Jerusalem; neither was there any beast with me, save the beast that I rode upon. [13] And I went out by night by the gate of the valley, even before the dragon-well, and to the dung-port, and viewed the walls of Jerusalem, which were broken down, and the gates thereof were consumed with fire. [14] Then I went on to the gate of the fountain, and to the king's pool; but there was no place for the beast that was under me to pass. [15] Then went I up in the night by the [a]brook, and viewed the wall, and turned back, and entered by the gate of the valley, and so returned. [16] And the rulers knew not whither I went, or what I did; neither had I as yet told it to the Jews, nor to the priests, nor to the nobles, nor to the rulers, nor to the rest that did the work.

[a] 2 Sa. 15. 23. Je. 31. 40. That is, The brook Kidron.

[17] Then said I unto them, "Ye see the distress that we are in, how Jerusalem lieth waste, and the gates thereof are burned with fire: come, and let us build up the wall of Jerusalem, that we be no more [b]a reproach." [18] Then I told them of the hand of my God which was good upon me; as also the king's words that he had spoken unto me.

[b] Ps. 44. 13. & 79. 4. Je. 24. 9. Ez. 5. 14, 15. & 22. 4.

And they said, "Let us rise up and build." [c]So they strengthened their hands for this good work. [19] But when Sanballat the Horonite, and Tobiah the servant, the Ammonite, and Geshem the Arabian, heard it, they [d]laughed us to scorn, and despised us, and said, "What is this thing that ye do? will ye rebel against the king?" [20] Then answered I them, and said unto them, "The God of heaven, he will prosper us, therefore we his servants will arise and build; [e]but ye have no portion, nor right, nor memorial, in Jerusalem."

NEHEMIAH iii.

[1] Then Eliashib the high priest rose up with his brethren the priests, [f]and they builded the sheep-gate; they sanctified it, and set up the doors of it; even unto the tower of Meah they sanctified it, unto the tower of [g]Hananeël. [2] And *next unto him builded the men of Jericho. And next to them builded Zaccur the son of Imri. [3] But [h]the fish-gate did the sons of Hassenaah build, who also laid the beams thereof, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof. [4] And next unto them repaired Meremoth the son of Urijah, the son of Koz. And next unto them repaired Meshullam the son of Berechiah, the son of Meshezabeel. And next unto them repaired Zadok the son of Baana. [5] And next unto them the Tekoites repaired; but their nobles put not their necks to [i]the work of their LORD. [6] Moreover the old gate repaired Jehoiada the son of Paseah, and Meshullam the son of Besodeiah; they laid the beams thereof, and set up the doors thereof, and the locks thereof, and the bars thereof. [7] And next unto them repaired Melatiah the Gibeonite, and Jadon the Meronothite, the men of Gibeon, and of Mizpah, unto the throne of the governor on this side the river. [8] Next unto him repaired Uzziel the son of Harhaiah, of the goldsmiths. Next unto him also repaired Hananiah the son of one of the apothecaries, and they †fortified Jerusalem unto the broad wall. [9] And next unto them repaired Rephaiah the son of Hur, the ruler of the half part of Jerusalem. [10] And next unto them repaired Jedaiah the son of Harumaph, even over against his house. And next unto him repaired Hattush the son of Hashabniah. [11] Malchijah the son of Harim, and Hashub the son of Pahath-moab, repaired the ‡other piece, and the tower of the furnaces. [12] And next unto him repaired Shallum the son of Halohesh, the ruler of the half part of Jerusalem, he and his daughters. [13] The valley-gate repaired Hanun, and the inhabitants of Zanoah; they built it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof, and a thousand cubits on the wall unto the dung-gate. [14] But the dung-gate repaired Malchiah the son of Rechab, the ruler of part of Beth-haccerem; he built it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof. [15] But the gate of the fountain repaired Shallum the son of Col-hozeh, the ruler of part of Mizpah; he built it, and covered it, and set up the doors thereof, the locks thereof, and the bars thereof, and the wall of the pool of [j]Siloah by the king's garden, and unto the stairs that go down from the city of David. [16] After him repaired Nehemiah the son of Azbuk, the ruler of the half part of Beth-zur, unto the place over against the sepulchres of David, and to the [k]pool that was made, and unto the house of the mighty. [17] After him repaired the Levites, Rehum the son of Bani. Next unto him repaired Hashabiah, the ruler of the half part of Keilah, in his part. [18] After him repaired their brethren, Bavai the son of Henadad, the ruler of the half part of Keilah. [19] And next to him repaired Ezer the son of Jeshua, the ruler of Mizpah, another piece over against the going up to the armory at the [l]turning of the wall. [20] After him Baruch the son of *Zabbai earnestly repaired the other piece, from the turning of the wall unto the door of the house of Eliashib the high priest. [21] After

NEHEMIAH iv.

[1] But it came to pass, that when Sanballat heard that we builded the wall, he was wroth, and took great indignation, and mocked the Jews. [2] And he spake before his brethren and the army of Samaria, and said, "What do these feeble Jews? will they †fortify themselves? will they sacrifice? will they make an end in a day? will they revive the stones out of the heaps of the rubbish which are burned?" [3] Now Tobiah the Ammonite was by him, and he said, "Even that which they build, if a fox go up, he shall even break down their stone wall."—[4] "Hear, O our God, for we are ‡despised; and [p]turn their reproach upon their own head, and give them for a prey in the land of captivity. [5] And [q]cover not their iniquity, and let not their sin be blotted out from before thee; for they have provoked thee to anger before the builders." [6] So built we the wall; and all the wall was joined together unto the half thereof, for the people had a mind to work.

[7] But it came to pass, that when Sanballat, and Tobiah, and the Arabians, and the Ammonites, and the Ashdodites, heard that the walls of Jerusalem *were made up, and that the breaches began to be stopped, then they were very wroth, [8] and [r]conspired all of them together to come and to fight against Jerusalem, and †to hinder it. [9] Nevertheless [s]we made our prayer unto our God, and set a watch against them day and night, because of them. [10] And Judah said, "The strength of the bearers of burdens is decayed, and there is much rubbish; so that we are not able to build the wall." [11] And our adversaries said, "They shall not know, neither see, till we come in the midst among them, and slay them, and cause the work to cease. [12] And it came to pass, that when the Jews which dwelt by them came, they said unto us ten times, "‡From all places whence ye shall return unto us they will be upon you."

it was known unto us, and God had brought their counsel to nought, that we returned all of us to the wall, every one unto his work. [16] And it came to pass from that time forth, that the half of my servants wrought in the work, and the other half of them held both the spears, the shields, and the bows, and the habergeons; and the rulers were behind all the house of Judah. [17] They which builded on the wall, and they that bare burdens, with those that laded, every one with one of his hands wrought in the work, and with the other hand held a weapon.
† Heb. on his loins. [18] For the builders, every one had his sword girded †by his side, and so builded. And he that sounded the trumpet was by me.

[19] And I said unto the nobles, and to the rulers, and to the rest of the people, "The work is great and large, and we are separated upon the [21] So we labored in the work; and half of them held the spears from the rising of the morning till the stars appeared. [22] Likewise at the same time said I unto the people, "Let every one with his servant lodge within Jerusalem, that in the night they may be a guard to us, and labor on the day." [23] So neither I, nor my brethren, nor my servants, were that said, "We have mortgaged our lands, vineyards, and houses, that we might buy corn, because of the dearth." [4] There were also that said, "We have borrowed money for the king's tribute, and that [17] Moreover in those days the nobles of Judah †sent many letters unto Tobiah, and the letters of Tobiah came unto them. [18] For there were many in Judah sworn unto him, because he was the son-in-law of Shechaniah the son of Arah; and his son Johanan had taken the daughter of Meshullam the son of Berechiah. Nehemiah xii. 27–43.(35)

[27] And at [a]the dedication of the wall of Jerusalem they sought the Levites out of all their places, to bring them to Jerusalem, to keep the dedication with gladness, [b]both with thanksgivings, and with singing, with cymbals, psalteries, and with harps. [28] And the sons of the singers gathered themselves together, both out of the plain country round about Jerusalem, and from the villages of Netophathi; [29] also from the house of Gilgal, and out of the fields of Geba and Azmaveth; for the singers had builded them villages round about Jerusalem. [30] And the priests and the Levites purified themselves, and purified the people, and the gates, and the wall. [31] Then I brought up the princes of Judah upon the wall, and appointed two great companies of them that gave thanks, whereof one went on the right hand upon the wall toward the dung-gate. [32] And after them went Hoshaiah, and half of the princes of Judah, [33] and Azariah, Ezra, and Meshullam, [34] Judah, and Benjamin, and Shemaiah, and Jeremiah, [35] and certain of the priests' sons [c]with trumpets; namely, Zechariah the son of Jonathan, the son of Shemaiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Michaiah, the son of Zaccur, the son of Asaph; [36] and his brethren, Shemaiah, and Azarael, Milalai, Gilalai, Maai, Nethaneel, and Judah, Hanani, with [d]the musical instruments of David the man of God, and Ezra the scribe before them. [37] And at the fountain-gate which was over against them, they went up by the stairs of the city of David, at the going up of the wall, above the house of David, even unto the water-gate eastward. [38] And the other company of them that gave thanks went over against them, and I after them, and the half of the people upon the wall, from beyond the tower of the furnaces even unto the broad wall; [39] and from above the gate of Ephraim, and above the old gate, and above the fish-gate, and the tower of Hananeel, and the tower of Meah, even unto the sheep-gate: and they stood still in the prison-gate. [40] So stood the two companies of them that gave thanks in the house of God, and I, and the half of the rulers with me: [41] and the priests; Eliakim, Maaseiah, Miniamin, Michaiah, Elioenai, Zechariah, and Hananiah, with trumpets; [42] and Maaseiah, and Shemaiah, and Eleazar, and Uzzi, and Jehohanan, and Malchijah, and Elam, and Ezer. And the singers *sang loud, with Jezrahiah their overseer. [43] Also that day they offered great sacrifices, and rejoiced; for God had made them rejoice with great joy. The wives also and the children rejoiced; so that the joy of Jerusalem was heard even afar off.

(35) This part of the chapter is inserted here on the united authorities of Dean Prideaux and Dr. A. Clarke, who observe, that it is most probable the wall was dedicated on its completion. It is not likely that, after the wall was finished on the first commission of Nehemiah, they would wait for an uncertain period, before they proceeded to its dedication.—Dr. Clarke in loc.; Prideaux, vol. ii. p. 525.

(36) This passage is inserted here on the authority of Prideaux, who observes, that Nehemiah, having executed the chief object of his commission, appointed Hanani and Hananiah governors of Jerusalem, and returned himself, according to a previous arrangement on his leaving Babylon, to the king in Persia. This nomination of governors, as soon as the walls were built, evidently implies that Nehemiah delegated his authority to others. The building of the wall being all that he had requested, that work effected, it was necessary that another commission should be obtained, before he could proceed to those duties which were necessary for the settling the affairs of the country. For this purpose, therefore, it is supposed that Nehemiah went to Babylon, presented himself before the king, related to him the state of Judæa, and what was further necessary to its regulation and establishment; and immediately obtained permission to return again to that country. The shortness of his absence seems to be the reason why no notice is taken of it in the Sacred Text.—Prideaux, vol. ii. p. 527.

(37) By virtue of the commission he had from the king, and the powers granted him thereby, Ezra had now reformed the whole state of the Jewish Church, according to the Law of Moses, in which he was excellently learned, and settled it upon that foundation upon which it afterwards stood to the time of our Saviour. The two chief things which he had to do were to restore the observance of the Jewish Law, according to the ancient approved usages which had been in practice before the captivity, under the direction of the prophets; and to collect together and set forth a correct edition of the Holy Scriptures: in the performance of both which, the Jews tell us, he had the assistance of what they call the Great Synagogue, a convention consisting of 120 men, who lived under the presidency of Ezra, and assisted him in both these works. The truth of this matter seems to have been, that these 120 men were principally elders, who lived in a continued succession from the first return of the Jews, after the Babylonish captivity, to the death of Simon the Just, and labored in their several times, in the carrying on of the two great works above mentioned, till both were fully completed in the time of the said Simon the Just (who was made high priest of the Jews in the twenty-fifth year after the death of Alexander the Great), and Ezra had the assistance of such of them as lived in his time. But the whole conduct of the work, and the glory of accomplishing it, is, by the Jews, chiefly attributed to him, under whose presidency, they tell us, it was done. And therefore they look on him as another Moses: for the Law, they say, was given by Moses, but it was revived and restored by Ezra, after it had been in a manner extinguished and lost in the Babylonish captivity. And indeed, by virtue of that ample commission which he had from king Artaxerxes, he had an opportunity of doing more than any other of his nation; and he executed all the powers entrusted to him to the utmost, for the resettling both of the ecclesiastical and political state of the Jews, in the best posture they were then capable of; and from hence his name is in so high esteem and veneration among the Jews, that it is a common saying among their writers, that if the Law had not been given by Moses, Ezra was worthy by whom it should have been given.

But the great work of Ezra was his collecting together, and setting forth a correct edition of the Holy Scriptures, which he labored much in, and went a great way in the perfecting of it. In the time of Josiah, through the impiety of the two preceding reigns of Manasseh and Amon, the book of the Law was so destroyed and lost, that besides that copy of it which Hilkiah found in the temple (2 Kings xxii. 8, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 14), there was then none other to be had; for the surprise which Hilkiah is said to be in at the finding of it, and the grief which Josiah expressed at the hearing of it read, do plainly show that neither of them had ever seen it before. And if the king and the high priest, who were both men of eminent piety, were without this part of Holy Scripture, it can scarce be thought that any one else then had it. But so religious a prince as king Josiah could not leave this long unremedied. By his order, copies were forthwith written out from this original; and search being made for all the other parts of Holy Scripture, both in the colleges of the sons of the prophets, and all other places where they could be found, care was taken for transcripts to be made out of these also, and thenceforth copies of the whole became multiplied among the people, all those who were desirous of knowing the Law of their God, either writing them out themselves, or procuring others to do it for them. So that, though within a few years after the holy city and temple were destroyed, and the authentic copy of the Law, which was laid up before the Lord, was burned and consumed with them; yet by this time many copies both of the Law and the Prophets, and all the other Sacred Writings, were got into private hands, who carried them with them into their captivity. That Daniel had a copy of the Holy Scriptures with him in Babylon is certain (Dan. ix. 11, 13); for he quotes the Law, and also makes mention of the prophecies of the prophet Jeremiah, (Dan. ix. 2); which he could not do, had he never seen them. And in the sixth chapter of Ezra it is said, that on the finishing of the temple, in the sixth year of Darius, the priests and the Levites were settled in their respective functions, according as it is written in the Law of Moses. But how could they do this according to the written Law, if they had not copies of that Law then among them? and this was near sixty years before Ezra came to Jerusalem. And farther, in the eighth chapter of Nehemiah, when the people called for the Law of Moses to have it read to them, they did not pray Ezra to get it anew dictated unto him, but that he should bring forth the book of the Law of Moses, which the Lord had commanded to Israel: which plainly shows, that the book was then well known to have been extant, and not to need such a miraculous expedient, as that of a divine revelation, for its restoration; and it would with many very much shock the faith of the whole, should it be held, that it owed its present being to such a revival; it being obvious for skeptical persons in this case to object, that he who should be said thus to revive it, then forged the whole. All that Ezra did in this matter, was to get together as many copies of the Sacred Writings as he could, and, out of them all, set forth a correct edition; in the performance of which, he took care of these following particulars:—

I. He corrected all the errors that had crept into these copies through the negligence or mistakes of transcribers; for, by comparing them one with the other, he ascertained their true reading.

II. He collected together all the books of which the Holy Scriptures did then consist, and disposed them in their proper order, and settled the canon of Scripture for this time. These books he divided into three parts; 1st, The Law; 2dly, The Prophets; and 3dly, the Cetubim or Hagiography, i. e. the Holy Writings; which division our Saviour himself takes notice of (Luke xxiv. 44), where he saith, "These are the words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things might be fulfilled which are written in the Law, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning me." For by the Psalms, our Saviour means the whole third part called the Hagiography: for that part beginning with the psalms, it was for that reason then commonly distinguished by that title, as usually with the Jews the particular books are named from the words with which they begin. Thus with them, Genesis is called Bereshith—Exodus, Shemoth—Leviticus, Vajikra, &c. because they begin with these Hebrew words. And Josephus makes mention of this same division. For he saith, in his first book against Apion, "We have only two and twenty books, which are to be believed as of divine authority: of which five are the books of Moses. From the death of Moses, to the reign of Artaxerxes the son of Xerxes, king of Persia, the prophets, who were the successors of Moses, have written in thirteen books. The remaining four books contains hymns to God, and documents of life for the use of men." In which division, according to him, the Law contains, 1. Genesis; 2. Exodus; 3. Leviticus; 4. Numbers; 5. Deuteronomy: the writings of the prophets, 1. Joshua; 2. Judges, with Ruth; 3. Samuel; 4. Kings; 5. Isaiah; 6. Jeremiah, with his Lamentations; 7. Ezekiel; 8. Daniel; 9. the Twelve Minor Prophets; 10. Job; 11. Ezra; 12. Nehemiah; 13. Esther; and the Hagiography, 1. the Psalms; 2. the Proverbs; 3. Ecclesiastes; 4. the Song of Solomon; which altogether make twenty-two books. This division was made for the sake of reducing the books to the number of their alphabet, in which are twenty-two letters. But at present, the Jews reckon these books to be twenty-four, and dispose of them in this order: 1st. the Law, which contains, 1. Genesis; 2. Exodus; 3. Leviticus; 4. Numbers; 5. Deuteronomy 2dly. the Writings of the Prophets, which they divide into the former prophets and the latter prophets; the books of the former prophets are, 6 Joshua; 7. Judges; 8. Samuel; 9. Kings; and the books of the latter prophets are, 10. Isaiah; 11. Jeremiah; 12. Ezekiel; and 13. the Twelve Minor Prophets; 3dly. the Hagiography, which are, 14. the Psalms; 15. the Proverbs; 16. Job; 17. the Song of Solomon, which they call the Song of Songs; 18. Ruth; 19. the Lamentations; 20. Ecclesiastes; 21. Esther; 22. Daniel; 23. Ezra; and 24. the Chronicles. Under the name of Ezra, they comprehend the Book of Nehemiah: for the Hebrews, and also the Greeks, anciently reckoned Ezra and Nehemiah but as one book. But this order hath not been always observed among the Jews; neither is it so now in all places; for there hath been great variety as to this, not only among the Jews, but also among the Christians, as well Greeks as Latins. But no variation herein is of any moment; for in what order soever the books are placed, they are still the word of God, and no change as to this can make any change in that divine authority which is stamped upon them. But all these books were not received into the canon of the Holy Scriptures in Ezra's time; for Malachi, it is supposed, lived after him; and in Nehemiah mention is made of Jaddua as high priest, and of Darius Codomanus as king of Persia, who were at least one hundred years after his time; and in the third chapter of the First Book of Chronicles, the genealogy of the sons of Zerubbabel is carried down for so many generations, as must necessarily make it reach to the time of Alexander the Great; and therefore this book could not have been put into the canon till after his time. It is most likely that the two Books of Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, and Esther, as well as Malachi, were afterwards added in the time of Simon the Just, and that it was not till then that the Jewish canon of the Holy Scriptures was fully completed. And indeed these last books seem very much to want the exactness and skill of Ezra in their publication, they falling far short of the correctness which is in the other parts of the Hebrew Scriptures.

III. The third thing which Ezra did about the Holy Scriptures, in his edition of them, was, that he added in several places what appeared necessary for the illustrating, connecting, or completing of them; wherein he was assisted by the same Spirit, by which they were at first wrote. Of this sort we may reckon the last chapter of Deuteronomy, which, giving an account of the death and burial of Moses, and of the succession of Joshua after him, it could not be written by Moses himself, who undoubtedly was the penman of all the rest of that book. It seems most probable, that it was added by Ezra at this time. And such also may we reckon the several interpolations which occur in many places of the Holy Scriptures. For that there are such interpolations is undeniable; there being many passages through the whole Sacred Writ, which create difficulties that can never be solved without the allowing of them. As, for instance, Gen. xii. 6, it is remarked, on Abraham's coming into the land of Canaan, that the Canaanites were then in the land; which is not likely to have been said till after the time of Moses, when the Canaanites, being extirpated by Joshua, were then no more in the land. And in Gen. xxii. 14, we read, "As it is said, to this day, in the mount of the Lord it shall be seen." But Mount Moriah (which is the mount there spoken of) was not called the Mount of the Lord till the temple was built on it, many hundred years after. And this being here spoken of as a proverbial saying, that obtained among the Israelites in after ages the whole style of the text, doth manifestly point at a time after Moses, when they were in possession of the land in which this mountain stood. And therefore both these particulars prove the words cited to have been an interpolation In Gen. xxxvi. 3, it is written; "And these are the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there reigned any king men and the women, and those that could understand; and the ears of all the people were attentive unto the Book of the Law. [4] And Ezra the scribe stood upon a †pulpit of wood, which they had made for the purpose; and beside him stood Mattithiah, and Shema, and Anaiah, and Urijah, and Hilkiah, and Maaseiah, on his right hand; over the land of Israel," which could not have been said till after there had been a king in Israel; and therefore they cannot be Moses' words, but must have been interpolated afterwards. Exod. xvi. 35, the words of the text are; "And the children of Israel did eat manna forty years, till they came to a land inhabited. They did eat manna, till they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan." But Moses was dead before the manna ceased; and therefore these cannot be his words, but must have been inserted afterward. Deut. ii. 12, it is said, "The Horims also dwelt in Seir beforetime, but the children of Esau succeeded them, when they had destroyed them before them and dwelt in their stead, as Israel did unto the land of his possession, which the Lord gave unto them," which could not have been written by Moses, Israel having not till after his death entered into the land of his possession, which the Lord gave unto them. Deut. iii. 11, it is said, "Only Og king of Bashan remained of the remnant of giants; behold, his bedstead was a bedstead of iron. It is not in Rabbah of the children of Ammon?" The whole style and strain of which text, especially that of the last clause of it, plainly speaks it to have been written a long while after that king was slain; and therefore it could not be written by Moses, who died within five months after. In the same chapter, ver. 14, it is said, "Jair the son of Manasseh took all the country of Argob, unto the coasts of Geshuri and Maachathi, and called them after his own name, Bashan-havoth-jair, unto this day." The phrase, unto this day, speaks a much greater distance of time after the fact related, than those few months in which Moses survived after that conquest; and therefore what is there written must have been inserted by some other hand than that of Moses, long after his death. And in the book of Proverbs (which was certainly king Solomon's), in the beginning of the twenty-fifth chapter it is written, "These are the Proverbs of Solomon, which the men of Hezekiah king of Judah copied out," which must certainly have been added many ages after Solomon; for Hezekiah was of the twelfth generation in descent from him. Many more instances of such interpolated passages might be given. For throughout the whole Scriptures they have been frequently cast in by way of parenthesis, where they have appeared necessary for the explaining, connecting, or illustrating the text, or the supplying what was wanting in it. But those already mentioned are sufficient to prove the thing. Of which interpolations undoubtedly Ezra was the author, in all the books which passed his examination; and Simon the Just of all the rest which were added afterwards; for they all seemed to refer to those latter times. But these additions do not detract any thing from the divine authority of the whole, because they were all inserted by the direction of the same Holy Spirit which dictated all the rest. This as to Ezra is without dispute, he being himself one of the divine penmen of the Holy Scriptures; for he was most certainly the writer of that book in the Old Testament which bears his name; and is, upon good grounds, supposed to be author of two more, that is, of the two Books of Chronicles, as perchance also he was of the Book of Esther. And, if the books written by him be of divine authority, why may not every thing else be so which he hath added to any of the rest; since there is all reason for us to suppose that he was as much directed by the Holy Spirit of God in the one as he was in the other? The great importance of the work proves the thing: for as it was necessary for the Church of God that this work should be done; so also was it necessary for the work, that the person called thereto should be thus assisted in the completing of it.

IV. Ezra changed also the old names of several places that were grown obsolete; putting, instead of them, the new names by which they were at that time called, that the people might the better understand what was written. Thus Gen. xiv. 14, Abraham is said to have pursued the kings, who carried Lot away captive, as far as Dan; whereas the name of that place was Laish, till the Danites, long after the death of Moses, possessed themselves of it, and called it, Dan, after the name of Dan their father, (Joshua xix. 47, Judges xviii. 29); and therefore it could not be called Dan in the original copy of Moses, but that name must have been put in afterwards, instead of that of Laish, on this review. And so in several places in Genesis, and also in Numbers, we find mention made of Hebron; whereas the name of that city was Kirjath Arba, till Caleb, having obtained the possession of it after the division of the land, called it Hebron, after the name of Hebron, one of his sons; and therefore that name could not be in the text, till placed there long after the time of Moses, by way of exchange for that of Kirjath-arba, which, it is not to be doubted, was done at the time of this review. And many other like examples of this may be given, whereby it appears, that the study of those who governed the Church of God in those times, was to render the Scripture as plain and intelligible to the people as they could, and not to hide and conceal any of it from them.

V. Ezra wrote out the whole in the Chaldee character. For that having now grown wholly into use among the people after the Babylonish captivity, he changed the old Hebrew character for it, since which time the Hebrew has been retained only by the Samaritans; among whom it is preserved even to this day.

But though Ezra's government over all Judah and Jerusalem expired with the year when Nehemiah arrived from Persia, yet his labor to serve the Church of God did not here end; for still he went on as a preacher of righteousness, and a skilful scribe of the law of God, to perfect the reformation which he had begun, both in preparing for the people correct editions of the Scriptures, and also in beginning all things in Church and state to be conformed to the rules thereof. And this he continued to do as long as he lived; and herein he was throughly assisted and supported by the governor; who coming to Jerusalem with the same intention, and the same zeal for promoting of the honor of God, and the welfare of his people in Judah and Jerusalem, as Ezra did, he struck in heartily with him in the work; so that Ezra went on still to do the same things by the authority of the new governor, which he before did by his own. And by their thus joining together in the same holy undertaking, and their mutual assisting each other therein, it exceedingly prospered in their hands; till at length, notwithstanding all manner of oppositions, both from within and from without, it was brought to full perfection forty-nine years after it had been begun by Ezra. Whether Ezra lived so long or not, is uncertain; but what he did not live to do, was completed by the piety and zeal of his successor, Nehemiah.—Prideaux's Connection.

and on his left hand, Pedaiah, and Mishael, and Malchiah, and Hashum, and Hashbadana, Zechariah, and Meshullam. [5] And Ezra opened the book in the ‡sight of all the people, (for he was above all the people;) and when he opened it, all the people [m]stood up. [6] And Ezra blessed the LORD, the great God. And all the people [n]answered, "Amen, Amen," with [o]lifting up their hands; and they [p]bowed their heads, and worshipped the LORD with their faces to the ground. [7] Also Jeshua, and Bani, and Sherebiah, Jamin, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodijah, Maaseiah, Kelita, Azariah, Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, and the Levites, [q]caused the people to understand the Law; and the people stood in their place. [8] So they read in the book in the law of God distinctly, and gave the sense, and caused them to understand the reading.

[9] And [r]Nehemiah, which is the *Tirshatha, and Ezra the priest the scribe, [s]and the Levites that taught the people, said unto all the people, "This [t]day is holy unto the LORD your God; [u]mourn not, nor weep." For all the people wept, when they heard the words of the Law. [10] Then he said unto them, "Go your way, eat the fat, and drink the sweet, [v]and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared, for this day is holy unto our LORD; neither be ye sorry, for the joy of the LORD is your strength." [11] So the Levites stilled all the people, saying, "Hold your peace, for the day is holy; neither be ye grieved." [12] And all the people went their way to eat, and to drink, and to send portions, and to make great mirth, because they had understood the words that were declared unto them.

[13] And on the second day were gathered together the chief of the fathers of all the people, the priests, and the Levites, unto Ezra the scribe, even †to understand the words of the Law. [14] And they found written in the Law which the LORD had commanded ‡by Moses, that the children of Israel should dwell in [w]booths in the feast of the seventh month; [15] and [x]that they should publish and proclaim in all their cities, and [y]in Jerusalem, saying, "Go forth unto the mount, and [z]fetch olive branches, and pine branches, and myrtle branches, and palm branches, and branches of thick trees, to make booths, as it is written."

[16] So the people went forth, and brought them, and made themselves booths, every one upon the [a]roof of his house, and in their courts, and in the courts of the house of God, and in the street of the water-gate, and in the street of the gate of Ephraim. [17] And all the congregation of them that were come again out of the captivity made booths, and sat under the booths; for since the days of Jeshua the son of Nun unto that day had not the children of Israel done so. And there was very [b]great gladness. [18] Also [c]day by day, from the first day unto the last day, he read in the Book of the Law of God. NEHEMIAH ix.

[1] Now in the twenty and fourth day of this month the children of Israel were assembled with fasting, and with sackclothes, [e]and earth upon them. [2] And [f]the seed of Israel separated themselves from all †strangers, and stood and confessed their sins, and the iniquities of their fathers. [3] And they stood up in their place, and read in the Book of the Law of the LORD their God one fourth part of the day; and another fourth part they confessed, and worshipped the LORD their God.

"Stand up and bless the Lord your God for ever and ever: and blessed be [g]thy glorious name, which is exalted above all blessing and praise. [6] Thou, [h]even thou, art Lord alone; [i]thou hast made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with [j]all their host, the earth, and all things that are therein, the seas, and all that is therein, and thou preservest them all; and the host of heaven worshippeth thee. [7] Thou art the Lord the God, who didst choose [k]Abram, and broughtest him forth out of Ur of the Chaldees, and gavest him the name of [l]Abraham; [8] and foundest his heart [m]faithful before thee, and madest [n]a covenant with him to give the land of the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Jebusites, and the Girgashites, to give it, I say, to his seed, and [o]hast performed thy words; for thou art righteous; [9] and [p]didst see the affliction of our fathers in Egypt, and [q]heardest their cry by the Red Sea; [10] and [r]showedst signs and wonders upon Pharaoh, and on all his servants, and on all the people of his land; for thou knewest that they [s]dealt proudly against them. So didst thou [t]get thee a name, as it is this day. [11] And [u]thou didst divide the sea before them, so that they went through the midst of the sea on the dry land; and their persecutors thou threwest into the deeps, [v]as a stone into the mighty waters. [12] Moreover [w]thou leddest them in the day by a cloudy pillar, and in the night by a pillar of fire, to give them light in the way wherein they should go. [13] Thou [x]camest down also upon Mount Sinai, and spakest with them from heaven, and gavest them [y]right judgments, and *true laws, good statutes and commandments; [14] and madest known unto them thy [z]holy Sabbath, and commandedst them precepts, statutes, and laws, by the hand of Moses thy servant; [15] and [a]gavest them bread from heaven for their hunger, and [b]broughtest forth water for them out of the rock for their thirst, and promisedst them that they should [c]go in to possess the land which thou hadst †sworn to give them. [16] But they and our fathers dealt proudly, and [d]hardened their necks, and hearkened not to thy commandments, [17] and refused to obey, neither were mindful of thy wonders that thou didst among them; but hardened their necks, and [a]in their rebellion appointed [e]a captain to return to their bondage. But thou art a God ‡ready to pardon, [f]gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and forsookest them not. [18] Yea, [g]when they had made them a molten calf, and said, 'This is thy God that brought thee up out of Egypt,' and had wrought great provocations; [19] yet thou in thy manifold mercies forsookest them not in the wilderness. The [h]pillar of the cloud departed not from them by day, to lead them in the way; neither the pillar of fire by night, to show them light, and the way wherein they should go. [20] Thou gavest also thy [i]good Spirit to instruct them, and withheldest not thy [j]manna from their mouth, and gavest them [k]water for their thirst. [21] Yea, [l]forty years didst thou sustain them in the wilderness, so that they lacked nothing; their [m]clothes waxed not old, and their feet swelled not. [22] Moreover thou gavest them kingdoms and nations, and didst divide them into corners; so they possessed the land of [n]Sihon, and the land of the king of Heshbon, and the land of Og king of Bashan. [23] Their [o]children also multipliedst thou as the stars of heaven, and broughtest them into the land concerning which thou hadst promised to their fathers, that they should go in to possess it. [24] So [p]the children went in and possessed the land, and thou subduedst before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gavest them into their hands, with their kings, and the people of the land, that they might do with them *as they would. strong cities, and a fat land, and possessed [r]houses full of all goods, †wells digged, vineyards, and oliveyards, and ‡fruit trees in abundance; so they did eat, and were filled, and [s]became fat, and delighted themselves in thy great goodness. [26] Nevertheless [t]they were disobedient, and rebelled against thee, and [u]cast thy Law behind their backs, and slew thy [v]prophets which testified against them to turn them to thee, and they wrought great provocations. [27] Therefore [w]thou deliveredst them into the hand of their enemies, who vexed them; and in the time of their trouble, when they cried unto thee, thou heardest them from heaven; and according to thy manifold mercies [x]thou gavest them saviours, who saved them out of the hand of their enemies. [28] But after they had rest, they *did evil again before thee; therefore leftest thou them in the hand of their enemies, so that they had the dominion over them. Yet when they returned, and cried unto thee, thou heardest them from heaven, and many times didst thou deliver them according to thy mercies; [29] and testifiedst against them, that thou mightest bring them again unto thy Law. Yet they dealt proudly, and hearkened not unto thy commandments, but sinned against thy judgments, (which [y]if a man do, he shall live in them;) and †withdrew the shoulder, and hardened their neck, and would not hear. [30] Yet many years didst thou ‡forbear them, and testifiedst [z]against them by thy Spirit in *thy prophets; yet would they not give ear: [a]therefore gavest thou them into the hand of the people of the lands. [31] Nevertheless for thy great mercies' sake [b]thou didst not utterly consume them, nor forsake them; for thou art a gracious and merciful God. [32] Now therefore our God, the great, the [c]mighty, and the terrible God, who keepest covenant and mercy, let not all the †trouble seem little before thee, that hath ‡come upon us, on our kings, on our princes, and on our priests, and on our prophets, and on our fathers, and on all thy people, [d]since the time of the kings of Assyria unto this day. [33] Howbeit [e]thou art just in all that is brought upon us; for thou hast done right, but [f]we have done wickedly. [34] Neither have our kings, our princes, our priests, nor our fathers, kept thy law, nor hearkened unto thy commandments and thy testimonies, wherewith thou didst testify against them. [35] For they have [g]not served thee in their kingdom, and in thy great goodness that thou gavest them, and in the large and fat land which thou gavest before them, neither turned they from their wicked works. [36] Behold, [h]we are servants this day, and for the land that thou gavest unto our fathers to eat the fruit thereof and the good thereof, behold, we are servants in it! [37] And [i]it yieldeth much increase unto the kings whom thou hast set over us because of our sins; also they have [j]dominion over our bodies, and over our cattle, at their pleasure, and we are in great distress. [38] And because of all this we [k]make a sure covenant, and write it; and our princes, Levites, and priests, *seal unto it."

NEHEMIAH xi.

[1] And the rulers of the people dwelt at Jerusalem; the rest of the people also cast lots, to bring one of ten to dwell in Jerusalem [e]the holy city, and nine parts to dwell in other cities. [2] And the people blessed all the men, that [f]willingly offered themselves to dwell at Jerusalem.

[3] Now [g]these are the chief of the province that dwelt in Jerusalem; but in the cities of Judah dwelt every one in his possession in their cities, to wit, Israel, the priests, and the Levites, and [h]the Nethinims, and [i]the children of Solomon's servants. Of the children of Judah; Athaiah the son of Uzziah, the son of Zechariah, the son of Amariah, the son of Shephatiah, the son of Mahalaleel, of the children of [k]Perez; [5] and Maaseiah the son of Baruch, the son of Col-hozeh, the son of Hazaiah, the son of Adaiah, the son of Joiarib, the son of Zechariah, the son of Shiloni. [6] All the sons of Perez that dwelt at Jerusalem were four hundred threescore and eight valiant men. [7] And these are the sons of Benjamin; Sallu the son of Meshullam, the son of Joed, the son of Pedaiah, the son of Kolaiah, the son of Maaseiah, the son of Ithiel, the son of Jesaiah. [8] And after him Gabbai, Sallai, nine hundred twenty and eight. [9] And Joel the son of Zichri was their overseer; and Judah the son of Senuah was second over the city. [10] Of [l]the priests: Jedaiah the son of Joiarib, Jachin. [11] Seraiah the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, was the ruler of the house of God. [12] And their brethren that did the work of the house were eight hundred twenty and two: and Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Pelaliah, the son of Amzi, the son of Zechariah, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchiah, [13] and his brethren, chief of the fathers, two hundred forty and two: and Amashai the son of Azareel, the son of Ahasai, the son of Meshillemoth, the son of Immer, [14] and their brethren, mighty men of valor, an hundred twenty and eight: and their overseer was Zabdiel, the son ‡of one of the great men. [15] Also of the Levites: Shemaiah the son of Hashub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Bunni; [16] and Shabbethai and Jozabad, of the chief of the Levites, *had the oversight of [m]the outward business of the house of God. [17] And Mattaniah the son of Micha, the son of Zabdi, the son of Asaph, was the principal to begin the thanksgiving in prayer: and Bakbukiah the second among his brethren, and Abda the son of Shammua, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun. [18] All the Levites in the holy city were two hundred fourscore and four. [19] Moreover the porters, Akkub, Talmon, and their brethren that kept †the gates, were an hundred seventy and two.

[20] And the residue of Israel, of the priests, and the Levites, were in all the cities of Judah, every one in his inheritance. [21] But the Nethinims dwelt in ‡Ophel: and Ziha and Gispa were over the Nethinims. [22] The overseer also of the Levites at Jerusalem was Uzzi the son of Bani, the son of Hashabiah, the son of Mattaniah, the son of Micha. Of the sons of Asaph, the singers were over the business of the house of God. [23] For [n]it was the king's commandment concerning them, that *a certain portion should be for the singers, due for every day. [24] And Pethahiah the son of Meshezabeel, of the children of [o]Zerah the son of Judah, [p]was at the king's hand in all matters concerning the people. [25] And for the villages, with their fields, some of the children of Judah dwelt at [q]Kirjath-arba, and in the villages thereof, and at Dibon, and in the villages thereof, and at Jekabzeel, and in the villages thereof, [26] and at Jeshua, and at Moladah, and at Beth-phelet, [27] and at Hazar-shual, and at Beer-sheba, and in the villages thereof, [28] and at Ziklag, and at Mekonah, and in the villages thereof, [29] and at En-rimmon, and at Zareah, and at Jarmuth, [30] Zanoah, Adullam, and in their villages, at Lachish, and the fields thereof, at Azekah, and in the villages thereof. And they dwelt from Beer-sheba unto the valley of Hinnom. [31] The children also of Benjamin †from Geba dwelt ‡at Michmash, and Aija, and Beth-el, and in their villages, [32] and at Anathoth, Nob, Ananiah, [33] Hazor, Ramah, Gittaim, [34] Hadid, Zeboim, Neballat, [35] Lod, and Ono, [r]the valley of craftsmen. [36] And of the Levites were divisions in Judah, and in Benjamin.

(38) Psalms the first and the hundred and nineteenth are placed here as having most probably been written, about this time, by Ezra on his completion of the Bible. Calmet, Horne, and Gray, unite in referring the first Psalm either to David or Ezra; and it is generally supposed to have been composed by the latter as a preface to the Book of Psalms, when he collected them into one volume. The contents of this Psalm are peculiarly applicable to this period of the Jewish history, when, after an elapse of so many years, the Scriptures were again restored to the Jews in a more complete form than any they had previously received.

The hundred and nineteenth Psalm is placed in this section from the internal evidence, that it was written by Ezra, rather than by David. It begins in the same manner as the first Psalm, and it is written on the same subject. It seems to have been drawn up principally with the view of impressing upon the minds of the Jewish youth the importance and necessity of devoting themselves to the study of the whole word of God. Every division of it expresses the excellency of the Law; and resolutions to walk therein under every circumstance of life. At the time of editing the Scriptures, and of reading them to the people, it must have been a principal object with Ezra to endeavour to direct the attention of the Jews, particularly of the younger part, to the study of the Law, and the perpetuation of the benefits he had conferred by his labors on the nation. A manual of this kind, therefore, might have been expected from the great reformer; and as there is no particular period in the life of David on which we can fix, which seems to require a similar composition, it is more probable that this psalm was written by Ezra, rather than by the king of Israel.

It may be observed, also, that the plan upon which it is composed appears to have been of more frequent use in the latter, than in the former ages of the Hebrew language. The several divisions of the hundred and nineteenth psalm are arranged in the order of the Hebrew alphabet, and all the distichs in each division begin with the same letter, after which the whole division is named. There are but twelve of the acrostic, or alphabetical poems in the Old Testament; these are Psalms xxv. xxxiv. xxxvii. cxi. cxii. cxix. cxlv. Prov. xxxi. 10–31. Lamentations i. ii. iii. iv. Of all these, only Psalm xxxiv. on the authority of the Hebrew title, and cxlv. on internal evidence, can be certainly attributed to David. If this manner of writing had been usual at that earlier period, succeeding writers, it may be presumed, would have sometimes adopted it. We find, however, no traces of it in Isaiah, Ezekiel, or any of the minor prophets, until the time of Jeremiah, whose Lamentations having been composed on this plan, seems to have first familiarized it to the people, as Psalms xxv. xxxvii. cxi. and cxii. were written after the time of that prophet; and Prov. xxxi. 10–31, having been added to that book at an uncertain period, may, perhaps, have been added by Ezra himself. Of all these alphabetical poems, three only are perfectly so, Psalms cxi. cxii. and Lament. iii. all of which are to be referred to the latter ages of the purity of the Jewish language. It is more probable, therefore, that the hundred and nineteenth

[2] But his delight is in the law of the Lord;
And [b]in his law doth he meditate day and night.
[3] And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water,
That bringeth forth his fruit in his season;

[b] Jos. 1. 8. 1 Ti. 4. 15.

Psalm was written at a later, than at an earlier period of the Jewish Church, that is, that it was written by Ezra, rather than by David; and, if written by Ezra, that it was composed about the time when, by editing the Scriptures, he wished to direct the attention of the younger people to their constant perusal and study.

The number of Psalms which are throughout more eminently and directly prophetical of the Messiah is indeed comparatively small: but the passages of particular Psalms which are predictive of him in various ways are very numerous, no part of the Old Testament being cited in the New so frequently as this book. That those Psalms which were composed by David himself were prophetic, we have David's own authority; "which," Bp. Horsley remarks, "may be allowed to overpower a host of modern expositors. For thus king David, at the close of his life, describes himself and his sacred songs;

'David the son of Jesse said,
And the man who was raised up on high,
The anointed of the God of Jacob,
And the sweet Psalmist of Israel, said,
The Spirit of Jehovah spake by me,
And his word was in my tongue,'

(2 Sam. xxiii. 1, 2.) It was the word, therefore, of Jehovah's Spirit which was uttered by David's tongue. But it should seem, the Spirit of Jehovah would not be wanting to enable a mere man to make complaint of his own enemies, to describe his own sufferings just as he felt them, and his own escapes just as they happened. But the Spirit of Jehovah described, by David's utterance, what was known to that Spirit only, and that Spirit only could describe. So that, if David be allowed to have had any knowledge of the true subjects of his own compositions, it was nothing in his own life, but something put into his mind by the Holy Spirit of God; and the misapplication of the Psalms to the literal David has done more mischief, than the misapplication of any other parts of the Scriptures, among those who profess the belief of the Christian religion."

The Psalms present every possible variety of Hebrew poetry. They may all, indeed, be termed poems of the lyric kind; that is, adapted to music, but with great variety in the style of composition. Thus some are simply odes, giving a narrative of facts, either of public history, or of private life, in beautiful and figurative language. Others, again, are ethic or didactic, "delivering grave maxims of life, or the precepts of religion, in solemn, but for the most part simple strains." To this class we may refer the hundred and nineteenth, and the other alphabetical psalms, which are so called because the initial letters of each line or stanza followed the order of the alphabet. Nearly one seventh part of the Psalms are elegiac, or pathetic compositions on mournful subjects. Some are enigmatic, delivering the doctrines of religion in enigmata, sentences contrived to strike the imagination forcibly, and yet easy to be understood; while a few may be referred to the class of idyls, or short pastoral poems. But the greater part, according to Bishop Horsley, is a sort of dramatic ode, consisting of dialogues between certain persons sustaining certain characters. "In these dialogue-psalms, the persons are frequently the Psalmist himself, or the chorus of priests and Levites, or the leader of the Levitical band, opening the ode with a proem declarative of the subject, and very often closing the whole with a solemn admonition drawn from what the other persons say. The other persons are, Jehovah, sometimes as one, sometimes as another of the three persons; Christ in his incarnate state, sometimes before, sometimes after his resurrection; the human soul of Christ, as distinguished from the divine essence. Christ, in his incarnate state, is personated sometimes as a priest, sometimes as a king, sometimes as a conqueror; and, in those Psalms in which he is introduced as a conqueror, the resemblance is very remarkable between this conqueror in the Book of Psalms, and the warrior on the white horse in the Book of Revelations, who goes forth with a crown on his head and a bow in his hand, conquering and to conquer. And the conquest in the Psalms is followed, like the conquest in the Revelations, by the marriage of the conqueror. These are circumstances of similitude, which, to any one versed in the prophetic style, prove beyond a doubt that the mystical conqueror is the same personage in both."

In praise of the Psalms, all the fathers of the Church are unanimously eloquent. Athanasius styles them an epitome of the whole Scriptures; Basil, a compendium of all theology; Luther, a little Bible, and the summary of the Old Testament; and Melancthon, the most elegant writing in the whole world. How highly the Psalter was valued subsequently to the Reformation, we may easily conceive by the very numerous editions of it which were executed in the infancy of printing, and by the number of commentators who have undertaken to illustrate its sacred pages. Carpzov, who wrote a century ago, enumerates upwards of one hundred and sixty; and, of the subsequent modern expositors of this book, it would perhaps be difficult to procure a correct account. "The Psalms," as Bishop Horne, their best interpreter in our language, has remarked, with equal piety and beauty, "are an epitome of the Bible, adapted to the purposes of devotion. They treat occasionally of the creation and formation of the world; the dispensations of Providence, and the economy of grace; the transactions of the patriarchs; the exodus of the children of Israel; their journey through the wilderness, and settlement in Canaan; their law, priesthood, and ritual; the exploits of their great men, wrought through faith; their sins and captivities; their repentances and restorations; the sufferings and victories of David; the peaceful and happy reign of Solomon; the advent of Messiah, with its effects and consequences, his incarnation, birth, life, passion, death, resurrection, ascension, kingdom, and priesthood; the effusion of the Spirit; the conversion of the nations; the rejection of the Jews; the establishment, increase, and perpetuity of the Christian church; the end of the world; the general judgment; the condemnation of the wicked, and the final triumph of the righteous with their Lord and King. These are the subjects here presented to our meditations. We are instructed how to conceive of them aright, and to express the different affections, which, when so conceived of, they must excite in our minds. They are, for this purpose, adorned with the figures, and set off with all the graces of poetry; and poetry itself is designed yet farther to be recommended by the charms of music, thus consecrated to the service of God; that so delight may prepare the way for improvement, and pleasure become the handmaid of wisdom, while every turbulent passion is calmed by sacred melody, and the evil spirit is still dispossessed by the harp of the son of Jesse. This little volume, like the paradise of Eden, affords us in perfection, through in miniature, every thing that groweth elsewhere, 'every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food;' and, above all, what was there lost, but is here restored—the tree of life in the midst of the garden. That which we read, as matter of speculation, in the other Scriptures, is reduced to practice, when we recite it in the Psalms; in those repentance and faith are described; but in these they are acted: by a perusal of the former, we learn how others served God, but, by using the latter, we serve him ourselves. 'What is there necessary for a man to know,' says the pious and judicious Hooker, 'which the Psalms are not able to teach? They are to beginners an easy and familiar introduction, a mighty augmentation of all virtue and knowledge in such as are entered before, a strong confirmation to the most perfect among others. Heroical magnanimity, exquisite justice, grave moderation, exact wisdom, repentance unfeigned, unwearied patience, the mysteries of God, the sufferings of Christ, the terrors of wrath, the comforts of grace, the works of Providence over this world, and the promised joys of that world which is to come, all good necessarily to be either known, or done, or had, this one celestial fountain yieldeth. Let there be any grief or disease incident unto the soul of man, any wound or sickness named, for which there is not, in this treasure-house, a present comfortable remedy at all times ready to be found.'"

Many of the Psalms, which bear the royal prophet's name, were composed on occasion of remarkable circumstances in his life, his dangers, his afflictions, his deliverances. "But of those which relate to the public history of the natural Israel, there are few in which the fortunes of the mystical Israel are not adumbrated; and of those which allude to the life of David, there are none in which the Son of David is not the principal and immediate subject. David's complaints against his enemies are Messiah's complaints, first of the unbelieving Jews, then of the heathen persecutors, and of the apostate faction in later ages. David's afflictions are Messiah's sufferings. David's penitential supplications are Messiah's, under the burden of the imputed guilt of man. David's songs of triumph and thanksgiving are Messiah's songs of triumph and thanksgiving, for his victory over sin, and death, and hell. In a word, there is not a page of this Book of Psalms, in which the pious reader will not find his Saviour, if he reads with a view of finding him."

In the language of this divine book, therefore, the prayers and praises of the Church have been offered up to the throne of grace, from age to age. And it appears to have been the manual of the Son of God, in the days of his flesh; who, at the conclusion of his last supper, is generally supposed, and that upon good grounds, to have sung a hymn taken from it; who pronounced, on the cross, the beginning of the twenty-second Psalm, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" and expired, with a part of the thirty-first Psalm in his mouth, "Into thy hand I commit my spirit." Thus He, who had not the Spirit by measure, in whom were hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, and who spake as never man spake, yet chose to conclude his life, to solace himself in the greatest agony, and at last to breathe out his soul, in the Psalmist's form of words, rather than his own. "No tongue of man or angel," as Dr. Hammond justly observes, "can convey a higher idea of any book, and of their felicity who use it aright."

a De. 7. 8. & 10. 15.

1 THE BURDEN OF THE WORD OF THE LORD TO ISRAEL [*]BY MALACHI.
2 I [a]have loved you, saith the LORD.

(39) Malachi was the last of the prophets before the Gospel dispensation. Some writers imagine that Malachi was merely a general name, signifying the angel of the Lord, a messenger or prophet; because the title of Malach Jehovah, or Angel of the Lord, was often applied to the prophets. (Compare Haggai i. 13, with Malachi iii. 1.)

The Septuagint translators have rendered Malachi his angel instead of my angel, as the original imports; and several of the fathers have quoted Malachi under the name of the Angel of the Lord. Calmet, after Jerome and some other ancient writers, thinks that Malachi was the same person as Ezra, who wrote the canonical book that passes under his name, and was governor of the Jews after their return from the captivity. As he revised the Holy Scriptures, and collected the canon of the Old Testament, and performed various other important services to the Jewish church, Ezra has been considered, both by ancient Jewish and also by the early Christian writers, as a very extraordinary person sent from God, and therefore they thought him very appropriately denominated Malach; but for these opinions there is no foundation whatever.

It is certain that Malachi was a distinct person from Ezra, and (as Rosenmüller observes) the whole argument of his book proves that he flourished after the return from the captivity. He prophesied while Nehemiah was governor of Judæa, more particularly after his second coming from the Persian court; and appears to have contributed the weight of his exhortations to the restoration of the Jewish polity, and the final reform established by that pious and excellent governor. Archbishop Newcome supposes Malachi to have flourished about the year 436 before the Christian era; but Dr. Kennicott places him about the year 420 before Christ, which date is adopted by Dr. Hales as sufficiently agreeing with the description of Josephus and the varying dates of chronologers.

Although the writings of this prophet are almost wholly in prose, yet they are by no means destitute of force and elegance. He reproves the wickedness of his countrymen with great vehemence; and Bishop Lowth observes that his book is written in a kind of middle style, which seems to indicate that the Hebrew poetry, from the time of the Babylonish captivity, was in a declining state, and, being past its prime and vigor, was then fast verging towards the debility of age.

But as it appears from the consent of all Jewish and Christian antiquity that the light of prophecy expired in Malachi, we suppose that the termination of his ministry coincided with the accomplishment of the first seven weeks of Daniel's prophecy, which was the period allotted for "sealing the vision and prophecy." (Dan. ix. 24.) Malachi therefore must be considered as completing the canon of the Old Testament, about 400 years before the birth of Christ, when the great designs of Providence were completed in the termination of the prophetic ministry; and when a scheme of prophecy was unfolded, which in its entire contexture was to be accommodated to, and to characterize the Messiah. Malachi certainly prophesied some time after Haggai and Zechariah, for in his time

Yet ye say, "Wherein hast thou loved us?"
Was not Esau Jacob's brother? saith the Lord;
Yet [b]I loved Jacob,
3 And I hated Esau,
And [c]laid his mountains and his heritage waste
For the dragons of the wilderness.
4 Whereas Edom saith, "We are impoverished,
But we will return and build the desolate places;"
Thus saith the Lord of hosts,
They shall build—but I will throw down;
And they shall call them, The border of wickedness,
And, The people against whom the Lord hath indignation for ever.
5 And your eyes shall see, and ye shall say,
The Lord will be magnified †from the border of Israel.
6 A son [d]honoreth his father,
And a servant his master:
If [e]then I be a father, where is mine honor?
And if I be a master, where is my fear?
Saith the Lord of hosts unto you,
O priests, that despise my name.
And ye say, "Wherein have we despised thy name?"
7 ‡Ye offer [f]polluted bread upon mine altar;
And ye say, "Wherein have we polluted thee?"
In that ye say, "The [g]table of the Lord is contemptible."
8 And [h]if ye offer the blind *for sacrifice, is it not evil?
And if ye offer the lame and sick, is it not evil?
Offer it now unto thy governor;
Will he be pleased with thee,
Or [i]accept thy person? saith the Lord of hosts.
9 And now, I pray you,
Beseech †God that he will be gracious unto us:
This hath been ‡by your means:
Will he regard your persons? saith the Lord of hosts.
10 [a]Who is there even among you that would shut the doors for nought?
Neither [j]do ye kindle fire on mine altar for nought.
I have no pleasure in you, saith the Lord of hosts,
Neither [k]will I accept an offering at your hand.
11 For from the rising of the sun
Even unto the going down of the same,

the temple was rebuilt, and the worship reëstablished, (chap. i. 7, 10, 12, and iii. 10;) his ministry therefore must have coincided with, or succeeded that of Nehemiah. He censures the same offences that had excited the indignation of that governor, and which he had not been able entirely to reform. (Compare Malachi ii. 11, with Nehem. xiii. 23–27; and Malachi i. 10, with Neh. xiii. 10, 11.) In the first chapter, from 1 to 6, the Jews are reminded of the special favors God had bestowed upon them; they are then reproved for not showing due reverence to God; and the priests for their profane and mercenary conduct; their rejection is threatened, the calling of the Gentiles is announced (ver. 11), and the divine judgments are denounced against the priests and the people for their disregard of God in their sacrifices, (12–14, and chap. ii. 40), and likewise for their multiplied divorces, and intermarriages with idolatrous nations. God being wearied with the impiety of Israel, declares (chap. iii.) that the Lord whom they sought should suddenly come to his temple, preceded by that messenger, who like a harbinger should prepare his way, that the Lord, when he should appear, should purify the sons of Levi from their unrighteousness, and refine them as metal from the dross, (1–4), (see Isaiah i. 25,) and then "the offering of Judah," the spiritual sacrifice of the heart, should "be pleasant unto the Lord as in the days of old," and the Lord would quickly exterminate the corruptions and adulteries that prevailed. The prophecy concludes with an earnest exhortation to repentance, and a strict observance of the Law.—Dr. Gray's Key, in loc.; Horne's Critical Introduction.

The latter part of ver. 11, Malachi i. relative to the Mincha, or Bread offering, to be generally offered up, was considered in the primitive Church as an express prophecy of the Christian sacrifice in the Eucharist, of which the circumstances are there described under the typical rites of the Jewish worship.—Vide Mede's Discourses on the Christian Sacrifice.

And a pure offering;
For [o]my name shall be great among the heathen, saith the LORD of hosts.
12 But ye have profaned it, in that ye say,
"The table of the LORD is polluted;
And the fruit thereof, even his meat, is contemptible."
13 Ye said also, "Behold, what a weariness is it!"
*And ye have snuffed at it, saith the LORD of hosts;
And ye brought that which was torn, and the lame, and the sick;
Thus ye brought an offering:
Should [p]I accept this of your hand? saith the LORD.
14 But cursed be the deceiver, †which hath in his flock a male,
And voweth, and sacrificeth unto the LORD a corrupt thing;
For [q]I am a great King, saith the LORD of hosts,
And my name is dreadful among the heathen.
1 And now, O ye priests! this commandment is for you. MAL. ii.
2 If [r]ye will not hear, and if ye will not lay it to heart,
To give glory unto my name, saith the LORD of hosts,
I will even send a curse upon you, and I will curse your blessings:
Yea, I have cursed them already, because ye do not lay it to heart.
3 Behold, I will ‡corrupt your seed,
And *spread dung upon your faces,
Even the dung of your solemn feasts;
And †one shall [s]take you away with it.
4 And ye shall know
That I have sent this commandment unto you,
That my covenant might be with Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.
5 My [t]covenant was with him of life and peace;
And I gave them to him
For [u]the fear wherewith he feared me,
And was afraid before my name.
6 The law of truth was in his mouth,
And iniquity was not found in his lips;
He walked with me in peace and equity,
And did [v]turn many away from iniquity.
7 For [w]the priest's lips should keep knowledge,
And they should seek the law at his mouth;
For [x]he is the messenger of the LORD of hosts.
8 But ye are departed out of the way;
Ye [y]have caused many to ‡stumble at the law;
Ye [z]have corrupted the covenant of Levi, saith the LORD of hosts.
9 Therefore [a]have I also made you contemptible
And base before all the people,
According as ye have not kept my ways,
But *have been partial in the law.
10 Have [b]we not all one father?
Hath not one God created us?
Why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother,
By profaning the covenant of our fathers?
11 Judah hath dealt treacherously,
And an abomination is committed in Israel and in Jerusalem;
For Judah hath profaned the holiness of the LORD which he †loved,
And [c]hath married the daughter of a strange god.
12 The LORD will cut off the man that doeth this,
‡The master and the scholar,
Out of the tabernacles of Jacob,
And [d]him that offereth an offering unto the LORD of hosts.

Covering the altar of the LORD with tears,
With weeping, and with crying out,
Insomuch that he regardeth not the offering any more,
Or receiveth it with good will at your hand.
14 Yet ye say, "Wherefore?"
Because the LORD hath been witness
Between thee and [e]the wife of thy youth,
Against whom thou hast dealt treacherously;
Yet [f]is she thy companion, and the wife of thy covenant.
15 And [g]did not he make one?
Yet had he the *residue of the Spirit.
And wherefore one?
That he might seek †a godly seed.
Therefore take heed to your spirit,
And let none deal ‡treacherously against the wife of his youth.

*That he hateth †putting away;
For one covereth violence with his garment, saith the LORD of hosts:
Therefore take heed to your spirit,
That ye deal not treacherously.
17 Ye [i]have wearied the LORD with your words.
Yet ye say, Wherein have we wearied him?
When ye say, "Every one that doeth evil
Is good in the sight of the LORD, and he delighteth in them;"
Or, "Where is the God of judgment?"

MALACHI iii. 1–15.

1 Behold, [j]I will send my Messenger,
And he shall [k]prepare the way before me;
And the Lord, whom ye seek,
Shall suddenly come to his temple,
Even [l]the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in:
Behold, [m]he shall come, saith the LORD of hosts.
2 But who may abide the day of his coming?
And [n]who shall stand when he appeareth?
For [o]he is like a refiner's fire, and like fullers' soap:
3 And [p]he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver;
And he shall purify the sons of Levi,
And purge them as gold and silver,
That they may [q]offer unto the LORD an offering in righteousness.
4 Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem

And against those that *oppress the hireling in his wages,
The widow, and the fatherless,
And that turn aside the stranger from his right,
And fear not me, saith the LORD of hosts.

7 Even from the days of [t]your fathers
Ye are gone away from mine ordinances,

[6] But in all this time was not I at Jerusalem; for in the two and thirtieth year of Artaxerxes king of Babylon came I unto the king, and ‡after certain (40) days *obtained I leave of the king. [7] And I came to Jerusalem, and understood of the evil that Eliashib did for Tobiah, in preparing him a chamber in the courts of the house of God. [8] And it grieved me sore; therefore I cast forth all the household stuff of Tobiah out of the chamber. [9] Then I commanded, and they cleansed the chambers; and thither brought I again the vessels of the house of God, with the meat offering and the frankincense.

[10] And I perceived that the portions of the Levites had [a]not been given them; for the Levites and the singers, that did the work, were fled every one to his field. [11] Then [b]contended I with the rulers, and said, "Why is the house of God forsaken?" And I gathered them

(40) It is not possible to ascertain what length of time Nehemiah remained in Persia. Prideaux, to allow a sufficient time for the corruptions that took place during his absence, supposes it at least five years; and Dr. Hales, twelve years. But we cannot now determine accurately how long he was absent from his own country, when he returned to it, or how long he survived his return. He at all times displayed the most disinterested zeal in the service of his country; and after having "rebuilt the street, and the walls in troublous times," he had the happiness of effecting the civil and religious reformation of his people. The piety of Nehemiah is beautifully illustrated in those devout supplications he offers up to the throne of grace, (ver. 14, 22, 31): while with calm but persevering fidelity and firmness, he performs his most important duties, checks every abuse, and brings again every thing in subjection to the ancient Law.

which brought fish, and all manner of ware, and sold on the Sabbath with the nobles of Judah, and said unto them, "What evil thing is this that ye do, and profane the Sabbath day? [18] Did not your fathers thus, and did not our God bring all this evil upon us, and upon this of all kind of ware lodged without Jerusalem once or twice. [21] Then

(41) The apparent connection of this verse with the two last of the preceding chapter has induced me to make this division. The description contained in these verses seems to have a primary reference to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans, A. D. 70, by which is prefigured the last general judgment of mankind, when the Lord will finally distinguish between the righteous and the wicked; when the mysteries of His providence will be clearly unfolded, and His ways be justified to man. The expression, "Behold the day cometh," is, in its secondary application, equally applicable both to Jews and Christians. We know how truly these predictions have been verified in their primary signification; and we therefore cannot doubt but their further accomplishment will be as literally fulfilled. But amidst all these "terrors of the Lord," the prophet is permitted to give an assurance of approaching salvation to those who trust in God. "The Sun of righteousness shall arise with healing in his wings," to give light to those that sit in the shadow of death, and to heal the transgressions of his people. What the sun is to the natural world, Christ is to the spiritual world; "In him we live, move, and have our being." He is "the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world." The promises of temporal deliverance, in ver. 2, and chap. iii. 17, 18, were wonderfully made good in the preservation of the Christians; who, trusting in the providence and promises of God, fled into the mountains, and thereby escaped the general destruction of the Jewish nation.

As the spirit of prophecy was now to cease, the Messiah having been clearly and progressively made known to the Jews, by a long succession of prophets, and in prophecies more and more distinct; Malachi at last concludes his mission, by enjoining a strict observance of the Law of Moses, till Elijah the messenger of the Lord should appear, "to turn the hearts of the disobedient to the wisdom of the just." Thus Malachi (as Dr. Gray observes) sealed up the volume of prophecy, in a description of that personage, with an account of whom the Evangelists begin their Gospel history; who was appointed to prepare the way for the establishment of a new and a better dispensation, and he who terminated the illustrious succession of the prophets, and predicted the coming of the Baptist, received the testimony of our Saviour, who defined the period and extent of prophecy, by declaring (Matt. xi. 13.) that "all the prophets prophesied until John."

(42) These chapters of Chronicles are placed last in this Arrangement, as they contain many allusions to the events of the captivity, and the latter events of the Jewish history. In chap iii. the genealogy of the family of Zerubbabel is carried down to the time of Alexander the Great, or even later; that is, nearly to the period when Simon the Just finally completed, as the last of the Great Synagogue, the canon of the Old Testament. These genealogical tables, therefore, were written after the time of Ezra, and were probably prefixed by Simon the Just to the Book of Chronicles, as an appropriate introduction. The other chapters of Chronicles are inserted in their respective places in the Arrangement.

Lightfoot endeavoured to insert in the several parts of his Chronicle, various passages from these first chapters: he has, however, placed them again by themselves towards the conclusion of his work, and confesses that it is almost impossible to harmonize the contents with the rest of Scripture, on account of the manner in which the incidents noticed in these tables are interwoven with the context. I have followed therefore his plan, and after many attempts to insert particular passages in the preceding arrangement, have referred the whole first nine chapters to the time when they were not improbably prefixed to the remainder of the First Book of Chronicles.

The Jews comprise the two Books of Chronicles in one book, which they call Dibre Hajamin, that is, The Words of Days, probably from the circumstance of their being compiled out of diaries or annals, in which were recorded the various events related in these books. In the Septuagint version they are termed Παραλειπομενα, (Paralipomena), or Things omitted; because many things which were omitted in the former part of the sacred history are here not only supplied, but some narrations also are enlarged, while others are added. The appellation of Chronicles was given to these books by Jerome, because they contain an abstract, in order of time, of the whole of the sacred history, to the time when they were written.

Concerning the author of these books nothing certain is known. Some think they are the works of different authors; but the uniformity of the style, the connection of the facts, together with the recapitulations and reflections which are often made, prove that they are the work of one and the same person. The Jewish and Christian interpreters, in general, believe they were the work of Ezra, assisted by the prophets Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. That Ezra was the author, is, on the whole, the most probable opinion. There are words and terms, both in Chronicles and Ezra, which are similar, and prove that each was written after the captivity, and probably by the same person, as those terms were not in use previously to that time; and some are peculiar to Ezra himself. We have כבורי זהב golden cups, Ezra i. 10, viii. 27; and in 1 Chron. xxviii. 17. And דרכמנים, 1 Chron. xxix. 7, and Ezra ii. 69, Nehemiah vii. 70. And רפבדות, rafts or floats, 2 Chron. ii. 16; widely differing from דברות, 1 Kings v. 9.; which we there translate in the same way. Calmet considers these words as strong evidence that these books were the work of Ezra, and penned after the captivity. It is most certain that the Books of Chronicles are not the original records or memorials of the transactions of the sovereigns of Israel and Judah, which are so often referred to in the historical books of the Old Testament. Those ancient registers were much more copious than the Books of Chronicles, and have been long lost.

These books, therefore, can only have been compiled from others written at different times, some before, and others after the Babylonish captivity. The ancient Jews took the greatest care to register their civil, military, and ecclesiastical transactions; and the prophets appear to have been employed for this purpose, by the several kings under whose reigns they lived. Samuel, Nathan, and Gad, wrote under the reign of David, (1 Chron. xxix. 29.) Nathan, Ahijah, and Iddo, under Solomon, (2 Chron. ix. 29.) Shemaiah and Iddo under Rehoboam, (2 Chron. xii. 15.) Isaiah recorded the transactions of Uzziah and of Hezekiah, (2 Chron. xxvi. 22, and 2 Chron. xxxii. 32.) Jeremiah wrote the history of Josiah and his descendants, the last kings of Judah; and many more instances might be mentioned. Besides the prophets, we find other persons likewise employed in this office, who were denominated recorders, (2 Sam. viii. 16, 2 Kings xviii. 18, 2 Chron. xxxiv. 8.)

The principal object of the author of this book appears to have been to point out from the public records, still preserved, the state of the different families before the captivity; that at their return they might again possess their respective inheritances. He enters particularly into the duties, genealogies, families, and orders of the priests and Levites, that they might more easily assume their proper functions, and that the worship of God might be conducted the same as before, by the ordained and legitimate persons. These books may be considered as an epitome of all the sacred history, but more especially from the origin of the Jewish nation to their return from the first captivity. The first book traces the rise and propagation of the people of Israel from Adam, and afterwards gives a circumstantial account of the reign and transactions of David. In the second book the narrative is continued, and relates the progress and dissolution of the kingdom of Judah, to the very year of the return of the Jews from the Babylonish captivity: as very little notice is taken of the kings of Israel, it is not improbable that this book was chiefly extracted from the records of the kingdom of Judah. The period of time embraced in the Books of Chronicles is about 3458 years: they may be commodiously divided into four parts, viz. 1. The genealogies of those persons through whom the Messiah was to descend, from Adam to the captivity, and to the time of Ezra;—2. The histories of Saul and David;—3. The history of the united kingdoms of Israel and Judah under Solomon; and, 4. The history of the kingdom of Judah after the secession of the ten tribes from Rehoboam to its utter subversion by Nebuchadnezzar.

It will be necessary to remember, that the terms "father," "son," "begat," and "begotten," which so frequently occur in these Hebrew genealogies, do not always denote an immediate son or descendant, but extend to any distant progenitor. Thus, in Gen. xxix. 5, Laban is called the son of Nahor, though in fact he was only his grandson; and similar instances are often to be found in the Scriptures. The extensive genealogical tables contained in the Book of Chronicles, are a signal testimony to the

[1] Now Benjamin begat [a]Bela his firstborn, Ashbel the second, and Aharah the third, [2] Nohah the fourth, and Rapha the fifth. [3] And the sons of Bela were, *Addar, and Gera, and Abihud, [4] and Abishua, and Naaman, and Ahoah, [5] and Gera, and †Shephuphan, and Huram. [6] And these are the sons of Ehud: these are the heads of the fathers of the inhabitants of Geba, and they removed them to [b]Manahath: [7] and Naaman, and Ahiah, and Gera, he removed them, and begat Uzza, and Ahihud. [8] And Shaharaim begat children in the country of Moab, after he had sent them away; Hushim and Baara were his wives.
[9] And he begat of Hodesh his wife, Jobab, and Zibia, and Mesha, and Malcham, [10] and Jeuz, and Shachia, and Mirma. These were his sons, heads of the fathers. [11] And of Hushim he begat Abitub, and Elpaal.
[12] The sons of Elpaal; Eber, and Misham, and Shamed, who built Ono, and Lod, with the towns thereof: [13] Beriah also, and [c]Shema, who were heads of the fathers of the inhabitants of Ajalon, who drove away the inhabitants of Gath: [14] and Ahio, Shashak, and Jeremoth, [15] and Zebadiah, and Arad, and Ader, [16] and Michael, and Ispah, and Joha, the sons of Beriah; [17] and Zebadiah, and Meshullam, and Hezeki, and Heber, [18] Ishmerai also, and Jezliah, and Jobab, the sons of Elpaal; [19] and Jakim, and Zichri, and Zabdi, [20] and Elienai, and Zilthai, and Eliel, [21] and Adaiah, and Beraiah, and Shimrath, the sons of ‡Shimhi;
[22] and Ishpan, and Heber, and Eliel, [23] and Abdon, and Zichri, and Hanan, [24] and Hananiah, and Elam, and Antothijah, [25] and Iphedeiah, and Penuel, the sons of Shashak; [26] and Shamsherai, and Shehariah, and Athaliah, [27] and Jaresiah, and Eliah, and Zichri, the sons of Jeroham.
[28] These were heads of the fathers, by their generations; chief men. These dwelt in Jerusalem. [29] And at Gibeon dwelt the *father of Gibeon; whose [d]wife's name was Maachah: [30] and his firstborn son Abdon, and Zur, and Kish, and Baal, and Nadab, [31] and Gedor, and Ahio, and †Zacher. [32] And Mikloth begat ‡Shimeah. And these also dwelt with their brethren in Jerusalem, over against them.

[33] And [e]Ner begat Kish, and Kish begat Saul, and Saul begat Jonathan, and Malchi-shua, and [f]Abinadab, and *Esh-baal. [34] And the son of Jonathan was †Merib-baal: and Merib-baal begat [g]Micah. [35] And the sons of Micah were, Pithon, and Melech, and ‡Tarea, and Ahaz.
[36] And Ahaz begat [h]Jehoadah; and Jehoadah begat Alemeth, and Azmaveth, and Zimri; and Zimri begat Moza, [37] and Moza begat Binea;
[i]Rapha was his son, Eleasah his son, Azel his son: [38] and Azel had six sons, whose names are these, Azrikam, Bocheru, and Ishmael, and Sheariah, and Obadiah, and Hanan. All these were the sons of Azel.
[39] And the sons of Eshek his brother were, Ulam his firstborn, Jehush the second, and Eliphelet the third. [40] And the sons of Ulam were mighty men of valor, archers, and had many sons, and sons' sons, an hundred and fifty. All these are of the sons of Benjamin.

The original of Israel's and Judah's genealogies. 2 The Israelites, 10 the priests, 14 and the Levites, with Nethinims, which dwelt in Jerusalem. 27 The charge of certain Levites. 35 The stock of Saul and Jonathan.

[1] So [a]all Israel were reckoned by genealogies; and, behold, they were written in the Book of the Kings of Israel and Judah, who were carried away to Babylon for their transgression.

[2] Now [b]the first inhabitants that dwelt in their possessions in their cities were, the Israelites, the priests, Levites, and [c]the Nethinims.
[3] And [d]in Jerusalem dwelt of the children of Judah, and of the children of Benjamin, and of the children of Ephraim, and Manasseh;

of Bani, of the children of Pharez the son of Judah. [5] And of the Shilonites; Asaiah the firstborn, and his sons. [6] And of the sons of Zerah; Jeuel, and their brethren, six hundred and ninety. [7] And of the sons of Benjamin; Sallu the son of Meshullam, the son of Hodaviah, the son of Hasenuah, [8] and Ibneiah the son of Jeroham, and Elah the son of Uzzi, the son of Michri, and Meshullam the son of Shephatiah, the son of Reuel, the son of Ibnijah; [9] and their brethren, according to their generations, nine hundred and fifty and six. All these men were chief of the fathers in the house of their fathers.

[10] And [e]of the priests; Jedaiah, and Jehoiarib, and Jachin, [11] and *Azariah the son of Hilkiah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Zadok, the son of Meraioth, the son of Ahitub, the ruler of the house of God; [12] and Adaiah the son of Jeroham, the son of Pashur, the son of Malchijah, and Maasiai the son of Adiel, the son of Jahzerah, the son of Meshullam, the son of Meshillemith, the son of Immer; [13] and their brethren, heads of the house of their fathers, a thousand and seven hundred and threescore; †very able men for the work of the service of the house of God. [14] And of the Levites; Shemaiah the son of Hasshub, the son of Azrikam, the son of Hashabiah, of the sons of Merari; [15] and Bakbakkar, Heresh, and Galal, and Mattaniah the son of Micah, the son of Zichri, the son of Asaph; [16] and Obadiah the son of Shemaiah, the son of Galal, the son of Jeduthun, and Berechiah the son of Asa, the son of Elkanah, that dwelt in the villages of the Netophathites. [17] And the porters were, Shallum, and Akkub, and Talmon, and Ahiman, and their brethren: Shallum was the chief; [18] who hitherto waited in the king's gate eastward: they were porters in the companies of the children of Levi. [19] And Shallum the son of Kore, the son of Ebiasaph, the son of Korah, and his brethren, (of the house of his father,) the Korahites, were over the work of the service, keepers of the ‡gates of the tabernacle: and their fathers, being over the host of the LORD, were keepers of the entry. [20] And [f]Phinehas the son of Eleazar was the ruler over them in time past, and the LORD was with him. [21] And Zechariah the son of Meshelemiah was porter of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation. [22] All these which were chosen to be porters in the gates were two hundred and twelve. These were reckoned by their genealogy in their villages, whom [g]David and Samuel [h]the seer *did ordain in their †set office. [23] So they and their children had the oversight of the gates of the house of the LORD, namely, the house of the tabernacle, by wards. [24] In four quarters were the porters, toward the east, west, north, and south. [25] And their brethren, which were in their villages, were to come [i]after seven days from time to time with them. [26] For these Levites, the four chief porters, were in their ‡set office, and were over the *chambers and treasuries of the house of God. [27] And they lodged round about the house of God, because the charge was upon them, and the opening thereof every morning pertained to them. [28] And certain of them had the charge of the ministering vessels, that they should †bring them in and out by tale. [29] Some of them also were appointed to oversee the vessels, and all the ‡instruments of the sanctuary, and the fine flour, and the wine, and the oil, and the frankincense, and the spices. [30] And some of the sons of the priests made [k]the ointment of the spices. [31] And Mattithiah, one of the Levites, who was the firstborn of Shallum the Korahite, had the *set office [l]over the things that were made †in the pans. [32] And other of their brethren, of the sons of the Kohathites, [m]were over the ‡showbread, to prepare it every Sabbath. (43) This passage from Nehemiah is inserted here, because in verse 11, Jaddua is mentioned. Jaddua was the high priest who met Alexander the Great, and whom that conqueror venerated as the servant of God; declaring that a person habited as the high priest had appeared to him in a vision, and had encouraged him to lay aside all his scruples, and advance with his army against the Persians. In verse 22, Darius, the Persian monarch whom Alexander had defeated, is spoken of as having lived some years before; that is, he is mentioned in the same manner as we should refer to a sovereign who was familiarly known by name, and whose reign had long terminated. It may be presumed, therefore, that this passage was added by Simon the Just, who died about 291 B. C., and before his death finally completed the canon of Scripture. This Simon (Prideaux observes) had by the uprightness of his actions, and the righteousness of his conversation, both towards God and man, merited the sirname of the Just; so also was he in all respects a very extraordinary person; which the character given of him in the 50th chapter of Ecclesiasticus sufficiently shows. There, many of his good works, for the benefit both of the Church and state of the Jews, are mentioned with their due praise. But his chiefest work was the finishing of the canon of the Scriptures of the Old Testament.

What was done herein by Ezra hath been above related, (Period VIII. Part iii. sect. v. note.) The books afterwards added, were the two Books of Chronicles, Ezra, Nehemiah, Esther, and Malachi. That these could not be put into the canon by Ezra, is plain; for four of those books are, upon just grounds, supposed to have been written by himself (that is, the two books of Chronicles, and the books of Ezra and Esther,) and the book of Nehemiah was written after his time, and so most likely was the book of Malachi also: and therefore a later time must be assigned for their insertion into the canon, and none is more likely than that of Simon the Just, who is said to have been the last of the men of the Great Synagogue. For what the Jews call the Great Synagogue was a number of elders amounting to one hundred and twenty, who, succeeding some after others, in a continued series, from the return of the Jews again into Judæa, after the Babylonish captivity, to the time of Simon the Just, labored in the restoring of the Jewish Church and state in that country; in order whereto, the Holy Scriptures being the rule they were to go by, their chief care and study was to make a true collection of those Scriptures, and publish them accurately to the people. Ezra, and the men of the Great Synagogue that lived in his time, completed this work as far as they could. And as to what remained farther to be done in it, where can we better place the performing of it, and the ending and finishing of the whole, than in the time of Simon the Just, who was the last of them? And that especially, since there are some particulars in those books which seem necessarily to refer down to times as late as those of Alexander the Great, if not later. For, in the third chapter of the First Book of Chronicles, we have the genealogy of the sons of Zerubbabel carried down for so many descents after him, as may well be thought to reach the time of Alexander: and, in the Book of Nehemiah, chap. xii. ver. 22, we have the days of Jaddua spoken of, as of days past; but Jaddua outlived Alexander two years. I acknowledge these passages to have been interpolated passages, both put in after the time of Ezra, and after the time of Nehemiah, (who were the writers of those books,) by those who completed the canon. To say they were inserted by those holy men themselves, who wrote the books, the chronology of their history will not bear; for then they must have lived down beyond those times which those passages refer us to; but this is inconsistent with what is written of them. And to say that they were put in by any other than those, who, by the direction of the Holy Spirit of God, completed the canon of the Scriptures, will be to derogate from their excellency; and therefore we must conclude, that, since Simon the Just was the last of those that were employed in this work, it was by him that the last finishing hand was put thereto, and that it was in his time, and under his presidency, and chiefly by his direction, that the canon of the Holy Scriptures of the Old Testament, by which we now receive them, was perfected, and finally settled in the Jewish Church.

To these remarks, selected from the laborious and learned writer who has been so frequently referred to in these latter notes, few observations are necessary to be added. The wisdom of that dispensation of Providence which closed the canon of Scripture at this period will be evident if we consider the circumstances of the Jewish Church. The Jews had now been restored to their own country, and to their own ecclesiastical and civil rights more than two hundred years. Idolatry now no longer existed, and the laws of their great legislator were so firmly established among them, and held in such high reverence, that some few years before the death of Simon the Just, rather than infringe on the holiness of the Sabbath, they permitted Ptolemy to assault and capture Jerusalem without offering any resistance. They considered themselves a holy nation, and the peculiar chosen people of God; and so great and so zealous was their attachment at this time to the ritual and ceremonial law, that they were in no danger of reject-than, and Jonathan begat Jaddua. [12] And in the days of Joiakim were priests, the chief of the fathers: of Seraiah, Meraiah; of Jeremiah, Hananiah; [13] of Ezra, Meshullam; of Amariah, Jehohanan; [14] of Melicu, Jonathan; of Shebaniah, Joseph; [15] of Harim, Adna; of Meraioth, Helkai; [16] of Iddo, Zechariah; of Ginnethon, Meshullam; [17] of Abijah, Zichri; of Miniamin, of Moadiah, Piltai; [18] of Bilgah, Shammua; of Shemaiah, Jehonathan; [19] and of Joiarib, Mattenai; of Jedaiah, Uzzi; [20] of Sallai, Kallai; of Amok, Eber; [21] of Hilkiah, Hashabiah; of Jedaiah, Nethaneel.

[22] The Levites in the days of Eliashib, Joiada, and Johanan, and Jaddua, were recorded chief of the fathers: also the priests, to the reign of Darius the Persian. [23] The sons of Levi, the chief of the fathers, were written in [r]the Book of the Chronicles, even until the days of Johanan the son of Eliashib. [24] And the chief of the Levites: Hashabiah, Sherebiah, and Jeshua the son of Kadmiel, with their brethren over against them, to praise and to give thanks, [s]according to the commandment of David the man of God, [t]ward over against ward. [25] Mattaniah, and Bakbukiah, Obadiah, Meshullam, Talmon, Akkub, were porters keeping the ward at the †thresholds of the gates. [26] These were in the days of Joiakim the son of Jeshua, the son of Jozadak, and in the days of Nehemiah [u]the governor, and of Ezra the priest, [v]the scribe.

ing the one true God: therefore the Spirit of prophecy, and the power of working miracles, had accomplished the object for which they were designed, and were now no longer necessary. The Jews, weaned from idolatry, and confirmed in the faith and worship of the one true God, were become the anxious and zealous guardians of his revealed religion.

After the conquests of Alexander, the Greek language gradually prevailed over the greater part of the known world, and with it a taste for literature was diffused. With the wonderful history of the Jews the surrounding nations must have been well acquainted, and as these people possessed the most valuable and authentic records, the well-informed and the curious would be emulous to obtain a knowledge of them. To this spirit of inquiry and information may be perhaps attributed the demand for their Scriptures in the Greek language.

Ptolemy about this time desired to place the Jewish Scriptures in his library; and the Septuagint version is supposed to have been now made or finished at his request, or for the use of the Jews in Alexandria; the difference between this version and the Hebrew in many passages may be accounted for by supposing that only a part was translated at the request of Ptolemy, many of the books perhaps having been already done from unauthenticated copies for the use of the Hellenizing Jews in various countries: all that we can be certain of, however, on this subject is, that they must have been collected into one volume after the time of Simon the Just, because the Septuagint version contains the whole of the canonical books, which before his time were not completed.

From the universality of the Greek language, and the dispersion of the Jews, the Septuagint probably was extensively known throughout the pagan world, and the knowledge of the true God, who never leaves himself without a witness, was thus communicated and preserved among the Gentiles, now that miracle and prophecy had ceased among the Jews.

The dispensation of Providence which ordained the discontinuance of miracles served to fix the attention of the Jews exclusively to the study of their Scriptures as the only means now left them of becoming acquainted with the divine will; it likewise tended to excite more forcibly the attention of the people to Him, who, in the appointed time, united in his own person the gifts and powers of miracle, and of prophecy. When Christ came into the world, his appearance was generally expected. The great anticipated a temporal king, a mighty hero, a conqueror of the Roman power. The poorer and more reflecting looked for him as the consolation of Israel, and few only understood the real nature of that spiritual dominion over the heart and conscience which he came to establish.

The time of the Messiah at length arrived. He was born in a manger, and cradled with oxen. The humble appearance—the unostentatious behaviour—the simple and pure teaching of the meek and lowly Jesus but ill accorded with the preconceived notions that had been formed of his appearance and kingdom. With these deep-rooted prejudices to overcome, nothing but the undeniable miracles of Christ could have satisfied the minds of men that he was the predicted Messiah. The long antecedent cessation of miracles made their revival more powerful and more efficacious. Our Lord therefore constantly appealed to them to confirm his mission. When John sent his disciples to inquire of him, "Art thou he that should come?" Jesus answered only by giving sight to the blind, strength to the lame, and by raising the dead to life, saying, "Go and tell John what ye have seen and heard." His miracles fully demonstrated his power and Godhead, and convinced every unprejudiced mind that the glory of the second temple had appeared, and that God had visited his people.
